Meanwhile voluminous affidavits have been filed on both sides, including a letter by Mrs. Eddy herself to the presiding judge, expressing her disbelief in the good faith of the original proceedings.

Judge Chamberlain has granted already a motion made by counsel for the original plaintiffs asking for 15 days after his direction on today's proceedings to file supplemental bills and pleadings, and it is known that whatever his decision this matter will be taken up the Supreme Court on appeal. The latter court does not sit between June and September.

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

A Cream of Tartar Powder free from alum or phosphatic acid

Makes Home Baking Easy

Impure Blood

Clogs the Kidneys
Slows the Heart
Flags the Brain.

Weakens Every Part of the Body
Causes Organic Diseases.

Just as strength is the natural outcome of pure blood, so is debility and sickness the result of impure blood.

To know how quickly, how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—see if the symptoms resemble yours.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz, of Kingston, writes: "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly, red, disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I have been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any druggists.

ENFORCING LABOR ARBITRATION

The industrial arbitration law of New Zealand has been watched by the world as one of the most interesting experiments in the adjudication of disputes between labor and capital. It may still be too soon to pass final judgment on its beneficence, and it may be that opinions concerning its general effect thus far upon trade and industry differ widely. But one point on which there was at first much doubt appears, according to the High Commissioner for New Zealand in London, to be pretty well settled. That is, the practicability of enforcing the provisions of the law upon workingmen as well as upon their employers. Under the law, disputes as to wages, etc., which cannot be settled by direct negotiation are required to be submitted to a court of arbitration, the decrees of which are binding on both parties—that is to say, on all who have registered for the purpose of being subject to the act. It was recognized that it would be easy to enforce obedience upon capitalists and employers, but it was widely supposed that it would be difficult, if not impossible, to do so upon workingmen. Thus if men demanded higher wages and the court refused to grant them, they might go on strike and it would be impossible for the court to compel them to resume work at the old rates.

As a matter of fact, however, that very thing which was regarded as impossible has proved to be not only possible, but easy. A little time ago, the High Commissioner relates, about two hundred butchers in the slaughter houses at Canterbury demanded an increase of five shillings for each 100 sheep slaughtered. The arbitration court decided that they should have an increase of only three shillings. This award the employers accepted. The men rejected it and went on strike. Thereupon the court fined them £5 apiece for striking in contempt of court. They refused to pay the fines or to resume work. Then the court issued warrants for their arrest and imprisonment for a considerable time unless they at once complied with its decree. That brought them to terms. They went back to work at the three shillings advance decreed by the court and paid their fines, the court generously permitting some of them to do so in instalments of £1 a week. In several other places men who attempted to evade the decrees of the court were brought to book in the same summary fashion. "In this way," concludes the High Commissioner, "the act was vindicated."

Whether such a system will prove permanently satisfactory remains to be determined by experience. We can imagine some men regarding it as little better than slavery. To fine a man heavily for voluntarily quitting work and to compel him under pain of imprisonment to work for lower wages than he wants may seem sheer despotism. Yet, after all, it is a matter of keeping or breaking contracts. When men in New Zealand engage to work they enter into a contract to continue work, and in case of dispute to abide by the decision of the court. Certainly if an employer is to be held to his side of the contract under penalty it is only fair that employes should be held to their side of it; and seeing that the New Zealand system was adopted chiefly by the device and at the demand of the workingmen, there should be no complaint from them against its impartial enforcement.

LONDON ROWDIES.

The Way They Terrorized the Citizens in the Old Days.

Some curious particulars of the dangers of London streets in the old days are given in an article on "The Scowrers and the Mobocks" in the British Monthly Review. The favorite practice of the Scowrers was to invade some tavern in the evening, drive out the customers, ill treat the proprietor and his attendants, wreck the premises and, above all, "roar." Steele tells of the Mohocks, one of whose pastimes was to "inclose women in casks and roll them down the street." In 1712 a royal proclamation was issued offering a reward of £100 for the apprehension of any Mohock. Soon after the accession of George IV. to the throne in 1820 there was a recrudescence, though in a milder form, of Mohock rowdyism, and attacks on the watch—"boxing the Charlies," as the phrase went—once more became fashionable among the wilder spirits of London. These revelries, however, were rudely disturbed by the establishment in 1829 by Sir Robert Peel of an efficient body of police.

Yet again in early Victorian days there was another Mohock outburst under the auspices of the Marquis of Waterford, and once more knockers and bell handles were wrenched off, public monuments injured, lights extinguished and crockery smashed. This form of humor, however, was quite wasted upon the local authorities, the marquis being promptly knocked down by a watchman and taken up half dead. The same authority tells us that in the following year he and some other men of fashion were convicted at Derby assizes of trying to overturn a caravan, screwing up a toll barkeeper and painting houses and people red. For these recreations they were fined £100 apiece.

MODERN FAIRYLAND.

Electricity More Potent Than Aladdin's Famous Lamp.

Was Aladdin's lamp so very wonderful? Today we touch a button when a messenger is needed; we press another, and the room is flooded with light. It is not recorded that Aladdin's old brass implement was of any value for illuminating a dark room. Our slaves of the lamp do not terrify us by their horrid appearance. They are placed afar off in a home of their own and are always ready to furnish us with light and heat at any time of the day or night. Is not that simpler and more direct than to have to carry an ugly piece of brass about with us, which when rubbed did not give what was wanted, but merely brought the servant?

And was the magic mirror so much superior to the telephone? Who would not prefer to talk with his friends to merely seeing them dimly through a clouded mirror? Truly the telephone is one of the most romantic devices that has ever rewarded man's endeavors. And yet the magic mirror, while it seems improbable, may lead to it, but even then it would only supplement the telephone.

And in what way was the fairy boat or coach superior to the electric launch or automobile? True, the rider did not know how or why it moved, but this same advantage holds for many who today use these very equipages. And one can easily believe that we are not far from the true flying machine.—Electrical Review.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Rockefeller's Share

New York, May 20.—The Standard Oil Co. has disbursed from January 1, 1898, to date a total of $380,075,000 in dividends. If John D. Rockefeller owns a third of the stock, as some people credit him with owning, his income alone from Standard Oil over the last nine and one-half years has been close to $127,000,000, or $75,000,000 less than his total fortune as recently estimated by one of his associates.

Carpets Cleaned Quickly and Well

The Peterborough Carpet Cleaning Works at the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, whose gendercus machinery may daily be heard getting more dust out of carpets with less wear and tear on the fabric, in an hour, than seventeen dozen perspiring, sulphur breathing language employing husbands, armed with clubs or brooms could in a day, all working overtime and meeting with compliments from many of Peterborough's thrifty and exacting housewives. Their phone No is 472a, and orders are filled at short notice. Old carpets are given the appearance of new without damage to the goods.

We publish the formulas of all our preparations. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A New Orleans Dish.

The greatest, the most toothsome and sustaining of all dishes is the gombo file one encounters in New Orleans—not at public eating houses, but in private residences. It is a strange yet halcyon compound of five different integers, each cooked separately and afterward joined in a most delectable and fragrant mess. There are fried chicken, broiled bacon, stewed oysters, peppers and smothered onions, all prepared with unutterable skill. These one by one are emptied into a pot of most celestial "stock," and then when the conglomeration is complete for service the presiding genius of the kitchen pours into the ecstatic confection a shower of fine green dust—the powdered leaf of the sassafras—and there you have a plate that would have made Lucullus gasp in simple wonder. There is none like it nor shall be till our summers are deceased.

Hammers.

Hammers are represented on the monuments of Egypt twenty centuries before our era. They greatly resembled the hammer now in use, save that there were no claws on the back for the extraction of nails. The first hammer was undoubtedly a stone held in the hand. Claw hammers were invented some time during the middle ages. Illuminated manuscripts of the eleventh century represent carpenters with claw hammers. Hammers are of all sizes, from the dainty instruments used by the jeweler, which weigh less than half an ounce, to the gigantic fifty ton hammer of shipbuilding establishments, some of which weigh as much as fifty tons and have a falling force of from ninety to a hundred. Every trade has its own hammer and its own way of using it.

Queer Weather Forecasting.

One of the rites performed by the French peasants on New Year's eve is the forecasting of the weather for the coming year by means of onions. When the bells ring for midnight mass they scoop out the middles of twelve onions, set them in a row on the kitchen table, fill them with salt and name them for the months of the year. Then when they return from mass they examine the condition of the salt. If it has melted in any of the "months," those months will be rainy; if the salt remains dry, it indicates drought; if half melted, the first fortnight of the month will be wet. The peasants have such implicit faith in this means of forestalling the weather that they plant their crops in accordance with the prophecy of the onions.

The Iron Law of Caste.

As an illustration of the exclusiveness of caste, which a native of India will do almost anything to preserve, it might be mentioned that when money passes between a low caste and a high caste man the coin is thrown on the ground by the one and picked up by the other for fear of defilement. They may not stand on the same carpet or enter the same room. Neither must the low caste man cross the threshold of his superior's house or hut. If he wants to communicate with him he stands outside and bawls.

An Invitation.

"Mabel," he said, "I love you. I place my happiness in your hands"—

"For goodness sake," she cried pleadingly, "don't do it now!"

"Why not?"

"Because I'm quite sure I'll need both hands in a minute or so to keep you from kissing me."

An Adage Vindicated.

"Where there's so much smoke there must be some fire."

The boss was speaking. He had just detected the office boy consuming a cigarette on the premises.

The adage was verified immediately. The boy got the fire.

The Very Worst.

Schoolmistress—Now, tell me the truth, Johnny Jones. You know what will happen if you tell a lie, don't you? Johnny Jones—Yes, ma'am; I'll go to a bad place. Schoolmistress—Yes, and that isn't the worst of it. You'll also be expelled from school.

Man's Character.

According to an old French saying, "A man's character is like his shadow, which sometimes follows and sometimes precedes him and which is occasionally longer, occasionally shorter, than he is."

There is no grace in a benefit that sticks to the fingers.—Seneca.

—Mr. George H. Howson, inspector of weights and measures, returned Saturday from a business trip to Apsley, Burleigh, Lanaware, Clydesdale and other northern points.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart disease. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wrathful nerve centers. It builds Heart Strengthens; is chock full, genuine heart help. If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen those nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

THE CITY OF FORT WILLIAM

WITH ILLIMITABLE POSSIBILITIES

The Second Greatest Shipping Point in the Dominion of Canada

Midway between the great East, and the vast West. The opportunities of a man's life is presented at the present time in real estate investments in Fort William, no surer investment anywhere today, than in this City at the head of the Five Great Lakes. If you want to make money NOW is your chance. We have made money for all our investors, and can make money for you.

We are Offering lots in

"The River Park Addition"

Which is only a short distance from the centre of Fort William. It is nice, high and dry properties, and, no doubt, will repeat the history of other half-acres, close to this property. Three years ago these half-acres close to River Park were sold at from $45 to $75 per half-acre. Today we are selling them from $1,200 to $2,500 per half-acre, according to location. Think of the advance in 3 years. We believe that "River Park Lots" will repeat the history of these other half-acres.

"RIVER PARK" is a subdivison of lot No. 7, Concession No. 3, Fort William. It is subdivided into half-acre blocks which are selling at from $250 to $275 per half-acre, on the terms of 1-4 cash, 1-4 in 6 months 1-4 in 12 months and 1-4 in 18 months. Interest at 7 per cent on the unpaid principal.

Why River Park Lots Should Double Themselves In One Year

IT IS SITUATED on one of the best streets in Fort William today, being on the north side of Arthur Street, which runs direct from the centre of Fort William out a distance of 16 or 18 miles to almost the foot of the Kakabeka Falls, making it the leading road to the city. Arthur Street is travelled by all the farmers from the outlying Townships, and it is also the pleasure driveway of our City.

THE RIVER PARK has now electric lights and telephone communication. The City of Fort William is building towards River Park fast. If property three years ago was selling at $75 per half-acre, and if it has advanced to from $1,200 to $2,500 per half-acre, WHY WILL NOT River Park increase equally as fast, when it is in such an ideal location. The Grand Trunk Pacific bought their right-of-way through the west portion of this property, affording track frontage for manufacturers.

DO NOT FORGET that the C. P R. handled 2,090,000 tons of freight during 1906, in Fort William. Over $500,000 was collected in Customs in 1906, and over 850 vessels arrived in the Harbor in 1906. There was over 750,000 tons of coal handled, and over 175,000 tons of steel rails received at Fort William in 1906.

The Grand Trunk Pacific will expend over $400,000,000 in 1907 here. The C N.R. have 3,000 miles of railroad, bringing freight into Fort William. The C.P R. have 5,000 miles of railroad, bringing freight into Fort William, and the Grand Trunk Pacific also have their Terminals at Fort William.

There were over 51,000,000 bushels of grain handled at this Port in 1906.

The above is just a little illustration of what the City of Fort William is doing, and it cannot help being one of the greatest Cities in Canada in the near future. Look at your map, and size it up for yourself, and we feel sure that you will be convinced that there is money in Fort William real estate.

Write or wire at our expense and we will pick you out one or more of these valuable lots. Price $250 and $275. Terms 1-4 cash, and the balance in 6, 12, and 18 months.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,
Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1903, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

"We're so glad you've come, Cap'n," said Miss Prissy, after the fans were laid on the table. "We've got so many things to talk to you about, and we want to ask your advice. Bradley, don't you think you'd like to go out into the dinin' room a little while?"

The boy, acting upon this decided hint, went into the dining room, and Miss Prissy shut the door after him.

"Now, Cap'n Titcomb," she began, "I 'spose you were awfully surprised to hear we'd took a boy to bring up? Well, you ain't any more surprised than we are to think we should do such a thing. But it seemed as if we jest had to or else give up bein' Christians altogether. I'll tell you how it was."

And she did tell him, beginning with the exact relationship between Bradley's mother and the Allens, expatiating upon the shiftlessness of the boy's father and how he "never saved a cent," nor even took out an insurance policy to provide for his son in case of his own death.

"But, mercy me," she exclaimed, lifting her hands, "what on earth we'll do with a boy is more'n I know. What shall we do?"

"Bring him up in the way he ought to go, I guess," replied the captain gamely. "Send him to school first thing. How is he off for clothes?"

"Hasn't got any that are fit for anything but the rag bag," replied Miss Prissy with decision. "And that's another thing. Who's goin' to buy 'em for him? I'm sure I don't know what a boy needs to wear any more than a cat."

"I'll buy his fit out, if you want me to," said the captain. "Take him down to Weeks' store right now, if you say the word."

"Oh, I wish you would. You pay Mr. Weeks, and I'll pay you."

They pressed the captain to stay for dinner, or at least to return for that meal, but he declined, promising, however, to dine with them before he went back to his vessel.

"Come on, Brad," he said, entering the dining room; "you and me's goin' on a cruise downtown."

Bradley put on the shabby overcoat and cap for the last time and walked down to the back gate and along the sidewalk with the captain.

Meanwhile Miss Tempy, seated in the rocker by the window and holding a fan in each hand, was examining them with the greatest care.

"Prissy," she said at last in a solemn tone, "they're jest exactly alike."

"Yes," said her sister, with a stifled sigh, "they're jest alike."

"Here's a little somethin' I brought for you, Tempy."

CHAPTER III.

IN "Weeks' store" was to be found an assortment of wares ranging from potatoes and razors to molasses and ladies' dress goods. Somewhere within this extensive range was a limited supply of what Mr. Weeks' advertisement in the Item called "Youths', Men's and Children's Clothing in Latest Styles at Moderate Prices." The styles were "late"—about a year late—and the prices were moderate when the lengthy period of credit given to customers is taken into consideration.

Captain Titcomb, exchanging greetings with the half dozen loungers by the stove, whose business there was, as Mr. Weeks himself said, "to swap bad tobacco smoke for heat," passed to the rear of the store, followed by Bradley. There he proceeded to select an entire outfit for the boy calculated to clothe him in successive layers from the skin outward. When the pile of garments on the counter was complete the captain and Mr. Weeks entered into a lengthy argument concerning price. There was a "Sunday hat" involved in the transaction, and about this piece of headgear the battle waged fiercest.

"It's too much money, Caleb," said the captain finally. "I guess I'll try the New York store. Tom Emery's always treated me fair enough, and I'll give him a chance. Come on, Brad."

"I'll take off a quarter on the suit," conceded the storekeeper, who was loath to see so much custom go to a rival.

"No," was the reply, "that ain't enough to amount to anything. Tell you what I'll do, Caleb. Throw in that Sunday hat and I'll take the lot and pay you cash for it and run my risk of gittin' the money."

So the bargain was concluded on that basis. Bradley retired to the back room and emerged clothed in his new garments and tremendously conscious of the fact. The captain said he looked so fresh that you could "smell the paint on him."

"Say, Caleb," said "Squealer" Wixon after Captain Titcomb and his protege had left the premises, "did Ez tell you who that boy was?"

"No, he didn't. I hinted two or three times, but he wouldn't say."

"Well, I'll tell you. 'Twas the old maids' boy—Ben Nickerson's son. Barney said he brought him over in the coach last night."

"You don't mean it!" exclaimed the chopfallen Mr. Weeks. "Well, if that ain't enough to— Ez made me throw in a hat that was wuth a dollar 'n' a ha'f 'cause he said he'd pay cash for everything and take his chance of gittin' his money back. And Prissy and Tempy always pay cash for everything. Reg'lar Titcomb trick!"

The loafers about the store roared with delight.

"Oh, I tell you," remarked "Squealer," "you've got to keep your weather eye peeled when you're dealin' with Cap'n Ez. He'll have you, head and scales, if you ain't careful."

"That's all right," grumbled "Bluey" Bacheldor, "but he'll git fetched up all standin' some of these days. You can call him smart if you want to, but it's pretty risky smartness, most folks think. You notice his schooner's always makin' record trips, and he's always havin' presents give him and all that. How many presents did you have give to you, Cap'n Jabez, when you was runnin' a coaster?"

"Not a one," indignantly replied the person addressed, Captain Jabez Bailey. "Not a one. What I got I had to work for."

It may be that Captain Jabez overworked during his sea experiences. Certainly no one in Orham had known him to do a stroke of work since he retired to live on his wife's earnings as a dressmaker.

"Well," commented Captain Eri Hedge, who was not a member of the circle, but had dropped in to buy some tobacco, "I like Cap'n Ez. He does love to git the best of a bargain, and he's a 'driver' on a vessel, and perhaps he likes to shave the law pretty close sometimes. Ez is a reg'lar born gambler for takin' chances, but I never knew him to do a mean trick."

John L. Did It

Washington, May 18. — President Roosevelt has granted a conditional pardon to John L. Lennon, a nephew of John L. Sullivan, serving a sentence at Governor's Island, for alleged desertion from the marine corps while in Cuba. The condition named by the president is that Lennon re-enlist and serve the full term of four years, he having been dishonorably discharged. When Lennon was captured after his alleged desertion he had been absent three days. Mr. Sullivan while in Washington recently saw the president about the case, and argued that his relative did not intend to desert but had merely over-stayed his leave of absence.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MISS MARGARET M. HANNA.

Confidential Secretary to Assistant Secretary of State Alvey A. Adee.

Miss Margaret M. Hanna enjoys the distinction of being one of the keenest diplomats in the government service.

In her capacity of confidential secretary to Assistant Secretary of State Alvey A. Adee, Miss Hanna has at her command the full knowledge of affairs which pass through the office of the assistant secretary of state, and frequently during the absence of that officer she conducts the office almost as efficiently as her distinguished chief.

MISS MARGARET M. HANNA.

She is regarded by the high officials as the most efficient woman employee in the government service.

Miss Hanna is an accomplished linguist and each year collects all the diplomatic correspondence of the year and compiles it in a book, which is published under the title of "Foreign Relations."

Tea-Aquiess by Night.

A vast number of people are needlessly anxious about their manners. Having been "house trained" all their lives, contentedly and usefully rounding out their days among kindred and neighbors who love and understand them and share their standards, says an editorial in the Home Journal, they are prone when they make a rare excursion into another atmosphere to a painful self consciousness that spoils their pleasures.

Travel is not at all necessary to culture. Some of the finest culture the world has ever seen owed nothing to travel. But there is one comfortable result of travel, and that is the assurance it gives that people are pretty much alike. The superficial traveler may be impressed by "how different" things abroad are from those at home, but the wise observer is always being newly made aware how much the same are things the world over.

So with the gift of tongues. One of the best services it does for us is to show how much in common different people have when they can understand each other. History is another help. The deeper into the past the student delves the more wonderfully he realizes how little time has altered human nature. And as for exalted rank and superior talents, it seems as if every one ought to enjoy the advantage of informal association with at least one celebrity, if only to prove how little real difference there or splendor makes.

Knowing these things keeps one delightfully free from that diffidence which prevents many persons from appearing well in strange society and from getting that best of the stranger relish he can give only to one with whom he can be at ease. When it comes to manners there are very few things, after all, that are essential, and more people make an awkward appearance because they are too concerned about their manners than err in the other extreme. An absorbed interest in another individual, an eager desire to learn how his experience of life corroborates or transcends our own, a sweet willingness to give of our best toward the pleasantableness of the occasion—these are much better beginnings in good manners than are all the etiquette books in creation.

The way to enjoy other people is to think as little as possible of any points in which they may differ from us and as much as possible of the many points in which they must resemble us. And as for which fork to eat fish with, and whether to leave one card or two, and what to say to a hostess when presented—what folly to agonize oneself into a cold perspiration over these things when if we but knew the truth we should find that about four-fifths of those present had no more settled convictions on the subject than we. And if we could see the knowing fifth neatly roped off from the rest we should find fewer of the great, the interesting, the delightful among them than among the others. Great men eat with the wrong fork quite as often as do shy girls from the country.

Javelle Water.

Javelle water is sold by most druggists, but it is not difficult to make and is much more economical when prepared at home. Every housewife should use it, as it is effective in keeping linen and children's dresses free from fruit stains. A small teacup of the fluid added to a boiler of water will assist materially in keeping the clothes white and will not hurt them in the least.

The most obstinate stains of fruit, tea, coffee, etc., in the tablecloth and napkins will succumb to an application of one part of javelle water diluted with four parts of soft water. If the stained article is soaked in this fluid for several hours, thoroughly [illegible]

Every vein in the Strathcona trends in the same direction, and has the same contacts (diabase and conglomerate) as the biggest and richest veins in Cobalt camp. Our neighbor on the east, the Loeb, has yielded ore assaying 3,000 ounces to the ton. Two independent engineers, Mr. John Black and Mr. J. Hyland, making separate examinations of The Strathcona coincide in pronouncing it a property of remarkable promise. Work is being vigorously pushed on the claim, and we expect to have two shafts sunk and begin shipping before summer is over.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1897 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,150,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 180,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

SELECTIONS

St. George's Lake.

St. George's lake, in Liberty, is said to be one of the handsomest sheets of water in Maine. It is fed almost entirely by springs, and its waters are so clear that objects on its bottom can be seen plainly when the water is many feet deep. The water at the outlet of the lake passes down a descent, and the fall in three-quarters of a mile is estimated to be 175 feet.

Norway Seaweed.

Norway's seaweed, used as fuel, yields a greater revenue than its fisheries.

The Kind Hearted Burmese.

If an animal is ill or hurt the Burman gives it the best of care, but never kills it to put it out of its misery. "Poor beast," he says. "Let him live his little life," and he gives it grass and water until it dies.

George IV.

An English writer declares that George IV. was the most entirely odious man that ever disgraced the British throne.

Desert Cacti.

The cacti of New Mexico and Arizona flourish best in the driest soils. A cactus will grow in sand which is so dry as to rise in clouds of dust at the least breeze.

Rabbit Pie.

Clean and joint two rabbits. Soak in salted water for two hours, wash in fresh water and put into a pie dish with a handful of chopped parsley, an onion with ten cloves stuck into it, a dash of grated nutmeg, pepper and salt to taste. Fill the dish with hot water, cover with a good paste and bake for one and one-half hours.

The Poppy.

The name of the poppy is derived from the Latin expression signifying "pap, or thick milk." The juice of the poppy in its original state is used by Indian mothers to quiet their children.

When Children Were Hanged.

As late as 1831 an unhappy little lad of nine was hung at Chelmsford, England, for setting a barn on fire at Witham.

Imported Art.

A New York young woman, a graduate of one of the city's art schools, was very much amused recently when a salesman in a Broadway shop tried to sell her a vase of her own decoration, explaining the high price by saying it was "imported and the work of a noted French artist."

Chile.

Chile is probably the most progressive of all the Spanish speaking countries. It was the first to build railways, of which it now has over 3,000 miles. It also has 11,000 miles of telegraph.

Baskets.

Baskets are made both by hand and by machine. Very fine qualities of baskets come from China, Japan and India, being made of peculiar varieties of grasses which grow in those parts of the world. Willow baskets are still made by hand, although machinery has been extensively introduced in their manufacture. Wire baskets are machine made.

Public Revenues.

Seventy-one per cent of the revenue of civilized nations is from taxation, 14 per cent from state railways, 15 per cent from postoffice, crown lands and public property.

Shark Eggs.

According to Professor Costa, the period of incubation in shark eggs is about nine months.

Useful Vines.

To keep dirt in place where it may become loosened and fall away, it has been suggested by one who has tested them to use the Japanese honeysuckle or Virginia creeper.

The Balance of a Pick.

Carpenters, blacksmiths, axmen and others accustomed to the constant use of tools with long handles know that if the tools are not so balanced that the force of a blow falls upon the center of percussion an uncomfortable jar is felt. An ax or a hammer particularly well balanced is regarded as a peculiar treasure.

Walls of Asia Minor.

Trajan and subsequent emperors built a line of walls from the Black sea to the Caspian to protect Asia Minor and another line from the intrenchment to the river Euphrates.

His Bald Head.

Russell of the Scotsman, being once rallied by a gray headed friend upon his baldness, silenced him with the remark, "My hair preferred death to dishonor."

The Horse.

A horse can live twenty-five days without solid food, merely drinking water; seventeen days without either eating or drinking and only five days when eating solid food without drinking.

A Mexican Titbit.

Pinole is a Mexican corn dainty. The corn is roasted, ground to a coarse meal, mixed with sugar and spices and then stirred with water. It is very nutritious and often forms the sole food of travelers on long journeys.

Japanese Magicians.

Some Japanese magicians are so clever that while smoking they are able to form letters and short words with the smoke that issues from their lips.

FISHY WISHY FANCIES.

Sometimes when I am weary
I have the curious wish
That I were but a tadpole
Or just a jelly fish.

For if I were a tadpole
I'd have no social fads;
I'd spend my time "in swimmin'"
With other little lads.

And if I were a jell fish,
Then all day long I'd eat
My mother's apple jellies
Or other jells as sweet.

But, ah, I can't play tadpole,
For I am twenty-nine—
And hopping like a bullfrog
To keep myself in line!

And how can I indulge me
This jelly fishy whim?
I'm flopping like a flounder
To keep me "in the swim."
—Robertus Love in Judge.

Considerate.

Bobby—Yes, ma'am; I eat all the candy 'cause it makes her sick.—Philadelphia Press.

Something Wrong.

The lad timidly entered the office of the old broker.

"Well, my boy," said the broker, wheeling in his chair, "I suppose you have come to apply for a position as office boy?"

"Y-yes, sir," replied the lad, twitching his hat nervously.

"H'm! How many grandmothers have you?"

"None, sir. Both are dead."

"Well, how often do you get the mumps in the baseball season?"

"Never, sir. I only have the mumps in the winter."

"Strange. Then what excuse do you make up when you wish to take an afternoon off to see a ball game?"

"None at all, sir. I don't like baseball, and I have never been to a game in my life."

The old broker gave a low whistle.

"My lad," he exclaimed, "any American boy who doesn't like baseball must be a freak. You'd better go in a dime museum."—Chicago News.

Hard Lines.

Dr. Austin Flint, the alienist, said at the Century club in New York apropos of a will contest that had been tried last year:

"The plaintiff lost, and no wonder. His case was as difficult a one as that of the young man who appeared unduly depressed after the death of his rich aunt.

"'Why are you so sad?' an acquaintance said to the young man. 'You never appeared to care much for your aunt.'

"'I didn't,' said the youth dolefully, 'but I was the means of keeping her in an insane asylum the last five years of her life, and now that she has left me all her money I've got to go to court and prove that she was of sound mind.'"—Washington Star.

Why Not?

"Certainly I'm going to the reception," said the conceited chump. "I believe the beautiful Miss Swellman will be there."

"Surely you don't expect her to speak to you?" remarked the quiet man.

"Why not?" asked the conceited chump. "What's the matter? Is she bashful?"—Catholic Standard and Times.

Theory Upset.

"De Squalle has disproved one pet theory anyway."

"What one and how?"

"It is commonly believed that lemons are good for the voice, and his doesn't improve in the least in spite of the fact that the critics hand him a lemon everywhere he goes."—Judge.

Man and His Opinion.

"Every man has a right to his opinion."

"Yes. The great trouble with a good many people who have opinions is that they think they have the right to bore everybody else with them."—Ohio State Journal.

Called.

"I did want to tip you, waiter," said McBluff, "but I have no change."

"I can make change for you, sir," said the waiter.

"Er—can you? Well—er—give me five pennies for this nickel."—Philadelphia Press.

Her Title Clear.

"Well," said Mrs. Nagget, "I guess I have a perfect right to my opinions."

"Of course you have, my dear," replied her husband, "and if you only kept them to yourself no one would ever question that right."—Baltimore News.

The Lesser Evil.

"But," interrupted the critic, "a good long walk is worse, isn't it?"—Minneapolis Journal.

Natural Conclusion.

"Yes. Every little while I hear that some one has escaped from a lunatic asylum."—Houston Post.

A Telephone.

"Oh, a rose and a pink have bloomed today!"
Said little Inez Edith to her mother.
"I watched them open leaf by leaf,
And they nodded to each other
As if there was something they wished to say,
A secret, you know, and there was no way.

"And then a spider, with wondrous skill—
You'll hardly believe it, mother—
Stretched a web from the pink to the rose
So they could talk to each other,
And ever since then their heads are still,
For they say through their telephone
What they will."

GIVE NATURE A CHANCE.

The strongest minds have gotten their inspiration direct from Nature. Nature is the great teacher of mankind. We can look to Nature for all our needs. In the recent Russo-Japanese war the surgeons of the Japanese navy and army discovered that wounds would heal more rapidly and with better success if left to Nature. They washed the wounds with water which had been boiled and thus sterilized—then bandaged the wounds with clean linen—no powerful drugs or antiseptics were used in their first aid to the injured. Such methods resulted in the loss of only 32 out of 602 men treated in a naval hospital for their wounds. It is only from lack of observing Nature's laws that most of us suffer at one time or another from indigestion, impure blood and a generally run-down system. Our remedy lies in Nature's laboratory—deep in the fragrant woods—where are many American plants, the roots of which when properly treated will supply a health-giving tonic.

Many years ago a physician who had an extensive practice among the afflicted made a striking departure from the usual methods of his confreres in medicine—he went straight to Nature for the cure of those stomach disorders which resulted so often in an anaemic condition, or impure blood, loss of appetite, pale or pimply skin, feeling of lassitude and weakness. He found that the bark of the Black Cherry-tree, the root of the Mandrake, Stone root, Queen's root, Bloodroot and Golden Seal root, made into a scientific, non-alcoholic extract by the use of glycerine, made the best alterative and tonic. The refreshing influence of this extract is at once apparent in the recovered strength of the patient—the vital fires of the body burn brighter and their increased activity consumes the tissue rubbish which otherwise may poison the system. This alterative and tonic extract has been found to stand alone as a safe, invigorating tonic, as it does not depend on alcohol for a false stimulation, but is Nature's own method of strengthening and cleansing the system. It tones up the stomach and the blood in Nature's own way. It is well known all over the world as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The name was given to this vegetable compound because one of the important ingredients was Golden Seal root. " " " Such an authority as Dr. Roberts Bartholow, of Jefferson Medical College, says "very useful as a stomachic tonic. Cures catarrh of the stomach and headaches accompanying the same." Dr. Grover Coe, in his book Organic Medicines, speaking of Golden Seal root, says that "as a liver invigorator it has few equals." Further he says, "in chronic inflammation of the bladder we deem it one of the most reliable agents of cure." As a tonic in the convalescing stages of fevers, pneumonia, dysentery and other acute diseases Hydrastis (Golden Seal root) is peculiarly appropriate."

Dr. Coe continues: "We would here add that our experience has demonstrated the Hydrastis or Golden Seal root to be a valuable remedy in bronchitis, laryngitis, and other affections of the respiratory organs."

"Of service in chronic catarrh of the stomach and bowels following abuse of alcohol, a tonic after malarial fever. Has a distinct, anti-malarial influence. Good in all catarrhal conditions, as uterine catarrh, leucorrhœa, etc. Is a curative agent in chronic dyspepsia."—Hobart A. Hare, M. D., University of Pennsylvania.

Prof. John M. Scudder in Specific Medication says: "It stimulates the digestive processes, and increases the assimilation of food. By these means the blood is enriched, and this blood feeds the muscular system. I mention the muscular system because I believe it first feels the increased power imparted by the stimulation of increased nutrition. The consequent improvement on the nervous and glandular systems are natural results.

In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

After many years of study and laboratory work Dr. R. V. Pierce produced the most happy combination of this Golden Seal root with other efficacious roots—enhancing and increasing in curative power these native plants from our American forests by the addition of chemically pure glycerine, of proper strength, which is far better than alcohol, both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles residing in plants. Glycerine itself is useful in medicine to subdue inflammation and by cleansing the membrane of the stomach of abnormal secretions aids in the cure of dyspepsia, and stomach and intestinal troubles.

The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages, is sent free, on receipt of stamps, to pay expense of customs and mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for the book in paper covers, or 50 stamps for the cloth-bound volume. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, 663 Main Street, Buffalo, N. Y.

The Mole.

A mole will eat at least 20,000 earthworms in the course of a year. It is the hungriest of all animals and for its size the strongest. If kept without food for twenty-four hours a mole dies of hunger.

Tears in the Commons.

John Bright wept as for a brother when he spoke before parliament of the death of Cobden. Gladstone's emotion overcame him when he touched upon the assassination of Lord Frederick Cavendish, while Lord Salisbury wept unrestrainedly when Lord Rosebery made his oration on the death of the Grand Old Man.

A Prolific Writer.

The titles of the writings of Mr. Gladstone fill twenty-two pages of the British museum printed catalogue.

Fatty Lambert.

Daniel Lambert, the famous fat man and the most noted example of obesity recorded in medical annals, was born in 1770 and died at the age of forty of excessive fat. His weight was 739 pounds.

Excess of Women.

There are more women than men in New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. The largest proportion is in Massachusetts closely run by the District of Columbia.

The Chrysoprase.

Modern patrons of the chrysoprase may not know that it was deemed a lucky stone in the days of King Solomon. What an exquisite color it has! But no two specimens are of quite the same tint.

Jenny Lind.

Jenny Lind was born Oct. 21, 1821 at Stockholm, Sweden. She made her American debut in Castle Garden, New York, Sept. 11, 1850. She died in London Nov. 2, 1887.

Slept a Year.

In Blanchet's curious book, "Compte Rendus," mention is made of a girl who at the age of eighteen had a peculiar "spell," which the physician pronounced "constitutional lethargic slumber," which lasted for forty days. Again at the age of twenty she slept for fifty days. Her last recorded "long sleep" lasted almost a year—from April 20, 1862, until March, 1863.

False Alarm of Fire by a Fool

Those who were awakened at 1.15 yesterday morning, and particularly our poorly paid fire laddies who lose wages, time, sleep and meals by nearly every call to a fire, were disgusted to learn that the call from box No. 41 was a false alarm. Chief Rutherford yesterday in language of a full grown man's calibre over this senseless breaking of a glass to send in a false alarm, and vowed that if the offender is caught he will be given the full penalty of the law which is a fine of $50 and a term of imprisonment in jail. The firemen and police are keeping a sharp outlook for the offender, who sends in a false alarm.

Warm Time at Navy League

London, May 18.—At the annual meeting of the Navy League it was decided to abstain from appealing to the country to protest against the present naval policy of the government. Charges and counter charges, fiery speeches and angry interruptions were the features of the meeting.

B. F. Wyatt moved an amendment deeply deploring the diminution of naval strength involved in the reduction of the naval estimates. The amendment mentioned the abandonment of the Esquimalt and other naval stations. Mr. Wyatt told of the differences between himself and the majority of the committee.

Admiral Freemantle disagreed with the amendment, which was rejected by 44 to 27.

The Knock-out Blow.

The blow which knocked out Corbett was a revelation to the prize fighters. From the earliest days of the ring the knock-out blow was aimed for the jaw, the temple or the jugular vein. Stomach punches were thrown in to worry and weary the fighter, but if a scientific man had told one of the old fighters that the most vulnerable spot was the region of the stomach, he'd have laughed at him for an ignoramus. Dr. Pierce is bringing home to the public a parallel fact; that the stomach is the most vulnerable organ but of the prize ring as well as in it. We protect our heads, throats, feet and lungs, but the stomach we are utterly indifferent to, until disease finds the solar plexus and knocks us out. Make your stomach sound and strong by the use of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and you protect yourself in your most vulnerable spot. "Golden Medical Discovery" cures "weak stomach," indigestion, or dyspepsia, torpid liver, bad, thin and impure blood and other diseases of the organs of digestion and nutrition.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" has a specific curative effect upon all mucous surfaces and hence cures catarrh, no matter where located or what stage it may have reached. In Nasal Catarrh it is well to cleanse the passages with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy fluid while using the "Discovery" as a constitutional remedy. Why the "Golden Medical Discovery" cures catarrhal diseases, as of the stomach, bowels, bladder and other pelvic organs will be plain to you if you will read a booklet of extracts from the writings of eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients and explaining their curative properties. It is mailed free on request. Address Dr. R.V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. This booklet gives all the ingredients entering into Dr. Pierce's medicines from which it will be seen that they contain not a drop of alcohol, pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead.

Dr. Pierce's great thousand-page illustrated Common Sense Medical Adviser will be sent free, paper-bound, for 31 one-cent stamps, or cloth-bound for 50 stamps. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

NARROW ESCAPE FOR PASSENGERS

Fifty Taken Off Burning Steamer Naomi by the Stratford---Four of the Crew Below in Bunks and Kept There by Flames

Grand Haven, Mich., May 22.—The steamer Naomi of the Crosby transportation company burned to the water's edge at 1.30 o'clock yesterday morning, while on her way from Grand Haven to Milwaukee. Fifty passengers were taken off by the steamer Stratford and transferred to the steamer Kansas of the same line. Four members of the crew were burned to death. Among the injured is J. M. Rhodes, of Detroit, who is in an hospital badly burned, and will probably die.

RESCUED IN SMALL BOATS.

Those rescued were taken off in small boats. The dead men were all coal passers. The loss on the Naomi, which was in command of Captain Thomas Traill, is estimated at $225-000. After the passengers and crew were rescued a barge put a line on the burning hulk, and towed her into this port.

The fire started near the kitchen, between the decks, and spread so rapidly that the whole ship was a seething furnace before the crew could get out the fire apparatus. Fire swept the whole length aft of the ship and the upper works burned like tinder. It is considered miraculous that the passengers all escaped. Many of them were taken off in their night clothing, while scarcely anyone was more than partially clad.

The fire was not discovered by any of the Naomi's crew, but was first seen by the look-out on the steamer Kansas, which was proceeding in the opposite direction from Milwaukee to Grand Haven. The Kansas made directly for the Naomi and in the meantime, the passengers of the ill-fated boat were awakened.

Capt. Traill was the last man to leave the steamer alive, and his clothing was almost burned off him.

The coal passers who perished were below in the bunks and are believed to have been penned down there by the flames. They are believed to have shipped from Milwaukee.

It is said by the passengers that screams of the dying men in the hold were heard, but that it was impossible to reach them.

Grand Haven, May 22.—The burned bodies of the four missing coal passers were found in the forecastle of the Naomi when the hulk was boarded here.

Residential parts Want Protection

Correspondent Thinks George Street Beat Gets Too Much Police Patrolling

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—I am well aware that this city does not supply a sufficient police force to in any way properly patrol the residential portions of the town. As it is, under existing circumstances the minature police force of Peterborough does as well as their restricted number allows. It is, to my mind, more a matter of luck than judgment on the part of our local authorities, that some of the slick "Peter-men, porch climbers and other classes of thieves have not scented out this city of ours for their operations. I have heard it said, in conversation with some of our city fathers that such matters should not get into print less gentry of the class above named be put wise.

I do not believe in this argument. Are the rate, and rent payers to go on, year after year, like ostriches, which when pacing their head in the sand to blind their sight, and therefore think others will not see, concealing the weakness of our police system. Neither five nor six men, no matter how accomplished, could possibly patrol the whole city of Peterborough. One suggestion however, I would make. Our force of two men on the beat at night, as far as I can learn simply put in their time walking along George street from say King to Brock streets.

Now my reason in writing this but protest is this. A few nights ago my wife, (but do not give my name away in this matter or I might fare worse than if no police force existed at all) who is a little over 60 years of age, was returning home from a church meeting, she was accosted at about 11.15 p.m., on a prominent residential street of the city, by a blackguard who insisted on "seeing her home." She quickly told him he had made a mistake, when this insulter of defenceless women, slunk away.

It seems to me that George street is sufficiently well lighted to take care of itself for a few hours at night, and that those on night duty might well pay hurried visits, at odd intervals to some parts of the city outside their leisurely stroll up and down George street.

Yours truly,

PROGRESS.

Two City Committees Will Meet Tonight

The usual Board of Works meeting will not be held tonight, but this does not mean that the aldermen will have a night off. Two committees will meet instead of the Board of Works. The Fire, Water and Light Committee has some routine business to dispose of, after which the Property Committee will have another session with the garbage bylaw, which they hope to have in shape to present to the Committee of the Whole Council on Monday night next.

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER

Get Rid of That Indigestion at Once by Using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion, and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

NEW CURE FOR DREADED CANCER

Erysipelas Germ Used to Cure Dread Disease

HUMOR DISAPPEARS

Unusual Treatment By Fighting One Germ With Another Proves Successful in Case of Woman

New York, May 21.—Remarkable effects upon a malignant cancer in a woman have been achieved at the General Memorial Hospital in this city by hypodermic injections of the mixed toxins of erysipelas and bacillus prodigiosus. The patient, the wife of a lieutenant in the United States army, was hurried to New York from the Philippines that she might see her parents before she died.

Dr. William B. Corley gave her forty-seven injections of the mixed toxins in combination with the X-ray, after which the cancerous growth was removed surgically, and the patient apparently entirely recovered. Examination of the growth showed it had degenerated very much under the toxin treatment, and it is said if the woman had been stronger the entire growth might have been absorbed without recourse to surgery.

The use of the mixed toxins is the result of a curious discovery in regard to the bacillus prodigiosus, which is a germ shaped like a rod. It has been known to grow and multiply rapidly on communion bread, thereby giving rise to the so-called miraculous "bleeding host." It is found in tumors. In erysipelas, on the other hand, there is a characteristic spherical germ which grows in chains and is called the strentococcus.

It was noticed that when a man with a cancerous growth got erysipelas the humor sometimes disappeared. It was believed the erysipelas cured the tumor. Consequently, scientists began to inoculate tumor patients with erysipelas. Now science goes a step further and inoculates the toxin of the tumor germ with the toxin or poison principle of the erysipelas germ.

Things Booming for Marathon Race

If the clerk of the weather has had a good and well digested breakfast the local Driving Park will in all human probability have a record "gate" on Victoria Day as a splendid program of races will be run off under auspices of the Peterborough Turf Club. Three horses races are on the tapis, a named race, 2.30 class, and free for all. A large number of entries have been received. The track is now in splendid shape. A special feature that will prove of great interest to those who hearing of a "20 class" horse thinks it means an animal who could do a mile in 20 hours, as well as the general public will be the unique Marathon foot race a worthy copy of this world wide recognized race of Greece. This foot race has already attracted the attention of quite a number of Canadian amateur runners who have sent in their entries, and will probably be one of the events for Canada on Victoria Day.

Apart from the splendid amateur Day, apart from the splendid amateur rewards now on exhibition in a George street store.

Whiskey Spies Get a Conviction

On Monday at the Port Hope police court some liquor cases were disposed of. W. J. Coulter, of Pontypool, was fined $50 and costs for selling liquor without a license, the offence having been committed the day that local option came into effect. Referring to the case the Port Hope Guide says:

Local option came in force in the township of Manvers on the first of May last. On the 30th of April three strangers arrived at Mr. Coulter's hotel and asked for a night's lodging. This was granted, and after breakfast, May 1st, Mr. Coulter informed them that local option was now in effect in Manvers and he could not sell them any. Then one of the trio remarked that they were strangers and as this was the first day for the local option he might give them one drink. Mr. Coulter obliged them and they at once informed Inspector Kennedy who laid the information. Mr. Coulter had disposed of all his liquors to a Peterborough firm and shipped them that afternoon, so it can be readily seen the intended to observe the law. However, these three whiskey spies, sent out by the Whitney Government were there bright and early and by their smoky tactics were successful in their mission. We do not for a moment wish to uphold any man who will violate the law, but at the same time, we think the plan for trapping men adopted by the Whitney Government is about the lowest and most contemptible ever heard of.

The same trio visited Hutchinson's hotel in Cavan and Crocker's at Millbrook, and were successful there also.

They arrived here on a Saturday evening, but the west hotel men were wise, and consequently their mission was not accomplished.

Local Young Lady Gets an Irish Paper

Belfast News-Letter Contains Loyal and Interesting News

Miss Watt whilst young in years is still an old and highly respected employe of the local post office staff, has received a copy of the Belfast News-Letter of May 6, in which an account of the opening of the International Exhibition is given. As many people in this city are interested in Ireland, a portion of the article giving the details of the opening ceremony may be of interest. The News-Leuter says in part;

The Irish International Exhibition of 1907 ranks today in the annals of Ireland, and also in the history of exhibitions as a memorable fact, demonstrating in the words of the King's message of hope to his viceroy, who conveyed it to the vast assemblage at the opening ceremony, "International progress made in Ireland." It was the proud boast of the Executive Committee in their address to his excellency the lord lieutenant that Dublin was one of the first cities in the world to embark in an international exhibition. That was 42 years ago, when, on the 12th May, the then viceroy, the Earl of St. Germans, opened Ireland's great industrial exhibition in Merrion Square in the presence of 15,000 persons. The Executive Committee might have claimed further credit—namely, that Dublin was the first city in the world to hold an exhibition of merit. That was in 1829, and the Royal Dublin Society, deserves the credit, as it does today, of producing the finest horse show in the world. But reverting to the exhibition of 1865, there were many present who recalled the State opening by Lord St. Germans, and still more, the visit to the exhibition in the end of August of that year of her Majesty Queen Victoria and Prince Albert and the Prince of Wales. The statue of the Prince Consort, is in the center of Leinster Lawn, and the statue of William Dargan, the projector of the exhibition, is in the front of the lawn on the west side of Merrion Square. It is for King Edward, who participated in that visit, to verify for himself next August the "international progress" which is the aspiration of his Majesty's thoughtful wishes.

AMONG THE CLERGY

Coffee Being Replaced by Postum Food Coffee

"I am the wife of a minister. About three years ago a warm friend, an exemplary mother and the conscientious wife of a minister, asked me if I had ever tried giving up coffee and using Postum Food Coffee. I had been telling her of my excessive nervousness and ill health. She said: 'We drink nothing else for breakfast but Postum, and it is a delight and comfort to have something that we do not have to refuse the children when they ask for it.'

"I was surprised that she would permit the children to drink even the food coffee, but she explained that it was a most healthful beverage and that the children thrived on it. A very little thought convinced me that for brain work, one should have food and the very best of food.

"My first trial of Postum was a failure. The maid of all work brought it to the table, lukewarm, weak, and altogether lacking in character. We were in despair, but decided on one more trial. At the second trial we faithfully followed the directions, used four teaspoonfuls to the pint of water, let it boil full fifteen minutes after the real boiling began, and served it with rich cream. It was delicious and we were all won.

"I have since sung the praises of Postum Food Coffee on many, many occasions and have induced numbers of friends to abandon coffee and use Postum, with remarkable results. The wife of a college professor said to me a short time ago that nothing had ever produced so marked a change in her husband's health as the leaving off of coffee and the use of Postum in its place." "There's a Reason." Read. "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Former Local Man Here on Business

Mr. Peter Thompson, jr., is in the city on a visit to his father, Mr. Peter Thompson, plumbing inspector, after nine years absence. Mr. Thompson, jr., is associated with the Rochester Amusement Co., a concern which operates 33 moving picture establishments throughout the United States and Canada, three only being operated in this country by this company, however.

The object of Mr. Thompson's business visit, is to secure a location in Peterborough for a branch of the business of the Rochester Amusement Company.

A Newsdealer's Case

Ottawa, May 19.—The conditions under which a news agency may remain open after nine o'clock on Saturdays, are to be decided by Magistrate O'Keefe here.

He has to define the difference between magazines and newspapers and whether news dealers can sell periodicals and magazines as newspapers after nine o'clock closing, enforced by the local bylaws.

There are two cases against local stations involving this knotty point. Both are accused of selling books after nine o'clock.

St. Petersburgh, May 20. — Count Leo Leowavitch Tolstoi, son of the famous author, who was arrested in February last, charged with high treason in publishing his father's latest political pamphlet, has been acquitted.

The court decided that the count had no criminal intent in republishing the pamphlet, which was printed abroad, but ordered the Russian edition to be burned and the plates destroyed.

SIR WILFRID IS WELL SATISFIED

Not Discouraged at the Slow Progress Towards Preferential Trade---Feared the Conference Would Form Into a Debating Society

London, May 22.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier authorizes the Chronicle to say he is perfectly satisfied with the work and results of the conference. Great progress has been made, and the way has been prepared for good work in the future. The Chronicle adds that the Canadian premier advocates preference, but is not disappointed because preference has not been obtained. He sees the difficulties in connection with applying preference and the impossibility of the colonies offering the mother country free trade.

"We depend," he says, "on our custom duties for our national revenues. They could be lowered but not extinguished, and it would be impossible for us to find other sources of revenue. We could not introduce the income tax nor the land tax, which would check the development of our resources."

Sir Wilfrid's alternative for preference is a scheme for providing quicker and better means of communication between Great Britain and the colonies. He hopes that by the time he returned in July the government will have arrived at a decision on the question. It is important that there should be no delay.

As the reports of the conference will show, Sir Wilfrid Laurier was opposed to having the reports of the proceedings published. His fear was that publicity would turn the conference, which should be a serious, businesslike assembly, into a parliamentary debating society.

DRIVE CANADA AWAY.

The Times, commenting on the opinion in Canada concerning the imperial conference, says the people at home do not understand, and party interests require that they should be prevented from understanding the currents of opinion and feeling in a great territory like Canada. They do not realize how Canada's growth compels extensive and close commercial relations with some part of the external world, or how these relations inevitably dictate her policy without regard to sentiment. Canada wants to stay with the empire; therefore they think the thing settled. We have only to let her alone and goon reciting our own dogmas. They forget that the abiding relations of states are governed in the long run by economic causes, which operate as silently but as irresistibly as gravity.

CO-OPERATIVE IMPERIALISM.

Asked by the Morning Post if he despaired of carrying his points at the next conference, Premier Deakin replied; "Despair! Never! I am full of hope and confidence that we are in the early stages of the evolution of a co-operative imperial policy. It will come. It is already coming, and it will come to stay. You can help by faith and works."

Medical Science Makes a Triumph

On Monday, Mr. Jos Rickerby, who as noted in a former issue of The Times, has been in St. Joseph's Hospital, ill for some weeks, underwent a most serious operation for appendicitis. Whilst the removal of the "vermiform appendix" is now-a-days, considered an almost every day surgical operation, Mr. Rickerby's case was somewhat, in fact greatly complicated as a result of his recent illness from appendicitis being the fourth or fifth attack. After the patient was under chloroform and the surgical incision made, those local surgeons operating found the appendix so covered by abnormal growth as to be almost undiscoverable under the circumstances and time at hand. However, fortunately, modern science as applied locally triumphed and the troublesome organ, whose use is now a mystery to science, removed. Mr. Rickerby is now convalescent.

Local Man in Russian Attrocity

Mr. Geo. Pert who now lives with his wife and family in the east ward, near Downer's Corners, was a member of the fishing boat's crew that were fired on in the North Sea by the crazed Russian men of war officials. At the time this local citizen was aboard one of the fishing craft, they lay some 80 miles from Hull. This sturdy Canadian says the Russian men of war turned their searchlights on the fishing boats, taking the latter for Japanese. Many a British sailor and fisherman thus lost his life. More than one thousand pounds was collected for the families of the murdered men, who were given public interment by the city.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court, Peter McCrae was charged with having been found drunk in a public place. Peter pleaded guilty and was given ten days in which to dig up a fine of $2.

James Young, an elderly man, was charged with having made threats against his daughter Mary, saying he would do her bodily harm. James said, "I made no wilful theater. I just said I would have her sent to the Reformatory. The girl who was in court, asked to have the prisoner bound over to keep the peace. Frank Scott on the box, said Young had told him he would have the girl sent to the reform school. Young said he would have satisfaction and send her to the reformatory. He added, Young said the girl would not stay home. He made no complaint otherwise of her conduct. Their conversation was held about two weeks ago. He is not acquainted with the girl.

Mary Young then went into the witness box and said she is the prisoner's daughter. She is 15 years old. She lived at home until March 27th last, when she left because her father assaulted her on March 3rd. Her mother was in the house but does not know of the action at the time. She resisted him. She is afraid of him. The girl's further evidence is non-publishable except by the yellowest of yellow journals, and not adapted to insertion in a paper that is read by girls or women. Her description of what the prisoner had both attempted and done in the case of her half sister will not bear repetition. Since she left her father's house he has annoyed her and threatened to throw her in the river. She had marks of other arms made by him when he met her on the street.

The magistrate then remarked, "Young, I am going to send you to jail until you can get two bondsmen to guarantee you will keep the peace and behave yourself. If you do not get sureties that you will keep the peace for one year, you will be confined in the county jail for six months.

The prisoner was duly escorted to the stone building that overlooks Victoria Park to the west and the east ward and river to the east. The only evidence put in by Young in refutal of his daughter's damaging evidence, was his saying, "How could a child of mine tell such lies. You should be ashamed of yourself. Judging by every symptom available at the trial neither the prisoner nor the complainant are possessed of more intelligence than allowed by law.

Cheese Will go up in Prices for Sure

Despatches from the east indicate an upward tendency in prices on cheese, and if conditions continue until the next meeting of the local board of cheesemen may expect to receive over 12 cents. The Montreal Star, referring to the situation says;

The country markets on Saturday were rather a surprise to the majority of the trade, as high as 12 7-8c. having been paid. This is the highest figure at which cheese has been sold for a long time.

While the English market shows an improvement on account of the lightness of the stock, it is hardly considered that the extreme price paid at Brockville is justified.

Today is a holiday all through England, and naturally there are very few cables this morning from the trade there, so that it will be tomorrow or later in the week when the demand comes, if it comes at all.

On spot the prices show a rather wide range, owing to the differences in first cost, being all the way from 12 1-4 to 13c, though at the present time there is no report that the latter figure has been realized.

Kirkfield Lock Opening Postponed

Some days ago we remarked that the Kirkfield lift lock on the Trent Valley Canal would probably open on May 24th. It has however been ascertained that it will be impossible to have the lock ready by that date and those in charge were reluctantly compelled to postpone the opening until a later date, which has not yet been decided on, but it will be early in the summer as possible. Since the beginning of spring it has been necessary to do considerable work to the lock.

Local Parson Present at the Trouble

The Lethbridge Herald is authority for saying that Rev. W. Reid of this city, was present at a meeting at Pooska when a young preacher, Mr. Guyatt, a graduate in arts and theology from McMaster College of Toronto, was to have been ordained as pastor of Pooska Baptist church. The young brother was questioned as to his orthodoxy and other points of religious views. Unfortunately for the success of the ordination service the young man told the assembled brethren that he believed that the theory of Paul and Christ, that there was no need for an atonement, and that he believed in an open communion and in the ultimate universal salvation of all men. The older heads decided that the young graduate was hardly ready for ordination.

Local Man Wins the Quebec Prize

Yesterday Mr. Tenisse Guerin, the able fishery inspector, who last year captured many nets and other illegal outfits down the Otonabee and on Rice Lake, received a telegram from his son-in-law Mr. Richard Holt of Quebec, saying that Dave Belland, who is well known in athletic and running circles in Peterborough, had yesterday won the one hundred yard race in Quebec. This race Qaimply included Belland and the man who recently beat Knox the champion. Belland who won the race, which was for $500 a side, gave Mr. Guerin a good time whilst the latter named gentleman was in Quebec a few days ago.

Porch Climber at Cold Springs Otonabee

Residents of Cold Spring, Otonabee, are watching for suspicious characters who have recently been hanging around that vicinity. A few nights ago a young lady, in her bed room, heard a noise on the roof of the veranda. On looking out she noticed a man climbing up the roof towards her window. She called to her brother, and the would-be thief melted away in the darkness. Before the attempted thief got away the young lady noticed that he was roughly dressed, wore a slouch hat and a handkerchief was tied round his neck.

Next morning the footprints were traced from the road to the veranda. The paint was scraped off the post he tried to climb to the roof and two heel marks were visible in the lawn where he had jumped from the roof.

The good residents of Cold Spring are much excited.

George Street Extension Begun

Actual work upon the extension of George street south, has begun. A number of men under the supervision of Mr. Jas. The buildings and fences on the right of way are being removed and the work will be carried forward as fast as possible. There is some trouble with the G.T.R. in connection with the crossing off their track. The Aylmer street extension will also be begun shortly.

Do You Seek Health?

Consult Dr. Hamilton And You Will Be Shown the Way.

Thousands are in the same boat—all sickly, bilious and feeling far from well.

Trouble is, the system is clogged with impurities which need to be cleared away.

Before downright sickness arrives you should cleanse and purify the system with Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

At once you feel their mighty influence building up weak spots, clearing out disease, and putting you again on your feet.

These purely vegetable pills change your tired, worn-out condition to one of health and vigor, because they supply the body with nourishing blood that builds up and enlivens the entire system.

Mr. John Whitley, of Stanwood, P. O., Ont., knows the merit of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and says: "I wouldn't be alive today had it not been for Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Last winter I was sick with grippe, and when spring came I was weak, bilious and rheumatic. I used enough medicine to cure twenty times, but I didn't get any help till I tried Dr. Hamilton's Pills. They purified my blood, took the yellow color out of my face, put new tone in my my stomach, and increased my appetite. The bilious attacks and rheumatic pains gradually departed, and Dr. Hamilton's Pills made a new man of me. I proved their merit, and proclaim them a medicine for all men."

GLASGOW'S EXPERIENCE

Six years ago Glasgow and five other towns in Great Britain went into the telephone business, and each of them has made a dismal failure in this department of municipal ownership, Glasgow closing out the scheme last year. Glasgow authorities insisted on installing an obsolete system, the Law battery, and in running the plant according to the notion of pretended experts who were permitted to have it in charge. The business was conducted for five years under one kind of management after another, but of the public ownership sort, until the city could stand it no longer, and the end came with a loss of over $200,000. Swansea is the last to sell out of the important cities that went into the telephone business under the act of 1899. It is selling out and retires from the experiment at such a loss as to have ended debate on the subject. Courtenay Crocker relates in Internation the experience of fifty British cities in public ownership ventures and shows that the rate of growth of those cities has been retarded in close ratio with the extent of a city's investment in business enterprises.

Skilled Artizans Wanted

Toronto, May 21.—The Canadian Manufacturers Association will request the Dominion Government, through a resolution passed at the regular meeting of the executive council of the association to encourage the immigration to Canada of skilled artizans, for whom the association claims there is a great demand. The Government is asked to increase the number who come over through its present immigration officers, and by the appointment of special representatives for this purpose. The growth of the country and the expansion in industrial enterprise, create a demand for many more skilled men, and the association believe that as employers are prevented by the Alien Labor Act from bringing workmen from the United States, the Canadian Government should make an effort to meet the requirements.

Supply Miners' Strike Pay

Vancouver, B. C., May 20.—Behind the miners of Marble Bay Island, in their fight with the management of the mines stands the Western Federation of Miners, which, since March 25, the date on which the men quit work, has been supplying them with strike pay. The men declare that any settlement reached will have to be negotiated through the Western Federation.

The decision of the mine owners to commence criminal prosecution of the men under the provisions of the Industrial Investigation Act, will bring all the power of the Western Federation to bear to render the act inoperative in this case.

Corey Fee May Cost Pastor His Pulpit

New York, May 21.—The trustees of the Brunswick avenue Congregational church, Brooklyn, the pastor of which, Rev. Dr. John L. Clark, officiated at the marriage of William E. Corey and Mabelle Gilman, after a meeting last night, announced that another meeting would be held tonight at which some action regarding the matter will be taken. The meeting was behind closed doors.

One of the participants, according to to a published statement, said that Mr. Clark had placed his resignation at the disposal of the board of trustees.

A Real Distinction.

A young matron of West End avenue is the only one of her family who is not in "Who's Who," her father being a well known clergyman and her mother, brother and sister being more or less celebrated writers. One day her sister was condoling with her on her lack of distinction in this respect.

"Never mind, Belle," said the literary sister, "you may not be in 'Who's Who,' but you're the only member of the family who is in the telephone book, and that costs real money."

Your Eyes and Your Stomach.

It was a matter of surprise to Emerson, says the Health Record, that the following little piece of advice by De Quincy should not have attracted more attention: "The depth and subtlety of the eyes vary exceedingly with the state of the stomach, and if young ladies were aware of the magical transformation which can be wrought in the depth and sweetness of the eye by a few weeks' exercise I fancy we should see the habits on this point altered greatly for the better."

Self Acting.

"How did this plate get broken, Mary?" asked the mistress.

"Why, ma'am, it tumbled down and broke itself."

"Aha, the automatic brake again!" exclaimed the lady, who was a chauffeur of some note.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Record Flow of Immigrants

Ottawa, May 21. It was learned at the Immigration Department that 25,500 immigrants arrived at ocean ports for the month of April, compared with 16,678 in April, 1906, an increase of 51 per cent. The outlook at present is that the immigration for the current year will reach the 300,000 mark. Last year it was 215,000.

...By...
JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,
Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

"What do you call that game he put up on the old maids?" asked "Squealer." "You knew 'bout that, didn't you, Jabez? Seems Prissy and Tempy wanted to sell that little piece of cranb'ry swamp of theirs 'cause it didn't pay them to take care of it and keep it in shape. Prissy told Seth Wingate about it, and Seth said he didn't want it, but that he'd give them so and so—a fair price, consid'rin'. Well, they was goin' to sell it to Seth, but Ez comes home 'bout that time, hears of the deal and goes to Prissy and I 'ys it for $50 mor'n Seth offered. And inside of three months along comes that Ostable company and buys all that land for their big swamp. They say Titcomb made more'n a hundred dollars out of that deal. If you don't think that's a mean trick, Cap'n Eri, you ask Seth Wingate what he thinks of it."

"I know about that," said Captain Eri calmly, "and I think it was jest another case of Ez's takin' chances, that's all. Seth's growlin' is only sour grapes. Ez knew the Ostable folks was talkin' 'bout layin' out a big swamp over here some time or other. He jest bought the Allen piece and run his risk. You notice Prissy and Tempy ain't findin' no fault. They think he's the only man in town. Fact is, he is the only man, outside of the minister, that they'll have any dealin's with. Queer pairin' off that is—Ez and the minister!" he chuckled.

"Oh, women's fools, anyhow," snorted Captain Jabez savagely. "Ez Titcomb always could wind 'em' 'round his fingers. He's been next door to keepin' comp'ny with more girls'n a few in this town sence he was old enough to leave school, but he don't go fur enough to git engaged or nothin' like that. Minute there's any talk that he's likely to git married to one of 'em away goes Ez, and that's the end of that courtin'. And yet, spite of their talk 'bout his bein' slick and hints that he's tricky they're always heavin' up to a feller, 'How smart Cap'n Titcomb is,' and 'Why don't you make money same as Cap'n Ezry?' 'Nough to make an honest man sick."

Captain Eri made his purchases and went home, but the others continued to dissect Ezra Titcomb's character, and the general opinion seemed to be that he would "bear watchin'."

Meanwhile the captain, unconscious of all this, piloted Bradley to the corner of the road upon which the Allen sisters lived, and there left him with a message to the effect that he (the captain) would call next day. Then he sought his room at the "Traveler's Rest," there to read the paper of the day before, while the boy, with his big bundle of old clothes and new "extras," walked homeward alone.

The Allen house was on the "lower road," and to reach it you turned the corner just above "Web" Saunders' billiard room and went on past "Lem" Mullett's stable, and the Methodist "buryin' ground"—the sects in Orham cannot, apparently, agree even after they are dead, for each denomination has its separate cemetery—past the late Captain Saunders' estate and on up the hill overlooking the bay. Bradley had just reached the little house next door to the Allens, when, through the side gate of its yard, there darted a small, ragged looking dog, barking as if it went by steam. It was followed by a big dog, also barking, and this in turn was followed by another and still another. None of the animals was handsome and none looked as if it was good for much except to bark, but each seemed to feel that it was its special duty to devour the boy before the others got a chance at him. On they came, a noisy procession, growling and snapping.

Bradley put down his bundle and looked about for a stone, but the snow covered the road, and there were no stones in sight. He poised himself on one foot and held the other ready for a kick. The dogs formed a circle about him and the racket was blood curdling.

Out of the gate darted a slim girl in a red dress, brandishing a broom.

"They won't hurt you!" she screamed, running to the rescue. "Stop it, Peter! Be quiet, Rags! Go home, Tuesday! Winfield, I'll give it to you!"

The dogs dodged the broom and retired to a safe distance, wagging their tails and doing their best to indicate that they were only making believe anyhow. Winfield, the small dog that had led the attack, was the most persistent, and he snapped at the broom in high glee, evidently considering that it was waved for his particular amusement.

"They got away before I could stop 'em," panted the girl. "Grandma's gone to the store, and I went out in the woodshed to play with 'em, and they bounced out of the door first thing. They don't mean anything; they're just full of it, that's all."

"I wasn't scared," said Bradley. "I didn't believe they'd bite. I like dogs."

"Do you?" said the girl eagerly. "So do I. Grandma says she does, too, in moderation. The old maids don't though. Oh, I forgot. You're the old maids' boy, ain't you? I saw you out in their yard with Miss Prissy this mornin'."

"Yes, I saw you too. You live in here, don't you?"

"Um-hum. Oh, my goodness! I haven't got any rubbers on, and grandma said if I got my feet wet today she didn't know but she'd skin me. I must go right back and dry 'em before she comes. I've had a cold; that's why I ain't to school. How'll I ever get these dogs in?"

"I'll help you if you want me to," volunteered Bradley.

"Will you? That's splendid. Come on!"

Bradley carried his bundle to the back steps of the little house and then returned to assist at the dog catching. It wasn't an easy operation, but a tin dish scientifically rattled by his new acquaintance tempted all but the wary Winfield, and a bone finally decoyed the latter inside the woodshed, and the door was slammed and bolted upon the humbugged pack.

"There," exclaimed the girl, "that's all right! I hope grandma won't notice the tracks in the snow. If she's only forgot her glasses it's all right. Now come into the kitchen till I put my feet in the oven. What's your name?"

"Bradley Nickerson. Most folks call me Brad."

"That's a good name. My last name's Baker. I hate my first one—it's Augusta. Ain't that the worst? Grandma calls me 'Gusty.' Ugh! You can call me 'Gus' if you want to. It sounds more like a boy's name. I wish I was a boy."

"Why?"

"Oh, because a boy can do things and doesn't have to be 'ladylike.' If I was a boy nobody would think it was funny for me to like dogs, and I could have as many as I wanted."

"I should think you had a good many now. Where did you get 'em all?"

"Oh, just found 'em. Rags came here one day himself. I call him Rags because he looks as if he was all ravelin's. And Peter, the blacksmith gave to me. Said I could have him if I'd get him out of his sight. He sort of named himself. And Tuesday was named that because I found him on Tuesday when I was on a picnic over to East Harniss. And Winfield—he's the newest one—came on Cap'n Burgess' fishing schooner and nobody wanted him, so they gave him to me. I named him Winfield because his face looks like our schoolteacher, Winfield Scott Daniels; hateful old thing! Wouldn't he be mad if he knew I named a dog after him! You're goin' to school, ain't you?"

"I s'pose so. They haven't said anything about it yet."

"I hope you will. You'll be upstairs of course."

"Upstairs" means, in Orham, the grammar and higher grades. "Down stairs" is the primary department Bradley answered that he supposed he should be "upstairs." He was just beginning to go "upstairs" in Wellmouth.

"How do you like the old maids—Miss Prissy and Tempy, I mean? Ain't they awful strict?"

"I don't know; I haven't been with 'em long enough to find out. They're mighty clean, ain't they?"

"Oh, dreadful! And they don't like a noise, and they don't like dogs, and they don't like me. They call me the 'dog girl,' I heard 'em. One time I went in there for grandma, and Tuesday and Peter followed me, and, first thing you know, they tracked mud all over the dinin' room. My, but wasn't Miss Prissy mad! But you just ought to have seen that floor," she chuckled.

Bradley thought of the spotless oilcloth and appreciated the situation. In the course of the conversation that followed he learned that Gus was an orphan, like himself, and that she lived there alone with her grandmother. Suddenly the girl snatched her steaming shoes out of the oven to run to the

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.

Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1893 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 170,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Write us for information and list of stocks which we have for sale.

Losing Muscular Power?

The First Sign of Mental Decay—The Warning of General Break-Down.

Changes in the nervous system manifest themselves slowly.

They show first by muscular weakness—a feeling that threatens paralysis, or by a fullness in the head that indicates approaching apoplexy.

It seems like stiffness but you soon discover there's a lack of power—that the endurance of this or that muscle is not what it ought to be.

Your friends may notice a slight thickness of speech or that your memory is decidedly failing.

These symptoms may grow worse very quickly if they are not treated by Ferrozone. You must build up the nervous system. This can be accomplished in no other way as thoroughly and permanently as by the use of Ferrozone.

This remarkable remedy, which has cured tens of thousands of Canadian people, increases enormously the digestive power, stimulates the formation of blood, the rich, red kind that puts new life into the nerves.

The first result of these changes is increased strength.

Natural circulation quickly follows, and that fullness in the head, so disturbing and alarming, too, quickly passes away.

These changes are wrought in a natural way, for the reason that Ferrozone treats the causes that excite these troubles.

For the aged and weak who need strength—for those run-down and thin—for the sickly and nervous who lack staying power—nothing compares with Ferrozone.

No tonic gives such lasting good health; try it yourself. Sold by all dealers in 50c. boxes.

Kick over Scraper on Aylmer Street

Yesterday a local ratepayer called at The Times office and, in the course of conversation, asked "Who owns the streets of this city?" This conundrum we gave up as the weather was cold and our responsive abilities somewhat numbed. Again the ratepayer remarked; "On the corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets, just to the east of McBain's warehouse there has laid on the public street a road scraper for over a year. Whilst the city may not grudge the space this nasty wasteing machine is not only an eye-sore but a menace to every horse passing by.

Transformer Building Nearly Built

The cement work on the new transformer building at the C.G.E. is now practically completed. The main walls are finished, and there remains only a small building at the rear of the new building. It is understood that paint will be put on the outside walls, to relieve the appearance of the cement. The interior work is being rapidly pushed.

Havelock Weather Sage Predicts

An old time trapper and hunter, who has feathered in many a pelt in the waters back of this county, was in Havelock a few days ago and predicted that the present cold weather will continue until about the middle of June and that then it will become intensely hot, the warm weather continuing until late in the fall. This opinion he has formed by watching the habits of the different kinds of animals.

The New Steamer Launched Today

This afternoon an interesting event will be in evidence at the east ward wharf at two o'clock when the splendid new steamer Otonabee of the Otonabee Navigation Company will glide from her present place of construction to the element of her coming adoption. It was hoped that the Otonabee, now the largest and beyond compare the most modernly constructed and equipped steamer on the Trent Valley Canal, would have slid "like a thing of life" into the Little Lake last night, however circumstances in connection with her completion prevented this desired achievement. This afternoon at two o'clock however, without, "fuss or feathers," the Otonabee will be received into the bosom of this stretch of the Kawartha Lakes, and will rapidly be furnished with her electric and steam equipment at the Wolfe street wharf.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the indelicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent in the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients, will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of KNOWN COMPOSITION. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 31 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound.

If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada

LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 16th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 100,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

New hydrants to be Installed---Sign for New Fire Hall to be Procured at Once---Firemen's Alarm Bells not Working Satisfactory

The Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council met last night when there were present, his Worship Mayor R. F. McWilliams, Ald. Johnston, chairman, and Aldermen Morgan, Stevenson and Bradburn.

Petitions were received for hydrants at corner of Congor and Barnardo corner Stewart and Dublin; corner Stewart and Edinburgh.

The committee were also asked to change the proposed location for a new hydrant from corner of Concession and Dufferin streets, to corner of Concession and Hazlitt streets.

The water commissioners will be authorized to place a hydrant at the corner of Congor street and Barnardo avenue, and one at the corner of Concession and Hazlitt streets.

With regard to the petition for a hydrant on the corner of Stewart and Edinburgh, and Stewart and Dublin streets, one hydrant will be placed on Stewart street, between London and Edinburgh streets, at such point as the chairman thinks advisable.

Ald. Morgan moved that a hydrant be placed at the corner of Hunter and Concession streets, east ward. This was left in abeyance.

BURNING HALF TIME.

The committee were informed that the electric light at corner of Smith street and Dennistoun avenue is only burning half time. This matter will be looked into.

OUTSIDE ALARM BOX.

According to Ald. Morgan, the fire brigade will not answer alarms rung from boxes outside the city limits. There is one such box, No. 12, located for the protection oft he Brinton carpet factory. The chief will be invited to write the council in this matter.

NEW FIRE APPLIANCES.

The chairman will enquire into the requirements of the underwriters before completing the purchase of all new fire fighting appliances.

COAL FOR FIRE HALL.

Twelve tons of coal will be purchased for the new fire hall.

SIGN FOR FIRE HALL.

The chairman was authorized to have a sign put up at the new fire hall, at once, said sign to read, "Fire Station," probably in raised gilt letters, at a cost of $20 or $25.

NEW LIGHTS.

The committee will drive around the city at night, two weeks hence, and locate where to place a number of new lights.

FIREMEN'S ALARMS.

It appears that some of the alarm tap bells recently installed in the firemen's houses are not working satisfactorily. Mr. Dunn has written to the effect that Mr. Murdock who installed these bells will return to Peterborough shortly, and will investigate the matter.

Irish Bill is Virtually Dead

London, May 23.—It is the opinion of all the London morning papers that Mr. Birrell's Irish bill already is dead, and the government organs bitterly lament the misfortune of the Irish secretary in seeing two important government measures, the Education Bill and the Irish Council Bill, miscarry in his hands.

The rejection of the measure by the Nationalist convention in Dublin solves for the government a difficulty that was beginning to depress the ministers, namely, how to deal with the overloaded program for this session of parliament, but nevertheless (there is keen disappointment felt at the discredit thus thrown upon the government, especially as John E. Redmond, the Nationalist leader, himself, moved the rejection of the bill and, as the Liberal papers remark, "thus closing the door upon any future half-way measure to home rule."

It is believed that Premier Campbell-Bannerman will withdraw the bill and substitute measures dealing with evicted tenants and the Irish university question, but nothing is likely to be settled until the cabinet meets and discusses the situation.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

Canada and Old Country

Toronto, May 23.—Speaking at a meeting of the United Empire Loyalists' Association, at the Canadian Institute, Rev. Canon MacNab expressed the opinion that continued vigilance was necessary on the part of those who desired a United Empire of which Canada should form an integral part. He was afraid that there was growing up with the younger generation of Canadians a widespread feeling of nationalism among these, who knew nothing about the manner in which the foundations of the country had been laid in the blood of their forefather.

Premier Whitney said that as soon as the people of the British Isles came to recognize that the Britons beyond the seas formed an integral part of the Empire, then the full idea of a United Empire would be realized. There could not be found, he thought, 400 people from Newfoundland to the Pacific, who desired separation from Great Britain, but if the Mother Country was to go on, incessantly, forcing the outlying peoples to swallow humiliations for generation after generation, who could tell what would be the end of such treatment?

Race Fight Took Place on Vessel

St. John, N.B., May 23.—On board the West India liner, Olenda last night a serious fight took place between negro members of the crew and whites. A coloured seaman, named Osborne, was acting as watchman last night, and upon being reprimanded by an officer for neglect of duty attempted assault. This precipitated a row in which it is alleged seven white officers formed one side and the negroes the other. Osborne was beaten into insensibility, and one of the officers received a bad blow on the head. Osborne was placed in irons. There was trouble during the last voyage.

St. John police officials have taken a hand and the affair will be heard in the courts.

Former Peterboro Man Wounded

Jos. Turcotte Shot in Oscoda Mich. and in Hospital in Consequence

It is known to many local citizens that a family by name Turcotte who formerly lived in Peterborough some years ago, removed to Oscoda, Michigan, where Mr. Jos. Turcotte, sr., owns a foundry. His son Joseph, who returned to Peterborough, and remained there until three years ago, is a cousin of Mr. Frank Fountain, who resides at the corner of McDonel and Donegal streets.

Mr. Fountain has received a copy of the Oscoda Press giving a detailed account of a terrible crime in which his cousin barely escaped death, and in which a young girl was shot through the heart and killed.

It seems that the murder which was committed some days ago, was done by a man named Mundy through jealousy. It seems that Turcotte whilst walking along the street in front of his father's foundry with the lady whom they were suddenly accosted by the prisoner. He first fired on the lady whom he claimed had played him false in love and killed her. He next shot Turcotte in the abdomen, shoulder and elbow.

The young man is now in a hospital in Bay City. Mr. Fountain has since received a letter stating that Turcotte is improving and may recover.

Mundy was captured by the police and is now in prison awaiting trial for his life. The whole trouble is ascribed to jealousy.

P. F. and C. Co. Improvements Done

The Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Co., have completed the extensive alterations and improvements at their G.T.R. sheds that were begun some weeks ago. The company has built a new siding about an eighth of a mile long to their coal sheds, as well as adding very considerably to the capacity of the latter. They have one of the most up-to-date plants for handling coal in large quantities in the Province. Manager W. Butler yesterday noted that these improvements were absolutely necessary to successfully and economically handle their next season's coal which is now arriving in train loads.

BRONCHIAL TROUBLES

Readily Yield to Soothing, Healing Treatment of Hyomei.

Bronchial troubles are purely local. They cannot be helped by stomach dosing. They are caused by irritation in the air passages and can be relieved and cured by medicated air alone. In this lies the secret of the great success of Hy-o-mei in the treatmnet of bronchial troubles.

The Hy-o-mei medication, laden with nature's remedies, is breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, reaching every part of the bronchial tubes and killing at once the disease germs. It allays all irritation and heals the inflammation of the mucous membrance with astonishing rapidity.

Treatment with sprays, douches and atomizers in bronchial troubles is condemned by the best physicians, as they cause further irritation.

The first breath of Hy-o-mei's medicated air seems to soothe the inflammation, stop the cough, and thus relief soon becomes permanent and a cure results.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

WIFE MUST YIELD ON ALL POINTS

London Magistrate's View of Domestic Felicity

VISITING LIST REVISION

Case in Court Gives Rise to a Burning Controversy Over Mutual Rights

London, May 23.—A remark by Magistrate Fordham during the hearing of a case in the North London police court, to the effect that a woman ought to allow her husband to revise her visiting list, has led to a burning controversy, rushing into which another magistrate, endorsing Mr. Fordham, says; "In a most every case of domestic trouble in my court the cause may be found in the husband's submission to his wife. This is a perversion of the natural order of things. Many years' experience has taught me that the Old Testament order is the safest for human happiness. The wife must be subject to her husband, even where the husband is unworthy of respect and veneration. She must yield to him on all points. Otherwise there will be trouble sooner or later. It is the fashion to talk about mutual regard and absolute equality, but it rarely works in practice. If the woman was not prepared to honor and obey her husband she ought not to have married him."

A prominent London clergyman concurs mainly in this view, but advocates a mutual understanding concerning men whom the wife is entitled to receive.

A lady in charge of the headquarters of the suffragettes emphatically dissented from the magistrate's opinion. She upheld absolute equality between wife and husband. She said; "The only arrangement is a mutual one. The marriage service, with its love, honor, and obey, is an anachronism. The wife is entitled to as much liberty as the husband."

It is noteworthy that the expressions of opinion on the subject are reluctant to divulget heir names.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"East Lynne"

The pathetic story of "East Lynne," was presented last night at the Grand Opera house, to a fairly good audience. The piece is in the hands of a strong and well-balanced company, who had they met with their due would have played to a crowded house. The piece is too well known to need of any retrospection here. It is one of the oldest emotional dramas on the boards and its success these days, when the public's taste runs in the direction of musical comedies and comic operas, is phenomenal. "East Lynne", during its present tour is being staged by Joseph King, a clever expert in his profession, and the scenic setting is very commendably effective.

Miss Gertrude Arden is a talented emotional actress, who as work in the dual roles of Lady Isabella and Madame Vine, found the sympathies of her audience throughout. Her pathos is perfectly irresistible to those before whom she is impersonating the jealous and misguided, and subsequently repentant, wife and mother. These roles in her hands are truly touching and pathetic. A Seymour's conception of Sir Francis Levision, the aristocratic scoundrel is very acceptable; he plays the part so well as to give one the impression of reality. What little comedy the piece presents is very creditably taken by Ruth Emerson, as Miss Carlyle, the old maid sister. The foregoing characters are well supported by the balance of the company, and to lovers of emotional productions, this offering of "East Lynne," will afford a full measure of gratification.

Mrs William Dobbin Has Passed Away

Yesterday morning an old resident of the city, in the person of Mrs. William Dobbin, a sister of the late Mrs. Jos. Ford, passed away in Nicholl's Hospital. The deceased, who came to Canada in 1856, some weeks ago had a very serious fall, resulting in a fracture of the hip. It was feared that at her age little hope could be held of even partial recovery, and she passed away yesterday as noted. The funeral will take place today from the residence of her stepson, Mr. F. H. Dobbin, and will be private.

Mr. Fred Logan Dies In Rochester N. Y.

Former Local Man Dies Very Suddenly in the Flour City

On Tuesday night there passed away in Rochester, N.Y., a former local citizen, for some time on the staff of Messrs. H. LeBrun & Co., in the person of Mr. Fred Logan, a son of Mr. William Logan of 221 Brock street. Mr. W. Logan yesterday received a telegram from Rochester, conveying the sad intelligence that his son had died suddenly in that city as he sat in a chair in a hotel there.

The deceased who was 30 years of age, was a member of Otonabee Lodge, No. 13, I.O.O.F. Deceased was unmarried and leaves his father and mother and four sisters, all of whom live in this city, to mourn his loss. His many friends will deeply sympathize with them in their bereavement.

Bryan For Roosevelt

Lincoln, Neb., May 23.—Mr. Bryan's friends say with great positiveness that he will not accept nomination from the Democratic party if President Roosevelt is renominated. Those close to Bryan say he has made this statement. Bryan while he has so far refused an absolute endorsement of Roosevelt, feels that he more nearly represents the policies for which Bryan stood in 1896 and 1900 than any other man. He does not recognize the president as a Democrat, but insists he is a much better Democrat than another other Republican. Bryan, it is said, feels that Roosevelt is progressing so rapidly toward the radical stand which he himself took in his two campaigns that no harm can be done the party's principles by giving Roosevelt an uncontested election.

Hard on Tourist Traffic

Montreal, May 23.—"The backward spring is felling all over the country", said Mr. L. O. Armstrong, colonization agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, yesterday. "We have had fully twenty-five per cent. less enquiries as to trips along our road for the coming summer than we had at this time last year. Unless there is a quick change for the better the weather conditions will do much harm. In New York, for instance, the yachting season is supposed to open in two weeks time, yet the yachtsmen have not even commenced to clean and rig up their boats as yet."

Much Sickness at the Capital

Ottawa, May 23.—Ottawa doctors claim that the long continued cold spell is responsible for a great deal of sickness. The colds upon them are much more frequent than is usually the case at this time of the year. There have been a large number of cases of pneumonia.

STEAMER OTONABEE AT WOLFE STREET

After Some Delay the Boat Was Successfully Launched and Will at Once Have Her Boiler Inserted and Soon be Ready for Service

Yesterday afternoon the launching of the Otonabee Navigation Company's fine new twin screw steamer "Otonabee" was delayed for an hour or two after the anticipated time, two o'clock. This is a common delay in the launching of large boats as many unforseen troubles not in the least anticipated almost inevitably arise. At two o'clock the workers in the east ward shipyard, just to the east of the Peck homestead, were busy engaged in greasing the "ways" on which the steamer was to take her first and last trip from terra firma to her native element.

The Otonabee which was designed and built by the well known steel ship carpenter, Mr. Wm. Hickey, is 116 feet long and has a breadth of 24 feet. Her hull is of massive and well seasoned oak planks, and the ribs are of 7x6 inch oak, and absolutely new throughout. At present the upper works are not yet completed, only the rear cabin being finished but not yet painted. The lower deck floor is made of two-inch pine plank and is adapted to stand severe work in the handling of heavy freight and passengers.

The engines made by the Doty Company of Toronto, and the huge twin screws are already in place. Work will be at once pushed on the general completion and painting of the upper works. The massive 12-ton boiler now at Wolfe street wharf, will be placed in the hull without delay. The Otonabee is built on graceful lines, almost yacht like in shape, as to her hull but with every indication of assured speed and stability. Several hundred citizens were present to see the Otonabee plunge into the water. Yesterday being a holiday in the local schools it is needless to say that the small boy was out in great force rushing from one place to another, generally yelling in a shrill falsetto voice, "Come on fellers here's a bully place to see." He or she in general would stop in the new vantage ground for possibly 23 seconds and then rush to some place else.

At about 6.30 the cry, "All right, knock out them wedges!" was heard. After a few blows with an iron "maul," everyone waited to see her go but she did not go. Then heavy jacks were placed at the cut water and pressure applied. Then the Otonabee moved seven inches towards the water and again stuck. More pressure from the jacks and possibly six feet more was gained, when her progress was ended. More jack pressure during which the boat gained a few more inches and stuck. Then a heavy block and tackle was applied to the skids on which she rode on the greased ways. "Hurrah, now she's off!" was the general cry. So she was for perhaps 25 feet; or until part of the propellors were partly submerged. Then a crash and the heavy "ways" or beams bearing the boat, bent visibly and the Otonabee's dive was temporarily postponed.

No ceremonies or christening was attempted, the exact time of the intended launching not being known. Judging both by the boat's construction, shape and powerful machinery and by comments heard at the launching yesterday, the new steamer will have a prosperous season. It is expected that she will be completed and in commission early in June.

It might be noted that Government Inspector Davis, who recently made an inspection of the hull of the Otonabee, is reported to have said it is the best he has seen in a quarter of a century.

Captain White, a veteran navigator of the Trent waters, and a gentleman who knows every eddy, shoal and snag in the Otonabee river and upper lakes, will be in command of the new steamer.

THE STEAMER LAUNCHED.

Shortly after six o'clock last night, following upon almost superhuman efforts on the part of hose engaged in getting her into the water, the Otonabee slid into the Little Lake and was at once towed to the Wolfe street wharf, where work will at once be begun on getting her boiler aboard.

Children Missing When She Returned

Detroit, Mich., May 23.—Mrs. Hattie Tilden, of Guelph, Ont., has recovered the younger of her two children, who, she claims, were kidnapped by her stepson, William Tilden, while she was in Hamilton attending the funeral of her husband, who died in an hospital. The child was found at the home of Tilden's mother-in-law in Detroit. No trace has been found of the elder child nor of Tilden himself. Mrs. Tilden says she will try to have him arrested. She blames Tilden, who is her stepson, for the trouble between her husband and herself which led to their separation.

Strike Cost Port Half a Million

Montreal, May 23.—The strike is over, but not all of the longshoremen have been able to get their jobs back. The steamship companies succeeded during the strike in employing regularly several hundred non-union men, and the result is that today nearly 500 of those who went out on strike are out of work, and may not be taken on for some time. The return of the men to their places individually Tuesday broke up the strike.

Yesterday morning the shipping companies had more men than they could use applying for work, and the loading and unloading of the vessels in port is going on at a rapid pace.

The total loss to the port occasioned by the strike is estimated at half a million dollars.

The union headquarters were deserted this morning except by one or two of the officials. By these it is declared that the trouble is not yet over. They state that another strike will be declared as soon as the union is better organized, but they admit that it will not be for six months at least.

Yachting Clergyman Weds Hamilton Girl

Hamilton, May 23.—Rev. C. E. Whitcombe, a well known Anglican minister, formerly rector of St. Matthews church here, who resigned last fall to return to England to live, was married yesterday morning to Gertrude Wilson, daughter of Thomas Wilson, Wentworth street, Rev. Mr. Britton, rector of St. Matthews officiated.

Father Whitcombe is about 35 years of age, while his bride is 27. His first wife died several years ago.

Father Whitcombe is one of the best known yachting enthusiasts in these parts. He has not decided yet whether he will return to the old country or not.

Father of House Dead

London, May 23.—George Henry Finch, known as the "Father of the House of Commons," having represented Rutland in the House for 40 years, died at his residence, Burley-on-the-Hill, Oakham, Rutland, yesterday morning. He was born in 1835, and in politics was a Conservative in favor of the removal of all burdens on agriculture.

NO RETURN CARGOES

As an indication of the tremendous rush of immigration to the new world, it is said that at the present moment almost every steamer, either to the United States or Canada, has every berth engaged for the next two months. And although last year the numbers who crossed the Atlantic were by many thousands the largest on record, it is already certain that the number of passengers in 1907 will considerably exceed the record numbers of 1906. It is therefore, evident that, great as the number of vessels built and building for the Atlantic passenger traffic has been during the last two years, it is not keeping pace with the icrease of the passengers, and therefore the orders for new Atlantic liners continue to be numerous.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Last week saw at two different ends of the world two startling manifestations of the breakdown of municipal institutions after falling into the hands of a party representing only one element of the body social and economic. It is hardly to be ascribed to any peculiar immortality on the labor movement, or even in that rather advanced section of it which calls itself socialistic, that the municipal government of San Francisco and that of West Ham, London, have been shown to be grossly corrupt and incompetent. That is a result that is to be expected when organizations of an economic character turn from their proper field of action and seek to dominate the government of any community, be it city, state or nation.

They are to dredge gold out of the Saskatchewan on a large scale according to new plans, which reminds us that there never was a time in the memory of man when the sands of the Saskatchewan did not give up enough gold to make it worth working for.

A Niagara Synod will ask the Ontario Government to legislate for the closing of liquor bars on Good Friday and Christmas Day. If such a law were to go into effect in respect of Christmas Day at any rate, it would gladden the hearts of a good many mothers and wives and children in this Province.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Pregnancy, was and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. A New Princess At Yildiz Kiosk

Constantinople, May 22.—The Sultan in his sixty-fifth year has once more become a father. A daughter has just been born to him. No mention is made of the mother in the announcement, and it is not known whether she is one of his Majesty's four wives or merely one of the numerous hanums or ladies of his seraglio, whose children by the Imperial master, however, rank as legitimate with the others.

The little princess is the Sultan's fourteenth child. The eldest is Prince Selim, who lives in disgrace at the age of 37. The youngest until the new arrival was Prince Mehemed, who is now a little more than eighteen months old.

There is incessant suspicion, plot and counterplot at the Yildiz Kiosk and these influence in no insignificant manner the lives of the Imperial princesses. When they are married off their own inclinations are not considered. Abdul Hamid prefers to have for his sons-in-law men of inconspicuous ability, so that he need not fear from them any machination against the throne.

His eldest daughters, the Princesses Zekie and Naiyme, have accordingly been mated to two insignificant sons of the famous Osman Pasha. The next daughter, Naiyle, has also received a harmless, amiable individual for a husband. The prettiest of the Sultan's daughters, the Princess Ayiche, who is 30, has inherited the rare beauty of her mother, a ravishing Circassian. She is her father's favorite, but even her life may be said to have been spent in a gilded cage.

LONGEVITY.

Its Deadliest Foes Are Excitement, Hurry and Worry.

What is the secret of longevity? We answer: The surest guarantee is a genius for it, a bodily and mental predisposition to a long life. There are persons who are "prefigured unto a long duration." Those who have this gift, which is inherited from long lived ancestors, will generally reach old age, even though they trample on the laws of health, because, although they draw more largely on their vitality than careful livers, they begin life with a vast capital.

For the man of ordinary stamina the chief conditions of long life that are not involuntary are constant occupation in an honorable calling, regular hours, bodily exercise, plenty of sleep, a temperate gratification of all the natural appetites, a sunny disposition and a clear conscience. The deadliest foes to longevity are excitement, hurry and worry.

Strictly speaking, it is not overwork—that is, in the aggregate—that kills. It is too much work done in too little time that causes so many breakdowns today. Work pure and simple, however hard or constant, seldom impairs the health, if only ordinary hygienic precautions are observed. Mental and bodily labor within reasonable limits tend rather to prolong life than to fray its thread. Even overwork may do less injury than underwork—"that rare and obscure calamity from which nobody is supposed to suffer."—Success.

HOME FINANCING.

The Ever Present Problem of Providing For the Future.

There is one problem that dominates the home—an obtrusive, pervasive problem that ofttimes fills the whole horizon of life—one that, like Banquo's ghost, "will not down." It is the ever present question of home financing. When we have mastered the "to have," the problem of the "to hold" confronts us. It is the question of providing for the home which can never be properly answered until we realize that "provide" is a verb that should ever be conjugated in two tenses, present and future.

There is in our American life too often a blind optimism in living up to an income, in assuming that because the sun of prosperity shines warmly today there is no need of providing umbrellas for a possible rainy tomorrow. Those who wisely live within an income rarely have to face the problem of trying to live without one. There are two simple guarantees against future poverty and dependence on others, two great safeguards for home and family—a bank book and an insurance policy. They represent the material defense of the home, a bulwark of love's forethought standing strong and firm in the hour of need.—Delineator.

An Actinic Voice.

Mr. Martin was of those who say of music, "I don't know anything about it, really, but I know what I like." Unfortunately his lack of knowledge never led him to silence.

"I heard a wonderful tenor voice while I was in Paris one summer," he said, with enthusiasm, to a patient friend. "Wonderful! The highest tenor I ever heard."

"Indeed!" said the friend. "What is his name?"

"Why, I can't recall his name," admitted Mr. Martin, "but the voice stays in my mind. Why, man, he sang way up above the scales with perfect ease!"

Italian View of English Police.

The English police force does not shine for its ability in unraveling mysteries or in arresting daring criminals. Statistics show that not less than 30,000 persons disappear unaccountably from London every year. In many other cases these strange vanishings are a direct consequence of crimes that in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred go unknown or unpunished. When arrests do follow, especially in thefts and burglaries of importance, they are invariably due to interested betrayal, which puts the detective on the direct scent. If there is no informant, the police do nothing.

Wronged.

"But her father objected. "He's a spendthrift. He has no sense of the value of money."

"Oh, you're mistaken, papa!" she answered him. "He can make a dollar go as far as any one. Last night he showed me one that he had carried around the world as a pocket piece."

Absentminded.

"Your wife has fallen downstairs and is seriously hurt!" screamed an excited neighbor over the telephone.

"What's her address?" asked the absentminded editor. "I'll send a reporter up to see if he can get her picture."

Explanation.

Green—I thought Drawley, the architect, was quite wealthy. Brown—Well, you thought right. Green—But he has recently been declared a bankrupt. Brown—Naturally. He undertook to build a house for himself.

Oh, So Clever!

Caroline—They say she is a clever conversationalist. Pauline—She doesn't even need to converse. She can blast a reputation just by the way she shrugs her shoulders.

Painting is the invention of heaven, the most ancient and most akin to nature.—Ben Jonson.

PAIN

Pain in the head—pain anywhere, has its cause. Pain is congestion, pain is blood pressure—nothing else usually. At least, so says Dr. Shoop, and to prove it he has created a little pink tablet. That tablet—called Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablet—coaxes blood pressure away from pain centers. Its effect is charming, pleasingly delightful. Gently, though safely, it surely equalizes the blood circulation.

If you have a headache, it's blood pressure.
If it's painful periods with women, same cause.
If you are sleepless, restless, nervous, it's blood congestion—blood pressure. That surely is a certainty, for Dr. Shoop's Headache Tablets stop it in 20 minutes, and the tablets simply distribute the unnatural blood pressure.

Bruise your finger, and doesn't it get red, and swell, and pain you? Of course it does. It's congestion, blood pressure. You'll find it where pain is—always. It's simply Common Sense.

We sell at 25 cents, and cheerfully recommend

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country; but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

"I thought I heard the gate shut," she exclaimed. "Yes, it's grandma. P'raps you'd better dodge out of the other door. She'll ask questions and find out about my feet if you don't. Goodby. P'raps I'll see you at school tomorrow."

Bradley picked up his bundle—he had brought it in with him—and slipped out of the side door, presenting himself a moment later in the glory of his new clothes to the critical gaze of the old maids.

When Bradley started for school the next day his head was ringing with instructions from the old maids concerning his behavior and attention to his studies.

"Now, be a good boy, Bradley," said Miss Prissy.

"Yes, Bradley," said Miss Tempy. "Remember, we expect a great deal of you. All our people have been smart scholars."

"Just as he turned into the main road he heard some one calling and turned to see his acquaintance of yesterday, the girl next door, running to catch up, her hood slipped back from her hair and a dented tin pail in her hand. Being a girl, Gus carried her noon luncheon during the winter months instead of coming home to eat it.

On the way to school they met another girl, whom Gus introduced as Clara Hopkins, a chum of hers. "She's tiptop. I sit with her. She's got most as many checks as I have," was her recommendation.

Upstairs at the schoolhouse was a large room, with rows of double desks on each side and a wide aisle in the center. One side of the aisle was the girls' side, and the other was for the boys. Mr. Daniels stiffly shook hands with the new scholar, asked him some questions concerning his progress in his studies and showed him where he should sit. The more advanced pupils occupied the desks at the rear of the room, and the younger ones—Bradley among them—sat in front. Bradley's seat mate was an older boy than he, rather good looking, with curly hair. His name, so he whispered before school began, was Sam Hammond.

At recess Bradley went out on the playground for a little while, but he felt rather lonesome among so many strangers and so returned to the schoolroom. It was empty, the teacher taking his customary "constitutional" in the yard. After a few minutes Gus came bounding in.

"Why, Brad," she exclaimed, "where've you been? I've been lookin' for you. Why didn't you come on out?"

"Oh, I don't know," replied the boy. "I don't know any of the fellers yet."

"Well, you're goin' to know 'em. Oh, my goodness! Winfield!"

The stub tailed dog sat panting at her feet, three inches of red tongue hanging from its mouth.

"You naughty, naughty dog!" cried Gus almost in tears. "How dare you! Go home this minute!"

"Go home, Winfield!" commanded Bradley, coming to the rescue.

Winfield had gone home by the shed route already that morning and didn't propose to do it again. When his mistress tried to catch him he retreated to a safe distance and wagged his tail.

"Oh, what shall we do?" wailed Gus. "Recess is 'most over, and if Mr. Daniels finds him here I don't know what'll happen!"

Bradley made a dash at the dog, and the latter started on the run about the room. At length they drove him out the "boys' door" at the other side. Finally, being penned in with both doors shut and thoroughly frightened, he dashed into the closet which was between the doors, and hid behind the wood box.

"Now," said Gus exultantly, "you watch that he don't get out, and I'll crawl in after him. Oh, my goodness, there's Mr. Daniels comin' now!"

The cowhide boots of the teacher were heard on the stairs. Bradley, in desperation, shut the closet door upon the imprisoned Winfield. Mr. Daniels stepped to the rope in the entry and gave it a pull. The bell above responded with a single note, and the scholars began to pour up the stairs.

"We will come to order," commanded the teacher. Bradley, glancing across the aisle at Gus, saw that she was as white as the whitewashed wall.

"First class in arithmetic," said Mr. Daniels, and then from the closet came a long, dismal whine. The first class in arithmetic stopped in its tracks and looked aghast. The whole school, with two exceptions, picked up its ears. The exceptions trembled.

"Ow-wow-wow!" came from the closet. Mr. Daniels strode across the floor and opened the door.

"Whose dog is this?" he demanded sternly.

No one answered.

"Come out of that!" commanded the teacher savagely. He reached behind the wood box and, seizing the cowering Winfield by the scruff of the neck, tossed him into the room. "Whose dog is this?" he repeated.

Most of the scholars knew whose dog it was, but none of them told.

"I asked a question!" thundered the master. "Who put that—that creature in the closet?"

Bradley looked at his fellow conspirator. Then he held up his hand. "I did," he said.

Mr. Daniels' mouth opened in surprise. New pupils did not usually begin in this way.

"You did?" he gasped.

"Yes, sir. He fol— I mean he came into the room when 'twas recess, and we—I tried to put him out, and he wouldn't go."

"So you shut him in the closet. Brilliant youth! As this is your first day here, I suppose I must stretch a point and believe it was not done on purpose. If it had been any other of the scholars I should have made an example of 'em. I am surprised that you should treat your little brother" (appreciative titter from the school) "in such a manner. You may put him out."

It was easy enough to command, but not so easy to do. The dog, frightened at the crowd, backed away when Bradley approached.

"Come here, Winfield," said the boy, his face a bright crimson. The school giggled at the name.

"Winfield?" repeated Mr. Daniels. "Why that name, if you please?"

"I—I don't know, sir."

"You don't know?"

"No, sir." And then the boy had a happy thought. "He's named after Gen'ral Hancock, I guess."

General Winfield Scott Hancock, in his role of statesman, was very much in the public eye just at this time.

Mr. Daniels hesitated. He more than suspected the dog's real namesake, but he wasn't sure and, being a weak man, was afraid of making a mistake.

"Well, put the creature out!" he snarled, and then, losing his temper:

Held Their Own.

A regiment of regulars was making a long, dusty march across the rolling prairie land of Montana during a recent summer. It was a hot, blistering day, and the men, longing for water and rest, were impatient to reach the next town. A rancher rode past. "Say, friend," called out one of the men, "how far is it to the next town?" "Oh, a matter of two miles or so, I reckon," called back the rancher. Another long hour dragged by, and another rancher was encountered. "How far to the next town?" the men asked him eagerly. "Oh, a good two miles." A weary half hour longer of marching, and then a third rancher. "Hey, how far's the next town?" "Not far," was the encouraging answer—"only about two miles." "Well," sighed an optimistic sergeant, "we're holdin' our own anyhow."

Poll Parrot as a Game Bird.

While the parrot is a bird of beautiful plumage, as a table delicacy it is not to be recommended, as I know from sad experience. My first essay at eating a parrot was attended with modified success. The bird must have been comparatively young, and after several hours' boiling became soft enough to masticate and finally swallow, leaving behind it an impression that we had lunched on the sole of a rubber boot.—Arthur D. Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1897 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 22,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,499,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,160,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Write us for information and list of stocks which we have for sale.

Did you get that MESSAGE, that

GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.80 per ton, the second grade $263.00, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here is the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $25,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

Get busy if you want any of this stock while it can be purchased at 8c. for only a short time. Our booklet "A GOLDEN MESSAGE," will be sent free for the asking of it. Address,

S., who says: "I want to give my experience with Ferrozone because I believe it will be of assistance to thousands of women who need it badly. I was very thin, run down in flesh and lacked color. My nerves were in a dreadful state. If anything fell I would jump and start. At night I would suddenly wake up, heart palpitating and all keyed up. Ferrozone went right to work. It restored my poise and balance, gave me self-control, cured my nervousness. Ferrozone increased my appetite and my weight came up so fast that I simply didn't need to use it any longer. Eight boxes cured me. Why won't you use Ferrozone also, it certainly will do you good in many ways—sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

Thaw Trial is Over

Not the authentic Thaw trial at New York, but a cleverly presented moving picture idea as given during the past week at the "Colliseum," 432 George street, was put on yesterday evening for the last time. This presentation was really clever, showing all the main incidents in the Thaw-White murder case to the wished (or (sic) consummation, terminating in in the release of the prisoner. Beginning with today the Jilted Lover will be the attraction. Mr. A. E. Harding gave a well rendered and illustrated song, that old favorite, "In the green Fields of Virginia." For changes of program, etc., watch the columns of The Times.

Free Samples of "Preventics" and a booklet on Colds will be gladly mailed you, on request, by Dr. Shoop, Racine, (Wis., simply to prove merit. Preventics are little Candy Cold Cure tablets. No Quinine, No Laxative, nothing harmful whatever. Preventics prevent colds—as the name implies—when taken early, or at the "Sneeze Stage." For a started cold of LaGrippe, break it up safely and quickly with Preventics. Sold by J. D. Tully.

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. It is time express carts should keep to the roadway, except of course such vehicles as baby carriages and invalid rolling chairs.

Stevens Did Not Destroy That Bible

Mr. Gusty Dundas lost his suit tried before County Magistrate Geo. Gusty could not however produce any actual, or even strong circumstantial evidence to prove his complaint so the case was dismissed.

Many Normal School Teachers

The four new Normal schools erected in this Province by the Ontario Government, one of which will be located in this city, will open a year from September. This and the increase necessitated by the enlargement of present Normal schools will necessitate at least fifty new appointments to positions ont he teaching staffs of the Normal Schools and on the faculties of educations in the universities. It is believed that some of the vice-principals of the existing Normal schools will be raised to principalships of the new schools, and the subordinate teachers in some instances advanced in grade.

City Teachers' Institute Opens

The first session of the annual spring convention of the Teachers' Institute, was held yesterday morning at the Central School, with president Kelly in the chair. There was a large attendance of the teachers of the city present.

The feature of the session was the reading of three useful papers which were followed by an animated discussion of the subjects dealt with.

The minutes were read by secretary-treasurer, Mr. F. E. Kerr.

The president, Mr. Kelly, thanked the Institute for the honor conferred on him, and spoke of Peterborough as being now quite a center of education. He hoped that next year other teachers would take part in the various subjects.

Miss McCarthy read a most interesting paper on "Water Colors." At the conclusion of her remarks a vote of thanks was tendered.

Mr. T. J. Wallace read a well prepared paper on "Composition." The speaker illustrated his remarks by means of some compositions. A general discussion followed the paper.

Mr. F. E. Kerr then gave an interesting paper on Cardboard Modelling, dealing with the importance of the subject in character training.

The Badge of Honesty

Is on every wrapper of Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery because a full list of the ingredients composing it is printed there in plain English. Forty years of experience has proven its superior worth as a blood purifier and invigorating tonic for the cure of stomach disorders and all liver ills. It builds up the run-down system as no other tonic can in which alcohol is used. The active medicinal principles of native roots such as Golden Seal and Queen's root, Stone and Mandrake root, Bloodroot and Black Cherrybark are extracted and preserved by the use of chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce at Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet which quotes extracts from well-recognized medical authorities such as Drs. Barthlow, King, Scudder, Coe, Ellingwood and a host of others, showing that these roots can be depended upon for their curative action in all weak states of the stomach, accompanied by indigestion or dyspepsia as well as in all bilious or liver complaints and in all "wasting diseases" where there is loss of flesh and gradual running down of the strength and system.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" makes rich, pure blood and so invigorates and regulates the stomach, liver and bowels, and, through them, the whole system. Thus all skin affections, blotches, pimples and eruptions as well as scrofulous swellings and old open running sores or ulcers are cured and healed. In treating old running sores, or ulcers, it is well to insure their healing to apply to them Dr. Pierce's All-Healing Salve. If your druggist don't happen to have this Salve in stock, send fifty-four cents in postage stamps to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., and a large box of the "All-Healing Salve" will reach you by return post.

You can't afford to accept a secret nostrum as a substitute for this non-alcoholic, medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, not even though the urgent dealer may thereby make a little bigger profit.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels. Sugar-coated, tiny granules, easy to take as candy.

75 Per Cent. of the World's Copper comes from Sulphide ore. 90 per cent of the abandoned copper mines are abandoned for lack of it. BOARD OF WORKS IN BUSINESS SESSION

Mr. Langford Tells the Board That the City Engineer Did Not Take Proper Levels for New Trunk Sewer

The Board of Works of the City Council met last night. There were present, Mayor McWilliams, Chairman Ald. Geo. Duncan and Ald. McIntyre, Johnston and Morgan.

Dr. Grey asked the Board for two nine-inch sewer pipes, three feet long, at cost price to the city. This was granted.

Dr. Grey also asked for the sidewalk on Sherbrooke street, from Aylmer to the bridge, to be built outside the trees; if constructed inside it would run through the laws of a couple of residents. The board will consider this matter before laying the walk two months hence.

Mr. Roger addressed the board, and complained that spring water runs down alongside the sewer pipe and floods his garden to the destruction thereof. The engineer was instructed to report on this matter.

TRUNK SEWER TOO SHALLOW.

Mr. Wm. Langford complained that the new trunk sewer from Smith to Aylmer, along G.T.R. track, is laid too shallow; it is so low that he cannot get connection with his small house to the east of the track. The sewer he said should have been laid three feet lower, in order to connect with his property and three or four other dwellings that might be built. The engineer reported that there was only one house—Mr. Langford's—along the route which cannot be connected with the sewer. He also offered that there are serious physical difficulties in the way of placing the sewer three feet deeper.

Mr. Langford claimed that the engineer had erred in his levels; he should be entitled the same sanitary privileges as any other citizen; besides, the difference in cost for laying the sewer three feet deeper would have been a mere bagatelle, and his house and others in prospect would have been served. The engineer's mistake was, continued Mr. Langford, he did not go far enough south to get a fall. He ridiculed the engineer's excuse that there was not sufficient room to throw the earth excavated had the sewer been laid deeper, owing to the close proximity of the railway track, and that he was afraid of said track caving in. Had the fall of the sewer been struck from the manhole near V. Eastwood's residence, it would have been deep enough to provide sanitary accommodation for the property east of the track between Antrim and Edinburgh streets. The people would not have voted money for this work, concluded Mr. Longford had thought any property along the route would have been ignored.

The Board promised to look into this matter.

SIDEWALK CONSTRUCTION.

Street Commissioner Evans reported that he would like to have theside walk on Mark street, south of Robertson, east side, laid inside the trees, owing to a big ditch in this locality. It was decided to run this pavement inside the trees from Robertson to James street.

SEWER PIPE.

R. Hicks & Co., offered to supply the city with sewer pipe at 60 per cent. off list price, laid down on the streets as required. This figures to the city's advantage over what they have been paying, when cost of freight, cartage and loss by breakage, which the city now assures, is considered.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by the mayor,—That R. Hicks & Co's offer be accepted.—Carried.

CHANGE OF RAILWAY CURVE.

Mr. Larmonth of the Street Railway Company, to change the curve north side of Charlotte, off George from seven feet to within four feet of the curve. This he claimed, would lessen the noise engendered by cars taking so short a curve as at present.

The committee did not think it wise to grant this privilege.

SIDING ASKED FOR.

Mr. Larmonth also asked for permission to run a street railway siding into the Central Milling Company's property off George street, so as to connect with the C.P.R. for freight purposes.

The committee did not look favorably on this proposition, and decided to leave the matter to the whole council.

CROSSINGS WANTED.

Jas. Brown asked for two crossings to his two houses to be built onSherbrooke street.—Granted.

TO WIDEN STREET.

The clerk was authorized to write the commissioners, and ask permission to widen Water street, near the Colonial Weaving Co.'s property, for a distance of 522 feet, 10 feet at its deepest point.

Mr. J. W. Doxee Has Passed Away

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Centralizing Power

London, May 24.—Discussing the colonial opinion of the Irish home rule question, the Morning Post alleges that the whole tendency of statesmanship in Canada and Australia is to aggrandize the national authorities, diminishing the Provincial autonomy contemplated by the original terms of the federation.

Canadian Grocer Refers to Mr. S. A. Oke the George Street Fruit Dealer

The Canadian Grocer, referring to a firm doing business in Peterborough, says in part;

"S. A. Oke, fish and fruit dealer, who carries on the largest exclusive fruit business in the city, has secured a lease of large premises along the G.T.R. track, which will be used as a wholesale storehouse. For some time past Mr. Oke has done a wholesale business, but the past couple of years has seen such a development that he cannot possibly handle it from the retail store. The new premises are situated at the corner of Simcoe and Bethune streets. The premises are very large and well built. "Associated with Mr. S. A. Oke, is his brother, Mr. Walter Oke, who spent eleven years in the wholesale fruit houses, in Toronto."

DON'T PUT IT OFF LONGER

Get Rid of That Indigestion at Once by Using Mi-o-na.

Either through slackness or carelessness hundreds of people slowly poison themselves by chronic indigestion. By neglecting to cure at once any sluggishness of the important organs of digestion the system is filled with fermenting and decaying food that results in sick headaches, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, specks before the eyes, sleeplessness, nervous troubles and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion.

The want of a perfectly safe yet effective cure for indigestion and stomach troubles in their many forms was felt up to the time of the successful investigations that resulted in the production of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. They quickly cure the worst cases of indigestion, and the pain and distress which are often felt after meals disappear in a very few days—such is the wonderful curative power of Mi-o-na.

The old-fashioned medicines for stomach troubles merely digest the food, while Mi-o-na strengthens the digestive organs so that they soon become able to care for the food that is eaten.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Miona Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

World's Free Trip To London

Mr. W. N. Robertson, from the official staff of the Toronto World is now in town for the purpose of receiving two nominations from Peterborough for the Toronto World's free trip to London and Paris contest.

Eleven ladies of Ontario, who secure the highest popularity vote will be personally conducted on a month's tour to London and Paris, all expense to the last cent will be borne by the World.

As four may be sent outside of Toronto and Hamilton, and the contest for country town centers will in no way conflict or compete with the two former cities, Peterborough will with almost absolute certainty elect one of her most popular ladies to be included in the proposed unique and enchanting voyage.

Large Furnace to be Built in Canada

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., May 24.—Because they cannot get pig iron fast enough to supply the plant without buying in the American market at exorbitant prices, the Algoma Steel Company will at once commence the erection of a $1,000,000 blast furnace in Canada.

Superintendent Lewis says it will be the largest furnace in Canada and its erection will be followed at once with a big coke plant to supply the steel works.

INDIAN UPRISING QUELLED IN TIME

Drastic Action of Government in Face of Crisis Wins Nation's Applause

FUTURE HOLDS A THREAT

Radicals in England Blamed for Supplying Incentive to Native Fomentors

London, May 24.—Even its opponents must speak in terms of commendation of at least one policy of the present British government. It has shown qualities of strength and intelligence in meeting the serious crisis caused by the seditionary out break in India, which meet with the approval of the entire country.

There are some few exceptions, of course, even in the house of commons, where certain doctrinaires, notorious for their swashbuckling democracy, pretended that their dearest principles have been outraged by the high handed banishment, without trial of the leading inciters of rebellion. The great majority, even of the radical members, however, understand the necessity of the suspension of the ordinary forms of law in dealing with an ignorant people on the eve of a rebellion.

The latest despatches indicate the situation has reached an extremely grave stage before the government took drastic action, and the danger has not yet disappeared. The firm attitude of the authorities, however, has undeceived the natives in their belief that they could with impunity preach the natural application of some of the doctrines which the controlling party in England have been proclaiming. The agitation is indeed one of far reaching effects. With the advent to power of British radicals one cannot but feel, as a writer in one of the reviews expresses it, a certain amount of sympathy for the Indian agitators who are being perpetually misled by British radicals.

BRITISH RADICALS TO BLAME.

Their British friends must seem the most faithless of men. They use language wherefrom it appears they consider their principles are applicable to all peoples at all times and in all places, and seem willing to encourage specific proposals of a revolutionary kind. Naturally the Indian agitator was delighted to receive such help and began to believe his cause half won. As soon, however, as the slightest strain came in the attempt to translate theory to practice the British radical started back in indignation and declared he never intended to sanction anything of the sort.

Such is the present dilemma of the lonestors of rebellion in India and the effect upon them scarcely makes for peace and tranquility. Either now or in the future it will change the Indian point of view of the British character and it won't make easier the difficult problem of the future government of the Indian empire.

GOVERNMENT IN BAD PLIGHT.

The week has brought some signs of exasperation from leaders of the government. Fresh causes of embarrassment and weakness appeared in the colonial conference which began with invitations to closer union and cooperation and ended with protests. Then came the sharpest popular rebuke ever flung in the face of a British government by an outraged and disgusted public. The Wimbledon majority indicated a complete revulsion of English public sentiment in the last eighteen months. The radical organs attempt to argue it is only the expression of Britain's overwhelming opposition to woman suffrage, but this is a childish evasion of the larger significance of the vote.

It was said more than six months ago that Britain would turn out the Campbell-Bannerman government if it got a chance. No sane observer any longer doubts this, but this does not tell half the story. A general election would result in a unionist land slide as great as the Liberal vote in 1906.

Mr. Geo. Henderson, travelling passenger agent of the Otonabee Navigation Co., returned yesterday from western points where he has successfully landed several excursions for the new boat, Otonabee.

Respected Resident Has Passed Away

Funeral of Late Mrs Duncan Cameron to be Held This Morning

This afternoon at 1.30 the late Mrs. Duncan Cameron, a highly respected lady of this city, who passed away at her residence, corner of Hunter and Bethune streets, the day before yesterday, will be laid to rest in the Westwood cemetery. The deceased, who was ninety-four years of age, had been ill only a short time. Her maiden name was Annie Malcolme. She was born in Scotland. In 1837, she with her parents settled in Otonabee. Two years later, she was married to her late husband, who predeceased her eighteen years ago.

Thirteen years ago, the late Mrs. Cameron and family removed to this city, where she has since resided. She was a member of the Presbyterian church.

Two sons and three daughters are left to mourn her loss. The sons are Messrs Duncan Cameron of Bonivar, N.Y., and John H. Cameron of this city.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson Is Now President

Yesterday afternoon, the Teachers' Institute concluded its session.

Mr. J. E. Hodgson of the Collegiate Institute staff, was elected president. Mr. Stubbs of the Collegiate Institute is the new secretary, and Mr. M. McDonnel of the Separate school staff, vice-president.

Yesterday any man in "the know," especially if business brought him round the local hotels, could not but guess correctly that something unusual was pending in racing circles. Apart from the many leading sporting men in the city it is evident that great interest in the horse races and Marathon races at the Driving Park this afternoon.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's session of the police court quite a number of the Arrah-go-Aisy Club were present, having left the sun-warmed brick walls they so faithfully guard. The first case was that of Robert Coleman, charged with having been d. & d. $2, paid.

The next to bat, was the young man Raymond, who some days ago was charged with having assaulted and done bodily harm to a Son of Mr. Geo. Stevens the East Ward junk magnate. This case was enlarged until yesterday as young Stevens was in the hospital with a broken leg. Mr. Kerr, who appeared for the prisoner, after the chief had asked for a further enlargement, remarked to the magistrate that he had pretty well investigated the scrap wherein Stevens had his leg broken. He found the broken leg was simply an accident that might happen when any two young fellows were wrestling. He explained granted that his client had been bothering Stevens' horse, and Stevens jumping out of his rig to defend his horse, had a scuffle with the prisoner. He explained that Raymond is a married man and wanted to work to support his family. He assured the magistrate that if his client were allowed out until the trial, Raymond would be on hand. Raymond's friends are simply laboring men or he could get bail. His Worship allowed the prisoner to go on his own bail for $100 to appear for trial on the 29th.

"Dusty" Dundas, an old one-armed man was charged with vagrancy. It seems that on Wednesday, whilst carrying an overplus of sixty years, Mr. Dundas gave a local hotel keeper quite a "setting out." Shortly afterwards two ladies passing by saw Dusty drop a 10-cent piece on the pavement and one of them kindly, picking it up, handed it to the old man. Dusty's cargo of wet goods however, had evidently inflamed this bump of pugnacity and he spoke in none too gentle terms to the lady telling her to keep the dime. He was shortly after gathered in by P. C. Newhall. He was remanded for a week. Dusty's friends would hardly recognize him yesterday. His usually unkempt beard had been trimmed. He was sober.

Yesterday afternoon P. C. McDonald found an elderly man making the market building entrance resound with snores that would make one think of some 75 "honkers" on as many automobiles all working full time and simultaneously. In short the gentleman's snores may or may not have loosened 63 panes of glass in adjoining buildings. The officer, after using up some physical force managed to get the snorer back from his trance to the realities of life and a practical view of the absurdity of a half pint man slowing away possibly three quarts of Gooderham & Worts', or Seagram's extract of corn warranted to make wives mad, widows sad and orphans bad. The daylight slumberer was escorted to the police station, where after a short relapse of his honking specialty, whilst lying on the north side of an unscrubbing plank in cell No. 3, he awoke. In response to a question asked by a Times representative, the partially sobered man, in a broad English accent, said that he hailed from London and was on his way to Havelock. Before The Times man got a full biography, Robinson, the English dallier with able-bodied Canadian whiskey had again gone to sleep and was beginning to snore. After his third ability to secure, against all comers, in a free for all snoring match, the newspaper man fled to a boiler factory to get relief from the strain.

MOROCCO STANDS OVER A VOLCANO

French, Italian, English, and German Colonists Flee From Interior to the Coast---Highland Clans Arming for Conflict.

TRIBES ARM FOR WAR.

London, May 24.—Latest despatches to Paris indicate the possibility of the Moroccan situation assuming a serious nature before long. Hostility to France is undisguisedly fierce. "No compromise with foreigners" is the watchword of the sultan's nominal subjects.

French, Italian, English and German colonists have fled from Mural to the coast. The sultan's threat to visit Marakesh is laughed at by the provincial governors. The chieftains of the big fighting tribes and highland clans are buying up horses in every market, partly for remounts but also so as to leave none for any foreign expedition. Every repeating rifle is being oiled and ball cartridges have nearly doubled in price.

SOUNDS THE ALARM.

The Pall Mall Gazette gives prominence to a letter from Mogador written by an English resident, who says:

"Even the most authoritative news cabled from Tangier is wholly unable to give an idea of what is going on throughout Morocco, which knows neither sultan nor makhzen. European papers tell a great deal of what France said at Fez and what Fez replied, and it seems to be taken for granted that with the acceptance by the sultan of the French proposals there will be an end of the trouble.

"Unless I much mistake the trouble is only beginning. You must realize the fact that the sultan's authority outside the walls of Fez and the seaports is absolutely ignored by the vast mass of his nominal subjects. His actual revenue is practically limited to what is left of the customs after the French have taken their 60 per cent. The large provincial tribute which the sultan's father was wont to collect at the head of a real army has dwindled to a paltry fraction of what it was fifteen years ago.

TRIBES ARM FOR WAR.

"All these years, while the makhzen has been growing weaker the great fighting tribes have become stronger and more arrogant. Their savings, instead of going into the Fez treasury, have been invested in horses, rifles, and ammunition. The suggestion that they should help their sovereign lord with a military contingent is derided. 'Let him come to us if he can,' is their position.

"Thus, after the dread of more or less practical independence, with constantly increasing accumulations of arms and cartridges, the real fighting strength of Morocco is considerably greater than it has been within half a century. Those leaders of the national party regard France with unqualified fierce hostility. It would be futile to ignore the fact that whatever the nominal sultan may say or do, the real fighting Morocco will accept no compromise which gives any foreign power the right to administer the internal affairs of Islam.

READY FOR THE SIGNAL.

"As long as the seaports only are affected, resistance may continue of a passive kind, but signs are not lacking that any attempt to establish so apparently a harmless institution as a French hospital at Marakesh might easily precipitate an outburst. The sultan's viceroy, Prince Abdul Hafid, nominal viceroy of Marakesh, has his own game to play. He hasn't the power, even if he had the will, to resist a great popular movement. His strength is not from Fez but from the support of the nominal vassals of the crown, who, however willing to handle French gold, have no intention of submitting to foreign dictation.

"Things having come to the present pass, it would seem that France must make up her mind either to retire and allow Moroccan affairs to take a normal course, or give her advance agents a free hand to stir up a massacre whereby a pretext would be found for further occupations of Moorish territory. What them! More massacres, to be immediately followed by more occupations, and then the long predicted holy war in grim earnest."

Test Case for Lord's Day Act

Toronto, May 24.—In view of the fact that the attorney-general has ordered a test case to be made under the recent decision of Judge Morson regarding restaurants selling fruit and candies on Sunday, Neill Gardiner, proprietor of the Riverdale Park restaurant, and Henry E. Hughes, owner of the one at Center Island, will appear in the police court charged with breaches of the Lord's Day act.

It is understood that Magistrate Kingsford will order a stated case to be made, which can be appealed to a court higher than Judge Morson's.

Echo of the Perkins Trial

Hamilton, May 24.—Notice of action for libel have been served on the Hamilton papers on behalf of Mrs. Hattie Perkins, Thomas McDonald and Ralph Currie, all of Cayuga.

The Herald and Spectator have been served with three notices, in which the plaintiffs claim $10,000 each, and the Times with notices from Mrs. Perkins and Thomas McDonald, claiming $10,000 each, for the publication of alleged libellous statements in connection with their reports of the Perkins trial held at Cayuga.

Remarkable Invention FOR CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

Are You Often Bilious?

Read This and Learn How to Prevent Attacks.

Biliousness is merely a term applied to a condition that exists when the body is over-loaded with bile.

The complexion turns yellow, eyes look dull, pimples, itching and eczema break out, headaches are ever present.

Biliousness has two great causes, constipation and defective liver action.

When Dr. Hamilton's Pills are taken they not only correct the bowels, but act directly on the liver, regulating its bile secretion.

Unlike ordinary medicines which purge and give temporary relief, Dr. Hamilton's Pills remove the condition which causes biliousness; thus permanent cures are effected.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills do cure biliousness and liver ills under all circumstances.

We prove this by the statement of Mr. Fenwick Luddington, of New Harbor, N.B., who writes: "Three months ago I had no expectation of ever getting free from periodical bilious attacks. They were preceded by dizziness and dreadful headaches. If I stooped over my head would swim and a nauseous feeling crept into my stomach.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills fixed up my liver, drove all the bile out of my blood and made me a well man in a few months. Today I enjoy a good appetite, excellent digestion, and the best of health. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills today. Sold by all dealers; 25c per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn, U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

PUBLIC CONTROL OF COAL LANDS

Under the new regulations governing the control of coal lands belonging to the Dominion Government in the Western provinces no more actual sales of such lands are to take place. Instead of this the mining rights will be leased for a period of twenty-one years at a rental of one dollar per acre and a royalty of five cents per ton on the coal mined. No leaseholder is to be allowed to obtain more than 2,560 acres; he must begin operations within a year of the date of being notified to do so; there is to be no subletting of the property without the leave of the minister, and a certain quantity of coal must be produced each year, the penalty being the forfeiture of the lease. In addition to this settlers are to be entitled to buy coal at the pit's mouth, for their own use, at a price not exceeding $1.75 per ton.

The policy adopted is commendable so far as it goes, says the Sun. Honestly and efficiently carried out, it should prevent the control of all coal lands in the West passing into the hands of a few corporations working in alliance with each other. The general provisions seem to provide for a fair amount of public control in the meantime, and limiting the lease to a period of twenty-one years will render it possible to operate the mines as a public utility as soon as public opinion is likely to be prepared to sanction such an advanced step.

General Kuroki Tips Hotel Servants

New York, May 23.—General Baron Tamemoto Kuroki at one o'clock yesterday took his departure for Boston. His suite were engaged early in the onerous task of packing baggage for the various souvenirs of New York city, which they have gathered during their stay make large packages in themselves.

General Kuroki distributed presents among the Hotel Astor servitors yesterday. Each bell boy, waiters, clerk or other employe who contributed to his comfort received some money, the total bounty amounting to nearly $600.

To William C. Muschenheim, the proprietor, he gave a gold cigarette case encrusted with dragons and similar cases of silver to other hotel officials.

Are Off to Find Unknown Tribe

Copenhagen, May 23.—Knud Rasmussen and his sister aged twenty years, who have been studying ethnography at Upernivik, North Greenland, have started for Smith's Sound to find an Esquimaux tribe, which is reputed never to have come into contact with civilization.

Their only attendant is an Esquimaux. They will travel in dog sledges and will depend for food upon shooting. They aim eventually to reach Canadian mainland some time in 1908.

Race Fight Took Place on Vessel

St. John, N.B., May 23.—On board the West India liner, Olenda last night a serious fight took place between negro members of the crew and whites. A colored seaman, named Osborne, was acting as watchman last night, and upon being reprimanded by an officer for neglect of duty attempted assault. This precipitated a row in which it is alleged seven white officers formed one side and the negroes the other. Osborne was beaten into insensibility, and one of the officers received a bad blow on the head. Osborne was placed in irons. There was trouble during the last voyage.

St. John police officials have taken a hand and the affair will be heard in the courts.

HIS TWO BOYS.

One the Hero, the Other the Black Sheep of the Family.

"Let's see," said the man who had been away a long time, "you had two boys, didn't you?"

"Yes," replied Pat. "They would av been three av thim, but one was born a girl."

"I remember now. Tom and Andy you named them, after Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"As I remember Tom he was a very bright little fellow. I never knew so much about Andy?"

"Ah, but that Andy! He's the boy! He led the big lague twict in battin', and now he's managin' a club in Missouri and has a contract fer five years at a terrible big salary. Me and his ma can't get over bein' glad we never made Andy go to school, but let him play ball in all the corner lots of the neighborhood. And all the neighbors have his pitcher in their parlors. They are proud of him."

"That's fine. I am glad to hear that Andy is doing so well. But what about Tom? I always had an idea that he was going to turn out well."

"No; Tom ain't amountin' to much. He was more for wastin' his time goin' to college and that. He's only the chief lit'ry adviser or something like that for one of these concerns that prints books. But thin, you know, they say there's a black sheep in nearly every family."

A FISH'S TAIL.

The Wonderful Power It Develops in Its Strokes.

A fish's tail is its wings. Thanks to the machinery of muscle set along its spine and to its cleaving form, a trout or salmon can dart through the water at a tremendous pace, though its rapid flights, unlike the bird's, are not long ones. It is soon dead beat. The water is not so friendly to flight as the air. The stroke of the fish's tail is one of great power, and by means of it and the writhing, snakelike flexion of the body, high speed is reached. The strength behind this speed is shown in the way a fish or sea mammal out of the water will raise its tail and strike the ground or boat. A fisherman told the writer he once had a rude proof of this power. He caught and, with aid, got into his boat a whale thresher. After lying still awhile as if spent or dying, the creature, on its captor approaching, suddenly lashed furiously up and down. The startled men and their captive between them nearly upset the boat. It was an experience they wish never to repeat. The slapping stroke of a helpless and landed fish may be often a spasm and no more, but when a large and naturally aggressive fish—or mammal like this thresher—lashes on the enemy approaching, it does look like conscious fight.—George R. Dewar.

Two Apiece.

Bailie Craig, the magisterial authority of a small town in Scotland, had six stout sons, with whom he loved to parade the market place, says Dr. Kerr in his "Memories." They furnished him the basis of a mathematical joke.

"A fine family you have," strangers would often say. "Is this the whole of it?"

"No, indeed," the bailie would reply. "I have two sisters at home for each and every one of them."

"What!" the visitor would exclaim, rapidly counting the sons. "Twelve daughters?"

"No, indeed. Just two."

Cromwell and Foolscap.

The triumph of Cromwell! What is foolscap? Everybody the world over recognizes that paper foolscap size means a standard measurement of thirteen inches by sixteen, yet how few can give the reason why. In England the paper mark was originally a crown, and when the commonwealth was set up Cromwell was approached as to what mark should be used in the future. He, with characteristic contempt for crowns, replied, "A fool's cap," and so it became and remained, for at the restoration the matter was overlooked until too late to act upon the ultimate discovery.—London Chronicle.

Dr. Parr's Sarcasm.

"Dr. Parr," said a young student to the celebrated linguist, "let's you and I write a book." "Very well," replied the doctor. "Put in it all that I know and all that you don't know and we'll make a big one."

Once to a voluble and vain young man who said in his presence, "I make it a point to believe nothing I cannot understand," Dr. Parr said, "Then, young man, your creed will be the shortest of any man's I know."

Destiny of the Stuarts.

The figures "88" play a weird part in the rise and fall of the Stuarts. James III. was killed in flight near Bannockburn in 1488, Mary Stuart was beheaded in 1588, James II. of England was dethroned in 1688, Charles Edward died in 1788, and James Stuart, the "Old Pretender," was born in 1688 the very year that his father abdicated.

The Cards.

"Pat, can anybody tell fortunes by cards?"

"No, my son. Many a man who has thought he could has found by subsequent experience that he didn't hold the right cards."

Pie Crust.

Iron Mountains.

The world contains at least four mountains composed of almost solid iron ore. One is the iron mountain of Missouri, another is in Mexico, another is in India and a fourth is in Africa, and there have been reports of such a mountain existing in Siberia.

Careless With Dynamite.

Winnipeg, May 23.—A terrible explosion was averted here yesterday, more by good luck than anything else. Some careless workmen had left a box of dynamite lying under the sidewalk on Beverley street, and children playing around discovered it and amused themselves with twenty-five sticks of the terrible explosive. Passersby noticed their danger, and warned them, and then called the police. When the latter arrived the dynamite was strewn around indiscriminately, and a laborer who was standing by when the officers arrived, to show his contempt for it, threw one of the sticks against a house. Luckily it did not explode. The police confiscated the entire lot.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prunes, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingenuous and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 16,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing ficticious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

and aiming a kick at the dog, he commanded, "Git out, you brute!"

That kick was a mistake. Winfield wasn't used to kicks, and this one scattered his doggish senses completely. He started on a panicky, yelping flight, hotly pursued by Bradley. Down the aisle by the "boys' side," across the back of the room among the feet of the "first class in arithmetic" and up the aisle by the "girls' side" sped the chase. At the end of the second lap the entire school was in an uproar. Mr. Daniels, white with rage, took a hand in the pursuit, and his efforts and those of two or three more volunteers only made matters worse.

At length the dog, hemmed in on both sides, hesitated in the middle of the broad aisle. Suddenly he darted toward the closet once more. Mr. Daniels leaped to intercept him, tripped, struck the stool upon which the bucket of drinking water was placed and sprawled upon the floor in the center of a miniature flood, while Winfield, leaping over him, darted through the entry and down the stairs, a shrieking maniac.

The dripping Mr. Daniels was physically cool, but mentally very warm indeed. "Checks" were distributed with liberality and two boys were "ferruled" before 12 o'clock came. One of these sufferers was Bradley's seat mate, Sam Hammond.

Bradley went home alone. When the old maids asked him innumerable questions concerning how he "got along" at school he simply answered, "All right," and gave no details. Miss Tempy was somewhat worried at his silence and confided to her sister the fear that he had been "studyin' too hard." "All our people have been dreadful keen students," she said.

It was nearly 1 o'clock when the boy re-entered the school yard. As he did so a shout went up from a group near the fence.

"Here he is!" yelled one of the older boys. "Here's your beau, Gus. He won't let 'em plague his girl, you bet!"

"No," shouted Sam Hammond, "Gusty's all right now, ain't she? He'll take care of her.

"Gusty had a little dog;
Its fleece was black's a crow"—

"You shut up!" screamed Gus, breaking from the circle and stamping her foot savagely. Her face was red, and there were tears in her eyes.

"It followed her to school one day."

"What's the matter, Gus?" asked Bradley, coming up.

"Haw, haw!" laughed Sam gleefully. "I told you so. Bradley 'll take care of her.

"Bradley Nickerson, so they say,
Goes a-courtin' night and day;
Sword and pistol by his side,
And Gusty Baker 'll be his bride.

"What's the matter, Gus?" he added mockingly.

"What is the matter?" repeated Bradley.

"None of your bus'ness!" snapped Gus, who was in no mood to be friendly with any one. "You jest wait, Sam Hammond! I'll fix you! Got whipped in school! Ha, ha! Cry baby!" And she gave an exaggerated imitation of her enemy's facial contortions during the "feruling" that morning.

"Come on, Gus," interposed Clara Hopkins. "He isn't worth talkin' to. Come on, I've got somethin' to show you."

Gus reluctantly suffered herself to be led away amid the derisive hootings of Sam and his friends.

"Ain't you goin' with her?" asked Sam provokingly. "She wants her

Mr. Daniels tripped.

Bruddy, so's to take care of her if Winfield comes to school again."

Bradley's temper was slow to rise, but it was rising now.

"Who are you talkin' to?" he demanded.

"You. Who do you s'pose?"

"Well, you'd better shut up."

"I had? S'pose I don't want to?"

"Then I'll make you—that's what!"

"You will?"

"Yes, I will."

"You ain't the size. Takes a man, not a monkey."

"I'll show you whether I'm the size or not."

"You will?"

"Aw, gee!" said one of the bigger boys. "I wouldn't take that from no Wellmouth kid, if I was you, Sam."

"Nor I, neither," said another.

Thus encouraged, Sam bristled up to his opponent and looked down at him sneeringly. Bradley didn't give way [illegible] the two boys rubbed jackets as they moved slowly about each other. The surrounding group looked delightedly expectant.

"Stop your shovin'!" commanded Sam, giving his enemy a push with his shoulder.

"Stop yourself," said Bradley, pushing back.

"I'll put a head on you so's the old maids won't know you."

"I'll make you snivel worse 'n you did in school this mornin'."

"Well, Sam," exclaimed a spectator in huge disgust, "'fore I'd take that!"

The Hammond boy did not really want to fight, but, thus goaded, he suddenly gave Bradley a violent push with both hands. The next instant both youngsters were clasped tightly together, gripping each other about the neck and wrestling savagely. In a moment they fell with a thump and rolled over and over, pounding, kicking and scratching. The snow flew, and the crowd whooped and pushed and strained to see better.

Then there was a rush, a frightened scurry, and both combatants were pulled apart and jerked to their feet, while Mr. Daniels, holding each by the coat collar, glared down upon them.

"You may come with me," he said, with chilling calmness.

The scene in the schoolroom that followed was brief, but exciting. Bradley held out his hand and bit his lip stubbornly while the ferule descended—once, twice, twelve times.

"There!" said the teacher. "Now, you may take your seat. For a new scholar you begin extremely well. Now, Samuel!"

The Hammond hand having received its share of beating and its owner also sent to his seat, Mr. Daniels said: "Both of you will lose your afternoon recess. I shall also give each of you a note, telling of your punishment, to take home."

At half past 4 that afternoon Bradley, with the note tightly clasped in his hand, walked dismally up the walk to the Allen back door. The thought that he had disgraced himself forever in the eyes of his protectors burned like

Did you get that MESSAGE, that GOLDEN MESSAGE?

Shipments of ore from the GOLDEN MESSAGE MINES prove it to be a great BONANZA.

The lowest grade (mill) ore brought $46.60 per ton, the second grade $263.80, while the first grade brought $1621.16 per ton.

The work is being pushed with all possible speed in the sinking of the big shaft, the entire bottom of which is ALL ORE. The management will soon be ready to declare the first

DIVIDEND, which will be a GOLDEN MESSAGE indeed.

The Company owns ten claims here in the richest district ever known in this country. Four of these claims are patented, while the other six are being patented; $35,000 worth of development has been done; the Company is mining in the ground and not on paper.

We urge the public to visit us and inspect our property, and if not found to be as represented we will refund all expenses of coming out to see it. No "Fake Concern" can afford to make such an offer.

B. B. MIGHTON & CO.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1891 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Heaviness, Lassitude, Drowsy and Dull

Do You Feel That Way?

How provoking these symptoms are! You sleep well, but when you awake on there is none of the exhilaration that sleep and rest should confer.

Instead of being alert, having quickness of apprehension, there is languor, dullness, a disinclination to do things.

Three causes for this feeling.

Lazy liver, lazy—kidneys, and a mighty lazy stomach which does its work very poorly and compels the other organs to do things they are unequal to for any length of time.

Note the consequences—blood is filled with wastes—poisons weigh down the nervous system—rebuilding processes are absolutely stopped.

You'll note an instant change when you take Ferrozone.

Appetite improves, digestion becomes good as ever—skin grows ruddy and clear, all sense of langour, unsteadiness and depression fades away and finally disappears.

Ferrozone clarifies the brain, supplies tone and vigor, imparts clearness and strength. You feel like a new person, full of life, full of ambition, ready to do things—and able to do them also.

Think it over. Ferrozone is a tonic that uplifts, upbuilds, that nourishes and restores the sick by supplying the elements their weakened system need.

It can't help but do you good. For men, women and children, in fact anyone seeking strength and health, Ferrozone is invaluable; try it, sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

Little Annette Bissette's Death

Marathon Race Only at the Park

It was some time ago stated in the local press that today's Marathon race would start from Hunter street to the Driving Park. By general consensus of opinion this race will not be run as first noted. Those entering the great race object to running down George street, amid the crowded and quickly following cars, so that the race will be altogether on the track. This race is a five-mile one, i.e., ten times round the track.

No Autos Likely in Old Fire Hall

Mr. Fred Darcy, local agent for several makes of automobiles, made application to the Property Committee on Wednesday night for the use of the old fire hall as an automobile show room. Plans for converting these premises into offices for the city officials, have been approved by the Property Committee, who intend recommending the same to the council. No action was taken by the committee last night.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Dr. Shoop's Restorative sold by J. D. Tully.

Trapper Predicts Hot Summer

An old time trapper who was for years gathered in pelts in the northern part of this county, whilst in Havelock recently, added to his many successful weather predictions by prophecying that the weather this summer will remain cool, as during the past month until about the first of July, when it will become extremely warm and continue thus until late into the fall, thus allowing plenty of time for a good crop this year.

Their 'phone No. is 472, and orders are filled at short notice. Old carpets are given the appearance of new without damage to the goods.

A Correction

In our remarks a few days ago, regarding Mr. William Graham, of Smith, who was so successfully treated at the Victoria Memorial Hospital, Toronto, we referred to Mr. Graham's trouble as "gravel stones." It appears that this is a mistake. Mr. Graham has been a sufferer from internal tumor, which surrendered to the new "vibration of light" treatment, administered by Dr. Walker, the efficient superintendent of that hospital. Mr. Graham's many friends are both pleased and surprised to see a gentleman of his age once more in robust health.

Ennismore Annual Picnic June 20th

The great annual Ennismore picnic in Tara Grove, which draws persons many visitors from the city as Father Keilty's Dquro picnic, will be held on Thursday, June 20th. This was decided at a recent meeting of St. Martin's T.A.S., Ennismore. A committee has been appointed to take charge of the arrangements, and this year's picnic promises to surpass all others. Nothing has been left undone to make the big annual event in Ennismore, most agreeable and pleasant, and Rev. Father Fitzpatrick, the pastor of St. Martin's church, says that they expect a great crowd present.

The Question of Baldness

This is a vital question with hundreds of men who are bald or partially so. How to overcome the disfigurement lent by baldness is a simple matter when you consider the perfection of modern art in the making of Wigs and Toupees. The visit of Prof. Dorenwend of Toronto to Peterborough, on Monday, May 27, when he will be at the Oriental Hotel, renders it possible for any who wish to consult him to do so at his private apartments retained at the Oriental for this purpose. Demonstration given to show the perfect naturalness of his Wigs and Toupees. Do not miss this opportunity. Remember the days and dates. The Oriental Hotel, on Monday, May 27.

Of Interest To Women.

To such women as are not seriously out of health, but who have exacting duties to perform, either in the way of household cares or in social duties and functions which seriously tax their strength, as well as to nursing mothers, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has proved a most valuable supporting tonic and invigorating nervine. By its timely use, much serious sickness and suffering may be avoided. The operating table and the surgeons' knife, would, it is believed, seldom have to be employed if this most valuable woman's remedy were resorted to in good time. The "Favorite Prescription" has proven a great boon to expectant mothers by preparing the system for the coming of baby, thereby rendering childbirth safe, easy, and almost painless.

Bear in mind, please that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is not a secret or patent medicine, against which the most intelligent people are quite naturally averse, because of the uncertainty as to their composition and harmless character, but is a MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, a full list of all its ingredients being printed, in plain English, on every bottle-wrapper. An examination of this list of ingredients will disclose the fact that it is non-alcoholic in its composition, chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine taking the place of the commonly used alcohol, in its make-up. In this connection it may not be out of place to state that the "Favorite Prescription" of Dr. Pierce is the only medicine put up for the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses and ailments, and sold through druggists, all the ingredients of which have the unanimous endorsement of all the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice, and that too as remedies for the ailments for which "Favorite Prescription" is recommended.

A little book of these endorsements will be sent to any address, post-paid, and absolutely free if you request same by postal card, or letter, of Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. Easy to take as candy.

Sulphide Vein

SERIOUS FIRE AT PETER HAMILTON'S

Fire Brigade After a Hard and Tedious Fight Succeed in Holding the Flames to the Two Top Floors of That Large Factory

Shortly before six o'clock Saturday evening the electric fire alarm system rang out 21, the fire being in the southern wing of Messrs. Peter Hamilton Manufacturing Works at the corner of George and King streets. It seems that or was rumored that the alarm at the new fire hall did not work properly and thus a slight delay was caused. However in a very few minutes the hose wagon was promptly on the spot and two lines of hose attached to the hydrant just in front of the burning building, the hydrant being to the west side of George street, thus the street car service to the south end of the city was cut off for about an hour.

The fire was first discovered by three streams of smoke rising from the roof above the attic in the three storey southern wing of the factory. In this were stored a large quantity of finished stock and worse still, as aiding the fire fiend a quantity of paints and varnishes. The two streams from George street played on the roof of this building, and through the third story windows. At the same time two lines of hose were soon playing on the burning factory from Water street.

Notwithstanding all efforts of the brigade, for a time the flames gained the mastery. The great fear was that the fire would find access to the top story of the main building, separated only by a brick wall particularly so, as in the attic of the main building was a large quantity of turpentine and other inflammables. Shortly after the fire ladders had taken up one line of hose on the large outdoor elevator on George street, used for hoisting lowering heavy machinery, etc., two old gentlemen, many years in the employ of the factory, appeared at the large door opening on the hoist; one called furiously "Why don't you turn the water out" meaning for the hose taken up by the elevator. The other in great excitement and as furiously yelled, "Don't you turn that water on yet." The firemen carried a long line of hose up into the burning building from the street door but could not get at the seat of the fire, hence the use of the elevator. Within some ten or fifteen minutes after the brigade's arrival, following on vast clouds of dense smoke arising from the seemingly doomed southern wing, columns of bright flames shot from end to end of the apex of thereof for 20 or 30 feet into the evening sky. After finding that the two separate lines of hose from George street could not cope with the rapidly growing fire, the large hose was attached to the hydrant, with a Y shaped connection so that more force and greater volume of water could be thrown. Just as this attachment was made it was seen that the undesireable had happened, the fire had eaten its way through to the top floor of the main building.

Every effort was at once made, to stop the spread of the flames. Although several lines of hose, with good pressure from the water mains were directed to this new seat of danger, for some moments it was nip and tuck whether water directed by intelligence or flames fed by dry and inflammable fuel would have the mastery. As the newly arisen danger was gotten somewhat under control, still another line of hose was carried up by ladders on the George street side of the southern wing.

For many minutes it was a strenuous fight between water and the fire in the southern wing. Every hose line available playing its full capacity. Shortly after 6.30 a loud crash was heard as the attic floor fell through thus giving greater draft to the flames. It was then seen that the roof and upper flat was doomed beyond doubt; in a few minutes more another crash resounded through the evening balmy air as the major portion of the eastern roof fell in, causing a perfect fusilade of sparks to fly up seeking other buildings to devour. To prevent this danger, several young men with lines of garden hose kept the roofs of the surrounding wooden sheds to the east thoroughly saturated. That these wooden buildings, some of which actually adjoined the burning buildings did not catch fire was almost marvellous and largely due to the work done by the garden hose. Fortunately there was no wind; had there been a swift breeze, nothing could have saved the southern building and the sheds surrounding it. After superhuman efforts the brigade got the fire under practically control shortly after seven, but not out until after nine o'clock.

Fortunately the damage whilst running into thousands of dollars, both to building, stock burnt and damages done by water to finished goods and machinery, will not include or necessitate the rebuilding of the brick walls which were saved, entire.

CASUALTIES.

During progress of the fire two members of the brigade were injured. Mr. Art Ringer had the misfortune to get his foot caught in the street car track, spraining his ankle so severely he had to be driven home in the hose wagon, and Mr. Wilt Metherel received a bad blow on the head. Mr Metherel whilst somewhat dazed by the blow was able to stick at his post of duty.

The fire started in the top floor, the paint shop, of the southern three story wing of the factory, its cause as yet being unknown.

It is not yet able to be ascertained what the damage will amount to, but it will be very heavy. The fire comes at a most unfortunate time of year for Mr. Hamilton, as can easily be understood by those acquainted with the demand for agricultural implements. In response to a question asked on Saturday night by Times, Mr. Peter Hamilton replied he did not then know exactly what insurance there was on the building. In any case, the loss sustained at this time of year in their business will hardly be covered fully by insurance. The company will at once take steps to rebuild without delay so as to be able to supply the great demand for their goods. The roof of each of the buildings is a total wreck.

Four of the brigade stayed up all night, and several times had to work to prevent the fire breaking out afresh.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Large Quantities of Precious Stones Missing With Boeck

New York, May 26.—Two indictments charging grand larceny were returned yesterday against J. Edward Boeck, who is accused of having obtained large quantities of precious stones by false pretenses from Maiden Lane dealers.

Startling disclosures are said to have resulted from the investigations thus far made by the detectives who are acting for the Jewellers' Security Alliance of the United States. It was said last night on what purported to be reliable authority that the losses attending Boeck's flight are at least $500,000. A confidential employe of one of the oldest jewelry firms in the Maiden Lane district said he would not be surprised if Boeck's obligations were found to amount to nearly 1,000,000.

Field Day for Knights of Columbus

Nearly two Hundred Candidates Initiated to the Order

The local Knights of Columbus have reason to be proud of their share in the celebration of Victoria Day. Over four hundred strangers were in the city attending the Knights of Columbus big gathering. The delegates came from all parts of the Province, including a special train, with a hundred on board from Toronto, and a special from Belleville with seventy-five on board, besides about 120 from Lindsay and near by points. All the local hotels were filled.

The occasion was the exemplification of degrees upon about 170 candidates. Early in the morning the visitors met in the hall, on George street, and, with the local lodge, paraded in a body to mass at St. Peter's cathedral. His Lordship Bishop O'Connor was on his throne, assisted by the Ven. Archdeacon Casey, of Lindsay, and other dignitaries of the church. At eleven o'clock the exemplification of degrees was started by the grand officers of the Order. The 170 candidates were all received into the Order and made Knights of Columbus. Light luncheon was served by Mr. Thomas Hooper in the rooms at 10 p.m., and the gathering broke up.

S. A. Picnic a Success

The Salvation Army's excursion to Idyl Wyld on the 24th was patronized by some 300 fun and health seekers. All who went report having had a most enjoyable day. They went by steamer Water Lily and barge, and were well looked after by the boat crew and officers. The afternoon was made merry by games and a concert by the band. Adj. Waggins was master of ceremonies and saw that all present enjoyed themselves.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At Saturday's police court, William Hamp and William Drummond were charged with having been drunk and disorderly on the 24th. They each pleaded guilty. The two, one English and the other Scotch work in Otonabee. They were assessed $2 each which was paid.

Geo. Greatrix was charged with having assaulted his wife on May 24. Mr. Kerr who appeared for the prisoner, said he knew both parties, in fact had done legal work for both. He suggested to the magistrate that it would be better for all concerned that the prisoner promise to behave and the matter be dropped. The magistrate said he displised any man who raised a hand to the mother of his children. He would however, as Mrs. Greatrix consented, dismiss the prisoner on his paying the costs $3.45.

Two informations were laid against men charged with selling light weight bags of potatoes.

Mr. Johnston Murphy was charged with having offered bags of less than a bushel and a half each; they were 13 pounds under the weight. Mr. Kerr appeared for the defendant.

Alexander Dawson was charged with a shortage of weight. He explained that in the fall he measured and weighed the potatoes but during the winter much of the moisture had evaporated thus making them light.

Mr. McIlmoyle, the market clerk, testified that Mr. Murphy's five bags of potatoes were 25 pounds short altogether.

The magistrate remarked that whilst not saying anything wrong was meant, to prevent other farmers making shortages he would not confiscate the potatoes, but would impose a fine of $2. The same treatment was accorded to Mr. Dawson. Both fines were paid. After the court had adjourned Mr. Murphy went to the market weigh scales and carefully added enough potatoes to each of his bags to bring them to legal weight.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"Hottest Coon in Dixie"

The holiday attraction at the Grand Opera House Friday afternoon and evening was "The Hottest Coon in Dixie," which played to big business, especially in the evening, when the house was packed. The plot itself was of a home nature, but the musical and dance offerings were rather good. Rowland the tramp juggler was marvellous in his juggling act, and perhaps has not been surpassed in this city in his own particular line. The presentation was a regular "coon," show with Andrew A. Copeland in the leading role. Mr. Copeland is a clever comedian, and met with considerable applause.

Railroads Keep the Law in Peterboro

Mr. Robt. Harrison Interviews the Chief of Police on Sunday Shunting

Mr. Robt. Harrison, Water street, local representative of the Dominion Christian Alliance, called at the police station, Saturday afternoon and interviewed Chief Reset in regard to a circular letter the former had just received from the secretary of the Provincial Alliance.

This letter is being sent broadcast throughout the Province asking co-operation of the various municipal police forces in ascertaining evidence as to whether the new clause in the Lord's Day Act regarding the operation of railroad trains is being broken. Mr. Harrison noted that test cases are to be made throughout the Province in such places as it may be ascertained that shunting, making up or despatching of local trains and other railway work is being done on Sunday, in contravention of the Lord's Day Act.

Mr. Harrison suggested that if the chief would put one or two men at the local stations for a few Sundays, to watch whether shunting is in operation or not, that the Alliance would pay their expenses.

The chief however, explained that no shunting is now being done on Sundays in Peterborough, nor are any local trains made up or despatched.

Mr. Harrison, in the hearing of a Times man present at the interview remarked that whilst he had been in many towns from the Atlantic to the Pacific, he knew of no city where the laws of all kinds were better or more rigidly enforced than in Peterborough. He paid both the chief and the local force a high compliment on the way laws are enforced, and the peace of the city preserved.

Prayed and Sang Hymns While Mad

On Saturday afternoon two local physicians called at the police station to make out certain papers in connection with the arrest a few days ago of a woman said to be insane, with the object, in due course of having the unfortunate creature committed to the asylum.

One of the forms filled out contained a blank clause to be filled out in which are mentioned the reasons for adjudging her to be "non compos mentis." After poting the various features of her insanity, the list of insane actions ended by saying, "she prays and sings hymns." Whilst this may seem anacronous, there are times and places for indulging in prayers and hymn singing. This unfortunate woman, now in the county jail, whilst evidently insane may possibly recover her sanity. She is not a Christian Scientist.

Leg Amputated by a G. T. R. Train

Serious Accident, Yesterday Near Omemee to Chas. Sellare a Peddlar

Yesterday afternoon when G.T.R. engine No. 277 arrived in the city shortly after one o'clock, it brought in a very sick man, who had had a leg cut off.

As far as could be ascertained, the man by name Chas. Sellare, who is about 70 years of age, and a peddlar, was walking on the G.T.R. tracks about two miles east of Omemee, when not hearing the train coming or in neglecting to leave the track in time, he was knocked down by a "double-header" freight train. His left leg got beneath the wheels and was cut off below the knee. The train crew took him aboard and immediately brought him to the city. The Dan Spence ambulance was at once telephoned for and took the wounded man to Nichols Hospital. At a late hour last night he was reported as doing as well as could be expected.

The Horse Races a Brilliant Success

The Peterborough Turf Club races on the 24th passed off without a hitch and were successful in every respect, both as to gate and events. The grand stand was filled. The track was in great shape and everything was strictly on the square. Not a remark was heard but in praise of the way in which Messrs. Curran, O'Shea, Connors, Johnston and other members of the club had managed the races. Messrs. Charles Nixon and James O'Shea officiated as judge of the course and timekeeper, respectively.

The first event was the long talked of Marathon 5-mile foot race. There were four entries, Bert Howard, of Hiawatha; Harry Quinlan, Fowler and Wood. Howard had everything his own way beating Wood by a good quarter of a mile, and winning the gold watch. Fowler and Quinlan could not stand the pressure and quit after going about two miles. Howard's time was 29.16.

The free for all was won by Dr. Johnston's Hazel Bell, Jack Cottingham's Harry Direct 2nd, and Martin Connors' Lady Gothard 3rd. Time 1.11.

The 2.30 was won by Geo. Lipsett's City Queen, with J. Elmhurst's Little Girl 2nd.

The named race was won by Godfrey's Pride, J. Kelleher's black Mac 2nd, and W. Leahy's bay horse 3rd. Time 0.17 1-2.

Death of Former Steamboat Captain

The many friends of Mr. Clare F. Calcutt were shocked to learn on Friday that this well known former steamboat captain had died suddenly early that morning. Mr. Calcutt on Thursday evening was attending to his duties in connection with the brewery and seemed in his usual health. However he was taken suddenly and violently ill about 11 p.m. Thursday, and passed away early next morning, at the family residence.

The late Mr. Calcutt was the only son of Mr. Harry Calcutt, who survives his son. The deceased who was 40 years of age was unmarried. He was born in this city, where he lived all his life.

Three sisters besides his father are left to mourn his loss. They are Mrs. R. B. Rogers, city, and Misses Kate and Marguret at home.

The funeral, which was private, took place Saturday afternoon to Little Lake cemetery. Rev. E. A. Langfeldt conducted the service.

More Police for London

London, May 26.—The Metropolitan police force, it is understood, is shortly to be considerably augmented.

About 100 men will be transferred from the uniformed branch to the criminal investigation department, and their places will be filled by recruits.

In every branch of the force additional inspectors and sergeants will be appointed, and this will mean additional vacancies for new men.

Although no official announcement is likely to be made until the police commission has finished its sittings, it is also stated that there is to be an all-round increase in wages, the object being to attract good men to the service.

CALLS IT WORSE THAN MORMONISM

Corey's Marriage to Mabelle Gilman Denounced by the Rev. Madison Peters---Mormonism in Practice is Simultaneous Polygamy

New York, May 26.—W. E. Corey's marriage with Mabelle Gilman was denounced by the Rev. Madison C. Peters from his temporary pulpit in the Majestic theater. He also attacked clergymen who officiated at such weddings, and those who "stand up at all hours of the night and blesst he flaunting immorality."

"I do not believe," said Mr. Peters, "in the wholesale denunciation of divorce and divorced persons. I know of homes positively Edenic b uilt by those who have changed partners and the spirit of the law sanctioning divorce is that a wronged wife or husband should not be compelled to make a hell of the holiest human relation. I know of many who have come into the sublime exaltations of father, mother, and child by taking the bitter medicine labeled divorce.

"This law, which contemplates relief for the injured party, is a very different thing from the wife shifting of our sudden millionaires.

WORSE THAN MORMONISM.

"We all recall the protest signed by millions of voters against a Mormon holding his seat in that scandalous millionaires' club known as the United States Senate. Mormonism in practice is simultaneous polygamy. The Corey stripe is consecutive. So long as keepers of respectable hotels cater to the progressive polygamy trade, so long as clergymen—as frequently happens in New York—stand up all hours of the night and blesst he flaunting immorality for big fees—and there are a few, though a very few, ministers in New York who are doing that sort of a thing for a living—so long as we stand this without a vigorous protest we can hardly expect to reform the Mormons. Our modern brand of progressive polygamy is worse than the ordinary brand, for while a Mormon might acquire a new wife he could not turn away the middle-aged mother of his children.

"Well may the name of Corey be pilloried in public infamy and the name become synonymous with ingratitude—to use a woman as a stepping stone to wealth and power and then to cast her off—to die of a broken heart, after having given to him the best years of her life. I dare not trust myself to put my opinion of such a man in words lest I should say something not in the prayer book.

FEW LIKE MR. COREY.

"Eighty per cent. of the successful men of the nation begun life as Corey and his wife began it—in a humble way. But few have discarded the wives who helped to make them. Few of our successful men have allowed brazen women to supplant the wives of their youth and permitted them to reap the golden harvests which their lawful predecessors helped to sow.

"This country's social strata is crying for reform, and if we are to preserve our national integrity and conserve the prestige won for us by our fathers that reform must come soon. These usurping women wallow in the wealth they had no share in amassing, and they care little for the infatuated dupes who have to pay the piper dearly for their lovely dancers."

Peterboro' Ball Team Winners of Trophy

That Manager Johnston has gathered together a good ball, was clearly demonstrated in the three games played here on the holiday and Saturday afternoon against the Arotics of Toronto, for a silver cup, presented by Mrs. Melbourne of Toronto. The first game played Friday morning was won by the visitors by a score of 7—4. This game was clearly a gift to the Toronto team, and a hard one for Burns, who pitched for the locals, to lose as he struck 15 of the visitors out, generally enough to win two ordinary games.

The afternoon session developed into a slugging bee, in which the locals had all the best of Quinlan occupied the box for Peterborough, and pitched fine ball. The homsters finally winning out by a score of 17—10.

The third game which was played Saturday afternoon, was the best of the series. The teams see-sawed until the last innings, when the locals went in to bat with the score 7—6 against them, and with none out and one man on base Sir Mr. Burridge put the timber up against a nice one that scored two runs, thus winning the game by the score of 7—8. "Yebbie" Flaherty, who was on the slab for the locals, pitched a good game. "Yebbie" was certainly playing under disadvantages. He had been hit by the pitcher twice on the holiday, one ball closing up an eye, and the other a swift inshoot that he stopped with his ribs.

S. S. Meeting Held in St. Paul's Church

Yesterday afternoon at 4.15 o'clock a mass meeting of all the Sunday schools of the city was held in St. Paul's church. At this meeting, Rev. B. W. Merrill, general superintendent of Baptist Sunday Schools for Ontario and Quebec, gave an address. Mr. Merrill is an able and instructive speaker and was heard with much pleasure both yesterday and during the recent Baptist convention in this city.

Czar's Life is not Very Precious

St. Petersburg, May 26.—Emperor Nicholas in reply to the message of the council of the Empire, expressing its congratulations on his escape from death as a result of the recent terrorists plot has telegraphed that body as follows:

"I heartily thank the Council of the Empire for the expression of its sentiments. I am convinced that the council will be of real assistance to me in all its works. As for my life it is not precious to me provided Russia lives in glory, peace, and prosperity."

Would Get no Cheers in Australia

London, May 26.—Thomas Bent, premier of Victoria, addressing a gathering to celebrate Empire Day at Ealing yesterday, said: "Both had come to England to shake hands with you over the graves of your dead relatives and friends, and you cheered and congratulated him. In my country, Australia, we should not have shouted or waved horse and fluttered white handkerchiefs at him; we remember things. Besides, we have a number of wooden legs, of armless men, and of sorrowing widows to keep us in remembrance. Justin has promised you certain things and I hope and trust he will keep them promises."

Wheat Seeding Over

Winnipeg, May 26.—Telegraphic reports from Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta indicate that the vast majority of farmers have completed wheat seeding. The acreage will be from eight to ten per cent. less than last year in Manitoba, but slightly increased in Saskatchewan. Practically every point reports the soil in excellent condition, until the seed well put in. All that is wanted is warm weather, and later a little rain. Taking them as a whole the prospects for a good crops are fully thirty per cent. better than ten days ago.

Abruzzi at New York

New York, May 26.—Admiral the Duke of Abruzzi arrived in New York harbor yesterday aboard the Italian cruiser Varese, flagship of the squadron sent to the United States by the Italian Government to participate in the navy ceremonies attending the opening of the Jamestown Exposition.

Just how long the duke will remain in New York is not known.

The Onion Eater.

"Most of us," said a man who eats plenty of onions, "eat too much meat and grease and butter and bread and not enough vegetables, and the consequence is our systems get clogged up with grease and starch, our livers get out of order and we grumble at our wives, and scold our children, and fuss when the baby cries, and quarrel with the street car conductors, and get into rows at the office and lose our jobs, not because we are naturally sulky or quarrelsome, but because we are bilious. Why are we bilious? Because we don't eat onions. You never saw a dyspeptic man eating onions. He thinks they are poison, but, in fact, they are the medicine that he most needs. Whenever you see an onion eater you see a whole souled, open hearted, jolly good fellow, who knows what he ought to eat to keep him good humored. Talk about the staff of life, why, bread is only a crutch. There is more nourishment in an onion than there is in a roll. The onion lovers keep the world moving, to say nothing of providing it with much of its fun."

Afghan Justice.

A Yorkshire engineer acted in Afghanistan for many years as director of the arsenal to Abdur Rahman. On one occasion the engineer was fired at by some fanatic in a bazaar and laid a complaint before the ameer. His highness seemed to make light of the matter, observing: "I should not bother about it. You will find it will be all right." The engineer was by no means satisfied, but, remembering the people with whom he was, resolved to say no more. A week or so later he was invited to accompany the ameer on a ride. When outside the town they passed gibbet after gibbet, each occupied. The Englishman at length broke silence by suggesting, "Your highness seems to have been busy of late." The reply was characteristic: "Oh, no. That is your little lot" It was afterward learned that the ameer had executed every male member of the family of the assailant upon whom he could lay hands."—London Globe.

Lost and Won at Shiloh.

Many an amusing incident of army life is given in Lew Wallace's autobiography. For example, he writes thus of a tented "paradise" which was lost and won at the battle of Shiloh: "Within our lines there was a drinking tent on which was written 'Paradise.' It was taken by the Confederates in the first day's fight, and the victors wrote beneath its name 'Lost.' By Beauregard's order all camp furniture was left intact, as he expected to possess the whole field in the morrow's struggle. The Union army recovered their ground by the second day's battle, the pleasure tent was retaken and to the two names was added the word 'Regained.'"

The Violin's Scroll.

The "throwing" of the scroll, or head, of a violin betrays the master's style the same as handwriting. To an amateur all violin heads may appear the same, but the connoisseur knows a "Strad," Amati or Guarnerius at once from the physiognomy of the scroll. This has been likened to the painter's touch—that is, difficult to imitate so as to deceive one who is thoroughly conversant with the individual work of the great masters.—Circle.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The "Pull" and the Job.

Business men are constantly being pestered by young men who seek positions through letters of recommendation, often in the form of personal requests from fellow business men. One may well question whether these letters have any great "pulling" power after all. The Saturday Evening Post tells of such an instance. After being very politely dismissed by several managers with the stereotyped expression that there was not a vacancy at present, the young man tore up the letters and went back to the place last visited.

"What can I do for you now?" the manager asked in an annoyed tone.

"Pardon me," said the young man, "but I've just torn up those letters. Could you give me a job on my own book?"

The manager looked amused and said: "We need a young fellow to chip castings in the machine shop at $6 a week. If you like, you can have that until something better turns up."

"Yes, sir," replied the job hunter. "I'm ready now."

Queen Sophia and Bismarck.

Queen Sophia of the Netherlands, the first wife of King William III. of Holland, was too great a friend of Emperor Napoleon III., the Empress Eugenie and of France generally to take kindly to Bismarck. Before the big war of 1870 and probably some time after the Luxembourg squabble there was an international exhibition in Amsterdam, which the queen visited. She was conducted over the whole place by the committee, and as they came to a certain section one of the members said, "Now your majesty will see the greatest enemy of Germany." "Ah, Bismarck!" she cried, with some glee. The members stood aghast and never repeated this rash exclamation. The "greatest enemy" he had to exhibit was not, of course, Bismarck at all, but only a very much enlarged reproduction of either the phylloxera or the Colorado beetle, which at that time did a great deal of harm to German agriculture.—Westminster Gazette.

Placing the Responsibility.

For six months or more the druggist's assistant had occupied his leisure moments by writing verses for the village paper, in the "poets' corner" of which publication they appeared anonymously every Thursday, says the Youth's Companion. On opening his copy of the Weekly Bugle one morning, and, turning first, as was his regular habit, to that particular corner, he was surprised and gratified beyond measure to see his name in full appended to his latest poetical outbreak.

He hastened to call at the office of the Bugle.

"Mr. Stires," he said to the editor, "I want to thank you for signing my name to my poem in this week's paper. It encourages a fellow when he gets proper credit for his work."

"Oh, that's all right, Jobson," responded the editor. "We thought it was about time to place the responsibility for that poetry where it belonged."

His "Richt" Name.

From queer names and descriptions of things there follow as a natural sequence queer names and descriptions of people. Among a number of racy instances is one quoted by Mr. Fox-Davies, the well known authority on nomenclature, from Blackwood's Magazine, of April, 1842. "In one of the Buchan fishing villages a stranger had occasion to call on a fisherman of the name of Alexander White. Meeting a girl, he asked, 'Can ye tell me fa'r Sanny Fite lives?' 'Filk Sanny Fite?' quoth she. 'Muckle Sanny Fite?' said he. 'Filk muckle Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle lang Sanny Fite.' 'Filk muckle lang Sanny Fite?' 'Muckle lang gleyed Sanny Fite!' shouted the exasperated man. 'Oh, it's Goup-the-Lift ye're seeking,' answered the girl, 'and fat the de'il for dinna ye speer for the mon by his richt name at ance?'"

High Game and Fools.

"Never eat game high," said an antiquary. "People will tell you that high game is tenderer. What rot! Of course it is tenderer, but would you want your steak or your chop spoiled in order that it might be a little softer to the teeth? No, never! Highness in game is an anachronism, a relic of the past, a relic of the days of stage coaches. In those days it was impossible to deliver game to the cities fresh—transit was too slow. All game was high, and men ate it high because otherwise they couldn't eat it at all; hence to eat game high nowadays, when there is no necessity for it, is to be a fool."

Buddha's Six Essentials.

Buddha, who reformed the Hindoo religion more than 500 years before Christ, established for men six essentials of perfection—first, knowledge, used to distinguish the true from the false; second, energy, which is used to fight against the evils of the flesh; third, purity; fourth, patience; fifth, charity (i. e., loving kindness); sixth, almsgiving.

A Hard Crack.

"Well," said he, anxious to make up their quarrel of yesterday, "aren't you curious to know what's in this parcel?"

"Not very," replied his wife indifferently.

"Well, it's something for the one I love best in the world."

"Ah, I suppose it's those new collars you said you needed."

Corn Mills.

Corn mills are often mentioned in the Bible. The original corn mill much resembled the modern druggist's pestle. Moses forbade corn mills to be taken in pawn, for that, he thought, was like taking a man's life in pledge.

Gladstone Spoke in the Rain.

One day as Mr. Gladstone was speaking from the terrace rain began to fall. With the first few drops came a voice from the crowd, "Put on your hat, Mr. Gladstone." "No," blandly responded the veteran; "some prefer their hats on; I prefer mine off." As the rain fell more heavily Mrs. Gladstone stepped behind her husband and held an umbrella over his bare head. He was over eighty at the time. Mr. Gladstone went fluently on, expounding the merits of rabbit farming, but after a time even he noticed the rain and the umbrella. Turning to Mrs. Gladstone, he said, "I will put my own up, my dear," and he did so. Again the eloquent voice galloped on, while the rain became heavier and heavier. Presently Mrs. Gladstone threw a light mackintosh over her husband's shoulders. The moment he felt it he turned quickly round and with some asperity said, "I won't have it." He shrugged his shoulders, the mackintosh fell, and Mrs. Gladstone stepped back. For five minutes more in a deluge Mr. Gladstone went on; then he stopped, and we all fled.—Manchester Guardian.

In a German Law Court.

A German law court was the scene lately of an amusing incident. The magistrate, a tiresome and long winded person, was deciding a small case in which the plaintiff claimed damages for abuse. "To call a man a 'pig' or a 'dog,'" replied the judge, "is certainly an insult, but to say that he is a 'pig-dog' is offensive, for no such animal exists." The plaintiff glared at the bench. "Schweine-Hund!" he remarked, with bitter emphasis.—T. P.'s London Weekly.

The Innocent Joys of Youth.

"Gracious, Fanny!" exclaimed a mother to her little daughter. "Why are you shouting like that? Why can't you be quiet like your brother?"

"He's got to be quiet," replied Fanny. "He's playing papa coming home late."

"And who are you playing?"

"Oh, I'm playing you!"

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerves, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 14,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing ficticious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

Enquire about us if you wish through the Traders' Bank, Union Bank, Winnipeg, or any Mercantile Agency.

a fire under his new cap; also there was a bitter feeling that Gus, the cause of all his trouble, had not been near him to console or ask pardon.

It was typical of the boy that he had not thought of destroying the note. He handed it to Miss Prissy the moment he opened the door. She read it and sat heavily down in the chintz rocker.

"My soul and body!" she wailed. "Tempy Allen, come here this minute! Here, for mercy's sake, read this!"

Miss Tempy's agitation was even more marked than that of her sister.

"Oh, oh, oh!" she cried, waving the condemning sheet of paper like a distress signal. "How could you? How could you? I don't b'lieve a relation of the Allens was ever whipped in school before. What shall we do, Prissy? And his first day too!"

Bradley, with direful thoughts of self destruction in his mind, twisted his new cap into a ball, but said nothing.

"He says you were fightin' and there was somethin' else," said Miss Prissy. "Tell the whole story now—every word."

The boy began slowly. He told of shutting the dog in the closet, but was interrupted by the older sister, who demanded to know whose dog it was.

"Whose was it?" she asked. "Why don't you answer? Don't you know?"

"Yes'm."

"Then whose was it?"

Bradley shifted his feet uneasily on the mat.

"I ain't goin' to tell," he muttered sullenly.

"Ain't goin' to tell? Why, I nev"—

She was interrupted. The door behind Bradley flew open, and Gus appeared, tearful, but determined.

"Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy," she began, "don't you scold Bradley—don't you, now, a bit! It was all my fault, every mite of it. Oh, dear, dear!"

And, with sobs and amid the ejaculations of the astonished sisters, she told the whole story, omitting nothing and sparing herself not the least. When the recital was finished Miss Prissy was the first to comment upon it.

"Well," she exclaimed, "this is the most—I never did— There, Tempy, if this ain't a lesson in keepin' bad comp'ny, then I don't know. Augusty, you'd better go home, I think."

Gus looked at Bradley appealingly, then at the sisters, and, with another burst of sobs, flung herself out of the door and slammed it behind her.

"That awful dog girl!" sputtered Miss Tempy. "I knew what she was from the time she spoiled this very floor with her dreadful critters. Bradley Nickerson, don't you ever speak to her again. Now promise."

But that promise the boy would not make, although the argument lasted for an hour and ended in his being sent to his room without his supper.

"It looks to me," said Miss Prissy that night, "as if we'd got about as much on our hands as you and me could handle, Tempy."

"It certainly does," agreed her sister nervously. "I think it's our duty to ask Cap'n Titcomb's advice right off."

CHAPTER IV.

WHEN the captain called, which he did the next forenoon, the tale of Bradley's eventful first day at school was told him in all its harrowing completeness. Miss Prissy, by previous agreement, acted as story teller, and Miss Tempy was a sort of chorus, breaking in every few moments to supply a neglected detail or comment on a particular feature.

"And we didn't know what to do," concluded Miss Prissy. "He wan't goin' to tell us whose dog it was, and"—

"I don't b'lieve he ever would have told," broke in Miss Tempy, "if that dog girl' herself hadn't come bouncin' in, and"—

"And he won't promise not to speak to her again, neither," continued the older sister. "We sent him to bed without any supper"—

"That is, any real supper," interrupted the chorus. "Of course we took up some cookies and things when we found he wouldn't come down, but"—

"And he won't promise this mornin', and he went to school without promisin'. What do you think we ought to do, Cap'n Titcomb?"

"She's noisy and a tomboy," said Miss Prissy decidedly.

"Yes," said Miss Tempy; "and she likes those dreadful dogs."

"Um—hum," answered their visitor, with unimpeachable seriousness. "Of course that's a terrible drug, but maybe she'll cut 'em adrift when she gits older."

"Well, we don't like her," said Miss Prissy, with decision. "And we wish you'd speak to Bradley about it. You know," she added, looking down, "I put a lot of dependence in your judgment, Cap'n Titcomb."

"So do I," said Miss Tempy quickly; "jest as much as Prissy does. I b'lieve in you absolutely, Cap'n Ezra."

"Yes, yes, of course," hurriedly replied the captain. "Well, I'll speak to the boy by and by and see what I can do."

"Brad," he said, as they came out of the Allen gate after dinner, "what's this I hear 'bout you gittin' the rope's end yesterday? Never mind spinnin' the whole yarn. I cal'late I've heard the most of it. You and the Hammond boy had a scrimmage, too, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir," said Bradley doggedly.

"Hum! Think you'd have licked him if the skipper hadn't took a hand?"

Bradley looked up at his questioner, saw the twinkle in his eye and answered with a sheepish grin: "Don't know. Guess I'd have tried mighty hard."

"Think you'd have licked him?"

The captain roared. "I presume likely you would," he chuckled. "I understand you've sort of took that little Baker craft next door in tow. She seems like a smart girl. Do you like her?"

"Yes, sir."

"I jedge Prissy and Tempy wouldn't enter her for the cup. Now, Brad, mind I ain't coaxin' you to go back on a friend, but the old mal—that is, your ladies at home, have set out to make a man of you. They're your owners, and you're expected to sail 'cordin' to their orders. If there's one thing that I've always stuck to it's 'Obey orders or break owners.' Sometimes owners' orders don't jibe exactly with your own ideas, but never mind—they pay the wages, see?"

"She's a good girl," said the boy stoutly. "She came in and took my part when she didn't have to, and I like her. And I won't promise not to speak to her, neither."

The captain looked down at the lad's square jaw and whistled.

"Well," he said, "I don't b'lieve you need to promise, but don't whoop too loud about it. Run as close to the wind as you can, and don't carry all sail in a two reef breeze jest to show you ain't afraid to. Catch my drift?"

"Yes, sir," answered Bradley, rather doubtfully. "You mean be chums with the girl, but don't tell Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy about it."

"No-o," Captain Ezra looked somewhat put out by the literal interpretation. "That ain't jest it. Be—well, be easy, and— Oh, thunder! Let it go at that. I guess you know what I mean. How do you think you're goin' to like your school?"

Bradley answered, "Pretty well, I guess, when I get more used to it;" but, although he did not say so, he was certain that it would take some time to get used to it. As a matter of fact, however, that very lively first day was the only serious trouble for him during the entire term. He was quick to learn and so found little difficulty with his studies and advanced as rapidly as other boys of his age. As for his behavior, it was no worse than that of any other healthy youngster. At the end of the year he was "promoted"—that is, he was no longer a member of the fourth class, but instead proudly left his seat when the third was called.

Gus was "promoted" also, much to the surprise of the "old maids," who could not believe there was any good in the "dog girl." They gradually ceased to urge the boy not to have anything to do with her, for the very good reason that in this matter their urging was of no avail. They grew to understand their colt better as the months passed, and they learned just how tight a rein it was advisable to draw.

Bradley also grew to understand the sisters. He discovered that Miss Prissy was the business woman and that she paid all the bills, bought all the household supplies and did it without consulting Miss Tempy, whom she treated as a sort of doll with a mechanism that must not be jarred.

Bradley made friends among the village boys and did not make any virulent enemies. He had his interrupted fight "out" with Sam Hammond and emerged a conqueror with a black eye and a swollen nose, which were the cause of his being in disgrace at home for a week. Also he joined the "Jolly club," a secret society that met on Saturday afternoons in "Snuppy" Black's barn.

During the long summer vacation there were chores to do, but there was also all sorts of fun along shore, digging clams on the flats, spearing flatfish along the edge of the channels or rare and much prised trips to the fish weirs where the nets were hauled. Captain Titcomb came home in August for an intended stay of two weeks, and he made the boy happy by taking him for an all day sail and blue fishing

B. B. MIGHTON & CO.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1897 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,400,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,160,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Rosy Cheeks

The Ambition of Every Woman

Hollow cheeks with dark lines, sallow complexion —how a woman hates them.

But rosy cheeks, clear skin, bright eyes—give them to a woman and she is happy.

In the blood is found the first sign of trouble.

It grows thin and watery, its color fades, and increasing pallor and sallowness give the outward evidence of the change within.

Soon the nerves weaken, the heart easily tires and palpitates, strength declines.

The delicate mechanism of the womanly functions is interfered with, and pleasures, activities and even duties are loaded down with the burden of declining health.

Why is it that women neglect the first warnings?

Usually she waits till she is ready to drop—often then it's too late.

These conditions are easily checked, easily cured at the beginning,—but even when long established Ferrozone will remove the cause and cure the trouble.

Ferrozone's action aids the three principal functions of the body — digestion, assimilation, elimination.

By strengthening digestion it forms an abundance of rich, red blood—this gives good color.

By perfecting assimilation Ferrozone supplies nutrition — this gives strength, vim, stability.

Elimination is assured because Ferrozone quickens the actions of the liver, kidneys and bowels—this guarantees the maintenance of vigorous health.

Ferrozone puts you on the right road—the one that leads to health.

Not a man, woman or child needing blood, vigor, endurance—not a person who is weak, nervous or sickly, not a person in ill-health who won't receive immediate help from Ferrozone.

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Dr. Shoop's Restorative sold by J. D. Tully.

A Most Valuable Agent.

The glycerine employed in Dr. Pierce's medicines greatly enhances the medicinal properties which it extracts from native medicinal roots and holds in solution much better than alcohol would. It also possesses medicinal properties of its own, being a valuable demulcent, nutritive, antiseptic and antiferment. It adds greatly to the efficacy of the Black Cherry-bark, Bloodroot, Golden Seal root, Stone root and Queen's root, contained in "Golden Medical Discovery" in subduing chronic, or lingering coughs, bronchial, throat and lung affections, for all of which these agents are recommended by standard medical authorities.

In all cases where there is a wasting away of flesh, loss of appetite, with weak stomach, as in the early stages of consumption, there can be no doubt that glycerine acts as a valuable nutritive and aids the Golden Seal root, Stone root, Queen's root and Black Cherrybark in promoting digestion and building up the flesh and strength, controlling the cough and bringing about a healthy condition of the whole system. Of course, it must not be expected to work miracles. It will not cure consumption except in its earlier stages. It will cure very severe, obstinate, hang-on, chronic coughs, bronchial and laryngeal troubles, and chronic sore throat with hoarseness. In acute coughs it is not so effective. It is in the lingering hang-on coughs, or those of long standing, even when accompanied by bleeding from lungs, that it has performed its most marvelous cures.

Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago, says of glycerine:

"In dyspepsia it serves an excellent purpose. Holding a fixed quantity of the peroxide of hydrogen in solution, it is one of the best manufactured products of the present time in its action upon enfeebled, disordered stomachs, especially if there is ulceration or catarrhal gastritis (catarrhal inflammation of stomach). It is a most efficient preparation. Glycerine will relieve many cases of pyrosis (heartburn) and excessive gastric (stomach) acidity."

"Golden Medical Discovery" enriches and purifies the blood curing blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings and old sores, or ulcers.

Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., for free booklet telling all about the native medicinal roots composing this wonderful medicine. There is no alcohol in it.

Sulphide Vein

From the 3,000-year-old Rio Tinto Mines of Spain, down to that infant prodigy, our neighbor, Calumet and Arizona, sulphides have characterized the prominent copper mines, paying permanent dividends, measured in extent by the amount of output and market price of metal.

75 Per Cent. of the World's Copper comes from Sulphide ore. 90 per cent. of the abandoned copper mines are abandoned for lack of it. Other ores, though worth millions, give value to the mines containing them only to the extent of ore actually in sight. Authorities say that Sulphide Strike is, almost invariably, the crown of a deposit, assured for considerable depth—especially in the proven district of Bonanza Belt.

THE PROPOSED CITY GARBAGE BYLAW

A Measure to Provide for a Systematic Removal of Garbage, Ashes, etc---Public Criticism is Invited Before the Bylaw's Adoption

The City Council met in committee of the whole last night when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams presiding, and Aldermen Bradburn, Morrow, Stevenson, McIntyre, Elliott, Wilson, Morgan, Johnston, Duncan, Leary.

The primary business taken up was the garbage by-laws, which was taken up clause by clause.

The bylaw was prepared by Property Committee, who had the Brantford bylaw as a guide. The Brantford measure was at its incipiency simply put in force in one district on a test; but so satisfactory was its working found to be at the end of the year that the whole city demanded its adoption. The schedule of prices laid down by this city is the same as that charged in Brantford, and certainly appears to be exceedingly reasonable. It is assuredly worth $1.80 a year, the tax to private residences, to have one's place kept clear of garbage and ashes week in and week out the year round. Certain of the aldermen were, however, so anxious to have the rates and system meet the requirements and wishes of individual citizens that very little headway was made with the bylaw in two hours and a half's deliberation.

The mayor pointed out that the bylaw is not only a measure in the interest of the individual but a health provision for the benefit of the whole community at large; hence a few months hence should not have a direct bearing on the case. The outcome of a lengthy and unintelligible discussion was that the bylaw pass in the committee and the city fathers will await public criticism in the press and otherwise of the several clauses before adopting the measure at the council's next meeting.

Another bylaw will be prepared to cover the removal of night soil.

The following is the bylaw, and criticism is invited:

Bylaw No.——

A bylaw to provide for establishing, maintaining and regulating a system for the collection and disposal of ashes, refuse and garbage.

Passed the ... day of ... 1907.

The Corporation of the City of Peterborough by the council thereof, hereby enacts as follows:—

1. Upon the approval by resolution of the council the mayor and clerk are hereby authorized to enter into a contract under the seal of the corporation for the collection, removal and disposal of ashes, garbage, tins, crockery and metals, grass, weeds, branches of trees, boots and shoes, waste paper and all kinds of refuse, except manure, night soil and building material.

2. The person, firm or corporation with whom such contract is entered into (hereinafter called the contractor) shall remove all such ashes, garbage and refuse at the times and in the manner herein provided for, and shall dispose of the same at such places as may be designated in the contract or at such places as may be designated by the sanitary inspector.

(a) From all factories, hotels, hospitals and fruit stores, three times each week.

(b) From all stores and shops within the fire limits, twice each week.

6. Every owner, lessee or occupant of premises herein referred to shall provide boxes or barrels of convenient dimensions and shall place there in from day to day all ashes, garbage and refuse and shall keep the same conveniently placed for collection but not upon the public highway.

7. In case the occupant of any premises has neglected to place the boxes or barrels which he is required to provide for the ashes, garbage and refuse in a proper place on the day appointed the contractor of his employees shall call at such house while on their route and shall warn the occupants, and if the neglect is repeated the contractor shall report the same to the inspector.

8. The wagons or carts to be supplied by the contractor shall be single horse dump carts constructed in such a manner as to be secure against leakage and securely covered and to be of at least sufficient size to contain a cubic yard. All horses used in the work shall be strong and in good condition.

9. The contractor and the men employed in such work shall follow such routes as shall be laid out by the inspector and shall follow all instructions issued by him. The work of each route shall be completed daily and the men employed in the work shall be civil and shall render every facility for the citizens and the proper execution of the work. The occupants of each premises shall be informed of the day and about the hour the wagon will call and the route shall be passed over with such regularity that the occupants may know when their respective premises shall be visited.

10. The contractor shall remove regularly all garbage and other refuse, dead animals, etc., from the lanes and alleys on the route.

11. The contractor shall handle all boxes and barrels with due care and after thoroughly removing their contents shall place them where taken from. He shall not overload any wagon nor allow any of the contents to fall on the street and shall carefully gather up any refuse which may have been spilt on the ground.

12. The word premises under this bylaw shall be deemed to mean and include one tenement only and where any property or building is sub-divided and in possession or two or more owners, lessees or occupants then each of them shall be deemed to be owner, lessee or occupant of premises within the meaning of this by-law.

(f) Residences in outlying districts 10 cents per month.

(g) Factories employing over 50 persons such sum as may be fixed by the sanitary inspector with the approval of the Health Committee of the City Council having regard to the quantity of refuse removed.

14. The expense of the collection and disposal of ashes, refuse and garbage from each and every premises as defined in this bylaw, except those referred to in subsection (g) of section 13, shall to the extent of the respective charges stated in paragraph 13 hereof be placed upon the collector's roll during each year and shall be collected in like manner and with all other municipal taxes. The amount to be paid under subsection (g) of said section 13 shall be collected from the firms or corporations against whom the same are charged by the sanitary inspector, and in default of payment the sums may be collected by action at law. THE BOHEMIAN FOR JUNE

The Bohemian for June has a list of short stories—seventeen of them—of the unusual and clever kind that we have come to expect from this magazine. Two that will attract especial attention are "Miss Dessar Receives," a story of a woman Raffles, and "The Strength of the Weaklings," a pathetic narrative full of struggle, hope and justified confidence on the part of two loyal women.

"Newspaper Tips and Tipsters," by Whitman Bennett of the New York Times, is a revelation to the public whose daily fare is their morning paper. The strange sources of news as well as sources that are more familiarly known, here receive interesting treatment. "The Making of Coney Island," is by Frederic Thompson, the man whose name is linked with the promoting of several great amusement enterprises.

The humorous feature of the number is by Edward Marshall, being entitled. "Monarchs, the Big Mouse," one of his Unnatural History series. Miles Bradford writes of the spaghetti habit, in his regular household article "The Disappearance of Nicholson," is the first installment of a rousing aerial, a story of keen detective work told with sustained skill.

Readers looking for humorous material that is unfailingly bright will find an hour's delight in Bohemiana, "a department of nothing serious."

Killed Yesterday by a Wall Falling on Him

John Irwin Met His Death In the Ruins From the Peter Hamilton Fire Yesterday Evening

A sad accident occurred at five o'clock yesterday evening, when John Irwin, a laborer, aged 45 years, met his death through the falling of a wall. The unfortunate man was employed, with a number of other men, in clearing away the debris left by the fire at the Peter Hamilton Company's building on Saturday, when a strong gust of wind blew down a portion of the wall at the south end gable of the ruins. Irwin was completely buried beneath the falling bricks, the weight of which carried him through the floor on which he had been standing. He was picked up in an unconscious condition, and despite the efforts of Dr. Grey, succumbed to his injuries shortly afterwards, never having regained consciousness.

The deceased at the time of the accident, was in company of James Hamilton, and several other men, engaged in strengthening the wall in question to prevent it from falling when the accident occurred. His companions escaped injury.

The unfortunate victim was a married man and lives at the corner of Bethune and King streets.

Killed His Mother

Woodstock, May 28.—The body of Miss Jennie McKie, aged 41, was found in her bedroom at Bright, Saturday afternoon, and that of her son, William McKie, in another room, with a bottle partially filled with chloroform near by. The double tragedy was discovered by a baker on his rounds, and has greatly shocked the whole community, where Miss McKie was much respected. She had always gone by her maiden name.

The son was formerly a school teacher of Bright. Financial troubles are supposed to have caused the son to administer the drug to his mother and then to commit suicide.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

Indore Gosselin at yesterday's session of the police court, charged a young man named Laplante with assault. Gosselin said he had his horse pastured in a field belonging to Mr. N. Laplante, but rented by a Mr. Aosley. Laplante tried to get the horse loose to put it out of the property. Laplante tried to undo the chain tethering the animal. He shoved Laplante away when the latter tried to bite him. He caught witness arm in his teeth and then drew blood on the hand with his teeth. He also struck him with a piece of board, produced in court, behind the ear and on his hand.

Witness' wife then came to his aid with a broom. Laplante grabbed the broom from her and struck witness with it. Defendant then released the horse and hit it with the broom. Defendant is of a peculiar disposition.

Mr. Gordon acted for Mr. Gosselin. To Mr. Otius Laplante, acting for the defendant, witness described the portion of Mr. Aosley's property. The horse was grazing in the part Aosley rented. Defendant, at the beginning of the trouble, said witness horse was on the defendant's father's property.

Mr. F. Aosley, next witness, said he had rented a piece of property from Mr. Laplante, acre for pasturing purposes. He asked Gosselin to put the horse on the property to eat the grass down.

In Mr. Laplante's opinion there was quite enough room on the property to manage the horse without cutting off a little corner.

Mr. Gosselin — the trouble took place on Gosselin's land on Friday evening at 6 o'clock and done.

Mr. Laplante, the owner of the property in question, said he rented a piece of land to Aosley. He understood that he had on Saturday evening put in some stakes in to cut off a corner of the property. Mr. Aosley a few days afterwards agreed to have that part cut off. At the time of the alleged trouble complainant did not know of this corner being cut off.

The defendant then went into the box, and said he told Mr. Gosselin to move his horse. Gosselin struck at him three times. He did not bite Gosselin but his teeth happened to clash against Gosselin's fist by accident. He did not put complainant with the stick produced by Gosselin.

The magistrate said he thought Aosley, the Englishman, had really a right at the time to the use of the whole property. He was sorry that Gosselin, knowing the young man, had not taken the horse away to another part of the field. Laplante however was in the wrong. He dismissed the case as Gosselin would have been wise to have used a little judgment. No costs.

The young man Bedingham, charged a week ago with having stolen a hand satchel containing a small sum of money and a rosary, was up for hearing of the magistrate's judgment, held over from the former trial.

The magistrate then said. "Bedingham I said you guilty; have you anything to say?" Bedingham replied "No sir, except that I am an innocent man!"

His worship then read a long and detailed resume of the evidence in the case, included in this was included an emphatic statement that in the chain of evidence up to when the prisoner, Bedingham, was put into the witness box, it looked as though his innocence might possibly be proven, but as is almost always the case when a guilty man goes into the box, he will commit or convict himself. He said the fact of the young man walking alone at that hour of night round and about the blocks mentioned, for a long time after promising his wife to go home was suspicious. Again prisoner's statement that his wife, with young children should have made arrangements to go out with him at 10 o'clock, alleged in prisoner's evidence, was suspicious. Also the fact, of his running to keep this particular appointment after walking about in the one neighborhood so long, was suspicious. The magistrate remarked that he had carefully weighed the evidence and would have been glad if he could have possibly decided on prisoner's evidence. For the sake of his wife, and family and relations, he would treat him very leniently. The judgment of the court was that Bellegbem should make full restitution to Miss Haggerty, and pay the costs of the court, $9.50, on which he allowed prisoner to go on suspended sentence. He gave Bellegbem some good advice and said he hoped this would be his last offence against the law.

Many Indictments Against Boodlers

San Francisco, May 27.—The grand jury returned 14 joint indictments against Abe Ruef, Mayor Schmitz, Eugene de Sabla, and John Martin for offering and giving a bribe of $750 each to the self-confessed supervisors to vote for the 2½-cent gas rate ordinance, and 14 indictments jointly against J. A. Greet, W. J. Brobeck, and Abe Ruef for offering a bribe of $1,000 each to the supervisors for the Berkside Transit Company franchise.

The jury then adjourned until June 6, when it will continue the investigation of municipal graft.

Ruef was fixed at $5,000 for each of the 28 indictments.

Seven men who were indicted for bribery Friday put up bonds yesterday amounting to $750,000. Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railroads, gave bonds through a surety company in $500,000 for himself.

Behalf secured William H. Diggs and Thomas H Williams, jr., as sureties for $100,000. The remainder of the three-quarters of a million was put up by Abbott, Ghan, and Haley, subjected for Home Telephone bribery.

Swatow, Province of Kwong Tung, China, May 28.—A rebellion has broken out at Kwong Tung in the Uping District of the Chinen Prefecture.

The local revolutionists who were joined by natives of the neighboring provinces concentrated for their attack on the officials without being molested by the populace.

The military commander here has mustered the station guards and started for the scene of the outbreak.

Steps are being taken by the police here to prevent excesses.

The Chinese bankers have organized a steam launch patrol of the coast to prevent piratical attacks on the part of the marauders from the seaward.

Berlin, May 28.—According to despatches received here from Shanghai and Hong Kong native rioters have destroyed the German mission station at Lien Chow, near Pakhoi. The missionaries escaped. The German gunboat Iltis, reinforced by 20 marines from the gunboat Tsing Tau, has left Hong Kong for Pakhoi, and it is expected that a British gunboat will also be sent to that port.

According to advices received by the German Cable Company from Shanghai disturbances have also broken out at Pakhoi and the situation there as well as at Lienchowfu is apparently serious.

PROCEEDING TO THE RISING.

Canton, China, May 28.—Admiral Li with the Kwantaih and Maofoo, on board which are detachments of troops, is proceeding to the scene of the rising in the Uping district.

The rebellion at present in progress in Kwong Tung Province, China, will, no doubt, bring many anxious inquiries from missionary societies and friends of any who may be acting as missionaries in any part of the Chinese Empire.

The China Inland Mission has in all about 875 missionaries in the Chinese Empire, of whom about 750 are now on duty, the rest being on furlough. Forty or fifty of these are Canadians. Although not in the Province of Kwong Tung, some are in adjoining provinces.

Hindoo Rebels to Ask Japan's Help

Labore, British India, May 28.—Those who have been attributing the unrest in India to the victory of the Japanese over the Russians find confirmation in their belief in documents found in the possession of a Hindoo lawyer, and a companion, arrested here in connection with the recent riot at Rawalpindi.

The documents show that the men taken into custody were on their way to Tokio to solicit intervention on behalf of a native revolt against British rule.

Fruit Did Not Escape

St. Catharines, May 28.—Reports are beginning to come in of the effects of recent frosts on the fruit. A fruit grower said yesterday morning that, while it was generally believed that the fruit had escaped the frost, there were indications now in nearly all kinds of fruit that this was not the case. The damage may not turn out to be very serious, but there is no telling, he said.

There was a severe electric storm here last night, accompanied by a high wind, but it is believed that little damage was done to fruit.

LOYAL MOHAMMEDANS

The British in India have much reason to be encouraged by the attitude of the Mohammedans toward the disturbances and the disturbers. The Mohammedans of Lahore lost no time in holding a mass meeting to express their condemnation of the recent disturbances in Lahore. The following resolution was adopted: "This public meeting of the Mohammedans of Lahore strongly condemns the phase of the present agitation which manifests itself in assaults on Europeans, uncalled-for criticism of their social institutions, and abusive language towards the government, and emphatically declares that Mohammedans as a community have no sympathy whatsoever with such disreputable proceedings." The principal speaker said it was for them a matter of pride that India formed part of the greatest empire the world had ever seen, and they were grateful for the manifold advantages they enjoyed under British protection. Several other public meetings of influential natives of Lahore, chiefly Mohammedans, but also Hindus and Sikhs, have strongly condemned the recent assaults on Europeans in Lahore by natives educated on English lines, and have passed resolutions in accordance with speeches, regretting that better results are not exhibited by Indian youths of that class. The educational authorities were requested to use their influence to suppress disreputable political processes. A conference of principals of colleges, professors, headmasters, school teachers, and others interested in education has been convened to consider the whole matter.

As there are over 50,000,000 Mohammedans in India, and as they form an important and influential part of the population, their loyalty to the British is worth much.

DICKENS AND SCHOOLMASTERS

Dickens, with something in his disposition peculiarly sympathetic toward children, was a bitter foe of any one—relative, teacher or official guardian—who tyrannized over them. A writer in the New York Post points out that he seems to take special delight in exposing the misdeeds of mercenary and cold hearted pedagogues. "When one's notice," says the Post, "is first directed to the attention the novelist gave to schools and their methods, it is interesting to try to recall the number mentioned. Six come to mind instantly—Dotheboys Hall, Dr. Blimber's, David Copperfield's two schools—Dr. Strong's and Mr. Creakle's—the Gradgrind school and Bradley Headstone's in 'Our Mutual Friend.' But even the most devoted reader of Dickens is amazed upon special investigation to discover the sum total of twenty-eight. There is not a phase of education that he does not touch upon, and wrong methods are revealed and commented upon in tones so caustic and with reason so unerring that better conditions were the natural result."

Wooden Anchors.

The Basques, a strange race intermediate between French and Spaniards, have for all time been great fishermen, and some of their craft and seagoing gear are totally different from any other known types. Perhaps the most remarkable relic of bygone civilizations is the primitive wooden anchor still in use among them and to be seen in the fishing settlements round Biarritz, Guethary or St. Jean de Lux. These wooden anchors are in all probability of the identical type in use among the Phoenicians twenty centuries ago. The wooden anchor is rough hewn out of three branches, so fastened to a crossbar, also of wood, as to inclose a great stone of twenty or thirty pounds weight. Here is a cheap but effectual anchor for comparatively light boats. It can be made on the spot, and it entails little loss if, in a sudden squall, it has to be left imbedded in the rocks.

Properties of Gold.

Pure gold is unaffected by the atmosphere either at ordinary temperatures or when the metal is heated. It is also proof against the action of common acids when used singly. Moreover, it confers its properties more or less upon copper and silver when these metals are alloyed with it. Thus, for example, twelve karat gold will withstand the action of nitric acid and the atmosphere at ordinary temperature, but some of the copper will be oxidized during annealing. Nine parts of gold may be alloyed with ten parts of platinum in an ordinary crucible and fire, but such an alloy will not be uniform. A larger proportion of platinum will free itself from the gold on solidification, and a homogeneous alloy of the two metals cannot be obtained.—Jewelers' Circular-Weekly.

Before the Bar.

The terms "admitted to the bar" and "before the bar" are of English origin. The "bar" in question is the barrier or railing which separates the judge and the other officers of the court from the rest of the courtroom. In earlier days the parties to a suit presented themselves before this bar, accompanied by their counsel. A lawyer, after keeping the required number of terms at the inns of court and passing a satisfactory examination, was then entitled to appear before the bar on behalf of a client, or, in other words, he was "admitted to the bar." The English word "barrister" suggests the technical meaning of this word.—Scrap Book.

Snake Worship.

Python worship or the worship of snake gods is still practiced in parts of the west coast of Africa. In Dahomey and Ashanti there are temples where pythons are kept to receive the adoration of the people. The snakes are not confined to the precincts of the temples. Small holes are left in the inclosing wall, through which they pass and sometimes make themselves very much at home in the houses of the people. When a stray snake is found word is sent to the temple, the priests come and with many apologies to his snakeship pick him up and carry him back home.

Cold Blooded Animals.

The so called cold blooded animals vary from the warm blooded in the particular that their blood changes temperature in accordance with their surroundings. The temperature of a fish will be almost exactly the same as that of the water around it, possibly one or two degrees higher. A snake's temperature is higher in summer than in winter, the average being 82 degrees. A bird's average temperature is 107. The average temperature of the mammals is 101 degrees.

SMELTING A TOWN.

All Its Houses Built of Bricks of Gold and Silver Ore.

One reads of romantic castles of silver and palaces of gold, but they are the dreams of fiction. Now they have discovered something as strange on the map of Mexico. The buildings of a whole town have been bought at so much a ton, based on assays from the adobe walls, which give gold and silver values. This town is Guanajuato's suburb, Tepetapa, at a value of about $30,000 Mexican currency.

The value of this little town was revealed when the Mexican Central decided to build into the city of Guanajuato and to establish a station there.

It was found necessary to tear down about 300 buildings which had been built of the slimes produced by the grinding of ores from the numerous mines of the district. Straw was mixed with the slime to make the adobe bricks.

When it became known that the Central would have to tear down these houses an enterprising ore buying company asked for permission to assay ore taken from the buildings. This was granted, and samples were picked from the walls at various heights and on various sides of the buildings, the assays running in value from $3 to $24 a ton in gold and silver. The values averaged about $8 gold a ton.

As the buildings were built in various bonanza epochs, it was found that the values varied to a large extent. For instance, a wall on one side of a house would assay a low value, whereas a wall on the other side, built at an earlier or later time, would assay a high value. A man's kitchen might assay 00 cents a ton and his parlor $50.

That the walls are found to contain more gold than silver values is due to the fact that the old patio process of treating the ores was more effective in extracting silver than gold values, and the slimes left were richer in gold than silver. It will be harder to build such a town in the future, as the camp is now fitted out with modern appliances for treating ores.—Mexican Herald.

Swiss Shoemakers.

Swiss shoemakers work ten to twelve hours a day. "The factory workman," says Special Agent Arthur B. Butman in a United States government report, "is required during the summer to begin his labor at 4:30 or 5 a. m. This early hour is demanded in order that the fresh energies of the workers may be obtained by the employer, as nearly all artisans are engaged to a greater or less degree in agriculture for personal benefit. During the winter season work in factories commences at 6 o'clock. Fifteen and twenty minute rests are allowed at 9 and 4 o'clock respectively, when refreshments of beer and bread are taken. From one to one and one-half hours are allowed for dinner. The principal food of Swiss shoemakers consists of bologna, bread and cheese, with beer; fresh meat is seldom eaten unless on feast days; soups are served on Sundays."

Kipling as an Art Critic.

As an after dinner speaker the author of "The Absentminded Beggar" is, even his most ardent admirers will confess, not a success. As an art critic he has pretensions. His friend Baden-Powell thinks himself something of an artist and is an assiduous member of the London Sketch club. "To see him there," says a writer in the Grand Magazine, "struggling with pencil and water colors one would think he cared more for artistic than military renown." Upon one of the gallant soldier's artistic triumphs the novelist has written two verses. One runs as follows:

This is the ocean bright and blue
With the Dunedin Castle plowing through,
But if you turn it upside down
It is the veldt so bright and brown.

The other has been lost to posterity.—Westminster Gazette.

A Nast Cartoon.

Among the people who attended the recent sale in New York of the Thomas Nast cartoons was a man who had called on the cartoonist years ago at his home in Morristown for the purpose of seeing and talking to the artist, for whom he had great admiration. In the course of the pleasant interview the visitor expressed a desire to buy a rough sketch of a cartoon showing Boulanger receiving the result of the French elections in which the general had been defeated. Nast said that he thought too much of it to part with the sketch. When lot No. 135 was put up it was recognized as the coveted cartoon, and the man who could not buy it a few years ago at any price bid $2 and secured the picture.

Catarrh

To prove unquestionably, and beyond any doubt, that Catarrh of the nose and throat can be cured, I am furnishing patients through druggists, small free Trial Boxes of Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure. Do this because I am so certain, that Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure will bring actual substantial help. Nothing certainly, is so convincing as a physical test of any article of real, genuine merit. But that article must possess true merit, else the test will condemn, rather than advance it. Dr. Shoop's Catarrh Cure is a snow white, healing antiseptic balm, put up in beautiful nickel capped glass jars at 50c. Such soothing agents as Oil Eucalyptus, Thymol, Menthol, etc., are incorporated into a velvety, cream like Fayrolaxum, imported by Dr. Shoop from Europe. If Catarrh of the nose and throat has extended to the stomach, then by all means also use internally, Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Stomach distress, a lack of general strength, dizziness, headache, biliousness, bad taste, etc., surely call for Dr. Shoop's Restorative.

For uncomplicated catarrh only of the nose and throat nothing else, however, need be used but excursion off Setuckit Point.

That fishing trip had unexpected and fateful results. The captain had called on Miss Prissy and her sister the morning of his arrival in Orham and, as was his custom, had brought each of them a present—exactly alike, of course. He had promised to dine at the Allen house the following Sunday. But it happened that Peleg Myrick wanted to make one of his infrequent visits to the mainland that week, and he seized the opportunity to hail the catboat containing Bradley and Captain Ezra as it passed his quahaug dory and beg for a passage up.

Mr. Peleg Myrick was a hermit. He lived alone in a little two room shanty on the beach about half a mile from Setuckit Point. He owned a concertina that squeaked and wailed and a Mexican dog, gift of a wrecked skipper—that shivered all the time and howled when the concertina was played. Peleg was certain that the howling was an attempt at singing and boasted that Skeezicks—that was the dog's name—had an "ear for music jest like a human."

Among his other accomplishments Mr. Myrick numbered that of weather prophet. He boasted that he could "smell a storm further 'n a cat can smell fish." It was odd, but he really did seem able to foretell or guess what the weather would be along the Orham coast, and the longshoremen swore by his prophecies.

He was a great talker when he had any one to talk to and was a gossip whose news items were usually about three months old. Captain Ezra appreciated odd characters, and he welcomed the chance to get a little fun out of Peleg.

"Well, Peleg," said the captain as the catboat stood about on the first leg of the homeward stretch, "what's the news down the beach? Any of the sand fleas got married lately?"

"Don't ask me for no news, Cap'n Ez!" replied Mr. Myrick. "You're the feller to have news. You ain't married yit, be you?"

"No; not yet. I'm waitin' to see which girl you pick out; then I'll see what's left."

"Well, I ain't foolin'. I thought you might be married by now. Last time I was up to the village—'long in June, 'twas—I see M'lissy Busteed, and she said 'twas common talk that you was courtin' one of the old maids."

Captain Titcomb scowled and looked uneasily at his passenger.

"She did, hey?" he grunted.

"Yes. I told her I didn't take no stock in that. 'Cap'n Ez,' I says, 'has been courtin' too many times sence I can remember,' I says. 'One time 'twas Mary Emma Cahoon, 'nother time 'twas Seth Wingate's sister's gal then ag'in 'twas'"—

"All right! All right!" broke in the captain, glancing hurriedly at Bradley. "Never mind that. How's the quahaugin' nowadays? Gittin' a fair price?"

"Pretty fair," replied Peleg. Then with the persistency of the born gossip, not to be so easily diverted from his subject, he went on: "I told M'lissy that, but she said there wan't scarcely a doubt that you meant bus'ness this time. Said you fetched presents every time you come home. Said the only doubt in folks' minds was whether 'twas Prissy or Tempy you was after. Said she was sure you was after one on 'em, 'cause she as much as asked 'em one time when she was at their house, and they didn't deny it."

Mr. Myrick talked steadily on this and other subjects all the way to the wharf, but Captain Ezra was silent and thoughtful. He shook hands with Bradley at the gate of the Traveler's Rest and said goodby in an absent-minded way.

"I s'pose you'll be 'round to dinner Sunday, Cap'n Ez?" said the boy.

"Hey? Sunday? Well, I don't know. It might be that I shall be called back to the schooner sooner than I expect. Can't tell."

Sure enough, the next day the sisters received a note from their expected guest saying that he was obliged to leave at once for Portland and could not, therefore, be with them on Sunday. The ladies were disappointed, but thought nothing more of the matter at the time. It was nearly six months before the captain visited Orham again, and during this visit he did not come near the big house. He waylaid Bradley, however, asked him all about himself, how he was getting on at school and the like, but when the boy asked if he, the captain, wasn't "comin' round to see the folks pretty soon" the answer was vague and unsatisfactory.

"Why, I—I don't know's I'll have time," was the reply. "I'm pretty busy, and— Give 'em my regards, will you, Brad? I've got to be runnin' on now. So long."

It was the same during the next "shore leave," the following November. Captain Titcomb saw Bradley several times, gave him a six bladed jackknife and took him for a drive over to the big cranberry swamp owned by the Ostable company, but he did not call on the old maids.

Three more years of school and vacations, with "chores" and sailing and cranberry picking, followed. Bradley was sixteen. His voice, having passed through the squeaky "changing" period, now gave evidence of becoming what Miss Tempy called a "beautiful louble bass, jest like father's." He was large for his age, and his shoulders were square. He was more particular about his clothes now, and his neckties were no longer selected by Miss Tempy. To be seen with girls was not so "sissified" in his mind as it used to be, but he still stuck to Gus, and she was his "first choice" at parties, and he saw her home from prayer meeting occasionally.

As for the "dog girl" herself, she, too, paid more attention to clothes, and her pets—though still numerous and just as disreputable in appearance—were made to behave with more decorum. Her hair was carefully braided now, her dresses came down to her boot tops, and Miss Tempy grudgingly admitted that "if 'twas anybody else, I should say she was likely to be good lookin' when she grows up."

The "last day" came, and Bradley and Gus were to graduate. In Orham there is no graduation day. The eventful ending of the winter term is the "last day," and all the parents and relatives, together with the school committee and the clergymen, visit the school to sit stiffly on the settees and witness the ceremonies.

That evening after the "last day" exercises at school Bradley sat at home reading in the dining room. Miss Tempy, in the sitting room, was going over, for the fortieth time since it was written, the wonderful argument in favor of a "republican form of government," which Bradley had composed and had read at the school that day. As her sister entered the room she dropped the roll of paper in her lap and said solemnly:

"Prissy Allen, it's my belief that when that boy first came here and I said that I wanted him to go to college and be a minister I was inspired. I declare I do! I've jest been readin' that piece of his again, and it beats any sermon I ever heard."

Miss Prissy seated herself in a rocker and looked solemnly at her sister. For a minute she gased without speaking. Then suddenly, as if she had made up her mind, she rose, gave the dining room door a swing that would have shut it completely had not the corner of a mat interfered, and, coming back to her chair, said slowly, "Tempy, I'm afraid we'll never be able to send Bradley to college."

"Tempy, we've hardly got any money left!"

Can't Hold Down the Price

MUCH LONGER

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1891 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 23,500,000 pounds of copper, valued at $4,460,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 178,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,160,000 tons valued at $15,560,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

School Books are Cheaper

The Canada Publishing Co., has been awarded the contract for supplying school books for Ontario. Their tender was 49 cents as compared with $1.15 for former issues. If books are brought direct from publishers a discount of 25 per cent. is allowed, and 10 per cent. extra deducted for $250 worth or over. Surely the former $1.15 publishers must have skinned the public of Ontario unmercifully.

Mr. A. Frowde Returns Home

Mr. Archie Frowde, who for the past three or four years has been west, arrived home last week. Archie is well known in Peterborough and his many friends are glad to see him. He is a printer. From here he went to Edmonton and took a position in the advertising department of the Journal there. About two years ago, however, he retired from the printing business and took up ranching. He secured a position on a big cattle ranch just north of Kamloops, B.C. It is owned by Mr. J. McConnell, and he owns over 1000 head of cattle and 100 head of horses.

Mr. Frowde started for home on the 1st of May, but stopped at Revelstoke, Calgary, Moosejaw, Regina, and Winnipeg. At Moosejaw he met two old Peterborough boys. Mr. A. W. Irwin and Rev. W. W. Wogg, who are both doing well in the real estate business.

Local Citizens Accused of Theft

The Lindsay Post says;—A gang of about 20 youths from Peterborough came up to Lindsay for "a time" yesterday. One of their frolics was the theft of a quantity of souvenirs and other goods from Mr. J. Riggs' store. Mr. Riggs noticed the loss of his goods immediately after the boys had gone. He informed County Constables Foster and Nelson, who followed the gang. Pieces of the stolen articles were picked up along Lindsay street opposite the Academy, and on York and Kent streets. Some of the boys were apprehended, and taken to the chief's office, where they were asked to turn out the stolen property. None being forthcoming, they were allowed to go. They returned to Peterborough last evening.

FOR OUR READERS

To Prove That Hy-o-mei Will Cure Catarrh, Every Reader of the Times Can Have Special Guarantee

If there is any doubt in your mind as to the power of Hy-o-mei, the medicated air treatment, to cure all catarrhal troubles, this remarkable offer should expel that doubt.

We give our personal guarantee with every dollar outfit of Hy-o-mei sold, to refund the money unless it gives satisfaction. We take all the risk of cure, and no reader of The Times can afford to suffer longer with catarrh when an offer like this is made.

With every Hy-o-mei outfit is a neat pocket inhaler, and Hy-o-mei breathed through this inhaler, reaches the most remote air-cells of the nose, throat and lungs, destroying all catarrhal germs, and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

Hy-o-mei really gives you a health giving climate in your own home, so that when you breathe its medicated air, your nose, throat and lungs will be filled with air like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants, which purify the air with their volatile anti-septic fragrance so healing to the respiratory organs.

We do not want anyone's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional indorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath.

In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of back, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 50 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

The Opportunity of the Century

Western Canada LAND

Are you aware that the greatest opportunity this Continent has ever known is now before you in Western Canada land? It is hard for the person not on the ground to conceive the enormity of the movement in this country, but some idea of it can be gleaned from the fact that during the week of April the 15th and the week following over 14,000 people were passed through Halifax for this great wheat land area, and this figure does not include the train loads of high grade land seekers daily crossing the border from Uncle Sam's domain.

This influx proves the stability of the movement and the real reason for the big advance in land values. There is nothing fictitious about it. The fact that prices are going higher is the direct result of an enormous incoming population. Although prices will remain comparatively reasonable for a time, they will only remain so till the rest of the big wheat belt is populated, then what can they do but soar to the skys as has been the case in Kansas, Minnesota, North Dakota, Eastern Canada and other grain growing countries. The men who know what they are doing are getting in now.

We own and control thousands of acres of the choicest Farm Lands in Manitoba Saskatchewan and Alberta

Picked land on which we are prepared to give accurate, trustworthy information, and buying as we do in tracts frequently containing as much as 150,000 acres, we are able to put propositions before investors which we do not believe can be equalled, quality of soil) considered, by any other land firm doing business in the West.

These blocks range in size from sections (640 acres) and portions of sections up to blocks comprising five, ten and fifteen thousand acre areas. We are therefore able to take care of investors large and small, and the object of this announcement is to get in touch with a few more of those who can see the possibilities for profits in this phenomenally productive country. There is absolutely no element of gamble about it. Everyone who ever bought with any kind of care has realized or stands to realize handsomely.

Write us for proofs of the above statements and particulars in general about Western Canada. We will gladly relate instances of quick profits others have made and show you opportunities for you to realize. In writing please mention the amount of an investment you wish to make, whether you want the land for your own use or purely investment purposes, or whether you wish to put your money in independently or accompanied by friends. $1,000 is about the minimum amount of money we can handle conveniently.

PREFERRED DEATH RATHER THAN ARREST

They Were Suspected of Complicity in the Attempted Murder of the President and had Taken Refuge in a Hiding Place

Mexico City, May 29.—Full confirmation of the suicide of four prominent Guatemalans and the imprisonment and sentencing to death of 19 men suspected of complicity in the attempted murder of President Cabera early this month, was received through officials and private channels yesterday. The state department received a telegram stating that the Guatemalan people were so incensed at the sentence imposed on the 19 suspects that President Caberera has decided that these cases be taken to the court of second instance for revision. Pending the action of this tribunal the diplomatic corps is withholding the contemplated collective note demanding that the imprisoned be given a fair trial.

BELONGED TO FIRST FAMILIES.

According to a private telegram received last night the four men who gave their lives because of the incident were Dr. Julio V. Blanco, Dr. Jorge A. Vila, Dr. Echeverria, and Baltasar Rodil, a civil engineer. All the men were wealthy and belonged to the first families of the republic. They had not heretofore been identified in any of the policies of the country.

The story of the capture and subsequent death of these men is dramatic. As soon as the mine was sprung they left Guatemala City because, it is understood, they feared that Caberera would trump up a charge against them. They returned later and went into hiding.

Gen. Vivaduery of the Guatemalan army heard of their return, and going to the aged mother of the Echeverria brothers, pointed a revolver at her breast and forced her to disclose the hiding place of the men.

The police surrounded the house and a battle ensued, in which commandant Morreno and another officer of the police were killed. Reinforcements were then called for, and 300 of the regular army surrounded the house.

BODIES THROWN IN SEWER.

The official report says the four men thereupon committed suicide. The soldiers took their bodies and threw them in sewers in the suburbs of the city.

This act so incensed the people that the diplomatic corps was appealed to and Minister Gamboa demanded the bodies. Upon these representations they were finally turned over and later buried with great honors.

MEXICAN TROOPS READY.

Mexico has 8,000 men fully equipped and on a war footing on the Guatemalan frontier, distributed at strategic points to the south of this capital are 5,000 additional troops which can be transported to the border on 24 hours' notice.

While there is a disposition in official circles to minimize the tension existing between President Estrada Cabrera and the Mexican Government, it is admitted on all sides that should Caberera carry out his men accused of complicity in the attempted murder of the nineteen alleged attempt to assassinate him, Mexico will be forced to intervene.

ROSY TEACHERS

Look Better in the School Room Than the Sallow Sort

Young folks naturally like comely objects, and a good looking, healthy teacher can do vastly more with pupils, everything else considered, than the skinny, dyspeptic teacher can. The instructor in Latin and mathematics in a young ladies' seminary had an experience worthy the attention of any teacher.

She kept running down a little more each year until finally a genuine case of nervous prostration set in and she was compelled to rest for eight months, a perfect wreck, physically and mentally. She and her friends thought it was due to overwork, but she now knows it was due to improper food.

Of course the physicians were called in, but there is almost nothing that can be done in such cases, except to rely on well selected food and proper care. She was put upon Grape-Nuts, all medicines, also tea, coffee, and iced drinks were taken away. She had Postum Food Coffee once a day. The larger part of her food was Grape-Nuts, for this food is made with special reference to rebuilding the gray matter in the brain and nerve centers.

The lady says: "I had been reduced to 95 pounds in weight when I began using Grape-Nuts. The new food was so delicious and strengthening that I felt new life at once. I have now developed into a perfectly healthy, happy, stout woman, weighing 135 pounds, the greatest weight I ever attained, and have a wonderfully clear, fresh, rosy complexion, instead of the sallow, bilious hue of the past.

"Now I never have a symptom of dyspepsia nor any other ache or ail. Am strong physically and I particularly notice strength of mind. I never experience that tired, weary feeling after a hard day's labor that used to appear. My brain seems as clear and active at night as it was in the morning and I am doing twice the amount of work I ever did."

"There's a Reason."

Complains Because Band Did Not Play

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—Most of your readers have heard of the man who takes his family to see the circus free parade, takes them home to dinner, and then denies the circus he did not attend as being "N.G." Judging by the letter signed "Citizen" in last night's Examiner, "Citizen" must be that man. He tries to throw a slurring innuendo at the 57th Regiment Band, because the band "gets the citizens money" and did not play on the 24th, at the sunset time rejoicing that the "Minstrel" band gave a concert. When Citizen has to clear our local band by a comparison with those gaudily bedecked coons that slaughtered music here on Victoria day, he shows his calibre. If Citizen lacked either music or fun that day he had a wide choice. There were two ball games, the races, excursions, etc. Instead of taking in these he seems to have nurtured a carping idea and expended the same unnecessarily on the heads of our local band. Does Citizen want the 57th Regiment Band to soothe him to sleep with lullabies 364 days in the year.

Yours truly,
ANTI-COON.

High Court Opens at One O'clock

Heavy Docket of Non-jury Cases to be Tried Before Chancellor Boyd

Today at one o'clock, his Lordship Chancellor Boyd will mount the throne at this spring's session of the High Court of Justice for this county. The docket is a heavy one. Prominent among the cases to be tried is the Hill-Gow case, which is familiar with our readers as having arisen from the recent Dummer township shooting scrape, when the young man Gow shot a little girl and boy at night. Hill is trying to set aside the conveyance of some land by Chas. Gow to John F. Gow.

In this case the plaintiff is Robert D. Hill and the defendants, Charles and John F. Gow, and also Charles Gow, Christopher John Darling, and Wm. John Moore, executors of the last will and testament of John F. Gow.

The plaintiff states that on or about the eighth day of April, 1905, he recovered a judgment against the defendant, Charles Gow, in the High Court of Justice, for the sum $663.53 damages and costs, and on the same day a writ of execution against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the defendant was issued, upon the said judgment, and placed in the hands of the sheriff of Peterborough County for execution. The said writ or writs has ever since been in the hands of the sheriff for execution. At the time the defendant resided in Dummer township. The action was entered for trial at a sitting of the high court held at Peterborough in April, 1906, when a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff, with a stay of proceedings for 30 days.

The plaintiff claims that at the time the action was entered, the defendant was the owner of the east half of lot No. 13, in the 6th concession of Dummer. The plaintiff charges the defendant with having fraudulently and pretended consideration of $1,500, executed a deed whereby he purported to convey the lands above referred to to John F. Gow. The deed was dated April 14, 1906. The lot in question is valued at $2,500 or thereabouts. The plaintiff claims that by this fraudulent conveyance he is unable to realize the judgment he obtained, and as a result is being delayed in collecting his claim against the defendant.

John F. Gow died July 21st, 1906, having first made his last will and testament, having first made his last will, wherein he appointed the said defendants, Christopher John Darling, and Wm. John Moore, executors. The plaintiff charges that the above conveyance was fraudulent and should be set aside.

The defendants, Christopher John Darling and Wm. John Moore, admit the judgment of plaintiff against Charles Gow, and also admit the conveyance by Charles Gow, to the late John F. Gow, but claim that they had no knowledge of any facts that would tend to throw any doubt on the validity of the said conveyance.

H. E. Wood, solicitor for plaintiff, and Roger, Bennett & Goodwill, for the defendants.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

Private Recital Greatly Enjoyed

Last night a select and delighted audience enjoyed a musical treat at 103 McDonel street, on invitation of Mr. Alfred, and Miss Helen Davies. The proceedings at Prof. Davies' residence were in the form of a recital given by the pupils of the host and sisters, and displayed admirably the careful and intelligent training received under their instructions.

The program was of unusual interest being greatly diversified. Piano solos were rendered with every evidence of artistic touch and technique by Miss Amy Wise, Master Gordon Matthews, Miss Kathleen Kincaid, Miss Lily Noble, Miss Odee Button-Miss Flossie Hall, Miss Madeleine Morrison, Miss Minnie Squair, Miss Mabel Hopper, Miss Ruby Clegg, Miss Genevieve Saunderson, Miss Lita Tully, Miss Gladys Cameron, Miss English, Miss Georgie Gumpricht, Miss Helen Howson, Miss Muriel Gladman, Miss Kate Manning, Miss Gertrude McCollum and Miss Katheryne Burnett. Mrs. W. A. Mowry, Master Rob. Langford and Mr. K. Snook each gave a song during the evening's entertainment. A well rendered piano duet by the Misses Katheryne Burnett and Frances Boutlet was well received.

It would be invidious to particularize as to the respective merits of the individual participants in last night's recital. It is perhaps sufficient to say that each one taking part displayed efficiency and the result of practical training.

An Irish Society has Been Formed in London

PREMIER NOT READY

The Anticipated Announcement of Change of Programme Regarding Irish Bill Not Made

London, May 29.—In anticipation of Premier Campbell-Bannerman's promised announcement on the subject of the Irish Council Bill and other Government measures, a large crowd assembled at the House of Commons yesterday, but the premier was not ready to change the government's program. When the questions relating to the Irish bill were taken up the Premier asked that they be postponed for a week, when he would answer them, and outline the course proposed by the government in connection with the other business of the session.

The chief secretary for Ireland, Mr Birrell, occupied his usual seat in the House.

The society called "Sinn Fein," meaning literally "For ourselves," composed of the hottest of the anti-Britons, a majority of them young men, has gained considerably in importance lately. Its program is for the complete boycott of England, for the Irish members to decline to attend parliament, for Irishmen to refuse to enter into business or social relations with the English in Ireland, and, as far as possible, for Irishmen to abstain from enlisting in the army and from buying English goods.

Edward Martin, the leader of the society, is a wealthy land owner and litterateur. Recently he was expelled from the aristocratic Kildare Club, the Dublin landlords' rallying place. This incident caused a great flutter in Dublin.

The next move by the Irish members of parliament probably will be a united attempt to induce the government to remove Sir Antony Patrick MacDonnell, under secretary to the lord lieutenant of Ireland. When he was appointed in 1902, the Conservatives considered him too friendly with the Irish, but he has failed to satisfy them.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

Mons. F. X. Mercier - Grand Concert

A fair audience greeted Mons. F. X. Mercier at the Grand Opera House last night, when a select program of musical talent was rendered. The offering was a combination of vocal and instrumental numbers which from a standpoint of artistic merit should have attracted a crowded house. Mons. Mercier, the noted French tenor, was the star of the evening, and each of his numbers were met with demonstrative appreciation, and called for undeniable encores. He sang four numbers, together with the National Anthem at the close of the program. His rendition of the national anthem left one with that realization oft he true beauty and worth of England's grand old hymn which can only be recognized when a really great signer such as Mons. Mercier is singing the piece. Mons. Mercier is gifted with a flexible tenor voice of phenomenal range and compass. He is equally at home in both French and English, and his articulation, particularly in the former language, is very appreciably clear and distinct. No hall can be too large for his powerful voice to fill, and no number, classical or otherwise, however complex, is beyond the reach of his wonderful vocal talent. Each of his efforts last night were encored again and again, and the audience were enraptured with the soul-stirring harmony and melody with which they were entertained.

Mons. Mercier was very acceptably supported by Mrs. W. J. Morrow, pianist and accompanist, Miss Levina Halligan, soprano; Mr. Jas. Tretheway, violinist, and Mr. John King, vocalist, all of town, excepting Mr. Tretheway.

Mrs. Morrow's numbers were of usual high class character, and productive of demonstrative applause; she is a favorite wherever she appears. Miss Halligan sang in splendid voice, and her numbers were enthusiastically received; she charmingly sustained her reputation as a vocalist of considerable merit. Mr. Tretheway is an exceptionally talented manipulator of the violin, and it is seldom that this instrument is heard to so good effect in this city as it was last night. Each of his numbers were beautifully rendered and called for well earned encores. Mr. Tretheway is truly a genius with the violin, and a worthy support of the great singer, with whom he is travelling. Mr. John King's numbers were well sung, and he came in for a fair share of the audience's appreciation.

Two Interesting Cases at the High Court

Canadian Cordage to vs. C. A. Core and Ontario Bank and Alex. Elliott vs. a Hotelman

The docket of the High Court of Justice which opens today, includes an action by the Canadian Cordage Co., vs. C. A. Core, which arises out of the sale of 1600 feet of 2 1-8 inch cable to defendant, an oil driller. The cable is worth $466.55, for which it is alleged defendant has not paid, claiming it to be defective. Messrs. Hall, Medd & Davidson for the plaintiffs, and A. T. Bowles, Leamington, for the defendant.

Another case to be tried is that against a Nipissing district hotel keeper, alleged to owe Mr. Alex. Elliott $308.08 for liquors. The suit is brought on behalf of the Ontario Bank to whom Mr. Elliott assigned last February the sum of $305.08. Defendant claims to have settled the account by notes, one already claimed to have been paid and others not yet due.

Ball & Hayes, solicitors for plaintiff, Clarry & Buchanan, Sudbury, for the defendant.

Suit Against Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McAllister

The Peterborough Hydraulic Power Co., vs. C. B. and Jane MacAllister, is also on the docket in connection with a lease of the defendant's former mill in the east ward. It is claimed that a ten-years' lease was granted of the mill at $3000 per annum rental and which lease does not expire until 1912. It is also claimed that in December, 1905, the defendants notified the plaintiffs as follows, "We have already sent you a check for $750 rent due to date for the Otonabee mills and now hand you the keys of the buildings and give up the possession of the premises as arranged." The plaintiffs refused to accept the keys. They ask for $750 rent due the first day of January, 1907, and interest until judgment.

Dennestoun, Peck & Kerr, solicitors for the plaintiffs, and O'Connell & Gordon for the defendants.

London Graphic Please Copy

We hope the celestial critic who "keeps tab" on the ill advised and nasty language used by weak mortals will not jot down all such expressions as were used yesterday morning by those who not only had to hike to the back yard and after splitting kindling, carrying coal and lighting their respective furnaces, took out and saw a 27th of May half inch of snow on the ground. Here would be a great and golden opportunity for the London Graphic and Illustrated London News, to depict Peterborough on May 27th as covered with several feet of snow and a few incidental polar bears and fur clad Esquimaux snowshoeing down George street. This would be about on a par with the average style of such periodicals' ideas (or so presented) of dear Canada of ours.

IN IT TEN YEARS

An Unconscious Slave to Coffee

"I had not the slightest idea that coffee was the cause of my continued sickness for the last ten years until I quit its use and took up Postum Food Coffee. I never had a natural movement of the bowels during a number of years because of chronic constipation, and I was continually taking medicine.

"Very frequently, just after breakfast a dizziness would come on which would force me to lie down and remain absolutely quiet until relief came. I was also the victim of severe headaches, and miserable all the time. Finally, it occurred to me that coffee was the real cause of my trouble.

"I therefore procured a package of Postum Food Coffee and began its use in place of coffee. At first I did not like it, but I soon discovered that I had not made it properly. When it is boiled long enough it has a delicious Java coffee taste, a beautiful, deep, rich brown color, and altogether it makes a charming beverage.

"I soon grew very fond of it, in fact. I liked it better than I did the old coffee. My health improved and this gradually increased. The bowels resumed their natural functions and the old dizzy feeling disappeared entirely; also the headaches.

"This happy change in health fixed me, mind permanently and forever never, under any circumstances, to go back to a drug that had held me a slave for ten long years. A curious thing about all this is that people do not realize the cause of their troubles. They go on year after year, just as I had, in drugging themselves with something that holds them in a condition of sickness and they don't seem to understand what it is that causes their trouble. If such people would leave off coffee and use Postum Food Coffee, the trial would tell its own tale."

"There's a reason."

Entered Kuroki's Car

Niagara Falls, May 28.—Two men attempted to force their way into the private car of General Kuroki just before it left for Buffalo last night. The porter attempted to close the door, but one of the men placed his foot against it and called to his companion to come on. The porter finally ejected him.

It is said that the authorities know the parties and their arrest is expected. It is said the men were intoxicated.

TRIBESMEN SACK PERSIAN VILLAGE

Shah Puts Father of Pillagers' Leader in Chains--- Populace of the Capital Crowd the Streets and an Uprising is Predicted

Teheran, May 29.—Authentic news from Tabriz reached here early Sunday morning that Rahim Khan's son, with 8,000 Celebians, had sacked and pillaged the village of Aboul, three miles from Tabriz, killing 250 of the villagers. The Shah informed the assembly and ordered that Rahim Khan who is in Teheran, should be put in chains. His son has been recalled here.

The populace give little credence to the shah's words, attributing the massacre to him. The bazaars are closed and the people gathered outside the assembly buildings to hear what the natives of Tabriz had to report. These men are all armed and they intend to avenge their comrades.

There is great dissatisfaction with the shah and the crisis is dangerous. The schools are closed, while the students, with banners flying, parade the streets, shouting, "Down with the autocracy! Long live the constitution!"

A proclamation of the Nationalists, placarded in red in all the streets, ordered the people to abstain from feasting on the shah's birthday eve, Sunday, urging the populace also not to molest Europeans, who are their guests and sympathize with their misfortunes.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

The first case tried at yesterday's court was that of a boy named Fred Price, charged with having used insulting language to Mrs. Margaret Tromblay, Rutherford avenue. The complaintant in the box, said Fred had called her a "Crooked eye squaw," "a crooked eyed dogan," and "a dirty dogan." This was whilst the boy was on her private walkway.

Two young ladies who were on complainant's verandah at the time, corroborated complainant's evidence.

The boy then said that these people called him names.

The magistrate, after several witnesses for the defence had testified that complainant had used similar or worse terms, dismissed the case saying "it is scandalous that neighbors should use such language."

Gusty Dundas was before the tribunal as a "vag." The magistrate asked, "Want you go to the House of Refuge to Lakefield?" "No sir, I will not," replied Gusty. "Very well, three months in jail.

Hon. C. Newman was charged with being a vagrant, to which he pleaded not guilty. The case was enlarged for eight days.

It seems that Police Constables Newhall and McDonald hearing of this young gentleman's action in the city, called in plain clothes, during the evening at a local hotel bar where they found Newman. They saw him in close conversation with a man the worse of liquor. They saw the prisoner exchange hats, and they thought, came with the intoxicated one.

Shortly after 12 o'clock the officers again, after doing the south act for a while, saw the prisoner and placed him under arrest. When arrested Newman put up a fight and seemed to be trying to get a razor, afterwards located in his pocket, out of his pocket. A diary in his pockets showed he is from New York.

Geo. Moffatt was charged with having been found drunk in a public place. He paid the $2 fine imposed.

Three boys pleaded guilty to riding bicycles on the sidewalk, and a $2 fine was imposed in each case.

Mrs. Hattrets Fair was charged by next door neighbor, Mrs. Tromblay, with using grossly insulting language. Mrs. Tromblay said Mrs. Fair's boy had broken her window. Witness said "You'll have to pay for that." To which Mrs. Fair answered, "I'll be d——d if I do." Mrs. Fair then tried to pick out the glass and threw the pieces in her face, calling her a foul name.

Mrs. Tromblay's daughter corroborated her mother's evidence.

Mrs. Fair, in the box, said her boy's ball had accidentally broken Mrs. Tromblay's window. She sent 25 cents to pay for the window, and Mrs. Tromblay said, "What do I want with your d——d money." The witness then went on to give in detail a verbatim report of a squabble between two angry women, each with a full command of bad language.

The case was dismissed.

A local man was charged with getting certain tools from the King in Hardware Co., under false pretences. Mr. McWilliams, who appeared for the prisoner, elected to be tried by the magistrate. Mr. Wood was present for the crown.

Mr. A. C. Robinson, a clerk in Kingan's hardware store, saw prisoner in their store on the 24th of April. Prisoner went to see Mr. Ferguson. Mr. Ferguson came back with prisoner, and said "Give him the tools as mentioned in the information. They were worth $5.35. Prisoner got him to draw up an order on his employer for cost of the goods, and signed it.

Mr. W. G. Ferguson, a member of Kingan & Co., said prisoner told him he had got a job from a local contractor and wanted to get a few tools, so he could begin work, and he would pay for the goods in a week. Prisoner gave him an order on his employer and got the goods.

To Mr. McWilliams, Mr. Ferguson said it was only about a week ago he knew prisoner had left the man he was to have worked for, and gone to work for another man. He spoke to the latest employer about the account, and the latter said he would see it was paid.

The magistrate at this juncture dismissed the case, explaining that to establish a case of getting goods under false pretences it was necessary to prove an established misstatement of facts, whereby the accuse had gotten the goods.

NOON IN PETERBOROUGH

What is Going on in Town When the Clock Strikes 12

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation—the one hour in the twenty-four which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Peterborough the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if vilainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true, and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na, which cures all stomach and digestive troubles. In hundreds of the best homes in Peterborough and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The inguired stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

What Does It Mean?

Dr. Hamilton Gives a Full and Satisfactory Explanation.

Look at your tongue!

Sometimes it's heavily coated sometimes it's clear and red.

Study this out and you'll find some interference with the functional activity of the body.

This means the bowels are not regular, the liver is sluggish and the blood is contaminated.

Strong cathartic pills act so destructively on the intestines as to provoke deathly sickness; this often frightens people from taking medicine when they badly need it.

To the multitude of dangerous purgatives now on the market, Dr. Hamilton's Pills are a notable exception, they neither gripe, cause sickly feeling or headache, yet they cleanse and purify the entire system in one night. No other laxative acts with such mildness and certainty. Giving proper stimulus to the liver and kidneys, strengthening the stomach and lending valuable aid to digestion, it's small wonder that such marvelous results accompany Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Mr. Geo. O'Hagarty, of Amherst, N. S., writes: "Last winter I worked in a lumber camp and neglected my health. I was dreadfully constipated and had a headache that fairly made me reel at times. I was sick and miserable, and hadn't the slightest ambition to work or stir around. I felt heavy and dull and had a bad taste in my mouth. I sent into this city for Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which I knew were good for my condition. They fixed me up very quickly and have kept me in good condition ever since. There are other men in the camp that use Dr. Hamilton's Pills also. They say they wouldn't be without the pills for ten times their price."

Every dealer in the land sells Dr. Hamilton's Pills—25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson and Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

WONDERFUL COBALT

The London Financial News on Saturday said: "When Sir Wilfrid Laurier said he knew Cobalt to be fabulously rich, it may be taken as a certainty he was not talking through his hat. The richness of the region did not really need his endorsement, but it is welcome because it will help British capital in its struggle to keep the wealth of Cobalt from drifting into American hands."

Undoubtedly the public testimony of the Canadian premier as to the actuality of the vast wealth which the Cobalt discoveries have developed will give confidence to British investors, and lead to the diversion of a vast amount of speculative funds seeking employment, from fields of comparative uncertainty, to that in Ontario, which offers guarantees of stability that are nowhere else found in the world of mineral adventure, and the province of Ontario, whose mining regulations make it practically a partner in interest in these discoveries, cannot fail to profit by this timely utterance. There is, however, abundant capital flowing into Ontario on the same account from the United States, and notably from Chicago, where companies developing Cobalt holdings have been successfully capitalized through the use of the columns of this paper. These investments have proven so remunerative through the rapid increment of stock values, that they are being looked to with active interest by investors, who having been made fully acquainted with the splendidly devised regulations of the Ontario government for the supervision of mining operations, are impressed by the care taken to minimize any speculative risk, by making it practically impossible to secure a mining license without a solid basis of value to guarantee results from development. And there is no question that the profitable experience of Chicago people who have already put their money into Cobalt enterprises will lead to much larger investments in the future, so strong is the confidence that has been inspired in the Ontario El Dorado, which is a definite reality, and not a field of dreams inviting the pursuit of alluring but unsubstantial and unproductive rainbows.

A President's Daughter

When President Grant's only daughter, Nellie, afterward Mrs. Sartoris, was a miss of twelve years, she attended a private school in Washington. One afternoon, says the author of "The Olivia Letters," Nellie's lessons were not learned. The carriage came for her, but the teacher dismissed it with the request that it should return at the end of a half hour. The half hour came and gilded away with the lesson still unlearned. The carriage came again and was dismissed. At the end of the second half hour the lesson was committed, and Miss Nellie was permitted to go. The next day at the usual hour the young lady arrived, accompanied by her mother. The teacher began to fear she had lost her most cherished pupil, but Mrs. Grant came to thank her for performing her duty.

"Teach her," said Mrs. Grant, "that she is only plain, simple Nellie Grant, subject to the same rules which govern all the scholars. This course will have my sincere approbation."

Reached the Limit.

A Providence girl, who has been married about six months, had wedding cards a short time ago from an old school friend who had given her a wedding present, which, of course, demanded one in return. Among her wedding presents the Providence girl had duplicates in the shape of two silver card trays, and in a spirit of economy she decided to give one of these to her friend. It was marked with her own initials, but it would be only a matter of a few minutes to have them removed and the proper monogram cut. She took it to the jeweler and explained what was to be done. He picked up the tray, looked at it closely and smiled.

"Madam," said he, "it will be impossible. I have already changed the initials on this same tray five times, and it has worn so thin that I cannot do it again without cutting through the bottom."

His Fears Realized.

For years the old country couple had looked forward to spending a holiday in London, and one day they found themselves in the very busiest part of the city. Together they stood watching the traffic, to which there seemed no end. They did not know how to cross the street.

"Whatever you do, Liza, don't git separated from me," said the old man to his wife, "and, whatever you do, don't cross the road without me."

Then a kindly constable came along and, seeing the old woman hesitating, took her by the arm and commenced to pilot her to the opposite side.

"Dang my buttons," cried out the old man in alarm, "I allus told 'er that some one wud take a fancy to 'er, but I didn't think any one 'ud 'ave the imperance to take 'er afore my very eyes!"—London Tit-Bits.

Had a Slow but Sure Gait.

There have been numerous disappointments in the outcome of some of the boys. We remember one boy in particular who was the butt of all ridicule from the boys of his age, and he took it good naturedly. He seemed to have no particular friends and herded by himself. His clothes always looked funny, and he had that awkward swagger over which the rest of us had much sport. No one ever thought that that plug would ever get anywhere or have anything. But today that plug is drawing a better salary than any two of the old gang. He has more money, more influence and more friends than any of the rest of us. The plug had a gait that was slow, but it was sure. He didn't appear to be a bit bright then, but he had a surface that took on a polish.

Yet He Didn't Need Them.

He had been calling on a young lady for many moons; but, being backward, his suit progressed slowly. Finally she decided it was up to her to start something, so the next time he called she pointed to the rose in his buttonhole and said:

"I'll give you a kiss for that rose." A large, open face blush meandered over his countenance, but the exchange was made. Then, he grabbed his hat and started to leave the room.

"Why, where are you going?" she asked in surprise.

"To the—er—florist for more roses," he exclaimed.

Dangerous Ignorance.

If his son came to him and said, "I want you to show me on a piece of paper how this house is drained and why such traps are used," could the average citizen satisfy that son? Of course he could not. A few might be able to do so, but the average man is an ignorant person on all questions of hygiene.—G. H. R. Dabbs, M. D., in C. B. Fry's Magazine.

All Here.

"I'm told," said Miss Pepprey, "that your bride is very pretty."

"Yes, indeed," replied Mr. Con Sest. "Several of the guests at the ceremony were pleased to call it 'a wedding of beauty and brains.'"

"Really? She must be a remarkable woman to have beauty and brains too."

He Listened to All.

Fontenelle listened to everything, and be offended no one by disputing anything. At the close of his life he was asked the secret of his success, and he replied that it was by observing two maxims, "Everybody may be right" and "Everything may be so."

The true strength of every human soul is to be dependent on as many nobler as it can discern and to be depended upon by as many inferior as it can reach.—Ruskin.

Stanton Could Swear.

One day President Lincoln saw Senator Fessenden coming toward his office room. Mr. Fessenden had received the promise of some appointment in Maine for one of his constituents. The case had been overlooked. As soon as Mr. Lincoln caught sight of the senator he saw Fessenden was angry and called out, "Say, Fessenden, aren't you an Episcopalian?" Mr. Fessenden, somewhat taken aback, answered,

"Yes, I belong to that persuasion, Mr. President." Mr. Lincoln then said: "I thought so. You swear so much like Seward. Seward is an Episcopalian. But you ought to hear Stanton swear. He can beat you both. He is a Presbyterian."

An Odd Mistake.

Captain Amundsen, having lost several dogs in his expedition to the arctic regions, told some of the Netchillie tribe that he would purchase one from them. The suggestion caused consternation and was promptly refused. An explanation was demanded. The man applied to returned next day with a chubby, laughing boy on his back. "Such we do not sell," he said. Amundsen was astonished. "You wished to purchase one," said the man, seeing Amundsen's perplexity. Finally it was discovered that the Greenlandic term for "dog" was equivalent to "child" in the Netchillie language.

His Last Chance.

"Did you ever notice," said Mrs. Peck, "that about half the pictures in the photographers' windows are of bridal couples? I wonder why they always rush off to the photographer as soon as the knot is tied."

"I guess the husband is responsible for it," said Mr. Peck. "He realizes that it is about his last chance to ever look pleasant."

A Word For Herself.

The young widow of an old husband inscribed the following words upon her dear departed's tomb:

"To the memory of Mathurin Beauquet, who left this vale of tears at the age of ninety-nine years, eleven months and twenty days, deeply grieved at having to leave behind him the most charming and faithful of wives."—Pele Mele.

Professional Ethics.

The acquitted woman (young and pretty) kissed her lawyer.

"Madam," said he, with an attempt at firmness, "my stipulation was that there should be no fee in this case. You must permit me to return it."

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

...By... JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

The precious manuscript fell from Miss Tempy's lap to the floor.

"Why—why, Prissy Allen!" she exclaimed. "What do you mean?"

"I mean we can't do what we've hoped to do. Oh, dear! I—I don't know what we'll do. Tempy, we've hardly got any money left!"

CHAPTER V.

FOR a moment Miss Tempy made no reply to her sister's speech. Instead she sat there with her eyes fixed upon Miss Prissy's face and her thin fingers picking nervously at her dress.

"Haven't got any money?" she repeated after a pause. "Haven't got any money left? Why, then—why, then, we'll have to take it out of the savin's bank up to Boston. Of course, Bradley must go to college. You know he must, Prissy."

But Miss Prissy shook her head.

"You don't understand, Tempy," she said. "I ought to have talked with you about it long ago. I can see now that I ought to; but, oh, dear, father always said you was too delicate to bother with money matters, and I've been used to takin' all the care myself, and so I've jest gone on and on, worryin' and plannin' and layin' awake nights until I can't go on any further. Oh, Tempy," she cried, and the tears rolled down her cheeks, "you don't understand. The money in the Boston bank has all gone too. We haven't got more than $500 left in the world, and when that's gone"— She waved her hands despairingly.

But still Miss Tempy did not comprehend.

"Why, all of it can't be gone!" she said. "All of the insurance money and everything! Why, it was $5,000!" She mentioned the sum reverently and in an awestruck whisper.

"Yes," said Miss Prissy, trying hard not to be impatient; "yes, 'twas $5,000, and father died over ten years ago, and we've been livin' on it ever since."

"But $5,000, Prissy! Five thousand"—

"Oh, my soul and body! Anybody'd think 'twas a million. Jest think, now; jest think! We've lived on it for pretty nigh eleven years; paid for our clothes and livin' and havin' the house painted six years ago, and"—

"But it needed paintin'."

"Needed it! I should think it did! But it cost more'n we'd ought to spend, jest the same. Oh, it's more my fault than anybody's. Long's father lived the place was kept up, and you and me was used to havin' things as good as our neighbors, and I went on and on, never thinkin' we was too extravagant until all at once the money that we first put in the Harniss bank was used up. And then it come home to me, as you might say, and I realized what we'd been doin'. Oh, I've tried and tried; scrimped here and pinched there. What do you s'pose I sold the wood lot for? And then the cran'by swamp?"

"Why, you said we didn't need 'em, and it was too much trouble to run 'em."

"Said! Oh, I don't doubt I said all sorts of things to keep you from knowin'. But I sold 'em to help pay the bills. And then you was took down with the typhoid, and there was that big doctor's bill, and then Bradley came, and he had to have clothes and a little money to spend, like the other boys. And now!"

Miss Prissy choked, tried to go on, and then broke down and cried heartily and without restraint.

In all the years since the death of Captain Allen Miss Tempy had never seen her common sense, practical sister give way like this. The sight alarmed her much more than the story of the financial situation had so far done. She didn't fully understand the latter yet, but every one of Miss Prissy's sobs was to her a call for help that needed an immediate answer.

"There, there, there, dear!" she said, running to the other rocker and putting her arm around her sister's neck. "You poor thing! You mustn't cry like that. You're jest worried yourself sick. You're all worn out. I shouldn't be surprised if you've got a little cold, too, in that drafty schoolhouse. Let me make you a good, big cup of pepper tea right away; now do."

Miss Prissy turned a sob into a feeble laugh.

"Oh, dear me, Tempy," she said, laying her hand on the other's arm, "I b'lieve you think pepper tea'll cure anything, even an empty pocketbook. I wish 'twould pay bills; then, I don't know but I'd drink a hogshead. But it won't, nor cryin' won't, either. Set down, and I'll tell you jest how things are."

So Miss Tempy, reluctantly giving up the "pepper tea" idea for the present, went back to her chair, and Miss Prissy continued.

"The money in the Boston savin's bank is gone," she said, "and a year or more ago I wrote to the broker folks that bought the bond for us when father died, and they sold it for me and got a little less than a thousand dollars for it. I put the money into the bank at Harniss, and, though I've tried my best to be economical, there ain't but five hundred and eighty left. That and the place here is all we've got."

In a bewildered fashion Miss Tempy strove to grasp the situation.

"Then we're poor," she said, "real poor, and I thought we was rich. Well, I shall give up that new bonnet I was goin' to have next spring, and I s'pose I hadn't ought to subscribe to the Comforter either. I did think so much of it."

"I'm afraid we'll have to give up more than the Comforter, Tempy. I've thought and thought till my poor head is nearly worn through. We might sell the place here, but 'twould be like sellin' our everlastin' souls—if 'tain't unreligious to say it—and, besides, property at Orham is so low now that we'd only get ha'f what it's worth, and when that money's spent there wouldn't be anything left."

"Sell the place! Father's place! Why, Prissy Allen, how can you talk so! Where would we live?"

"Well, we might hire a little house down at South Orham or somewheres."

"South Orham! Where all those Portuguese and things live? I'd rather die!" And it was Miss Tempy's turn to cry.

"You needn't cry for that, Tempy. We won't sell yet awhile. Not till there's nothin' left. But we can't have the barn shingled, and as for Bradley's goin' to college, that, I'm afraid, is out of the question."

"Oh, dear, dear! And the barn looks awful. Melissy Busteed was sayin' only last week that folks was wond'rin' when we was goin' to have it fixed. And poor Bradley! My heart was set on his bein' a minister. I don't know but I'd live in the poorhouse to make him one. They say Mr. Otis keeps a real nice poorhouse, too," she added.

Miss Prissy smiled dolefully. "It hasn't got to the poorhouse yet," she said, "and I hope we can send Bradley through high school anyhow. But we'll have to scrimp awful, and we must try to earn some money. I was talkin' to Abigail Mullett at the church fair last August, and she spoke about those aprons and one thing another that I made and said she never saw such hemmin' and tuckin'. She said she'd give anything if she could get somebody to do such work for her in the dressmakin' season. I've been thinkin' maybe she'd put out some of her work to me if I asked her to. She does more dressmakin' than anybody around; has customers 'way over to Ostable and keeps three girls some-

Mining and Investment Brokers.

No industry in Canada, or in fact in the world, has shown a greater increase in production and values in the past five years than the metal and coal mines of British Columbia. Since the boom days things have settled down to a business basis with results that speak for themselves. During the years 1893 to 1900, inclusive, the province produced 32,560,800 pounds of copper, valued at $4,460,000.00. In the years 1901 to 1905, inclusive, the production reached the grand total of 176,000,000 pounds valued at $24,000,000.00, with a corresponding increase in the dividends paid. Do not take our word for this, but verify the same by reference to the report of the Hon. Minister of Mines.

Of coal, this province produced during the first period given, respectively, 5,100,000 tons valued at $15,500,000.00. During the second period, 8,100,000 tons valued at $24,300,000.00.

High values and a small tonnage make a glowing report, but for substantial mines that pay indefinitely, the comparatively low grade large deposits are to be preferred.

We handle stocks of all mines in British Columbia and Alberta. If you want a speculative stock we can give it to you, and if you want an investment that you can leave for your children, we can give you that as well.

Write us for information and list of stocks which we have for sale.

Sure Cure for Sciatica.

Sciatica is really inflammation of the sciatic nerve, the largest nerve in the body.

This passive inflammation is the product of a run-down condition, and in every case you may be sure the nerves are worn down fine.

The pain is the cry of the nerves for more food—for richer, redder blood.

Rubbing on a greasy liniment can't help very much—you must treat the blood and rebuild the nervous system.

This can be promptly done with Ferrozone.

No builder of nerve force is more powerful.

No tonic so quickly fortifies the muscular system, imparts such strength, such endurance and vigor.

Any traces of Uric Acid and rheumatic poison are quickly driven out by Ferrozone. The powered condition of the system is changed into a reserve of vigor that defies further attacks of Sciatica.

Victim of Railroad Accident Dead

Chas. Sellers, the old man who had his leg taken off by the G.T.R. train on Sunday, died in Nicholls Hospital yesterday morning about five o'clock. His remains were sent to Egarville on the midnight C. P. R. train last night for burial. Sellers, who was 70 years of age, seemed to be doing fairly well on Monday, but during the night he had a bad spell, and being very weak from the loss of blood and old age, was unable to resist it, and about five o'clock he passed away.

Dates of Local Minstrel Show

It has been decided to hold the amateur local minstrel show in the Grand Opera House on the evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday, June 11th and 12. This performance is being given for the benefit of the local lacrosse club. The show itself will be first-class. The very best talent in the city has been secured. Mr. John Orane is musical director, and Mr. Wm. McIlroy is manager.

Mr. Bogue Fills in Mason's Creek

Some surprise was caused yesterday when it became known that Mr. Jas. Bogue was filling in Mason's creek, which has passed through Mr. Bogue's property for some years. Originally it cut right through his lot, but some three years ago an arrangement was made whereby the creek was straightened out and runs alongside the Grand Trunk right of way and connects with the Aylmer street drain at the corner.

Local Fruit Dealer is Home

Mr. Tom Minocolo, the Hunter street fruit dealer, has returned from a two weeks' business trip to Montreal. Mr. Minocolo whilst in the Canadian metropolis purchased two car loads of oranges and lemons, one of which has already arrived. He noted yesterday that fruit ships arriving in Montreal, were much delayed by the strike there. This trouble however is now over. Oranges and lemons are much dearer than last year.

Three New Tables Ordered

Yesterday Mr. Pappas the George street billiard room proprietor, wrote Messrs. Samuel May & Co., Toronto, ordering them to ship three new tables at once. This order was imperative as yesterday the partition between the former shooting gallery and the George street west side, pool room, was removed. All the shooting gallery fixtures were removed to Jackson Park, where Mr. Pappas has thrown to greet his gallery at that spot.

Live Racoon Caught in Town

Two local citizens captured a racoon a few days ago at the corner of Sherbrook and Aylmer streets, about seven o'clock in the morning. The coon when discovered ran up a tree from which it was shaken, and then up another until at last captured. It is only a few years ago that a whole family of racoons, pa, ma, and six little coonlets were found in the hay loft of Mr. James Stevenson, at the rear of his residence on Simcoe street.

Child Poisoned by Canned Salmon

A few days ago the 3-year-old child of Mr. and Mrs. B. Fair, of Aylmer St., had a narrow escape from ptomane poisoning. It seems the little girl partook of some canned salmon and shortly afterwards was in a precarious condition, her body becoming almost as stiff as though "rigor mortes" had set in. Emetics were administered and the child's life saved. The can had only just been opened before the meal. Neither of the parents felt any ill effects from the fish.

COMMON SENSE

Leads most intelligent people to use only medicines of known composition. Therefore it is that Dr. Pierce's medicines, the makers of which print every ingredient entering into them upon the bottle wrappers and attest its correctness under oath, are daily growing in favor. The composition of Dr. Pierce's medicines is open to everybody. Dr. Pierce being desirous of having the search light of investigation turned fully upon his formulæ, being confident that the better the composition of these medicines is known the more will their great curative merits be recognized. Being wholly made of the active medicinal principles extracted from native forest roots, by exact processes original with Dr. Pierce, and without the use of a drop of alcohol, triple-refined and chemically pure glycerine being used instead in extracting and preserving the curative virtues residing in the roots employed, these medicines are entirely free from the objection of doing harm by creating an appetite for either alcoholic beverages or habit-forming drugs. Examine the formula on their bottle wrappers—the same as sworn to by Dr. Pierce, and you will find that his "Golden Medical Discovery," the great, blood-purifier, stomach tonic and bowel regulator—the medicine which, while not recommended to cure consumption in its advanced stages (no medicine will do that) yet does cure all those catarrhal conditions of head and throat, weak stomach, torpid liver and bronchial troubles, weak lungs and hang-on-coughs, which, if neglected or badly treated lead up to and finally terminate in consumption.

Take the "Golden Medical Discovery" in time and it is not likely to disappoint you if only you give it a thorough and fair trial. Don't expect miracles. It won't do supernatural things. You must exercise your patience and persevere in its use for a reasonable length of time to get its full benefits. The ingredients of which Dr. Pierce's medicines are composed have the unqualified endorsement of scores of medical leaders—better than any amount of lay, or non-professional, testimonials. They are not given away to be experimented with but are sold by all dealers in medicines at reasonable prices.

Did the Devil Control Water Street?

Yesterday taking the weather and the dust into consideration, Water street would make one think that a Sahara desert sand storm direct from the north pole was in league with his Satanic Majesty in an effort to get both pedestrians and merchants to use language that would entitle such users to several hundred black marks in the Recording Angel's ledger. The cold was uncanny at this time of year and the dust simply in sight annihilating clouds.

Candidate to Represent Peterborough

It has been decided to have only one candidate in the race for the "Toronto World's Free Trip to London and Paris." Miss Birdie Thompson has been nominated for the popularity ballot vote, and as most other towns have two contestants Miss Thompson's election is sure. Even in a contest Peterborough is size and importance would assuredly be successfully placed in this unique free trip to the continent.

This competition closes at midnight, July 22nd. It is now up to the people of this city to get busy and see that Peterborough's candidate is elected. This would be a great advertisement for the city, when the successful candidates arrive in England.

The Money That's Being Made in

Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section he bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never know success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 600,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

Secretary and Treasurer ... ADAMS F. BROWN, Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Listing Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Depository ... JOHN S. COOK & CO. Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and, with with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

SEWERAGE WANTED FOR ENGLEBURN

Board of Works Consider Favorably Scheme for Sceptic Tank and Connections, on Request of C. B. McAllister

The Board of Works of the City Council, met last night, when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams, Ald. Duncan, chairman; and Aldermen Johnston, McIntyre and Wilson.

Mr. C. B. McAllister waited upon the Board with a view to getting sewerage for Engleburn Park guaranteed. Engleburn Park is situated in east ward, between Burnham St. and the river, and in the absence of facilities for an ordinary system of sewerage, by reason of impracticable location, Mr. McAllister proposed that a septic tank be constructed at the foot of Maria street, which would afford the desired accommodation. Mr. McAllister offered that the absence of some sort of sewerage provision rendered it difficult to sell property in Engleburn Park. He proposed that the cost of a septic tank be borne by the city and paid by general tax, and connections charged up against the property benefitted on a frontage basis, and distributed over a term of thirty years. He asked that this work be guaranteed from next year. There would be 37 lots and probably 15 or 20 residences interested in this scheme.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the engineer be instructed to make the necessary surveys, and plans for this work showing the properties to be benefitted; also to furnish an estimate of the cost of such work. And that this proposition be referred to the Provincial Board of Health for approval. Also that the engineer estimate the cost of the tank and outlet for sewers on the streett that will be subject to it.—Carried.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston,—That this board recommend to the council the construction of this sewerage system, subject to the Provincial Board of Health's approval, and to a petition being presented for sewers on the streets. —Carried.

Should this work be done next year, it is expected that the residents in Engleburn Park will be relieved of all tax for any other sewer or sceptic tank.

Ald Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the necessary approach to the property of Wm. Eptric on Rubidge street, between Edinburgh and Dublin streets, be constructed as soon as possible.—Carried.

F. J. Conroy considers that his contract with the city for handling dredgings on the river front below Hunter street has expired, and asked for a settlement of his claims in full. He also expressed himself willing to enter into a new contract for such work this year as soon as desirable. Mr. Conroy handled this dredging for 13c a yard.

The board decided to leave this matter in abeyance for a week.

Ald. Johnston drew attention to the fact that Mr. Jas. Bogue is filling up the Aylmer street drain that was diverted through his property last year. Messrs. Eastwood and Bogue undertook this work jointly last year, while the city paid the expense of street connections. Should this portion of the drain that runs through Bogue's property be blocked, property on its Aylmer street course will be seriously effected during spring and storm freshets.

Mr. Bogue will be informed officially that should he block up this water course the city will hold him responsible for any damage that may accrue to streets or private property by reason of his action.

The Fire, Water & Light Committee wanted to sell to the Board of Works 600 feet of 1901 fire hose at 7½c a foot, for sewer flushing and street purposes.

Ald. Wilson did not look on this proposition favorably. He offered that the Board of Works need first-class hose, and should purchase good rubber hose at $1.10 a foot rather than pay the Fire, Water & Light Committee two-thirds the original cost of six-year-old hose.

The street commissioner thought it would be economy to take the best of the old fire hose for street purposes, but not at so unreasonable a price as 7½c. a foot.

Ald. Johnston remarked that he wished to put a stop to the good fire hose being used for other purposes than fires. The Board of Works should own their own hose, which might be stored in the fire hall tower.

On motion of the mayor, seconded by Ald. Wilson, the Board of Works will offer the fire department 50c a foot for 400 feet of old hose, such hose to be subject to the commissioner's approval as being serviceble.

The city engineer was authorized to purchase the steam coal required for this year's work with the steam roller and crusher.

A petition for a granolithic walk on south side of Cricket place, from Driscoll street to east end of Cricket place, was granted. This petition was in last year, hence its consideration at this time of the season.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

The Yanks Won From Peterboro

Yesterday evening the touring Pan American Football team of Fall River, Mass., defeated the locals by a score of 2—0. The game was fast in spots, i.e., whenever the Quakers succeeded in getting some combination stunts in, but alas they were few and far between, the cause being that the locals have not practiced together and are almost strangers to one another, whereas the Americans are hand in glove with each other's play.

Taken as a whole the game last night was a good exhibition of football, and it was a great pity that more of Peterborough's citizens did not take it in.

On the local team special mention might be made of McFadden on goal, also Crough and Huston who put up a strenuous game.

Death of Mr. Frank H. White

Son of Mr. Richard White, of Montreal Gazette

Many of our citizens will regret to learn of the death of Mr. Frank H. White, son of Mr. Richard White, of the Gazette, Montreal, which occurred in the city on Monday last. Mr. White was known to many in Peterborough, his parents having resided here many years ago.

The deceased was born in September 22, 1874. After passing through Bishop's College School, Lennoxville, Mr. White took the science course at McGill, graduating in 1897. After spending some years in New York and Boston, he returned to Montreal in 1903 as the representative in Canada of the Armstrong Cork Company, the Nonpareil Cork Company branch. He married in October, 1903, Helena, daughter of the late Dr. William Kempt, of Lindsay, Ont., who, with two sons, survives him. He was a member of the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers. For some years he belonged to the Duke of Connaught's Hussars. He was much esteemed by his friends and acquaintances, as a quiet and capable man, with the prospect of good success in his business before him.

Quick Piece of Track Laying

A remarkably quick job of track laying was recently accomplished in the yards of the Lakefield Portland Cement Co., when some 1200 feet of new steel track was well and truly laid in seven hours. The company had figured that this job would take from two to three days. However Mr. E. Burke, the company's foreman maintained the job could be accomplished in eight hours. Mr. Burke was given "carte blanche" and had the track finished in seven hours.

Garbage Bylaw is Held in Favor

Judging by questions asked yesterday of men in all lines of life in this city, by a Times representative, replies indicated an unanimous and enthusiastic endorsement of the proposed garbage bylaw. From professional men and merchants to the humblest $7 a month tenant, all seemed to think that the proposed 15 cents per month for keeping yards clean and sanitary is cheap taxation. One man who earns his bread and that of a large family at the north end of a well worn pick and shovel remarked, "Be jupers its ta worth the $1.80 a year to keem thim ——dogs out of the yard,, as if the bones and other truck is taken away the spalpeens won't be rumbling me gate and turning over the swill box two or three times a day."

Victim of Accident is Laid to Rest

Yesterday afternoon the last mortal remains of the late Mr. John E. Irwin, whose sad death under a falling wall resulting from the recent Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co. fire, were laid to rest in the Little Lake cemetery. The funeral, held from the deceased's late residence, Bethune street, was largely attended, the employes of the Peter Hamilton Co., who attended in a body. A large number of beautiful floral tributes were sent. Service was conducted by Rev. A. H. Brace, of Park street Church. The pall bearers were Messrs. John Brownlee, James Mulholland, John Law, Chas. McBrien, James Collison and Robert Mulligan.

House of Refuge Inmates Happy

It has been decided by the County House of Refuge management, at a meeting held at Lakefield, to make several changes in the farm, including a new wire fence along the front of the farm, and completion of the system of sewers started last fall. It is intended to use the county's teams and employes to do the work in spare time. There are now sixteen inmates in the Home and all are perfectly contented. All the men are willing and glad to work, as it helps them to kill time. The 35 acres of spring grain is nearly all up and is doing well, considering the weather. On the farm are eight good cows, as well as pigs and turkeys, and several settings of turkey eggs are expected to hatch in a few days.

Hill Loses His Case Against Gow et all

Case Possibly Rising as Aftermath of Dummer Shooting, Lost by Plaintiff

Shortly after his lordship Chancellor Boyd ascended the dais, and formally opened the spring session of the high court of justice at one o'clock yesterday, the case of Hill vs. Gow was called. As noted in yesterday's Times the plaintiff is Robert D. Hill and the defendants, Charles and John F. Gow, and also Charles Gow, Christopher John Darling, and Wm John Moore, executors of the last will and testament of John F. Gow.

The plaintiff states that on or about the eighth day of April, 1906, he recovered a judgment against the defendant, Charles Gow, in the High Court of Justice, for the sum $653.53 damages and costs, and on the same day a writ of execution against the goods and chattels, lands and tenements of the defendant was issued, upon the said judgment, and placed in the hands of the sheriff of Peterborough County for execution. The said writ of fieri facias has ever since been in the hands of the sheriff for execution. At this time the defendant resided in Dummer township. The action was entered for trial at a sitting of the High Court held in Peterborough in April, 1906, when a verdict was rendered in favor of the plaintiff, with a stay of proceedings for 30 days.

The plaintiff claims that at the time the action was entered, the defendant was the owner of the east half of lot No. 13, in the 4th concession of Dummer. The plaintiff charges the defendant with having for the alleged and pretended consideration of $1,500, executed a deed whereby the purported to convey the lands above referred to to John F. Gow. The deed was dated April 14, 1906. The lot in question is valued at $2,500 or thereabouts. The plaintiff claims that by this fraudulent conveyance he is unable to realize the judgment he obtained, and as a result is being defeated and delayed, and defrauded in collecting his claim against the defendant.

John F. Gow died July 21st, 1906, having first made his last will and testament, whereof he appointed the said defendants Christopher John Darling, and Wm. John Moore, executors. The plaintiff charges that the above conveyance was fraudulent and void and should be set aside.

The defendants, Christopher John Darling and Wm. John Moore, admit the judgment of plaintiff against Charles Gow, and also admit the conveyance by Charles Gow, to the late John F. Gow, but claim that they had no knowledge of any facts that would tend to throw any doubt on the validity of the said conveyance.

R. E. Wood, solicitor for plaintiff, and Roger, Bennett & Goodwill, for the defendants.

Miss Beatrice Gow, sister of Chas. Gow, the first witness said that her brother left home the morning after her father's funeral. She knew of the conveyance of the land, having heard her relatives talking of selling the property in March. She had not heard Hill's name mentioned in this connection.

Mr. Archie McIntyre said that he recently inspected the barns on Chas. Gow's property and valued it at $400.

To Mr. Watson witness said he inspected drive sheds and stables on what he was told was the Charles Gow farm. He also inspected a log barn which was on the Gow farm. He inspected all the buildings on the farm of 300 acres. He only valued the drive sheds and stables.

This ended the case for the plaintiff and his lordship expressed it as his opinion that no case had been established. The case was dismissed with costs, subsequent to the examination of Mr. Dennistoun.

W. H. Baker, three dwellings on Thomas street, to cost $1,700 each. Total $5,100.

W. S. Clarke, adding kitchen to house at 633 Roger street, to cost $50.

H. C. Braund, enlarging dwelling and store at 53 and 55 Park street, to cost $225. J. W. Elliott, contractor.

George Curtis, dwelling on Edinburgh street, to cost $1,300.

The Bradburn Estate, altering store at 342 George street, to cost $200.

Robert Pollock, altering dwelling at 90 Burnham street, to cost $30.

Smith Farmer Had an Accident

Street Car Strikes Mr. Jas. Darling's Rig Knocking Him to the Ground

Yesterday afternoon as Mr. Jas. Darling, a well known resident of Smith township, was driving along George street, at the corner of Simcoe street, a passing street car struck his rig, and Mr. Darling was thrown out over the dash board, landing amidst some barrels and other builders' stuff in front of the Dominion Bank building. Fortunately beyond a severe shaking up, Mr. Darling sustained no injuries, and was able to proceed on his way home.

Quaker Oats Co. Latest Machine

The latest addition to the modern, vastly complicated, and diversified machinery used by the Quaker Oats Co., in their huge factories is a veritable "gun" for making "wheat berries." After wheat has been thoroughly cleaned out, and the bran removed, the kernels are poured into the "gun," which is five feet long and able to stand great heat and pressure, of which there is a battery of ten standing ready.

The "gun" is closed tight under pressure, and placed in the oven, where it is caught by a revolving holder and twirled, while heat from burning jets of gas play on the cylinder, causing the temperature to about 400 degrees.

A jet of steam at about 200 pounds pressure is forced into the cylinder. When the gun is "fired" the contents driven by the enormous pressure into the air of the chamber and fall, each grain swelled thrice its normal size. The report is startling. The process is continuous, the battery being loaded and fired in succession.

DARING REPLY OF PRIESTS TO POPE

Italian Clergy Make Accusations Against Pontiff ---Claim That They Were Violated in the Suspension of Father Murri

Rome, May 30.—A group of Italian priests have issued a remarkable open letter to the pope. It is a daring reply to the censures uttered by his holiness in his allocution of April 17, against the modern school of ecclesiastics, and it accuses the pontiff of violating the rights of conscience in his treatment of Father Murri, who was suspended from the priesthood for criticising the Vatican's policy, and other priests.

The letter contends that Catholicism should abandon its archaic position, and by recognizing the claims of science and democracy regain its hold on mankind. It vindicates the right of young men in the Church to a certain amount of liberty in their work for her, this vindication being based on the opinion of Leo XIII. that the future of the Church depends upon them. Certain pontifical appoints to high dignities are strongly criticised.

His holiness is charged with paralyzing the work and institutions of his predecessor, and particularly of having introduced reactionary theologians into the Biblical Commission, while it is complained that the pope only allows Catholics to vote when the candidature of some conservative is endangered.

The writers repudiate the idea of rebellion, and appeal to the holy father for wisdom, equity and clemency.

Messrs. Matthews Co. New Store Begun

Work was begun yesterday morning on the new retail store at the corner of Park and Charlotte streets, for the Messrs. Geo. Matthews Co. This fine new brick building, with cement foundation, measuring 62x26 feet in size, will be parallel with Park street. Architect W. Blackwell is in charge of the operations. In front of the store, which faces Park street, and on the Sherbrooke street side, the space between the building and the walk will be concreted.

A Company Owning Twelve Good Claims

Nevada a Staff whose very name conjures up visions of gold and silver, contains no group of claims more promising than those owned by the El Capitan Mining Co., in Esmerald County, Nev. This company is incorporated under the laws of the State of California, with headquarters in Oakland, Cal. The company is capitalized with 1,200,000 shares of a par value of $1 each. The El Capitan Company owns twelve claims of 20 acres each all of which show rich outcroppings of gold and silver bearing ore; their claims are the El Capitan, Sunrise, Wadloux, War Eagle, Blue Eagle, Prince Edward, Camp Bird, Silver King, Mabel, Smuggler, Ethel and Homestead.

From a careful analysis made by Messrs. Shaw & Shaw of Oakland, the Sunrise claim shows $20 in gold, $2 in silver and 20 per cent. lead, the Blue Eagle $78.54 in gold, the Prince Edward $16.25 in gold and the others from traces of gold to high grade ore.

This company is now offering, for development expenses, 50,000 of the 400,000 shares reserved in the treasury, at ten cents per share. As this is one of the best lot of claims now on the market in Nevada, it is safe to predict that those getting in on the ground floor will reap huge profits within a year. For stock or particulars address G. W. Winckfield, president, 1315 Franklin street, Oakland, Cal.

New Furniture Factory Open Soon

Mr. T. A. Oke, proprietor of the new furniture factory on Hunter street east, has made good time in completing this latest addition to Peterborough's rapidly growing family of industries. Mr. Oke is a practical man in the business, having been engaged in the same line of manufacturing in Cobourg. The new factory, of pressed brick, two stories high and of good dimensions, will be ready for use in about two weeks. Some of the machinery has already been put in position. The ground floor will be the machine shop. The work will be done by power from a 15-horse power motor made at the C.G.E. works. On the second storey will be the paint and work shops.

The factory will turn out all case work; that is bookcases, tables, sideboards and such like. No chairs will be manufactured.

Old Peterboro Boy Home Again

Mr. Jos. Giroux, a brother of Mr Geo. Giroux, the popular head clerk of the local Trent Valley Canal staff, who has been away from Peterborough for nearly a quarter of a century is now a guest of the latter. Mr Giroux will remain in Peterborough about a month before returning to his home at Kensington, Kansas. Many changes have taken place since he left his native town, but there are many citizens who remember the visitor from Kansas, and who are now giving him a cordial welcome home. Mr. Giroux was for many years in the railroad business but is now in the real estate business in his adopted home.

Chief Rutherford and the Brigade Praised

Mr. Tom Rutherford, the efficient chief of the local fire brigade, together with the members of our fire fighting brigade, have received unqualified praise for the splendid work they have accomplished in general, but more particularly in connection with the recent Peter Hamilton Mfg. Co. factory, from the fire inspectors who came here to adjust Mr. Hamilton's loss. Inspectors of the Phoenix and also the Millers and Manufacturers companies were in the city, and estimated the loss at $9600.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

HOUSEKEEPERS who are wise will not be persuaded into purchasing the unreliable baking powders which some dealers wish to sell for the sake of the additional profit derived therefrom. Crudely mixed from low-grade, impure ingredients, such powders cost but half as much to make as the highly refined, absolutely pure Royal Baking Powder, although retailed at the same price. They are unwholesome and lacking in leavening strength.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER gives the greatest value for its cost, and there is no other baking powder or leavening preparation that will give such satisfaction, or make such pure, wholesome and delicious food, or which in practical use will be found so economical.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

It may be questioned whether any other country in the world, with no greater population, can equal the phenomenal growth of Canada's foreign trade for the year ending March 31st. The exports totalled $272,206,606, and the imports $340,374,745, or a grand total of $612,581,351, which, taking the population at a little more than six millions, gives an average of $100 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

The imports are indicative of the activity in our domestic manufactures, for of the increase of $60,046,065 (or 21 1-2 per cent.), a very large proportion was of raw material to be made into finished products by the skill of Canadian workmen. The imports from Great Britain amounted to $83,229,256, an increase of $16,089,287, or 24 per cent.; while those from the United States reached a total of $208,721,601, an increase of 23 1-2 per cent.

The returns also show that our sales to the United States amounted to $109,772,944, or an increase of $20,145,502 or 22 1-2 per cent. over the previous year. Our exports to Great Britain, although also very gratifying, did not show so large an increase as those to the United States. They, however, exceeded those of the previous year by $8,930,981, or 7 per cent. bringing the total up to $134,169,430, a very creditable showing indeed.

Every Canadian has reason to feel elated at these figures, and taking them as incentives to greater activity, should use every reasonable and legitimate effort to make the business of the present year far exceed any in the past. To do this however, there must be a solution of the existing transportation problems, so that there will be no further drawback from blockades, such as has hindered the growth of the west the past few months.

Pretty Close

A certain elderly lady was in a fairly good position and lived in one of the suburbs of a large town. One morning she went to her butcher with a basket filled with wooden skewers. She told him she had saved them—that they had been weighed to her as meat and that she had brought them to receive their weight back again in meat! Is there a man bold enough to carry economy so far?

Perhaps the meannesses of mean people are more often actuated by feelings of avarice than by those of economy. It would be difficult, for instance, to find a worse case than the following: An old man once wrote a letter to a friend, and, wishing to save his stamp, he ordered his servant to take it to its address. It was raining, and the girl wore a new dress that she was afraid of spoiling. She looked into the street, saw a boy she knew, and, calling out to him, she said, "Deliver this letter for me, and I will give you a penny." The miser heard the offer and said, "Give me the penny, and I will carry the letter myself." What is more, he did so.—London Captain.

Knew Him Too Well.

The late President Chester A. Arthur, although he was a man of warm friendships, had a high sense of personal dignity that would brook no undue familiarities. A lifelong friend of Mr. Arthur, who had accompanied him on one of his hunting trips, was telling an acquaintance some of the incidents of the hunt.

"I knew it's the general impression," he said, "that Mr. Arthur is a cold, self centered sort of man, but it isn't true. He is one of the most genial and companionable of men when you become well acquainted with him. I thought I already knew him pretty well, but I came to understand him better while on that trip than ever before."

"I suppose you know him well enough now to call him by his first name," ventured the other.

"On the contrary," was the rejoinder, "I know him well enough not to call him by his first name."

Desert Plants.

Plants of the desert, as a rule, possess few leaves, the cactus, for instance, being mostly spines. There is a very good reason for the lack of leaves in desert plants. The object is to check the transferation of moisture by offering as small a surface as possible to the dry air. For the same reason the roots of desert plants usually run deep into the soil so that they can suck up all the available moisture. In some instances the leaves assume a vertical position and thus avoid the direct rays of the burning desert sun. On the other hand, the leaves of trees in very wet countries are provided with points—such as the maple—from which the rain drops off. Were the leaves flatter the rain would collect and make them rot.

A Surprise.

A cook at a cheap boarding house played a little game on a grumbling boarder by serving him with a piece of sole leather instead of beefsteak.

"You've changed your butcher, Mrs Hascher?" said the boarder, looking up at the landlady after sawing two or three minutes at the leather.

"Same butcher as usual," replied the boarding mistress, with a patronizing smile. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing much," said the boarder, trying to make an impression on the steak with his knife and fork. "only this piece of meat is the tenderest I have had in this house for some weeks."—Strand Magazine.

Entered Kuroki's Car

Niagara Falls, May 28.—Two men attempted to force their way into the private car of General Kuroki just before it left for Buffalo last night. The porter attempted to close the door, but one of the men placed his foot against it and called to his companion to come on. The porter finally ejected him.

It is said that the authorities know the parties and their arrest is expected. It is said the men were intoxicated.

Pale Faced Girls

Thousands Using Successful Cure For Paleness and Anaemia

The pallid girl always lacks appetite. What little she eats is badly digested.

At night she is restless, she dozes, but doesn't sleep soundly.

Vital force must be increased, new blood must be applied and a general rebuilding take place before she will feel like she ought.

Dr. Hamilton had invaluable experience in these cases and found nothing so prompt in building up the system as the vegetable pills of Mandrake and Butternut.

Dr. Hamilton's Pills begin by cleansing the system and purifying the blood; they also improve digestion and render food ready for absorption. Additional nourishment is quickly supplied and the patient is fast strengthened and invigorated.

Full of spirit, ruddy and strong is the girl that assists her system by Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

The following recent letter from Miss Etta McEwan, of Haliburton, speaks for itself;

"In using Dr. Hamilton's Pills I find my system is wonderfully built up. It is certainly the most effective remedy I ever used. I have now a good appetite, sleep more soundly and awaken in the morning feeling quite refreshed.

"Formerly I felt tired and depressed. I looked as if a severe illness was hanging over my head.

"Nothing could give quicker results than Dr. Hamilton's Pills and I strongly advise every young woman to use them."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1, by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., and Kingston, Ont.

MODES OF THE MOMENT.

The new yellow is a cross between canary and mustard and much prettier and softer in tone than either one.

Many house dresses of soft material have plain flowing skirts and corselet bodices drawn up quite high under the arms and held by shoulder straps over lace guimpes.

Panama cloth in both plain and fancy weaves is being developed into the most fetching spring suits, trimmed with cloth and braid, taffeta silk or passementeries.

One of the smartest and most picturesque features of the styles now being developed are the little coats, or, rather, coat bodices, fashioned of silk, usually to be worn with cloth skirts. Invariably they match the cloth and skirt to perfection.

Without exception the skirts which are worn with bodice coats are strictly tailor made. They may be fashioned with tucks innumerable or they may be strapped, banded or otherwise trimmed, but over all there will be the tailor finish.—New York Post.

Wolves Are Expensive.

Vernon Bailey of the forest reserve bureau at Washington, who has been making an investigation of the ravages of wolves on the ranches of the southwest, reports that in a certain part of New Mexico he learned that a moderate estimate of the stock killed by four wolves of which he got trace was a yearling cow or a calf every three days or approximately 100 head of cattle to each wolf. "Counting all as calves," says Mr. Bailey, "at the low rate of $10 a head, each wolf would at this rate cost the ranchmen $1,000 a year. This estimate of $4,000 for the four wolves leaves out of consideration the five to ten hungry offspring of each pair, which begin to kill stock for themselves in the fall and continue to do so as long as they live."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend Alcohol From Garbage.

That the method of garbage disposal is about to be revolutionized by the manufacture of denatured alcohol is the statement made to the common council of Milwaukee by Dr. W. A. Boyd of Rockford, Ill. Milwaukee now pays $1.89 a ton for burning its garbage at a municipal plant, and Dr. Boyd has offered to do the work at 70 cents a ton and at the end of ten years give the city his plant. Milwaukee gets no return in the way of byproducts from burning its garbage. Dr. Boyd says he will get grease, fertilizer and alcohol from the waste. Alcohol would be the most important of the byproducts.

A Dickens Landmark.

The widening of Manchester streets has brought about the destruction of the old house in which lived the brothers Grant, the originals of the Brothers Cheeryble in "Nicholas Nickleby." With slight alteration, the house is said to stand today as it did when Dickens described it. One of its later occupants has said that lovers of Dickens' books came from all parts of the world to inspect the old place, especially Americans, and for relics of it, but that he had refused to part with them. One relic which many people would be glad to acquire is the fine old carved oak staircase.

The Horse of Maine.

The Kennebec Journal says that Game Warden George W. Ross in one month recently counted 300 barrels of dead hares going to Boston and New York markets over the Washington County railway. Furthermore, it is estimated by the game wardens that more than 1,000,000 hares are shipped from Maine every year and as many more used as food within the state. Notwithstanding this and the fact that thousands of hares are devoured every year by beasts and birds of prey these small animals continue to increase.

The Copp Foundry has already built; The Empire Elevator Co.; The Imperial Oil Co.; The Ogilvie Milling Co.; The Consolidated Elevator Co; and many other concerns. It is the only place in Canada where three transcontinental railways meet and close at the one diamond. If you have not purchased one or more of these "River Park Lots" you had better do so now.

—MUCH LONGER—

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

times. And you know how the summer folks bought those knit shawls of yours, Tempy. Well, I don't doubt you could get orders for lots more. We'll try, and we'll let Bradley start at high school and see how we make it go."

So Miss Tempy brightened up, and in a few minutes she had in her mind sold so many shawls and Miss Prissy had done so well with her hemming and tucking that she saw them putting money in the bank instead of taking it out. In fact, she was getting rich so fast in her dreams that her sister didn't have the heart to throw more cold water at this time. And even Miss Prissy herself felt unwarrantably hopeful. She had borne the family burdens so long that to share the knowledge of them with another was a great relief. They discussed ways and means for a half hour longer, and then Miss Tempy insisted on getting that "pepper tea."

"I honestly believe," she said, "that if I hadn't took pepper tea steady for the last four or five years I shouldn't be here now. That and Blaisdell's emulsion has given me strength to bear most anything, even the prospects of the poorhouse. Thank goodness, I've got a new bottle of emulsion, and pepper tea's cheap, so I shan't have to give that up even if we are poorer'n Job's turkey."

"All right," sighed Miss Prissy. "If it'll make you feel any better to parboil my insides with hot water and pepper, fetch it along. Don't say anything to Bradley about what we've been sayin'. 'Twon't do any good and will only make the poor child feel bad."

But Bradley was not in the dining room. The book he had been reading was turned face downward on the table, but he was gone, and so was his hat.

"Why, I never!" exclaimed Miss Tempy. "He never went out an evenin' before without sayin' anything to me or you. What do you s'pose is the matter?"

"You don't think he heard what we said, do you?" anxiously asked her sister. "I thought I shut the door."

"You did shut it, but, now you speak of it, seems to me I remember it was not latched when I come out jest now. I hope he didn't hear. He's such a sensitive boy, jest like all the Allens."

The "pepper tea" was prepared—a double dose this time—and the sisters sat sipping it, Miss Prissy with many coughs and grimaces and Miss Tempy with the appreciation of a connoisseur. After a moment's silence she said:

"Prissy, do you know what I've been thinkin'? I've been thinkin' what a blessin' 'twould be if we had Cap'n Titcomb to go to for advice now."

"Humph! If I've thought that once I've thought it a million times in the last year," was the decided answer.

It was after 10 o'clock, and only Bradley's absence had prevented the ladies from going up to bed, when the outside door of the dining room opened, and the missing boy came in.

"Bradley Nickerson, where've you been?" exclaimed Miss Tempy, running to meet him. "We've been pretty nigh worried to death. Why don't you shut the door? Who's that out there? Why—why, Cap'n Titcomb!"

"What's that?" cried Miss Prissy, hurrying in. "You don't mean—Well! Good evenin', Cap'n Titcomb. Won't you step in?"

The captain accepted the invitation. He was as much embarrassed as the old maids, even more so than Miss Prissy, who immediately, after a swift sidelong glance of disapproval at her agitated sister, assumed an air of dignified calmness.

"How d'ye do, Prissy?" stammered the captain. "Tempy, I hope you're well. Yes, I'm feelin' fair to middlin'. No, thanks. I ain't goin' to stop long. It's pretty late for calls. Fact is, Brad here's got somethin' to say. Heave ahead, Brad."

The boy, too, was embarrassed, but as the two looked at him expectantly he fidgeted with a button on his jacket and said:

"Miss Prissy, I didn't mean to listen, but the door wasn't shut tight, and I couldn't help hearing what you and Miss Tempy were saying a little while ago."

"There!" exclaimed Miss Tempy. "I was afraid of that door. You remember I said so, Prissy."

But Miss Prissy didn't answer. She merely looked at Bradley.

"I heard what you said," nervously went on the boy, "and when you told about what you was going to do so's I could go to high school, I—I thought first I'd come right in and tell you you mustn't. But then I thought you wouldn't believe I meant it or wouldn't pay any attention to it if I did, so I went outside to think it over by myself. And then—then I went right up to see the cap'n."

"I hope," said Miss Prissy sternly, "that you didn't repeat our talk to Cap'n Titcomb without tellin' us you was goin' to."

"No, no; he didn't," hastily broke in the captain. "He didn't tell a word. You've got a pretty fair kind of boy here, if you want to know," he added, with more than his usual enthusiasm.

"Hum!" was Miss Prissy's only comment. "Go on, Bradley."

"All I told him was," said Bradley, "that I didn't think it was right for me to go to school and college when I ought to be earning some money. I'm going on seventeen now, and lots of fellows I know are going to work. I don't believe I'd make a very good minister," with a look of appeal at Miss Tempy, "and I'd a good deal rather go to sea. All our folks have been to sea—my father and my grandfather. Yes, and your father, too, you know." The last as a happy inspiration.

"Don't you think that we know best what"— began Miss Prissy, but the captain again interrupted her.

"Let him spin his yarn, Prissy," he said. "Nothin' is settled yet, so don't worry."

"So I went to the cap'n," went on Bradley, "and asked him if he'd take me on board his schooner. I ain't a sailor, but I know a lot about boats, and I don't get seasick even when it's mighty rough. Do I, Cap'n Ezra?"

"No," replied Captain Titcomb gravely. "You manage to keep your cargo from shiftin' pretty well for a green hand."

"And he said he'd take me as a kind of cabin boy. Didn't you, cap'n? And learn me things and get me advanced as soon as I was fit for it. And he'll pay me wages, too, right away. There! And I won't cost you a cent more. Please let me go."

* * * * * * *

The captain did not again visit the Allen home, although next day Bradley called on him at his room in the hotel.

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. Mr. W. Snowden on Food Statistics

Yesterday Mine Host W. Snowden was in a mood that bred a spirit of statistics. From a given base or axiom, taking an average man's consumption of victuals, he deducted that at the age of 74 years, the average man will have eaten 226,521 pounds of food. He then tried to tabulate the amount of gallons a lager beer drinker of 74 years old would have put out of sight, but unfortunately a bystander asked, "William, does that table cover Dutchmen?" He then gave up the job.

Omemee Promised T.V.C. Connection

The good people of Omemee are, to use a slang expression "Way up in the air," over their prospects of seeing that village made a port of call on the Trent Valley Canal system. This rejoicing is based on a visit made there by certain T.V.C. officials on Victoria Day. To be sure, the officials who sailed from Bobcaygeon on the good ship Sovereign, could only get within some three miles from Omemee, per Pigeon Creek, owing to a "low bridge" as David Barum called it. However the Omemeeians were promised a six-foot deep channel to their burg.

Lindsay Police May Wake Up

Lindsay Post says, in part, "The Peterborough police make a raid on the market occasionally and weigh up the butter, potatoes, etc. The other morning several farmers were caught with light bags of potatoes, and were taken before the magistrate. We have not heard of our own police being similarly energetic. Some ago Market Clerk Callaghan weighed samples of butter taken from the baskets and twice a woman from Reaboro vicinity was caught with lightweight prints or rolls.

Lindsay Post on Recent Storm

Lindsay Post has an item, signed with certain initials, which speaks kindly of the recent May snow storm. Part of this pseudo-pro-would-be-political effusion says in part, "Winter has come again, the season of cold crisp air and tinkling sleigh bells, let us be glad," etc., ad nauseam. Say what are the police of that Scugogville town doing anyway? Such men as would or could write such slush on such a subject at this time of year, should be accommodated with a room whose walls are padded and its windows barred.

Bicycle Stolen on George Street

Mr. Bolly R. McIlmoyle on Tuesday evening about nine o'clock, left his Brantford bicycle in front of the Toronto Savings & Loan Company's offices and entered the building. When he returned the wheel was gone. Mr. McIlmoyle has notified the police so that the thief had better return the wheel and save trouble. The wheel stolen, is practically new, and Market Clerk McIlmoyle, father of the boy who lost it is bound to get it back or land the thief behind the bars.

Nugent Drug Co. has Moved

Mr. John Nugent, the George street druggist, who for the past thirteen years carried on a large drug business at 389 George street, has now removed and is fully located at 386 George street, in the premises formerly occupied by Mr. Jas. Long for many years as a confectionery store. Whilst Mr. Nugent is practically retiring from active business, the new store will be carried on under the trade name of the "Nugent Drug Co.," of which Mr. A. J. Johnston, for many years with Mr. Nugent, is proprietor. The new store is centrally located, and has been painted, papered and decorated throughout. To the rear of the dispensing department, Mr. A. A. Fowler, the eye sight specialist, will have a large and well equipped optical parlor, with a waiting room in connection.

Imperial Bank of Canada

Proceedings of the Thirty-Second Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders, Held at the Banking House of the Institution, in Toronto, on Wednesday, 22nd May, 1907

The thirty-second annual general meeting of the Imperial Bank of Canada was held in pursuance of the terms of the charter of the Banking House of the Institution, 22nd May, 1907.

The chair was taken by the President, Mr. D. R. Wilkie, and the Assistant General Manager, Mr. E. Hay, was requested to act as secretary.

Moved by Mr. Alexander Nairn, seconded by Mr. Mark H. Irish.

That Mr. Lyndhurst Ogden, Mr. R. H. Temple and Mr. W. Gibson Carsella be and are hereby appointed scrutineers. Carried.

The Assistant General Manager, at the request of the Chairman, read the report of the Directors and the Statement of Affairs.

THE REPORT

The Directors have pleasure in submitting to the Shareholders their thirty-second Annual Report and Balance Sheet of the affairs of the Bank for the year which ended on 30th April, 1907.

The net profits for the twelve months, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, for interest on unmatured bills under discount for the usual contributions to the Pension and Guarantee funds, and providing for Provincial and other taxation amount to $719,029.04, which has been applied as follows:

(a) Dividends have been paid at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum for the first three-quarters of the year, and at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum for the last quarter, amounting in all to $453,217.28
(b) Bank Premises and Furniture Account has been credited with 116,391.47
(c) Profit and Loss Account has been increased by 149,420.29

The Premium, amounting to $846,206.94, received on an equal amount of New Capital Stock has been transferred to Rest Account, which now amounts to $4,773,948.44.

There has been a satisfactory increase in the business of the Bank in all departments.

Branches of the Bank have been opened during the year at Brantford and Fort William, and a sub-branch on Bank street, Ottawa, all in the Province of Ontario, and at Athabasca Landing, in the Province of Alberta. The branch at Trout Lake, B.C., has been closed.

Shortly after our last meeting the Bank suffered, and we were much grieved through the death of our much respected colleague, Mr. William Hendrie of Hamilton, who was elected a Director on 19th May, 1899, and died on 27th June, 1906.

The vacancy on the Board occasioned by Mr. Hendrie's death has been filled by the appointment of Wm. Hamilton Merritt of St. Catharines, nephew of our late President, Mr. T. R. Merritt.

A bylaw will be submitted for your approval, authorizing an increase in the capital by the sum of $5,000,000, to be availed of in such amounts and at such times as the Directors may determine. The rapid development of the country necessitates increased banking facilities, which can be most economically met at the same time profitably supplied by the banks which are now in existence. It is intended to allot the new shares from time to time as the business of the Bank may call for additional capital, but no immediate allotment is in contemplation.

A further bylaw will be submitted for your approval, authorizing an additional contribution by the Bank to the Officers' and Employes' Pension Fund, with a view to placing that fund on a more substantial basis.

The Head Office and Branches of the Bank have all been carefully inspected during the year, and your Directors have much pleasure in again bearing testimony to the zeal, efficiency and faithfulness of the staff in the performances of their duties.

D. R. WILKIE,
President.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September,—resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section he bought near Regina, one year ago, he sold out recently for exactly twice what he paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

MR. EMMERSON DENIES STORY

Ex-Minister of Railways Explains That Lady Friend, Whom He Had Known From Childhood Was Insulted by Porter

Fredericton, N.B., May 31.—Another immense crowd gathered at the City Hall yesterday morning, when Police Magistrate Marsh resumed the examination in banc of the King vs. J. H. Crockett on the information of H. R. Emmerson for libel.

Mr. A. G. White, K.C., then called Mr. H. R. Emmerson to the stand, and he testified as follows:

"I am the informant in the matter. I was minister of railways and canals since January 15, 1904, to April 15, last. I have on several occasions been a guest at the St. Lawrence Hall.

Q.—You went to St. Lawrence Hall and did you register? A.—I did.

Q.—You had gone to the hotel for the purpose of seeing Mr. Peters? A.—Yes, I found he was not there, and glanced over the registered of the hotel. I saw the names of the wife of a constituent of mine, a friend and the name of another lady, and I got a bell boy to show me to their room. It was not then dark.

Q.—Had you expected to find the Q'ladies in the hotel? A.—No, sir.

Q.—You did not go there to see them? A.—No, sir.

Q.—The boy brought you up to their room? A.—I was shown into the room. The door was ajar. I sat talking. I did not have anything to eat, and as I could not get anything at the hotel, I asked the ladies to accompany me to a restaurant. We went out to a restaurant and had supper. Subsequently we came back. I stood and talked to them for some time.

Q.—Were you in the room? A.—I don't think I was. I cannot tell actually. The room was in the front part of the building fronting on St. James street, near the ladies' part. My room was on the extreme south-east section of the hotel, far removed. I had to go through a large drawing room.

Q.—Your room was in front of the building, and their room was in the extreme rear. A.—Yes.

Q.—You say you talked to them a few minutes. What then did you do? A.—I went to my own room. I think I sat down and had a little smoke. I was looking out of the window trying to locate the streets. I went to bed and to sleep. I do not know how long after I heard a rapping and knocking at my door. I got up and inquired, and found that it was these ladies. I said; "I will let you in shortly." I went to a large bathroom adjoining my room and turned on the light, and dressed myself sufficiently to make myself presentable to the ladies. Then I came and opened the door. I think they came in. One of the ladies was very much agitated, and was bound to leave the hotel. She said that some porter had insulted her, and she wouldn't remain in the hotel. I tried to quiet her. She was very much excited. She seemed to be very angry that she had received such treatment.

A Scotch Anti-Osculation Crank

A Glasgow physician, and the M. H.O. of Glasgow at that, has given it as his opinion that kissing causes many deaths, instancing the mortality from osculatory performances in connection with "spotted fever." Now that all right as every bachelor will admit and endorse; to note the danger run in kissing the other fellow's infant. However we have got sixteen dollars to bet that this Glasgow anti-osculation crank, be he ever so good looking, cannot come to this town and get the half of one-third of one per cent. of Peterborough girls to agree with his anti-kissing-in-the-abstract. We will bet another sixteen dollars that 99.99 per cent. of the girls, should he air his anti-kissing views in Peterborough, would call him "A mean old thing," "A dried up old batchelor," and remark that this Scotchman "don't know a good thing when he sees it."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Sad Death at Windsor Hotel

Yesterday the Windsor Hotel, on Brock street, was strictly closed in every department possible, owing to the sad death early in the morning of Jessie Irene Melbourne, wife of Mr. J. Harris, from tuberculosis.

The deceased has lived in Peterborough for only three weeks coming from Toronto for a change of air. The late Mrs. Harris was 30 years old and was born in Toronto. Her husband and one daughter, aged one year and seven months, survive her, also her mother, Mrs. Melbourne of Toronto, and two sisters, Mrs. Walker, of Toronto, and Mrs. A. T. Johnston of this city.

The deceased was a member of the Order of Chosen Friends, and a member of the Church of England.

The funeral will be held from the family residence, 75 Broadview ave., Toronto, to the Norway cemetery.

Jas. A. Clarke Won His Case With Costs

The second case in the non-jury sittings of the High Court of Justice was concluded yesterday morning, and judgment given by Chancellor Boyd in favor of the plaintiff. It was the case of James D. Clarke vs. the Union Underwriting Company, of Peterborough, to recover $7,000. Judgment was given the plaintiff for that amount, together with the costs of the two trials and two appeals.

The plaintiff's solicitors were Mr. G. Watson, K.C., Toronto, and Mr. S. T. Medd, of Hall, Medd & Davidson while Messrs. Rose, Toronto, D. W. Dumble, K.C., and Geo. Edmison, K.C., acted for the defendant corporation.

The case of the Canadian Cordage Company vs. C. A. Core, was next called, and after hearing some of the evidence Chancellor Boyd directed that the case be tried before the county judge.

Imperial Bank's Great Progress

Successful Year Just Ended by one of Canada's Strongest Banks

President D. R. Wilkie and the directorate of the Imperial Bank of Canada, have every reason for congratulation, both by the shareholders, customers and the general public over the report presented at the 32nd shareholders annual meeting held in their head offices, Toronto, on May 22nd, with the president in the chair, and Mr. E. Hay acting as secretary.

During the past year the proverbial success of the Imperial Bank was not only sustained but proven to have been greater than in previous years, thus demonstrating that this bank stands very high amid the strongest financial institutions of the world. During the past year the net profits of the Imperial Bank, after making full provision for all bad or doubtful debts for interest or unmatured bills under discount and for money from the pension and guarantee funds, and for taxation amounted to $719,029.04, which was applied as follows; For the first nine months of the year a dividend was paid on stock at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, and for the balance of the year a dividend at the rate of 11 per cent., amounting to $453,217.28, $116,391.47, was credited to bank premises and furniture account, whilst $149,420.29 was carried to profit and loss account. On new capital stock sold there was realized a premium of $84,207, which was carried to rest account. This high premium on stock shows clearly that the conservative but progressive modus operandi of the Imperial Bank is recognised and appreciated by the public of Canada.

During the year branches of the Imperial Bank have been opened at Brantford and Fort William, and a sub-branch on Ottawa, as well as a branch at Athbaska Landing, Alta. A bylaw was passed authorizing an increase in the capital stock by the sum of $5,000,000, and also a bylaw authorizing the directors to make a special contribution of $25,000 to the Bank's pension fund.

NOON IN PETERBOROUGH

What is Going on in Town When the Clock Strikes 12

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation—the one hour in the twenty-four which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Peterborough the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if villainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true, and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na, which cures ill stomach and digestive troubles.

In hundreds of the best homes in Peterborough and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The required stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Kirkfield Look a Wonderful Sight

The Lindsay Post says: Speaking about lift locks, our readers will be interested in the statement made to the Post by a leading official of the canal on May 24th. "From a spectacular point of view," he said, "the lift lock at Kirkfield will surpass the lock at Peterborough, although the latter is six or seven feet higher. You see the Peterborough lock was the first of its kind in Canada, and it was thought necessary to build it entirely of cement, at great cost. The Kirkfield lock is an all-steel structure and the wonderful mechanism hidden in the Peterborough structure, is open to the gaze of every visitor, who will be protected by guard rails at all dangerous points of vantage. I predict that the Kirkfield lock will, when the canal to Lake Simcoe is entirely open, be visited by a constant succession of excursion parties from all points on Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching and the upper Kawarthas."

IRISH COUNCIL BILL MAY EXPIRE

Formal Obsequies by the Premier Will Follow a Cabinet Meeting

GENERALLY INADEQUATE

The Reform Association is the Latest to Throw a Stone—The Under Secretary's Fate

London, May 31.—The situation resulting from the rejection of Mr. Birrell's Irish Council Bill by the Dublin convention continues to be the uppermost topic of discussion in political circles in the United Kingdom.

As forecasted in these despatches, the measure is in its death throes, and it is believed in authoritative quarters that, as a result of the prolonged Cabinet meeting yesterday, Premier Campbell-Bannerman will formally perform the obsequies on it.

UNDER SECRETARY'S FATE.

Bound up with the fate of Mr. Birrell's Bill is the future of Sir Antony Patrick MacDonnell, under secretary to the lord lieutenant of Ireland, whom the Nationalists consider responsible for the unfulfilment of the Government's Irish promises, and whom they are determined to oust from office by every means in their power. It is an open secret, on the other hand, that Sir Antony is extremely anxious to retire, and it is practically certain that he has tendered his resignation. It is known also that the government is anxious to retain the services of the under secretary, and it is thought probable that he will yield to ministerial pressure for the present, and only retire when things have quieted down. He will then receive an important appointment in India.

ANOTHER CRITICISM.

The Irish Reform Association, of which Lord Dunraven is president, is the latest organization to criticize adversely this unhappy bill. At a meeting of the association, held in Dublin yesterday, a resolution was passed declaring that the measure ignored legislative functions altogether, that it did not take into account the question of financial relations or pretend to deal with great public works, and that it was generally absolutely inadequate.

Valuable Colt Shot by Accident

On Tuesday a well known farmer of South Monaghan, placed some grain on a board, placing the board on the top of his fence, to attract sparrows. He then lay in wait with his shot gun, and when the sparrows gathered let drive. Unfortunately just as he shot two colts passed by. One of them for whim he had paid $80, got the whole charge and dropped dead.

Pythian Review Editor Here

Mr. E. Allison Powers of Montreal, editor of the Pythian Review, delivered an address on the endowment department, to the members of Marathon Lodge No. 89, Knights of Pythias, at a special meeting held in the city. Mr. Powers has just returned from an extended trip in the United States, and Ontario, during which he made a special effort on behalf of the endowment ranks. There are now 80,000 members in the assurance department.

Yesterday morning Mr. Powers, in company with a couple of the local Knights, drove around the city and over to the left lock. He was delighted with everything he saw, and said the left lock was a wonderful piece of engineering work.

Merchants Banquet is Postponed

As noted more than once in former issues of The Times, there has, for some time past been "on that apple" a suggestion that the local retail merchants should hold an important banquet early in the summer. The Retail Merchants' Association has taken the matter up and a committee appointed to investigate. It has now been decided not to hold the banquet until early next fall, on account of the holiday season being so near at hand.

Rare Opportunity for Investment

Syndicate Being Formed to Acquire Valuable Mining Rights

As is well known "Larder Lake" is now synonymous with great opportunities for fortunes in gold and silver ore. This district is daily being proven to be rich in gold ore of very high grade, and those fortunate enough to get in on the ground floor on some of the propositions now being exploited are assured of a good berth on "Easy Street" for the rest of their lives.

A syndicate is now being formed to acquire by purchase for $55,000 in cash, and 1000 shares in a company to be formed, to acquire certain mining rights in the district of Nipissing, Ont., and also some in the Province of Quebec.

The company to be formed at the discretion of the shareholders is to be capitalized with one million shares of a par value of $1 each. To raise the required $55,000 as above noted quickly, it has been decided to sell five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of $100 each on the understanding that each syndicate shares will entitle the purchaser to one thousand shares, per par value $1 each, fully paid up and non-assessable stock, in the company when formed. This special offer applies only to the first 550 shares thus disposed of.

The claims to be worked by the proposed company comprise 56 claims situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec Province line, and nine claims situated to the north-east of Larder Lake, adjoining the celebrated Dr. Reddick claims and five claims on Juno Creek next to the Fitzpatrick claims. Gold ore on the latter claim assays $6000 per ton. Those wanting to get in on the ground floor on this great proposition should communicate at once with Wilson Bros. & Co., Ottawa. Cheques should be made payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley or D. O'Connor, jr., trustees for the syndicate.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At yesterday's police court Magistrate S. R. Armstrong mounted the dais in place of Police Magistrate Dumble, who was not present.

Thos. Deck was charged with driving faster than a walk across the Smith street bridge last Monday, although notices are placed on the bridge prohibiting such speed. Mr. T. E. Hay, city engineer, testified to having had notices on the bridge, prohibiting any one riding or driving faster than a walk.

P. C. McDonald was at Smith St. bridge. Saw Deck at 4 p.m. trotting his horse across the bridge.

To Mr. Kerr for the defence, said that there is an incline to the bridge at each end. The horse trotted the whole way across. Deck had a slack line all the way across.

Joseph Sullivan pleaded not guilty to a similar charge. The same witness gave similar evidence against Sullivan. P. C. McDonald described the color of Sullivan's horse and wagon.

Sullivan swore that he did not cross Smith street going east as testified by McDonald. On the way back his horse trotted half way across the bridge.

Mr. Deck swore that his horse only trotted part of the way across. His horse's trot is not faster than another horse's walk.

Mr. Kerr contended the horse was not going faster than a walk as described by the act and it had not been proven the bridge is over 30 feet long.

The magistrate noted that these cases were brought more to show that people must not drive faster than a walk over Smith street bridge, and dismissed the case. The police are now going to watch this bridge.

Alfred John pleaded guilt to having been drunk and disorderly. He was allowed to go on his promise to leave the city today.

Two more juvenile bicycle riding cases were up and a $2 fine imposed in each case.

Raymond Mason and Edward Stern were charged with having been d. & d. Mr. Kerr for the prisoners and Mr. Gordon for Mr. C. Jarvis, the complainant.

Mr. Jarvis, manager of Demetris Bros. confectionery store, was first witness.

Mr. Kerr for his clients, pleaded guilty. Mr. Gordon wanted to get evidence showing the damage done amounting to possibly $20. He said there had been a regular riot in Demetris's store created by the prisoners. The chief noted that P.C. Newbald had got one of the prisoners with a knife in his hand. The chief then also asked to have evidence given.

Mr. G. Andrews said that after Mr. Pappas, in whose store he works, closed up, he went to Demetris's store and saw a row going on. Recognized the prisoners as the men fighting. One of them was brandishing an open knife. They had broken glasses and flung candies and goods all over the floor. The one with the knife was half drunk. He telephoned for the police. There were $6 or $7 worth of biscuits, $3 or $4 worth of candies and glasses, or about $20 worth was destroyed.

P. C. McDonald said that when called to Demetris's store he saw the prisoners at the doorway, but saw no knife in either of the prisoners' hands.

Edward Stern, one of the prisoners, said he works at the C.G.E. Company. When passing the Greek store, he and his friend were singing, and some one came out and told them to "shut up." Three of the Greeks came at them with clubs, when he grabbed up a handful of metal cups to defend himself.

To Mr. Gordon,—He and his friends visited several hotels between nine and 11 p.m.

Lyman Mosier, also of the C.G.E. Co., the other prisoner, next gave evidence which practically was the same as that of the previous witness. He had a knife in his hand as he happened to be cutting off a piece of plug tobacco. Did not knock over any candies, biscuits, etc. He had had about a dozen drinks that evening.

Another young man then went into the box and said he saw the trouble, but took no part in it. He had been with the prisoners. Did not see prisoners knock anything off the counters. The magistrate said there had been a somewhat serious case of disturbance and fined the defendants $5 each, to be paid forthwith. Mr. Gordon asked that half the fine go to the Greeks in compensation, but this was not allowed. The fines were paid.

The other young man, a local wine clerk, was also charged with complicity in the disturbance, but the evidence did not convict him.

Big Hat Firm May Locate Here

Mr. Thos. Barrie, the George and Simcoe street furrier, local agent for Hawes Vongal & Co., of New York, and Danbury, Conn., the celebrated hat makers, is authority for saying that Messrs. Edward Vongal of New York, president; J. O. Shaw, of New York, general manager; and Wm. F. Smith, of Boston, manager of the New England and Canadian business of the Hawes Hat Co., would be in the city in a few days to see what this city offers as a location for their factory. Ald. W. G. Morrow, chairman of the Manufacturers Committee, has been in communication with them at Brantford.

It seems that the company is not as anxious for capital, free site, etc., as for a suitable location in Ontario. A factory will be erected 100 by 40 feet, four stories high, at a cost of probably $30,000, employing one hundred hands, men and girls, at the start, and possibly four hundred hands in the course of three years.

LAWYERS QUARREL IN HAYWOOD TRIAL

Talesman's Obscure Answers Provoke Sharp Comment From Darrow—Harmon Cox Stands a Rigid Examination From the Attorney

Boise, Idaho, May 31.—In the Haywood trial Harmon Cox, a veteran of the Civil War, a pioneer of the gold rushes of the '60s, and now retired from farming, his last occupation, involved Clarence S. Darrow, of Chicago, for the defence, and Senator Borah in a series of amusing quarrels. The talesman seemed slow of thought and after the State had passed him for cause, the defense promptly started on to disqualify him. Senator Borah kept up a fire of objections and opposed the repeated challenges of the defense.

A RIGID EXAMINATION.

Cox was carried through a rigid examination by Mr. Darrow. He was reticent as to the opinion he had formed from reading the newspapers. He had read, for instance, of the murder of Steunenberg, but did not believe it until it was confirmed by some one he knew.

"Do you believe that Orchard placed the bomb that killed Steunenberg?"

"Yes, according to his confession, if that is true."

Mr. Darrow endeavored to make the talesman admit that he believed what he read and formed fixed opinions, but was unable to secure anything on which to base a challenge. Finally, Mr. Darrow turned to the State and said;

"Do you want this juror?"

"I want him disqualified before he goes off," replied Senator Borah.

DARROW GROWS IMPATIENT.

The examination continued some time and finally Mr. Darrow, growing impatient, said;

"I challenge this juror for incompetency. I can't stand here all day trying to get intelligence out of him."

Mr. Borah was on his feet at once and said;

"Let him challenge for something under the statutes. I object to counsel making such speeches.

"Then I challenge him for bias. I am astonished that counsel for the State should want this juror."

"I will astonish you very often," quickly retorted Senator Borah, "and you might as well prepare yourself for surprises."

Mr. Darrow showed impatience and Senator Borah remained cool, laughingly and rapidly interposing objections and suggestions. The juror himself, taking courage from the support from counsel for the State, became obscure in his replies as Mr. Darrow plied him with questions.

THE ROOSEVELT LETTER.

Finally Mr. Darrow said;

"Have you any special desire to sit on this jury?"

"No, sir."

"Sure of that?"

"Quite sure."

Quickly changing the subject, Mr. Darrow opened a line of questioning as to the effect of President Roosevelt's "undesirable citizen" letter, the expressions from the governor and Secretary Taft, but got no satisfaction. Once more Senator Borah objected and Mr. Hawley took a hand. Mr. Darrow made flat denial of a statement from Senator Borah, who as quickly threw back the denial.

Much Damage by Yesterday's Fire

Yesterday afternoon about three o'clock the electric fire alarm rang out the number "35." In response the fire laddies were "Johnny-on-the-spot," and turned out promptly, to face a fire in the house occupied by Mrs. Houlihan and her son, Samuel, at 460 Donegal street. The building, a storey and a half high, was gutted by the flames and only the furniture in the parlor and dining room was saved. A valuable piano was saved.

The fire broke out in the kitchen at the rear and spread rapidly. A stable and some outhouses at the rear of the house were also destroyed.

The fire brigade did splendid work in fighting the flames and saving the furniture. It took about 25 minutes to get the flames under control.

The house in question is located on the east side of Donegal street, near Murray.

We understand that there was $400 insurance on the building, but no insurance on the furniture or contents.

Impure Blood

Clogs the Kidneys
Slows the Heart
Flags the Brain.

Weakens Every Part of the Body
Causes Organic Diseases.

Just as strength is the natural outcome of pure blood, so is debility and sickness the result of impure blood.

To know how quickly, how surely Ferrozone cures, to see how it rebuilds and restores, you have only to read the following letters—read them carefully—see if the symptoms resemble yours.

Miss Evelyn M. Gaetz, of Kingston, writes: "I have had an attack of blood disorder which broke out in horrid looking pimples. They were ugly, red, disfiguring blotches that ruined the appearance of my face. I tried all sorts of medicine, but the pimples didn't leave. I was recommended Ferrozone and gave it a trial. I noticed an improvement after the second box, and kept up the treatment which finally cleared my skin. As the result of Ferrozone I have a clear healthy complexion and can recommend it to all other young women similarly affected."

Another young lady well known in society circles of Springfield, who derived exceptional benefit from Ferrozone, says: "I felt it my duty to make known the value of Ferrozone. My trouble was poor, weak blood, and as a consequence my lips were pallid, and my cheeks had no color. I wasn't at all strong, and required a bracing tonic. Ferrozone soon brought color to my cheeks, improved my appetite and made me stronger than I have been in years. I favor Ferrozone because it is so simple to take and works so quickly."

No blood remedy exists that has the power to cure, to heal, to restore like Ferrozone; try it, 50c per box at any druggist.

ONE MORE UNFORTUNATE

More testimony that riches don't bring complete happiness. Millionaire Schwab got money enough to buy anything he thought he wanted. He thought he wanted a palace. So the palace was built. It cost $3,500,000. It has been one of the show places of New York, but happiness was not there. Mr. Schwab and his wife both found that the ownership of a palace entailed onerous and burdensome duties, and now the talk is that the palace is for sale at much less than it cost.

Perhaps if poor-rich Mr. Schwab could get a job at four dollars a week and forget his burdensome wealth he would be much happier. He certainly would be if what great, good and rich men are telling us is true. He might, by searching, find some poor worker who would be willing to swap lots with him.

IMMIGRATION INTO CANADA

The immigration season commenced earlier than usual this year, and with a very considerable increase in its volume. Perhaps more satisfactory still is the character of the general body of the newcomers. Largely from the British Isles the immigrants are described by competent observers on both sides of the Atlantic as of a very desirable class. While this state of things continues there does not seem to be any reason for the Dominion Government granting financial assistance to immigrants, nor for seeking to swell their numbers by people from the most backward and least progressive countries in Europe. With many of these people of alien races one or two generations must pass before they can be assimilated. The result of indiscriminate immigration into the United States should be a lesson to the Dominion Government not to allow a similar state of things to occur in Canada. Any justification that existed a few years ago, when it was difficult to attract population to Canada, has disappeared since the Dominion has become a country to which thousands are now flocking from the British Isles.

Some Questions For Women to Ask Themselves.

Ask yourself these:

Am I too negative, too compliant? Do I not need to cultivate positiveness in my character?

Do I confuse foolish sentimentality with a strong, self respecting, ennobling affection?

Are my ideals so impracticable that they never enter into my actual life and beautify the real things around me?

Do I belittle myself with the petty idea that housework is degrading? Am I so blind that I cannot see that it is the character and not the scrubbing brush that sets the standard?

Have I tried to make my voice as musical as possible, and is my desire to look well a sincere wish to give pleasure to others?

Am I strong and courageous enough to remain single, rather than compromise in marriage by giving my trust to a man I cannot honestly admire and respect?

Do I try to keep myself alert and interesting by keeping in touch with the movements of the day and understanding civic and governmental affairs? Or do I confine myself wholly to the reading of the bargains and murder trials?

Am I content to stand exactly where I stood a year ago? Or is it my ideal in life to work on toward a more patient wisdom and a wider life every day?

The Engineering Magazine

The Engineering Magazine for June is a special "Power and Production" number, in which every article makes some widely interesting and important contribution to the knowledge of profit-making methods in the power station, the manufactory, the shop, or the mine. The opening paper, by Dr. Louis Bell—"Made in Germany," is a "Study of Competition" which will attract wide attention by the brilliant, fearless, and convincingly just demonstration of certain growing defects in the "American System" of manufacturing.

Arguments for the hydro-electric station, the steam plant, and the gas-engine installation are presented in three illustrated articles, each by a leading specialist—Messrs. von Schon, Ennis, and Mythat. A wealth of interesting pictures also accompanies H. W. Jacobs' paper on "The Square Deal for the Railway Employee." Frederic Kelton's exposition of the marvelously cheap methods of mining the low-grade copper ores of British Columbia, and L. C. Wason's study of reinforced concrete for manufacturing buildings. Another feature of great value is C. U. Carpenter's study of "Profit Making in Shop and Factory Management," taking up in this installment the minimizing of machine-tool operations. George F. Stratton throws a novel and picturesque light on "Inventing as a Business," showing how some of the greatest work is done, and Prof. P. F. Walker gives the results of some promising and suggestive experiments with lubricating oils. The number is of much increased size, and carries the full Review and Index of the Engineering Press.—The Engineering Magazine, New York

Knives Are Tiny Saws.

Knives, no matter how carefully sharpened, are little saws. The grinding away of the steel, done by the stone, is not an even work, but when the edge gets thin is a process of tearing away tiny bits of steel by the grit of the stone. This tearing makes the teeth. A fine stone makes fine teeth, a coarse stone coarse teeth. A carving knife used on meat is sharpened on a coarse stone or a steel and has coarse teeth, although its edge is thick. Its action in parting the meat is more that of a saw than a fine wedge. No matter how soft it may be it will not cut easily unless it is drawn over the meat and not simply pressed down. A razor, however, with its paperlike edge, will cut into flesh with a simple pressure. It is a wedge dividing the fibers of flesh just as a wedge of iron divides the fibers of the log it splits. But a razor is a saw, too, only as it is ground on the finest stones and later finished with a leather strap, its teeth are very fine indeed—hundreds and hundreds to the inch of blade.—C. H. Claudy in St. Nicholas.

Origin of Curtain Calls.

The first curtain call took place on the evening of Feb. 26, 1743. On that memorable evening Voltaire's "Merope" was performed for the first time in Paris. The author was known to the Paris public, but nothing that they had seen of his had pleased them so much as "Merope," and the enthusiasm found expression in noisy demands to see the author. In a letter Voltaire says this of the incident: "They dragged me out and led me by force to the box occupied by the Duchesse de Villars and her daughter-in-law. The whole theater seemed to have gone mad—all shouted to the duchesse to kiss me. The noise became so great that the lady finally obeyed. So I was, like Alain Chartier, publicly kissed, but he was asleep, while I was wide awake." Now authors answer similar calls by appearing before the curtain. They gain in so far that they can be seen better by their audience, but they must dispense with the duchesse's kiss—at least in public.—Berliner Tageblatt.

Pronunciation of "Theatre."

If "theatre" was originally written "theater" in English, has its pronunciation also varied among the orthodox—that is to say, was there ever a time when correct speakers said "theayter," as many of the incorrect still do? There is no direct evidence in verse of a serious kind for such pronunciation so far as we know. Shakespeare certainly pronounced the word as we do now, says a London journal. But since "theayter" does really represent a long "e" of the original Greek and Latin it is not easy to understand how the vulgar could have blundered on to it of their own accord. It would have been more comprehensible if they had turned an orthodox "theayter" into "theater," just as the second "a" in "Aaron" goes too often popularly shortened now. The French language has had to mark the length of the "e" in "theatre" by giving it a rather irregular circumflex accent.

NURSERY NOTES.

The firstborn is fortunately born if his young mother has wisely resolved to go slowly with infant theories and feel her way carefully and never go to extremes.

For the first week or two the child requires but slight attention. He must be bathed, dressed, fed and kept warm. Otherwise, for the most part, he is best when left alone, gradually to learn that he is alive and make use of his organs and essences.

He requires no handling save that which is necessary during the process of bathing and dressing, with an occasional turning from side to side. More than this is not good for him.

Then he must be kept warm. To do this it is not necessary to overburden him with wraps or keep the room at a hothouse temperature. If you do, you will have a baby as tender as a forced plant.

Select the clothing with a view to combined lightness and warmth. If the weather is at all cool, be certain that each little garment is warm before putting it on the body. Do not put the socks on while the feet are cool. First warm the little members with your own warm hands or by an open fire. Warm the hands in the same way and, if necessary, draw over them a pair of worsted mittens and let them remain serviceable until entirely warm.

For an Old Time Room.

They were at a utility table at a charity bazaar, and everybody seemed to ignore them, to consider them probably only two ugly little bands of white crocheted cotton with a cord running through the scalloped edge on one side, but when Miss M. discovered them among a pile of iron holders and dust cloths she bought them without even asking the price, and in her joy at getting them she would probably have paid $5 for them as readily as she did 50 cents.

"Just what I have wanted for ages," she sighed with satisfaction as she hugged her little bundle close to her side and departed with her chum.

"What are they—wash rags?"

"Hushers."

"Whatever are they?" demanded her friend.

"Easily telling you're not from New England," replied Miss M., who then explained the mission of hushers. "They slip over the edges of soap dishes and other articles of the washstand furnishing and, as their name suggests, deaden all noise. They are quaint and old timey and will give just the finishing touch to my colonial bedroom."

Luck in Falling.

"It's a peculiar thing the tricks that luck will now and then play a chap," said a prominent physician recently. "Take, for instance, the breaking of bones in one's body. Did you ever stop and think how very many hard falls high falls a man can have, light on rocky ground with half his body twisted under the other half, so to speak, and come off with not even a scratch? Then, again, a fellow will just trip over his own foot and, falling to the ground, break a leg or an arm. A good many will say it all depends on how one alights, but that seems to have absolutely nothing to do with it. As I have seen a man alight in a certain way from a high fall and never injure himself, and then again have I seen a second chap alight in the same identical way and break a leg and an arm."—Columbus Dispatch.

Diplomatic Reticence.

The social reformer was paying a visit to the convicts in the penitentiary and asking them various questions.

"And what are you doing here, my friend?" he said to a good looking man in the shoeshop.

"Making shoes," was the reply. It discouraged any further inquiries in that direction.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the Heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart distress. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strengthen these nerves—re-establish them as needed, with

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

They talked of the proposed plan, of course, but Captain Titcomb did not urge its acceptance. On the contrary, he spoke very plainly of the disagreeable features of a sailor's calling and hinted that being aboard a vessel was like being in jail. "Only," he said, "there's always a chance for a feller to break out of jail."

At the end of the interview he said: "Brad, I ain't askin' any questions 'bout what made you take this sudden fit, but I'd like to know this: Do the old maids know 'bout that Sampson fund for sailors' children? They could git over a hundred a year out of that if they applied for it, you understand?"

"I don't believe they'd take a cent if it was anything like charity," replied the boy. "Miss Prissy especial. She's awful down on folks that she says are living on charity."

"Um, hum! I see. Well, I know a feller that's one of the head cooks and bottle washers of the Sampson crew. Maybe I could rig it so's— Well, never mind. Don't say nothin' yet."

Three days later it was settled. Bradley was to go to Boston the following Monday with Captain Titcomb and ship with him as the combination "boy and roustabout" for a period of three months. Really, it was settled when the captain suggested it, but it took some time for the old maids to formally make up their minds to the decided change.

Monday morning Bradley's trunk was packed, and Barney Small called to take him and it to Harniss. The old maids wept over him, and Miss Prissy told him to be a good boy and write once a week at least. Miss Tempy said: "Remember, Bradley, you're an Allen now, and you must live up to the family. Oh, Prissy, don't it seem jest like it used to when father was goin' on a voyage? Bradley's growin' to look so like him."

The old maids wept over him.

And the sisters went into the house to cry together.

CHAPTER VI.

THE Thomas Doane, seen from the wharf in the faint light of the street lamp, was a mere shape of blackness, with masts like charcoal marks against the sky and a tangle of ropes running up to meet them. The windows of the after deckhouse were illuminated, however, and as Bradley and the captain stepped from the wharf to the rail and from that to the deck a man came up the companionway from the cabin and touched his hat.

"Howdy, cap'n?" he said. "Glad to see you back. Everything runnin' smooth down home?"

"Yup," answered the skipper; "smooth as a smelt. How's it here?"

"Shipshape," was the reply.

"Brad," he said, "this is Mr. Bailey, the first mate. He'll be your boss, next to me, after tomorrer. Mr. Bailey, this is a new hand. He hasn't exactly shipped yet, so you needn't break him in tonight unless your conscience troubles you too much."

The mate held out a hand like a ham covered with red sole leather, and Bradley shook it fearfully.

That night Bradley slept in the second mate's room off the cabin, but it was understood that hereafter he was to bunk forward with the crew. The next morning the captain took him up to a store on Commercial street, where a sailor's bag was purchased, for, as the skipper said, nobody but a landlubber took a trunk to sea. It must be either a chest or a bag, and the chest would come later on. Bradley transferred such of his belongings as the captain deemed necessary from the trunk to the bag, and the trunk itself was stored in the wharfinger's office until its owner should call for it some time in the future.

The second mate, a thin young man, with hair and face both a flaming red, came on board in the morning, and the crew were already there. Then a tug took the Thomas Doane in tow and pulled her out of the dock and around to another wharf, where she was to receive her cargo of lumber. And from the moment when the tug's hawser was attached Bradley began to realized what Captain Titcomb had meant by some advice which he gave the previous night.

It was "Here, boy, stand by to take a hand with that rope," or "You, boy—what's your name—git a bucket and swab up that mess on the deck. Lively! D'you hear?" The cook was a little Portuguese, and he delighted to haze his new assistant, so when, at 9 o'clock or so, Bradley tumbled into his bunk in the smoke reeking fo'castle he was tired enough to drop asleep even in the midst of yarns and profanity.

The lumber, in the hold and on the decks, was at last on board, and one morning the schooner, with all sail set, passed Minot's light, bound for New York. The afternoon of that day was a dismal experience for Bradley. The Thomas Doane was heavily loaded, and she swashed and wallowed through the good sized waves with a motion so entirely different from that of the catboats which the boy had been used to that he was most heartily and miserably seasick.

But seasickness and homesickness were forgotten on the day of the wonderful sail through Long Island sound. They passed schooners of all shapes and sizes, loaded till the decks were scarcely above water or running light and high in ballast. Sharp nosed schooners, with lines like those of a yacht, and clumsy old tubs, with dirty sails, with patches varying from new white to a dingy gray plastered all over them.

Night, and they were fast to a big wharf, with lights all about them; lights piled, row after row, up to meet the stars; lights fringing the river or moving up and down and across it; lights in the arching curve of the bridge that Bradley had seen so often in pictures; whistles sounding, bells ringing, distant shoutings and the never ceasing undercurrent of hum and roar that is New York, breathing steadily and regularly.

On the following morning Captain Titcomb left the schooner and after an hour or two returned with a sharp eyed man, who smoked continuously, although the wharf signs shouted in six inch letters that no smoking was allowed, and who said little, but looked a great deal. Bradley learned from the cook, who had been along the water front and, having fallen in with some friends, was mellow and inclined to be confidential, that the sharp eyed man was Mr. Williams, the junior member of the firm that owned the Thomas Doane and half a dozen other coasters.

Where are you Going This Summer?

Many overworked, tired business and professional men would "take to the woods" for their vacation if they knew definitely where to go, the localities which furnish the best hunting, fishing, and touring; now to go, and what to take, and the cost of the trip.

This all takes time and the busy man of today has none too much time to devote to his vacation. To those yet undecided we might suggest Muskoka, Huntsville, Lake of Bays, Temagami, or Algonquin Park.

Call at Grand Trunk Ticket Office and ask for illustrated literature to help you to decide.

Illegal Fishermen Fined

It seems that the temptation for catching fish by illegal methods is irresistible by some people. A man named John English was caught by Fishery Overseer Ira Toole of Victoria county last winter, using a decoy and a snare through the ice with an ultimate view towards gathering in shakeins for fish caught through the ice near Omemee. County Police Magistrate Moore of Lindsay, visited that village on Tuesday, and as a result English was fined $10 and costs.

A Square Deal

Is assured you when you buy Dr. Pierce's family medicines—for all the ingredients entering into them are printed on the bottle-wrappers and their formulas are attested under oath as being complete and correct. You know just what you are paying for and that the ingredients are gathered from Nature's laboratory, being selected from the most valuable native medicinal roots found growing in our American forests and while potent to cure are perfectly harmless even to the most delicate women and children. Not a drop of alcohol enters into their composition. A much better agent is used both for extracting and preserving the medicinal principles used in them, viz., triple refined glycerine. This agent possesses intrinsic medicinal properties of its own being a most valuable antiseptic and antiferment, nutritive and soothing demulcent.

Glycerine plays an important part in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in the cure of indigestion, dyspepsia and weak stomach, attended by sour risings, heart-burn, foul breath, coated tongue, poor appetite, gnawing feeling in stomach, biliousness and kindred derangements of the stomach, liver and bowels.

Besides curing all the above distressing ailments, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a specific for all diseases of the mucous membranes, as catarrh, whether of the nasal passages or of the stomach, bowels or pelvic organs. Even in its ulcerative stages it will yield to this sovereign remedy if its use be persevered in. In Chronic Catarrh of the Nasal passages, it is well, while taking the "Golden Medical Discovery" for the necessary constitutional treatment, to cleanse the passages freely two or three times a day with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. This thorough course of treatment generally cures the worst cases.

In coughs and hoarseness caused by bronchial, throat and lung affections, even in consumption in its advanced stages, the "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most efficient remedy, especially in those obstinate, hang-on coughs caused by irritation and congestion of the bronchial mucous membranes. The "Discovery" is not so good for acute coughs arising from sudden colds, nor must it be expected to cure consumption in its advanced stages—no medicine will do that—but for all the obstinate, chronic coughs, which, if neglected, or badly treated, lead up to consumption, it is the best medicine that can be taken.

Imperial Bank of Canada

Proceedings of the Thirty-Second Annual General Meeting of the Shareholders, Held at the Banking House of the Institution, in Toronto, on Wednesday, 22nd May, 1907

The thirty-second annual general meeting of the Imperial Bank of Canada was held in pursuance of the terms of the charter at the Banking House of the institution, 22nd May, 1907.

The chair was taken by the President, Mr. D. R. Wilkie, and the Assistant General Manager, Mr. E. Hay, was requested to act as Secretary.

Moved by Mr. Alexander Nairn, seconded by Mr. Mark H. Irish:

That Mr. Lyndhurst Ogden, Mr. R. H. Temple and Mr. W. Gibson Cassels be and are hereby appointed scrutineers. Carried.

The Assistant General Manager, at the request of the Chairman, read the report of the Directors and the Statement of Affairs.

THE REPORT

The Directors have pleasure in submitting to the Shareholders their thirty-second Annual Report and Balance Sheet of the affairs of the Bank for the year which ended on 30th April, 1907.

The net profits for the twelve months, after making full provision for all bad and doubtful debts, for interest on unmatured bills under discount for the usual contributions to the Pension and Guarantee funds and providing for Provincial and other taxation amount to $719,029.04, which has been applied as follows:

(a) Dividends have been paid at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum for the first three quarters of the year, and at the rate of 11 per cent. per annum for the last quarter, amounting in all to	$453,217.28
(b) Bank Premises and Furniture Account has been credited with ... ... P...	116,391.47
(c) Profit and Loss Account has been increased by	149,420.29

The Premium, amounting to $846,206.94, received for an equal amount of New Capital Stock has been transferred to Rest Account, which now amounts to $4,773,948.44.

There has been a satisfactory increase in the business of the Bank in all departments.

Branches of the Bank have been opened during the year at Brantford and Fort William, and a sub-branch on Bank street, Ottawa, all in the Province of Ontario, and at Athabasca Landing, in the Province of Alberta. The branch at Trout Lake, B.C., has been closed.

Shortly after our last meeting the Bank suffered, and we were much grieved through the death of our much respected colleague, Mr. William Hendrie of Hamilton, who was elected a Director on 19th May, 1899, and died on 27th June, 1906.

The vacancy on the Board occasioned by Mr. Hendrie's death has been filled by the appointment of Wm. Hamilton Merritt of St. Catharines, nephew of our late President, Mr. T. R. Merritt.

A bylaw will be submitted for your approval, authorizing an increase in the capital by the sum of $5,000,000, to be availed of in such amounts and at such times as the Directors may determine. The rapid development of the country necessitates increased banking facilities, which can be most economically and at the same time profitably supplied by the banks which are now in existence. It is intended to allot the new shares from time to time as the business of the Bank may call for additional capital, but no immediate allotment is in contemplation.

A further bylaw will be submitted for your approval, authorizing an additional contribution by the Bank to the Officers' and Employes' Pension Fund, with a view to placing that fund on a more substantial basis.

The Head Office and Branches of the Bank have all been carefully inspected during the year, and your Directors have much pleasure in again bearing testimony to the zeal, efficiency and faithfulness of the staff in the performances of their duties.

D. R. WILKIE,
President.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $12.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $13.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

POLE UNDER ARREST MAY EXPLAIN FIRE

Toronto Police Much Chagrined at News Leaking Out as They Expected to Capture Four Suspected Men

Guelph, June 1.—By the arrest of Louis Sylbiska, yesterday afternoon, by County Constable Merewether, there is a possibility of the burning of the grand stand at the Toronto Exhibition grounds last October being cleared up, and also the burglaries committed there a week ago.

Sylbiska, who is a Pole by birth, and came to Canada from the United States, has been working around Callaway's livery stable for about two weeks, his advent here being coincident with the burglaries on the 24th inst., when a quantity of jewelry was stolen. He appears to have been on hard luck and this may account for his divulging some secrets.

From statements he let drop to the stable hands, Constable Merewether sized him up as a desirable man to keep in view. Finally he had a talk with him, and as a result he landed him in the county jail, and yesterday he was held on a charge of being implicated in the fire which destroyed the Toronto grand stand. Detective Kennedy came up from Toronto yesterday morning, and secured a statement from Sylbeski, but what is in it he refuses to divulge.

His movements since the fire have been traced, and the detective seems inclined to place some credence in his statement. He went down with Detective Kennedy to Toronto yesterday evening.

As regards the local burglaries a strong clue has been afforded by this arrest as to the parties implicated. It is hard to get definite particulars because the police say to divulge much would cause trouble in securing other parties.

MAY STOP ARRESTS.

Toronto, June 1.—Detective Kennedy is at present in Guelph investigating the history and circumstances of the arrest of Louis Sylviska, a Pole, aged 19.

The matter was being kept very quiet, and the local authorities are very much chagrined to learn that publicity has been given the affair, as they feel that their efforts to discover the perpetrators of the deed have received a severe setback.

Differences between the Guelph police and the Wellington county officials are said to be responsible for the story leaking out.

English Church at Madoo Burnt

A Madoc despatch says:

St. John's Anglican church was almost completely destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon. The fire caught on the roof, burning through inside, destroying till the wood work, the beaded glass windows, and the pipe organ. The building and fixtures were insured for two thousand dollars, and the organ two hundred.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

Mr. J. A. Lawless, proprietor of the National Hotel in this city, who as noted in a former issue of The Times, recently purchased the Canada House at New Liskeard, has had the license of this new purchased hotel transferred. Mr. Lawless will doubtless make a great a success in his new venture as he did with the National.

Abhors the Word

London, June 1. —Three hundred and fifty emigrants to Canada, sent out by an East End charity organization, sailed on the SS. Dominion. There were also 100 Salvation Army emigrants on the same steamer.

The Allan Liner Tunisian also sailed, carrying a number of emigrants.

MUSIC AND THE DRAMA

"The Royal Slave"

Gordon & Bennett's production, "A Royal Slave" was presented at the Grand Opera House last night to a fair audience. This offering is a romantic story of old Mexico, in which cold steel banditti, and the last of a royal house of Mexican Indians take a prominent part. The story hinges upon the love a Mexican countess bears for the lover of her supposed daughter, the latter eventually being proved to be her niece who was in infancy changed for the countess' dead child. The piece presents many thrilling scenes in which the knife and an utter regard for human life are much in evidence, carrying one back to the early days of Spanish subjugation of Mexico. At the same time it affords considerable room for emotional acting, which is admirably taken advantage of by Helen Harrington, as the Countess Inez De Ora, and John Arthur, as El Aguila, the Royal Indian slave. Miss Harrington's impersonation of the scheming and insanely jealous mother is quite fascinating; her facial play, every attitude and gesture, and voice, is highly comendably true to the role; she is easily the star of the company. Mr. Arthur presents a very acceptable conception of the inherent characteristics of a royal Indian, who, although in a comparative state of bondage, is loyal and faithful to his old master's daughter under most trying circumstances.

Martin Pache, as Count Pedro Martinez, a bandit chief, is also strong. These leads are fairly well balanced, and the company as a whole do justice to the piece intrusted to them.

Date of Decoration Day Determined

Once more the Oddfellows of this city will observe that impressive and touching ceremony of decorating the graves of departed brethren. This year Decoration Day will be held on June 20th, when, as usual, stores will be closed during the afternoon. It is expected that the event this year will be one of the most interesting for some time. The triple-linked brethren will gather at Central Park and will march to the cemetery, where bouquets will be laid upon the graves of deceased Oddfellows.

A large force of men is at work at the cemetery. No expense is being spared to put the different plots, walks, etc., in splendid condition.

Good Business for First Year

Sterling Bank Pays Dividend on its First Year's Operations

That the people of Canada have faith in Canadian banking institutions was exemplified in the eager demand for stock when the Sterling Bank of Canada was launched about a year ago, when the net premium on stock of that bank in premiums alone raised the substantial sum of $171,151.38. At the first annual general meeting of this bank held at their head offices, 50 Yonge street, Toronto, on May 21st, the president, Mr. G. T. Somers occupied the chair and Mr. F. W. Broughall, general manager, acted as secretary. Although the Sterling Bank has only been one year in operation there was shown to have been made a net profit of $27,206.17, making with the premiums on stock as above noted the sum of $198,357.55.

This amount was used as follows, a quarterly dividend at the rate of six per cent. per annum, amounting to $9,683.32 was declared. $171,151.38 was carried to reserve fund and $17,522.85 to reserve fund. The Sterling Bank had $503,605.00 of notes in circulation The assets of this bank are of a most conservative and "gilt-edged" nature, easily convertible to cash. The directors in their report expressed great confidence in the future of the Sterling Bank of Canada. Mr. G. T. Somers and Mr. W. K. George were unanimously re-elected respectively to the offices of president and vice-president.

It speaks volumes not only for the Canadian banking system, but for the esteem in which the directorate of the Sterling Bank is held by the community at large, that this bank should have had so phenominal a success during its first year's business.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station.

At the local Tuesenary of Justice yesterday morning, W. E. Wadleigh, acting manager of the Brinton carpet works, was charged with owing $9.35 to Ernest Hall as wages. Mr. McWilliams appeared for the defendant. He claimed that the debt, if due, was made in North Monaghan, and enquired whether the city magistrate had jurisdiction. Mr. Dumble explained he had a commission making him a county magistrate, but he would sooner let the county cases be tried by the regular county magistrates as it only increases his work without any extra emoluments. Mr. McWilliams also noted that Mr. Wadleigh is assistant manager of the Brinton Carpet Company, and that the case should be against the company; the information was then changed to make it against the company.

The complainant said, after working some months he gave Mr. Wadleigh notice on the 25th of May, he was going to quit work. On the 28th he had some words with Mr. Wadleigh regarding a woman; the latter had been put over him. Mr. Wadleigh then told him to quit. Mr. Dixon had told complainant he was going to make him, Hall, foreman of the department, and this woman was placed over him.

Mr. Wadleigh in the box, said he is acting manager in Mr. Dixon's absence. Hall when engaged had three or four men under him, but he could not get along with the work satisfactorily. He got an experienced woman to do the work Hall interfered with the woman's work. He told Hall he would rather have to get along peaceably with the woman or get out. The employes of the works agree and take two weeks' wages in lieu of notice. He did not expect to pay Hall his wages. The magistrate said he did not think many courts in Canada would sustain such a regulation.

Mr. McWilliams explained that regulation was enforced because it takes time to teach employes their work and they lose when an employe leaves suddenly.

The magistrate dismissed the case, saying that Hall should have waited till pay day (today) to ask for his wages.

Arthur Burroughs was charged with using "grossly insulting language" towards a man named Gardiner.

When this case was sifted out per the witness box, it seems that the "grossly insulting language" were the words, "I'll knock your blooming head off, it'll knock your block off!" The complainant who uses an English accent the like of which should assuredly be placed on the customs tariff. If only five per cent. were placed on such Cockneyisms, quite enough could be collected on one immigrant ship to complete the Trent Valley Canal.

The case was dismissed after the defendant explained that his using the threat to "knock the block off the Englishman was caused by the latter accusing him of stealing a watch. The magistrate advised both parties not to meet be police court again for such little two for a cent cases.

RIGA TORTURES ARE ADMITTED

Forty-two Officers Will Be Prosecuted

Brutal Acts of Terrorism Committed by Revolutionists Roused Their Indignation Says Minister

St. Petersburg, June 1.—In the Duma yesterday the minister of justice replied to an interpollation regarding official tortures inflicted upon prisoners at Riga, and although he admitted that some of the accusations were true, and announced that forty-two officers would be prosecuted, he contended that the latter's action was due to indignation at the brutal acts of terrorism committed by the Revolutionists in the Baltic provinces.

The statement did not satisfy any party in the House, although for different reasons, and eight different resolutions were formulated. These were rejected owing to the antagonism between the different parties, but for which a condemnatory declaration might have been recorded. Finally a colorless resolution, drawn up by the Laborites, expressing dissatisfaction with the minister's reply, and referring the matter to the czar, was passed.

The Fire Brigade Will Keep Faith

Local Firemen Will Change the Fire Alarm Cards, Adding Latest Numbers

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Dear Sir,—Some months ago I with many other merchants and manufacturers of this city, paid for advertising space on a card that was to show where the fire alarm boxes were to be placed. This card was gotten out by a man named La Salle, who came to my office to solicit an advertisement. As this man was a stranger to me I would not have listened to him had he not been impressed of a letter signed by the officers of the local fire brigade authorizing him to solicit such advertising for their benefit and also by a letter from the Examiner testifying to this having arranged for payment of the cards. Now, I gave a $15 advertisement on the card to help along the brigade, considering it my duty, to help along a lot of hard working men, who risk life and limb for little remuneration and also as the Examiner guaranteed the goods.

Since paying my money for that card it was issued, but is practically of no use as the fire alarm boxes, as stated on these cards are all of a different number to those on the card and consequently useless. I do not in writing this letter want or intend to throw any reflection on the officers or members of the brigade, but I do think that this was a case of getting money under false pretences.

Yours truly,

ONE WHO BIT.

Since the above letter was handed to The Times for publication a Times man hunted up Chief Rutherford, and was somewhat surprised to ascertain that these cards had been a matter of serious consideration to the brigade. When the officers of the brigade signed Mr. La Salle's credentials it was generally considered that the alarm box numbers as given on the cards would be permanent. Furthermore, the matter of these cards as on the list of subjects to be considered at the next meeting of the brigade to be held Tuesday evening. Mr. Rutherford assured our scribe that everything in connection with these cards had been talked over, and that a practically unanimous vote would be given Tuesday night to have a corrected list of the fire alarm boxes, as now in force, printed on paper the exact size of the central portion of the cards, and that the brigade would send a man round to paste these on to the advertisers' card over the space now occupied by the changed list. When this is done by the brigade those subscribing, and, very many non-subscribers will have a card valuable from presenting the corrected list, and consequently as a good medium of advertising. There is no question in this matter but what the firemen, though they may not have got as favorable treatment as they anticipated, acted in good faith in this matter and obtained a good cash cash foundation for their funds.—Ed. Times.

Steamer Bobs in the City

The steam launch "Bobs" of Stony Lake, built last year by the Canadian Canoe Company of this city, was in Peterborough yesterday, and during the afternoon left with a cargo of goods for Mr. R. H. Jackson, whose summer residence is at Eels Creek. The "Bobs" will on and after June 15th make a round of calls daily at the various Stony Lake cottages, and will thus be of great service there.

Local Inspector Might Well Act

The following letter appears in this week's Lakefield News;—

Dear Sir,—Considerable indignation was expressed in your paper recently on account of the Peterborough Board of Health, sending their inspector up there to look after our sanitary arrangements, and the writer seemed very savage and stated that she thought the Lakefield Board of Health were quite capable of looking after their own district. Mr. Editor, I do not know how the gentlemen are, that compose the Lakefield Board of Health, but one thing, I know is, that so long as they allow that dirty smelling stagnant water to stand summer after summer, under the sidewalk, opposite the rink, it will always be in my opinion that they are not capable of looking after our sanitary arrangements. If they did their duty they would at once insist upon the council opening a drain so as to carry off the stagnant water, even if they have to overcome the opposition of the owner of the adjoining property, the said opposition in my opinion, being pure cussedness.

Yours faithfully,

NORTHERN LIGHT.

ALL-NIGHT DANCE ENDS IN FIRE PANIC

Sixteen Persons Said to Have Been Injured in Early Morning Fire at Montreal---Were Dancing at 2.30 a. m

Montreal, June 1.—A sudden outbreak of fire in Lacasse's dance hall, Notre Dame street, early yesterday morning while a dance was in progress resulted in the death of Arthur Duperrault, 31 St. Dominique street, and serious injuries to sixteen others, two of whom are likely to die. The dance was being held in honor of a young man named Joseph Charbonneau, who was about to be married. He is among the injured, having sustained a compound fracture of the right leg.

The fire started in a store beneath the dance hall, and the flames spread very rapidly up the stairway, cutting off the retreat of those in the hall above.

A terrible scene of confusion ensued, when the room, filling with smoke, it was discovered that the only way to safety was cut off by the flames.

FORTY FEET TO GROUND.

As the fire spread rapidly to the floor in which the hall was situated the occupants, some twenty-five in number, began to jump from the window to the ground a distance of 40 feet. A few landed safely, but sixteen sustained broken limbs and other injuries.

OTHERS WILL DIE.

Of these, W. Blanchet, 23 years of age, had his skull fractured, and Leon Girard his back broken. Both will probably die.

Duperrault remained in the building after all the others had jumped, and was evidently overcome by the smoke. His body was found by the firemen after the flames had been extinguished.

The damage to property was considerable.

Montreal, June 1.—A sensational fire took place early yesterday morning during the progress of a dance in a hall in the east end, when a number of people were compelled to jump from a third storey window, a dozen of them were more or less injured, some of them probably fatally.

The hall is on the top floor of a building a few doors east of the City Hall, on Notre Dame street, and fire started in the basement, the ground floor being occupied as a dry goods store by C. Marsolais.

SEIZED BY A PANIC

The crowd of dancers upstairs became panic-stricken by the rush of smoke and flame, and started jumping from the windows before the firemen arrived. One man had both legs broken and another his spine injured.

The firemen rescued many by means of ladders.

The fire did not amount to much, and was quickly extinguished. Many injured were taken to their homes for treatment; on account of which it is difficult to ascertain the exact number burnt.

DIED FROM INJURIES.

Arthur Duperrault, a butcher, has succumbed to the injuries sustained by jumping from the dance hall window, and it is stated that the number of injured is 18, some of whom are in a serious condition.

Fines Imposed on Local Option Account

Judging by what the Port Hope Times says, local option does not altogether prevent those addicted from obtaining their little "tootle." The times says that three infractions of the liquor law were before Mr. R. H. Holland on Monday, and fines amounting to $170 were imposed.

Three detectives in the employ of the provincial government went to Pontypool on April 30, the day before local option came into force, and stayed at the hotel. They drank rather freely, and next morning before taking the train, persuaded the hotelkeeper to serve them with drinks. As local option had by that time come into force, they laid an information. On Monday the hotelkeeper pleaded guilty to one charge and was fined $50 and $8.23 costs. Two other complaints laid by the same detectives were dropped, by order of the government.

In Cavanville on the morning that local option came into force, one of the detectives is said to have complained of feeling ill and persuaded the hotelkeeper there to give him a drink. He also pleaded guilty to one charge and was fined $50 and $8.63 costs. Two other complaints were dropped by the direction of the provincial inspector.

Sturgeon Point Hotel Threatened

The Lindsay Post says;—Considerable excitement was caused in town today at noon by the circulation of a report that there was a big fire at Sturgeon Point. Mr. J. D. Flavelle and Mr. G. H. Hopkins left for the scene of the fire, in the launch Viking shortly after one, and several other boat owners and a number of citizens held themselves in readiness should their services be required, but fortunately later advices came to hand that the fire was not of a serious nature, and was confined to some burning brush and grass at the rear of Mr. Knowlson's property.

TWENTIETH CENTURY EVOLUTION

Following the recent announcement by Dr. Bell that the dirigible airship is a practical fact, and the assurance of members of the Royal Society that Louis Brennan's gyroscopic car to run safely on one rail is likely to revolutionize railroad construction comes a statement, says the Rochester Post-Express, through the Boston Herald, that a Clark M. Wheaton, of Newtonville, has invented a submarine that makes war upon war in such a way that "this country need fear no invasion of a foreign foe." The submarine boat is equipped with a tank capable of standing a pressure of 500 pounds to the square inch fitted with tubes and other means for rapid boating, which would contain (say) fifty gallons of non-explosive anaesthetic, with further supply from which to draw, and connected with strong tubing with a puncturing gun which fires a tube up through the outer and inner bottoms of the ship attacked. To this the flexible tubing is attached and the anaesthetic turned on. If injected under heavy pressure in the form of steam, it will permeate the ship as far as clear openings will permit, and, if administered anywhere between the masts it will effectually put out of action the men operating the boilers and engines, thereby putting the ship practically out of commission. The anaesthetic makes them unconscious but is not fatal. It can also be applied for land warfare, so as to overcome whole regiments in the field. A submarine boat is to be constructed for testing the invention. Prof. Dorbeau of Tufts College, Captain Holman and others believe in it.

These three propositions, if successful, as predicted by high authorities added to the discovery of radium and the conquest of yellow fever, not to mention things of minor significance, give the twentieth century a better material start in progressive surprises and benefits than the nineteenth century had up to the fortieth when the telegraph began to click. Besides, the Panama ship canal is coming fast, several New York subways under the river are being, and are to be constructed, buildings 30 and even 40 stories are going up, and there are some new ocean liners and warships so immense as to almost dwarf the big ships of the nineteenth century.

Quite as important are some things which appeal less to the senses, such as the sudden dissolving of the purse strings of multi-millionaires, the late cosmopolitan peace congress inaugurated by one of them, improved legislation and administration for the benefit of the people by national state and municipal governments.

Details might be multiplied. The realms of the unknown contain unimaginable possibilities for man, and the surprises of the twentieth century may as much surpass those of the nineteenth as those of the nineteenth did those of the eighteenth. Let us note well the signs of the times, and be optimists.

Killed a Hundred Chinese Rebels

Canton, China, June 1.—A severe engagement has occurred between the provincial troops and a body of rebels, resulting in a victory for the former. The rebels lost over a hundred men killed and the government forces captured the rebel leader together with a number of flags and a considerable quantity of ammunition.

Two thousand additional troops have been despatched to Chaochow, where the malcontents are active.

The Chinese gunboat Sum Hong, having on board the 15th Regiment of Chinese troops, has sailed from here for Swatow, to defend the city against a possible attack on the part of the rebels.

60-Foot Strip Will Trouble Smugglers

Washington, May 31. — President Roosevelt has issued a proclamation, creating a reservation sixty feet in width along the entire northern border of Mexico, including the State of California and the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico.

The purpose of the reservation is declared in the presidential proclamation to be the suppression of smuggling across the international line. Private entries in the line of projected reservation, and such portions of it as are needed for roads, are reserved from the operation of the order.

Since the abolition of the old "Zona Libre," or free zone, between Mexico and the United States, it has been found increasingly difficulty to prevent smuggling across the boundary, hence the presidential proclamation.

THE BEAUTY MAKING CARROT.

New Ways of Serving a Vegetable Supposed to Give Good Looks.

Although the carrot has long stood at the head of the dietary that is supposed to make for beauty, it has never been a popular vegetable, even with the most ardent beauty seekers. To make it a culinary delight as well as a beauty maker has been the subject of many experiments.

Four young housekeepers have formed a club for the better understanding of carrot possibilities. One luncheon and one dinner are given each week, at which some new carrot dish must be served. A prize will be given for the most successful dish.

So far the best effort in this line has been a preparation of ordinary creamed carrots filled into green peppers. The top was covered with buttered breadcrumbs and the whole placed in a moderate oven.

When there was a tender, brownish crust on the peppers the dish was ready to serve." Accompanied with brown bread, sandwiches and olives the course was a decided hit.

The young housekeepers found that while a dish of plain mashed carrots as an accompaniment to roast duck would be eyed with distinct scorn the same mashed carrots shaped to simulate a large oyster, dipped in beaten eggs and breadcrumbs and dropped into deep fat, are eaten with as much relish as broiled fresh mushrooms. These young housekeepers have also found that mashed carrots molded into the form of croquettes and fried gain in palatability.

Presence of Mind.

A captured Turkish officer on being led forth to execution asked for a glass of water before he died. On receiving it he looked uneasily around, as if afraid of assassination.

"Drink," said the commander, "No harm shall come to thee until thou hast drunk that water."

Instantly the commander's word was given the prisoner dashed the water on the sandy ground and thereby saved his life.

A Puzzle.

"Do you think you will learn to like your titled son-in-law?"

"I don't know," answered Mr. Cumrox. "I can't quite tell where to place him in my expense account. He is neither a recreation nor an investment."

"There's a Reason"

"PE-RU-NA WAS SUCCESSFUL WHERE DOCTORS FAILED,"

Writes Mr. Cholette After Taking Pe-ru-na.

MR. MENESIPPE CHOLETTE.

Mr. Menesippe Cholette, Ste. Therese de Blainville, P. Q., writes:

"I shall never be able to speak in terms high enough to express the entire confidence I have in Peruna.

"There is nothing better to restore health. I took eight bottles.

"All the pains I had in the head and bowels, also the catarrh of the nose and stomach, as well as all other symptoms disappeared after I had taken the third bottle.

"Peruna was successful where two doctors had failed.

"Were I the first to testify in favor of this remedy, it might be thought that I exaggerate, but many testimonials before mine have pointed out the great virtue of this effective tonic.

"It would be unreasonable to undervalue a remedy which has snatched from premature death poor human beings who were beyond rescue by the doctors.

"This remedy has restored many a victim of incipient consumption and other diseases.

"Peruna is the best remedy for all catarrhal diseases."

WHEN the catarrh has become systemic,—that is, when it has been allowed to spread through the entire system, it is a difficult disease to cure.

Physicians do not always understand it and some of them do not care to treat it. Hence the inability of a great many patients to find a cure.

The correct thing to do for these cases is to make use of some internal, systemic catarrh remedy,—one that will reach every internal organ of the body and exercise a healing, strengthening and soothing effect upon the mucous membranes lining these various organs.

Such a remedy has been found in Peruna.

As Mr. Cholette states, his testimonial is not the first one written in behalf of Peruna, the remedy which brings permanent relief in all cases of systemic catarrh.

CHINESE FAMINE HAS BEEN BROKEN

A Thousand Babies Were Supplied with Milk by American Gifts.

Shanghai, June 30. — The famine which has prevailed for many weeks, causing hundreds of deaths and great suffering, has been broken. The crops are still thin, but the hot weather of the past month has been favorable to a good yield.

American gifts have supplied milk regularly to 1,000 babies at the Hsi Cheo Fu Temple, while 200 more have been nourished occasionally. The children are left with their parents or relations, as the Chinese dread foreign orphanages.

What is left of the gift will be turned over to the Red Cross Society to relieve individual cases of need and to grapple with the next crisis.

Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Mr. Williams and the captain had a long conversation in the cabin, and after it was over the skipper was a bit out of temper, and his orders were unusually crisp and sharp.

On one memorable evening the captain, having previously whispered to Bradley to put on his "Sunday togs," sent the boy on an errand to a cigar store near the wharf and told him to wait there "for further orders." In a little while he himself came into the store, commanded Bradley to "lay alongside and say nothin'," and the pair walked briskly across the city to the elevated railway station. Then they rode uptown, had a six course dinner in a marvelous restaurant, where an orchestra played while you ate, and then went to the theater to see a play called "The Great Metropolis." It was all real to Bradley, and he thrilled, wept and laughed alternately.

On the way down in the elevated he said, with a whimsical smile, "Brad, I cal'late if the old maids knew I took you to the theater they'd think you was slidin' a greased pole to perdition, wouldn't they?"

Bradley smiled also as he answered: "No, sir. I guess they'd think if you did it 'twas all right."

Captain Titcomb grinned, but he made no comment on the reply. All he said was: "Well, Orham's Orham, and New York's New York, and the way things looks depends consider'ble on which end of the spyglass you squint through. Anyhow, p'r'aps you'd better not put this cruise down in the log."

But Bradley did put it down in the log—that is to say, he wrote a full account of this the greatest evening of his life, in his next letter to the sisters. His habit of scrupulous honesty still clung to him, and he did not evade or cover up. If he did a thing it was done because he thought it right, and other considerations counted for little.

Occasions like the theater trip were few and far apart. For the most part Captain Titcomb was skipper and Bradley was the "hand." With every voyage, sometimes to Portland, to Portsmouth, to Boston, and, of course, to New York, the boy learned new things about his chief officer and to understand him better.

He learned why it was that the captain received so many presents and was considered such a "slick article." His acquaintance among seafaring men and shipowners was large, and he was always ready to do "little favors." Sometimes a captain just in from a foreign cruise had hidden away two or three pieces of silk or jewelry or even, in one case, a piano, that were intended for gifts to the folks at home and to the cost of which the custom house duty would be an uncomfortable addition. Then Captain Titcomb visited that ship, purely as a social function, and when he came away the jewelry or silk came with him. In the piano affair it was bribery pure and simple, with the addition of a little bullying of an inspector who had made a few slips before that the captain knew of. Petty smuggling like this Captain Titcomb did not consider a sin worth worrying about. There was a smack of adventure in it and the pair liked taking chances.

Then, as a bargainer and a driver of sharp trades with shipping merchants and others the captain was an expert. He liked, as he said, to "dicker," and, besides, he was always on the lookout to further the interests of his owners. Looking out for the owners was his hobby and explained in a measure why Williams Bros. were willing to pay him more than they paid their other skippers.

He was a "driver" with his crews, and every particle that was in the rickety Thomas Doane he got out of her. He was easy so long as a man obeyed orders, but at the slightest hint of mutiny things happened.

The Thomas Doane passed and repassed Cape Cod on her short voyages, and Bradley, with every trip, learned more of the sea and the seaman's life. At the end of his three months he went home for a week's visit, but he had to return to the schooner again. Captain Titcomb had said that he was pleased with him and hinted at a steady rise in wages and promotion later on. He was earning his living now—it cost little to live—and he sent home a few dollars to the old maids every now and then.

His first home coming was a great event. The supper that first night was almost equal in the amount of food on the table to his dinner with the captain at the New York restaurant. In fact, Bradley, released from salt junk and fo'castle grub, ate so much that he suffered with the nightmare and groaned so dismally that the alarmed sisters pounded on his chamber door, and Miss Tempy insisted that what he needed was a dose of "Old Dr. Thomas' Discovery"—her newest patent medicine—and a "nice hot cup of pepper tea."

There was no music during the meal, but the old maids talked continuously. The hemming and the shawl industry were bringing in some money, though not yet what Miss Tempy anticipated, and they had had a windfall in the shape of a contribution from the Foreign Fund!

"We're all the children father had," said the older sister. "The letter said that there was money due us from the fund and that we was entitled to so much every year, most a hundred dollars. Now, I know about the Sampson thing, but I thought 'twas charity for poor people, and Tempy and me have got to livin' on charity—not yet, I hope. But it seems, 'cordin' to the letters I had from 'em, that the money b'longed to us, so"— a while," cried Miss Tempy. "And now they knew and wrote just at this time! It's miraculous, that's what it is—miraculous!"

Bradley thought of his conversation with Captain Titcomb and the affair did not seem so miraculous, but he knew the captain would not wish him to explain and so said nothing.

CHAPTER VII.

THE Thomas Doane was at her dock in New York, and Bradley, now twenty years old and a "sure enough" second mate, was on her deck watching the foremast hands clearing up the coal dust that begrimed everything. The schooner had carried coal for over a year now, and her latest occupation had not improved her appearance. She was old enough before and patched and mended enough, and to turn her into a collier seemed a final humiliation. Captain Titcomb had felt it keenly, and his disgust was outspoken.

"Well, by crimustee!" he had ejaculated when his flatfooted rebellion had been smothered by another raise in salary, "I used to dream about commandin' a Australian clipper some day or 'nother, but I never dreamed that I'd come to be skipper of a coal hod, and a secondhand, rusted out coal hod at that. Blessed if it ain't enough to make the old man—dad, I mean—turn over in his grave! Come on, Brad. Let's go to the theater. I want to forget it."

The captain had another project in his mind, a sort of secret [illegible] hinted at every little while, but never told. These hints usually followed a particularly disagreeable [illegible] the richest Thomas Doane behaved even more like a cantankerous old maid than was her wont. Then, when he and Bradley were alone, the captain would make [illegible]

Let me mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book "An Other Dyspepsia," The Heart, or The Kidneys. Address me, Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—means Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write for my free Book now. Dr. Shoop's Restorative sold by J.D. Tully.

UNDER SECRETARY'S FATE.

Bound up with the fate of Mr. Birrell's Bill is the future of Sir Antony Patrick MacDonnell, under secretary to the lord lieutenant of Ireland, whom the Nationalists consider responsible for the unfulfilment of the Government's Irish pledges, and whom they are determined to oust from office by every means in their power. It is an open secret, on the other hand, that Sir Antony is extremely anxious to retire, and it is practically certain that he has tendered his resignation. It is known also that the government is anxious to retain the services of the under secretary, and it is thought probable that he will yield to ministerial pressure for the present, and only retire when things have quieted down. He will then receive an important appointment in India.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure," as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, brings [illegible] strength, vigor, and energy. Both Shoop's Restoratives—Tablets or Liquid—are [illegible] to the system. For positive local

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 300,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $34,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

—Mr. Robert Hutchinson, the well known former hotelkeeper of Cavan, was in the city yesterday. Mr. Hutchinson noted, whilst local option is rigidly enforced in his township that the roads leading from the city to all parts of Cavan could be followed by a blind man with the sense of touch, as bottles and flasks strew the way.

—Speaking of the Peterborough talent which took part in the Victoria day concert at Millbrook, the Reporter says:—Prof. McKenna and Mr. F. Clarke, of Peterborough, rendered several selections on the violin and banjo and Mr. Coleman, of Peterborough, was encored time and again and was a general frorite with the audience, his selections being both humorous and entertaining.

Human Remains Discovered

Still the ghastly mementoes of man's mortality seem to be unearthed during excavation work for the new armories, particularly on the east side of this work, some three feet below the soil. Several human bones were dug up yesterday and those at work were undecided whether the fact of their only being three feet below the surface, is an indication of progress towards the celestial regions or whether the park has been levelled down since the remains were interred.

Verdict for Dr. Pierce

AGAINST THE

Ladies' Home Journal.

Sending truth after a lie. It is an old maxim that "a lie will travel seven leagues while truth is getting its boots on," and no doubt hundreds of thousands of good people read the unwarranted and malicious attack upon Dr. R. V. Pierce and his "Favorite Prescription" published in the May (1904) number of the Ladies' Home Journal, with its great black display headings, who never saw the humble, groveling retraction, with its inconspicuous heading, published two months later. It was boldly charged in the slanderous and libelous article that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for the cure of woman's weaknesses and ailments, contained alcohol and other harmful ingredients. Dr. Pierce promptly brought suit against the publishers of the Ladies' Home Journal, for $300,000.00 damages.

Dr. Pierce alleged that Mr. Bok, the editor, maliciously published the article containing such false and defamatory matter with the intent of injuring his business; furthermore, that no alcohol, or other injurious, or habit-forming, drugs are, or ever were, contained in his "Favorite Prescription"; that said medicine is made from native medicinal roots and contains no harmful ingredients whatever, and that Mr. Bok's malicious statements were wholly and absolutely false.

Under retraction printed by said Journal they were forced to acknowledge that they had obtained analyses of "Favorite Prescription," from eminent chemists, all of whom certified that it did not contain alcohol or any of the altered harmful drugs.

These facts were also proven in the trial of the action in the Supreme Court. But the business of Dr. Pierce was greatly injured by the publication of the libelous article with its great display headings, while hundreds of thousands who read the wickedly defamatory article never saw the humble groveling retraction, set in small type and made as inconspicuous as possible. The matter was, however brought before a jury in the Supreme Court of New York State which promptly rendered a verdict in the Doctor's favor. Thus his traducers came to grief and their base slanders were refuted.

Where are you Going This Summer?

Many overworked, tired business and professional men would "take to the woods" for their vacation if they knew definitely where to go, the localities which furnish the best hunting, fishing, and touring; now to go, and what to take, and the cost of the trip.

This all takes time and the busy man of today has none too much time to devote to his vacation. To those yet undecided we might suggest Muskoka, Huntsville, Lake of Bays, Temagami, or Algonquin Park.

Call at Grand Trunk Ticket Office and ask for illustrated literature to help you to decide.

Remarkable Invention FOR THE CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

COUNTRY IS STIRRED BY BIGAMY CASE

Farmers for Miles Around Drove in for Preliminary Hearing---Five Justices Heard Case and Three Committed Switzer

Kinearline, June 2.—The preliminary hearing of the Switzer bigamy case there Friday afternoon was heard with great interest by hundreds of citizens. The ordinary court room was too small to hold the crowd. Farmers for miles around drove in, and court was held in the town hall. There was a large number of ladies in the audience.

The case was sat upon by four justices of the peace and Mayor Temple. The justices were; Barker, McKenzie, Fleming, and Gumaer. A. P. Molesimson appeared for the defendant, and pleaded not guilty to the charge. W. C. Longcombe appeared for the crown.

DIVORCE IN DAKOTA.

Only the evidence of the two women was taken. Mrs. Switzer No. 1 swore that she was married to Switzer in Strathclair, Man., and Mrs. Switzer No. 2 swore she supposed she was married to Switzer in Pembina, N.D., in January last. From the remarks of the defendant's lawyer it is surmised the defence will be based upon a decree of divorce issued in Dakota. Switzer was committed to stand trial.

Both women are good-looking.

SORRY FOR SECOND WIFE.

The second wife, Miss Harris, is well connected in Ripley. She apparently believes Switzer has a divorce. Her evidence was given somewhat haltingly, she being under strong excitement, and feeling her position keenly.

The first wife gave her evidence in a vigorous manner. Both parties have a large following of friends and relatives, and the topic was discussed on the street all day by little knots.

The committal was not unanimous, Messrs. Gumaer and Temple being for acquittal on the ground that no marriage to either woman had been proven. The crown's case was weak, as the evidence of both women was not corroborated.

Garbage By-law Should be Passed

(To the Editor of The Times.)

Sir,—It seems to me a most extraordinary lack of common sense and decency that some of our citizens, otherwise good level-headed men of business and thrifty well read mechanics should pay any attention to the petition being circulated with an intent to prevent the passage of the proposed garbage collection by-law. The amount to be levied on private house, and they are in the overwhelming majority of places to be affected, 15 cents a month, is too trifling to be considered, even by the poorest of our rent-payers, to be seriously considered when compared with both the general and the individual benefits to be attained. Even a man who owns his horse and wagon, and is willing to keep his yard clean must keep in mind "the greatest good for the greatest number," and even though such a man be required to pay out $1.80 during the twelvemonth would be, in all possibility, saved many times that sum in doctors' bills. On Saturday I overheard a gentleman say, of course in a joke, that he believed it was the medical men who began this crusade against the by-law, fearing the improved sanitary conditions sure to arise would affect their business. Joking apart though I hope that this beneficial law will be passed and rigidly carried out.

Yours truly,
YOURS FOR HEALTH.

Collseum Closed Under Constable's Care

On Saturday morning the Coliseum on George street, where clever exhibitions by biographic series of moving pictures have delighted audiences for some weeks, was closed up. This resulted not from any failure, either financially or in appreciative audiences, but from a desire of the Peterborough Amusement Co., lessees of the premises at 423 George street, to secure the shop. It seems that the company had sub-letted the premises to Scott's Coliseum Co. of Toronto, and the lease of the latter expired at midnight Friday.

Mr. E. S. Clarry, president of the Peterborough Amusement Co., wrote Mr. John Dundas after the latter had sworn in as a special constable, to prevent any one entering the premises, and if such attempt were made to arrest the trespassers.

Mr. Scott of Toronto, came to the city Saturday morning, and at once entered into communication with the Peterborough Amusement Company, which resulted in arrangements being made whereby the Coliseum Co. had the privilege of giving their exhibition Saturday night. It seems that the local company insisted in reclaiming the shop for their own purposes, and wanted a guarantee that the place when vacated by the Toronto company should be left in the same condition as that in which they acquired their temporary lease. Mr. Dundas was put to no trouble by any attempted entry.

Farmer and Wife Thrown From Rig

On Saturday evening, as a well known farmer and his wife were driving in a buggy to their home in Smith, they received a bad bruising and shaking up each. Just before they reached the corner of Aylmer and Murray streets the bit broke in the horse's mouth, the animal then from fright or pain starting off at a mad gallop. As the animal at full speed turned the corner the man was thrown violently out to the ground, and after the animal had run about half a block further the woman was flung out of the rig. Whilst neither had any bones broken, they were each badly bruised and sustained a severe shock. The horse was caught soon after, and was uninjured.

He Saw Napoleon

Richmond, Va., June 2.—Robert Ambler Bruce, 107 years old, who is said to have been the oldest Mason in the world, died in the City Almshouse here yesterday. He was born at West Overhill, Accomac county, Va.

He was a veteran of several wars and boasted of having seen Napoleon Bonaparte in 1817, claiming that Napoleon presented him with a cross of honor at St. Helena.

He had travelled a great deal.

Suspects in Canada

New York, June 2.—Two of the three Armenians who are wanted in connection with the murder of Father Kasper, have left the United States, according to Captain McCafferty of the detective bureau.

He learned yesterday that John Mooridian and Paul Sarkisian had been seen in a Canadian town where they have been since last Saturday, two days after the murder is supposed to have been done. The body was found on a house in West 37th street on last Sunday.

The two men mentioned hired the room in which the priest's body was found on a trunk. Two men have been detailed from the detective bureau to go to the Canadian city, and Captain McCaffert expects to hear shortly of the Armenians' arrest.

Strike on in Glasgow Shipyards

Glasgow, June 1.—The seamen's strike here has reached an acute stage. The employers refuse to recognize the men's union, and have taken no notice of their demands for an advance in wages. The Atlantic liners due to sail June 1 for New York or Canada have not yet secured crews.

The ship owners are calling a conference of representatives of the various maritime nations to meet in London and devise means for defence against the unions.

Conservative Elected in Place of the Late Mr. Speaker St. John

Saturday an election was held in West York to select a successor in the Ontario Legislature, to the late speaker of the House Hon. Mr. St. John. Notwithstanding the fine weather the vote polled was very small, as it was generally conceded that the result was a foregone conclusion. The vote was so overwhelmingly in preponderance in favor of Mr. Godfrey the Conservative candidate as to make the election almost a farce.

Whilst complete figures were not available, it might be noted that at one polling division, Mr. Godfrey obtained 669 votes to 90 for Mr. Williams the Independent candidate, the Socialist hardly being "an also ran."

Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. Grand Duke Escapes Workman's Revenge

Orel, Russia, June 2.—A train from Sebastapol on this city on which the grand duke was a passenger, had a narrow escape from being wrecked today.

Shortly before the time of its arrival here an unknown person started a locomotive at full speed down the track.

The grand duke's train fortunately was late and the runaway engine captured before a collision occurred.

The incident is mystifying as the grand duke is known to be one of the most liberal minded members of the imperial family.

Later, the culprit was arrested, and it was found that he was a discharged workman, who sent the engine down the track out of a spirit of revenge, and not from any political motives.

GIRL ABDUCTOR IS UNDER ARREST

Policeman Who Enticed Girl From Home Has Been Caught

MAN DESERTED HIS FAMILY

His Victim Says She Loves Him and Wants to Stay With Him---Old Comrades Cut Man

New York, June 2.—Theodore D. Hess, a dismissed mounted policeman, was arraigned in the Harlem police court yesterday charged with the abduction of Elizabeth Grady, fourteen years old, with whom, he says, he became so infatuated that his wife and children were deserted. Frank Barclay, an agent for the Children's Society, was the technical complaint.

Hess' capture in Baltimore, where he was living with the girl, while working in a livery stable, was effected by Lieut. Chas. Becker, through a strange set of circumstances, he said. Hess applied for a position as fireman on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and, in making application, said he had worked for the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company. The latter company was notified and a description of Hess was sent along. A friend of Lieutenant Becker saw this, and, remembering the flight of Hess and the Grady girl, informed Becker of the description. Becker thought he recognized it to be that of Hess, and acting upon the new succeeded in catching his man. It was also said that the police were aided by a letter which Hess wrote to his wife and which she gave the police.

HIS HUMILIATION.

Hess was subjected to a humiliating ordeal at police headquarters in the presence of the detectives of the bureau. He was led in and lined up between two negro criminals.

"There is the man who has brought disgrace on the police force," said Captain McCafferty, pointing to Hess. Lieutenant Becker, take that man, have him photographed in the rogue's gallery, and then to court." Hess hung his head shamefully as he was taken away.

It is declared that he must have been temporarily out of his mind when he ran away with the young girl. He said that ever since he left this city on May 3, he has been realizing more and more the enormity of his crime, and was glad when arrested.

After their capture in Baltimore they were brought at once to this city. Hess was taken to the West 15th street police station, to which he was formerly attached, and his "pedigree" taken by Lieut. McGrath. The man in the station house, with whom he had formerly worked, refused to speak to the prisoner, and, hanging his head, he was placed in a cell, where he remained until Capt. Kraushaar and Assistant District Attorney Appleton arrived, and ordered him taken into the captain's private room, where he was questioned.

GLAD TO BE ARRESTED.

Hess declared that his mother, who has been under suspicion since he disappeared, knew nothing of the case. He said that on April 20, when the girl left home, he took her to a house on Second Avenue, where she remained until May 2, when he took her to his mother's home and told her that he was trying to reform the girl. The next day they left for Washington, and soon afterward went to Baltimore. He averred he was glad he had been arrested, for he could not stand the worry and remorse any longer.

When the girls who appeared to be in a more or less dazed condition, was questioned she displayed no remorse. She said she had become acquainted with Hess a year ago last July, and knew he was a married man, but said she loved him and wished to remain with him.

Heavy Customs Collections in May

The customs collections for the month of May last amounted to $31,547.23, for the port of Peterborough. The collections during the month just passed, were not as large as those in the corresponding month in 1906 but the decrease is explained by the statement that May of 1906 was an abnormal month, an additional importation being responsible for the large amount of the collections.

Miss Davidson Now Mrs Carl Waldinger

Charming Marriage of one of Peterboro's Most Popular Belles

Another of Peterborough's fair belles has not only taken on herself the joys and duties of a matron, but will to the regret of her many friends make her home far from the scenes of her childhood and apart from the circle of her girl friends.

On Saturday some seventy-five of the beaux, belles and matrons of Peterborough society, arrayed in broad cloth, silks or satins, and animated with pleasurable excitement over the charming event gathered, on invitation, at the residence of Mrs. R. S. Davidson, 202 Dalhousie, shortly before three o'clock to witness a most charming bridal ceremony, the marriage of Miss Christine Mudge, eldest daughter of their hostess to Mr. Carl Waldinger, of Boston, Mass.

Rev. Dr. Torrance, pastor of St. Paul's church, performed the ceremony, in the tastefully floral bedecked drawing room, the bride being given away by her mother. Miss Davidson, now Mrs. Waldinger, was charmingly attired in an exquisite empire gown of ivory white liberty satin with yoke and bolero of rose point lace. She wore the conventional veil, and orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white of the valley. The bridesmaids, Miss Helen Davidson, sister of the bride, and Miss Pearl Lundy were beautifully garbed in white embroidered mull over pink silk and large leghorn hats, trimmed with marguerites and roses, and carried bouquets of marguerites and ferns. Mrs. Davidson mother of the bride, wore an artistic gown of French silk chiffon with fine black silk stripe, over silk and trimmed with rose point lace. The bridegroom was supported by Mr. A. B. Holmes, of Toronto.

The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a diamond and ruby ring, to the bridesmaids, gold chains, with pearl pendants and to the groomsman a pearl scarf pin.

After the ceremony a reception was held and felicitations were extended to the happy couple. Refreshments were served from a large marquee on the lawn.

Mr. and Mrs. Waldinger left on the 5.15 C.P.R. train for Winnipeg, and will return to the city in about ten days. After spending a short time here they will leave for their future home in Boston, Mass, en route, remaining a few days in New York, their honeymoon being continued through the month of June. The bride's going away costume was an ecru and blue tailor made suit, trimmed with rajah silk, and touches of blue broadcloth and white braid-smart blue toque, with brown wings.

Those present at the wedding from outside the city were: Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Stout, Miss Stout and Miss Helen Stout, Miss Morrison, Miss Mabel Lennox, Miss Elsie Riddell, Miss Emma Gilmour, Mr. Leonard Morrison, Mr. R. R. Sanderson, Mr. T. C. Irving, jr., Miss Irving, of Toronto; Mr. W. H. Fiel dhouse of Montreal; Miss Susie Milne, of Sarnia; Miss Hilborn, of Berlin and others.

Coming Change in Lakefield Trains

Tourists and local summer residents will greatly appreciate the new G.T.R. train schedule in connection with Lakefield, which will go into force on June 16th.

The Belleville train that arrives in Peterborough at 8.10 a.m., will, instead of remaining here, proceed to Lakefield, and return at the same time as the regular Lakefield train. The Lakefield train will leave Peterborough on the arrival of the train from Port Hope at 8.25, and will proceed to Port Hope where it will connect with the regular passenger train from Toronto and western points. It will then return to Peterborough and connect with the noon train from Lindsay and Toronto and at 11.55 will leave for Lakefield.

Smallpox at Petrolia

Dr. Bell, Provincial health inspector, whilst in the city on Saturday, noted that smallpox is prevalent throughout the Province, particularly in the vicinity of Petrolia, where the epidemic is causing the authorities much anxiety. Men sick with this foul and contagious disease were found to be at work, not knowing the nature of their illness. We are pleased to add that the doctor's visit to this city was purely of a personal nature.

Premiers Man Strikes Luck

It is generally rumored that Mr. Albert O'Connor who left Ennismore some 18 months ago on a prospecting tour in the Cobalt district, has met with great success. Mr. J. A. Tully as authority for saying that Mr. O'Connor has already sold one property he discovered and patented to a number of capitalists for $100,000. This is making money faster even than it could be made at prices charged on the market Saturday, when chickens the size of robins, and the age of Methuselah readily bought @1.00 a pair.

Stewards of Mark Street Church

On Saturday afternoon the Quarterly Board meeting of Mark street church, was held when Messrs. W. Carton, A. G. Throop, W. Brown, R. Deyell, S. Mutchett, T. Sargeant and W. Sargeot, were elected stewards for the circuit, the first to be the recording steward.

Some members of the Board object to the proposed sale of Bethel church to Otonabee, as a burial ground would be included.

GERMANY THINKS KINDLY OF CANADA

Chancellor Von Buelow's Remarks as to Trade and Emigration---Better Relationship is Likely

Montreal, June 2.—A Baden, Germany, despatch says:

It is evident from incidents in the remarkable official and unofficial reception given to the British journalists now touring in Germany, that the German government and all commercial classes await with sympathetic interest the outcome of the present visit to Europe of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and Mr. Fielding.

Prince Von Buelow, the German chancellor, received Percy Hurd, who is one of the visiting journalists, He expressed warm interest in Canadian progress, and asked for minute details of Canada's recent advance in population, wealth and national status.

He said it was gratifying to know that the Germans who formerly went to Canada proved so prosperous. He knew they would make good settlers, Especially did he know they would make loyal Canadian citizens, but he himself, as a German, was anxious for Germany's welfare, and rejoiced that whereas 25 years ago Germany emigrated 200,000 people, some of the best of whom went to Canada, today, Germany found work and a future at home for all her people.

He expressed surprise at the extent of United States immigration into Canada, and he heard confirmed him in the belief that Canada was destined to become a great country, whose progress Germany watched with sympathetic concern.

Last night, at a civic banquet in the town hall, which was followed by a reception in the reichstag, Herr Von Mendelssohn, the well-known banker, said, amid cheers; "It would be very desirable if trade relations between the two great states, Germany and Canada, were again to become normal and friendly."

The present visit to Germany of British journalists would, he hoped, continue to that end, because there were really no divergent commercial or political interests between Canada and Germany.

Earthquake in Equador

Guayaquil, Ecuador, June 2.—Three earthquake shocks at about 3.20 yesterday morning caused the inhabitants of this city to jump from their beds and run panic-stricken into the streets.

The first and last of the shocks were slight, but the second was heavy and lasted about forty seconds, causing the bells in the churches to ring and stopping the clocks in the church towers at exactly 3.20 a.m.

No news has yet been received from the interior of the republic, but it is considered probable that damage was done by the earth shocks in the country.

Owing to the peculiar construction of the buildings, the disturbances did not cause any damage in this city.

Haywood Breaks Down Under Terrific Strain

Boise, Idaho, June 2.—William D. Haywood, the defendant now on trial charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, became seriously ill in his cell at the county jail yesterday. Two doctors were called and were with him for several hours.

It is believed that he is suffering a nervous breakdown. For some days he has complained of headache and the guards at the jail say he has shown signs of much restlessness.

It was plain, they say, that the strain of jury getting, has been hard. About one o'clock in the morning the pains in the head became acute. The physicians were called in at once and administered opiates.

Until these took effect, however, Haywood was in great agony and at times his cries could be heard in the jail yard. At eight this morning Haywood was resting easily.

Steamer Sunk in Collision

Detroit, Mich., June 2.—The steamer Selwyn Eddy, one of the Shaw-Eddy fleet of boats, was sunk in the Detroit River yesterday, in a collision with the steel barge, Maida, owned by the United States Steel corporation.

Immediately after the collision the captain of the headed for the Canadian shore, and his steamer sank about 60 feet from shore in 25 feet of water, with her main deck submerged but a short distance.

None of the crew was injured.

The collision occurred just off the village of Ecorse. The Maida was down-bound in tow of the steamer Vautrin, and was cast off opposite the plant of the Great Lakes Engineering Company, where she was to go for repairs.

The big barge became unmanageable in the current before her anchor caught and she sheered into Eddy, which was upbound, from Sandusky to Milwaukee, with coal.

The Maida, it is reported, did not suffer much damage.

DIES FROM TETANUS

English Immigrant Arrives at 3 and Dies at 6 O'clock Saturday Evening in St. Joseph's Hospital

On Saturday afternoon at three o'clock Dr. Gray was called to the C.P.R. station to see a man whose name as far as could be ascertained was Charles. The man had been brought from Burketon, where he had been working. He was unconscious and in a state of coma. Dr. Gray diagnosed the sufferer's symptoms as denoting tetanus or lockjaw and paralysis. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital in the Dan Spence ambulance. He never recovered consciousness and died about six o'clock Saturday evening.

In conversation with the C.P.R. roadmaster, it was ascertained that the deceased who had only been about two weeks in Canada, and who came from England, had been working for the company at Burketon. He had sustained no injuries, as far as can be learned whilst in Canada. On Thursday afternoon he complained of feeling ill but continued at his work. In fact he put in most of Friday at his employment of laying ties. On Friday night he went to his boarding house and at once entered into a state of unconscious from which he never rallied.

It is Dr. Gray's opinion that the germ of tetanus had innoculated the poor fellow before leaving the old country, and had quietly but insidiously been spreading in his system. The only name by which the man was known either to his employers and at St. Joseph's Hospital was "Charlie."

It is not known yet whether he has any relatives in Canada.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

HIT THE BULL'S EYE

Sometime in January, 1900, when the British forces in South Africa were meeting with reverses at the hands of the Boers, the St. Paul Pioneer-Press, one of the ablest of American journals, said editorially:

There is not a Boer who will not, under English rule, be as free as he is today, within the limits of common justice. He will not be free to send his policemen into a private house without a warrant and shoot down its owner when he offers resistance. He will not be free to deny to Jews and Catholics and every one who is not a professor of the Dutch Reformed religion, the rights of suffrage and of citizenship; he will not be free to force upon the Outlander within his border taxation without representation nor to deny to those who desire it common sanitary protection. He will have just as much voice in the conduct of his Government as the Cape Dutch have today, and it is not at all impossible that, like the Cape Dutch, he will name one of his own race as prime minister of the colony. It is even possible that the two Boer republics will be granted autonomy, conditioned only on the guarantee of Anglo-Saxon liberty to those within their borders.

Even if we owed nothing to England for her quiet but emphatic denial to join the proposed intervention, even if her aid was not an uncancelled debt to people and press for the lofty expressions of sympathy we received in what we believed to be the cause of common humanity, our own selfish interests would dictate a prayer for British success. Fortunately there is small chance of failure for a powerful nation arousing to a full comprehension of the stupendous interests she has at stake, and which would, if necessary, spend the last pound to maintain her prestige among the great powers of the world.

Seven years after the above was written the Boer general who made the most determined stand against Roberts was on his way to England to participate in the Colonial Conference—a fitting illustration of the broad-mindedness, generosity and dignity that characterize the treatment of a fallen foe by the British. At the time the St. Paul Pioneer-Press gave expression to its opinion, General Botha and his fellow Boers had forced Warren to retire at Spion Kop and this with other humiliations encountered by British arms made things look black for the Empire. But running itself to a full comprehension of the stupendous interests she had at stake, Britain soon turned the tables and then proceeded to again demonstrate her ability to forget. Today Boers are as free under British rule as Britons themselves. The defeated of 1901 have nominated and elected their own premier, and the two races are working together, each with a voice that is heard in London and respected for what it represents.

Miss Namesake

By Nan Todd.

Copyright, 1907, by Nan Todd.

"Abigail," said Miss Abigail Kimball, addressing her little niece, "I trust that while I am in the city today you will not forget in everything you are my namesake."

"No-m," replied the child, whispering a goodby, for she had never kissed her Aunt Abigail, not even a good night kiss.

Little Abigail, left alone for the first time all day in the care of the servants, took her doll, Polly Jane, and sat down in the library to think. By and by Mary, the maid, came into the room, with an apronful of pine cones for the merry fire that danced and crackled in the wide open fireplace. The servant's good natured face wreathed itself in smiles, for there sat Abigail stiffly erect in a high arm chair, making a very droll picture indeed.

"Mary," whispered Abigail, "today I've an awful respectability. I'm a namesake—the Aunt Abigail kind, you know; not just pretend, either."

"Land sakes! You don't say so! A Miss Namesake!" exclaimed the maid, dramatically dropping her pine cones in surprise. Abigail smiled. Somehow Mary always understood.

"Yes," continued the little girl, "I'm one. "I'd like to have a missionary meeting tea party, really truly. Aunt Abigail was going to have one this very afternoon if Mr. Lawyer hadn't made her go to the city. I'd like real little girls at mine too."

"But, Miss Namesake, even if you was, to have a really one, the children near here be all poor."

"Why, Mary, didn't you know missionary meeting tea parties are always for poor people? I don't think I'd feel so alonesy if I could only have 'em once in awhile, my kind," murmured Abigail, a pathetic little catch in her sweet voice. Then tender hearted Mary was suddenly called to the kitchen.

"Oh, well, I'll just play missionary after lunch," whispered the wee girl. She looked wistfully out the window. It was snowing. The nodding plumes of the great fir trees were heavy, with glistening snowdrops.

"Dear me, I'd rather be a tree than a namesake," she sighed.

Abigail was an old, sensitive girl of five years. Her father and mother both dead, she had lived ever since her third birthday with her aunt, Miss Kimball. As Miss Namesake was odd, she was often very lonely. She called herself "little All Alonesy."

Mary was the only one who seemed to understand her whimsical, imaginative ways, while her Aunt Abigail did not at all. Maybe her aunt did not understand because she had always lived such a sheltered life behind those great fir trees. Then, too, it was a long time since a wee girl had played in the great silent house. And the lonely woman—for her Aunt Abigail was lonely, too—seemed to have forgotten her own childhood days, so barren of childish things. She had known few children. Taught by a governess, brought up according to rule, she knew of only this one way for her niece. Poor little Namesake!

"Oh, I feel so grown up," sighed Abigail. She was taking her Aunt Abigail's place for the day, so she understood. Though the importance of her "respectability" had a peculiar charm, she was still little All Alonesy. There were shadows across her just pretend land, and naughty elves called tears tangled themselves in Polly Jane's curls. It was Lonesome Land everywhere today, even if she were a namesake.

Then luncheon time came.

"Mary," remonstrated Miss Namesake, imitating her aunt's manner and tone of voice, "I do not wish any more jam. I'm a namesake, you know."

The little girl had suddenly remembered she had never seen her aunt take more than one spoonful of jam. Good natured Mary had taken advantage of her mistress' absence and was incidentally heaping Abigail's plate with delicious jam.

"Very well, ma'am," sighed Mary, smiling, though her kind heart ached to comfort little All Alonesy in her brave attempts to be a good namesake.

"Polly Jane," whispered Abigail when she once more sat in the library, "I can't kiss you today, 'cause I'm a namesake, the Aunt Abigail kind, you know. So you sit quietly and think, for I wish to read."

She smiled with a little grown-up air at her doll. Then Miss Namesake took a heavy book from the table and began to read—that is, just pretend read, for the book was upside down. There were lonely tears in a little girl's eyes. Besides, she wasn't very comfortable, for the tips of her small boots did not touch the floor, and of course she wouldn't rest her feet on the rounds of Aunt Abigail's mahogany chairs.

From her high seat she could see the dark green fir trees boldly silhouetted against a gray sky. The wind was singing through their fragrant depths. On the wide window ledge four little birds were eating crumbs she had so generously given them earlier in the day. "I guess they're having a missionary meeting tea party."

"What?" sighed the fir trees. Abigail listened. She had nearly forgotten something, and now she had thought of a plan.

"If Aunt Abigail couldn't have her missionary meeting tea party, I'll just have one, the really truly kind, in her place, 'cause I'm her namesake. But who'll I have to it?"

"Who?" whispered the fir trees.

"Oh, goody, I know—the happy children nextest to my house." Miss Kimball lived a mile beyond the small suburban village. "Oh, they'd be glad to come. I'll just run and tell 'em and get back real soon."

Abigail ran swiftly down the walk, her aunt's white shawl wrapped closely about her little shoulders. She had forgotten she was a namesake. This was really truly fun. The boisterous north wind was tossing her curls. She smiled gratefully at the nodding fir trees, who always told her such pretty stories.

Well, the poor children were delighted with an invitation to a missionary meeting tea party at the "big house," as they admiringly called Miss Kimball's home. Their names were Macks, and there were four in all. Just what the party was to be like they didn't know. But their hostess was so confident and happy that the uncertainty was more alluring, while Miss Namesake, who had attended only one missionary meeting tea party, and that the Aunt Abigail kind, was tremendously happy.

Mary never suspected a thing of it. Imagine her surprise, then, when she walked into the library later in the afternoon to see if Miss Abigail was still namesaking and found three ragged little girls, one small boy and Miss Namesake gathered cozily around the great open fireplace.

"Bless my eyes!" exclaimed Mary, pausing in the open doorway.

"Oh, come in, Mary," graciously called Abigail, her blue eyes dancing with merriment at the expression on the servant's face. "I'm having a missionary meeting tea party in Aunt Abigail's place. My missionaries are the Misses Brewsters, Miss Ruggles and—Mr. Randolph Prince. Just play, you know, Mary." The little hostess had named each of her odd guests after friends of her aunt.

The children grinned. The dancing flames intensified the happiness on the just pretend missionaries' faces, while Abigail smiled through tears of true delight.

"Tea served in the dining room, ma'am?" finally questioned Mary, assuming an air of hauteur that would have pleased a princess.

"You may serve it in here, please," replied Miss Namesake, smiling approval at the maid's grandeur. She was indeed Mary's princess. The servant left the room.

"I'd like to be a real missionary, wouldn't you, Miss Ruggles?" asked Abigail of the oldest Mack girl, who was caressing Polly Jane's curls.

"My, yes, if they're like you!"

"So would I."

"And so would I."

"Me, too," piped in Billy Mack, alias Mr. Prince.

After a most delicious lunch, which Mary served with Aunt Abigail's "bestest things," the children suddenly forgot they were "just pretends" and became little people. They romped and played. Poor Mary had to cry when she heard the echo of their happy voices in the lonely house. Then it grew dark, and the children went home.

"It was the beautifulest time I ever had!" exclaimed Miss Namesake when later Mary tucked the tired but strangely happy little girl in her great feather bed. If they both thought of what Aunt Abigail might say, they ignored the fact and enjoyed to their hearts' content the rehearsal of the afternoon's odd pleasure. "I'd never be little All Alonesy, Mary, if I could have my kind of missionary meeting tea parties."

It was long, long after 10 before Aunt Abigail reached home. Mary said not a word concerning the afternoon's festivities. She knew the honor of a certain little girl's heart.

"Aunt Abigail!" called Miss Namesake in a very sweet bedtime voice.

"Yes," answered Miss Kimball, pausing at the threshold of her niece's room.

"I didn't 'member all the day long I was your namesake and had an awful respectability."

"Why, Abigail Kimball, what have you been doing?"

"I had a missionary meeting tea party," replied the little girl, sitting upright in bed. "I had one my kind. I had the little Macks to it."

"The Macks!" exclaimed Miss Kimball, very much horrified.

"They're poor, Aunt Abigail, and missionary meeting tea parties are for poor people. I'm awful sorry I played after meeting, though it was a lot of fun"— The child's voice sank to a lonely little whisper.

Miss Kimball, drawn by some strange feeling, walked to her little niece's bedside. She bent over her and asked her in a low, faltering voice:

"Abigail, why did you do it?"

Miss Namesake paused. Her eyes opened wider and wider, and in their starry depths were all the stories of little All Alonesy in Lonesome Land.

"'Cause I was just lonesy. I just had to be a missionary."

"I am sorry, dear."

"Oh, Aunt Abigail, let's both be missionaries."

"We will, and will have your kind of parties," replied Aunt Abigail, and she gave the wee girlie a long drawn-out bedtime kiss.

Over There.

"And, best of all," said the beautiful American, "we have no titled aristocracy to support over here."

"No," replied the foreigner, "but you have a good many titled sons-in-law to support over there."—Judge.

"There are some people who believe that the whole human race will be saved," said an old lady, "but for my part I hope for better things."

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.

Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.

The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, exciting the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitements, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 40,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg

This company was incorporated February 9th, A.D. 1907, under the laws of Arizona.

Capital stock 1,000,000 shares, full paid, non-assessable, par value $1, treasury stock 500,000 shares. Other stock pooled.

Officers and Directors

President ..... EDWARD T. PATRICK, Mine Owner and President of the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.
Vice-President ..... JUDGE CHAS. L. HAYES, Mine Owner and Leading Attorney of Goldfield, Nevada
Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN, Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Listing Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.
Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO. Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claims (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in acquiring the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,
Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

"Brad, I git more and more sick of this bein' somebody else's errand boy every minute. Some of these days I'm goin' to take a whack at somethin' diff'rent, and I have a notion what 'twill be too. I guess likely I may ask you to come in with me. I b'lieve it's a good notion. Tell you 'bout it some day."

But he never did.

Bradley had grown tall and broad during his term of cruising. He had learned self reliance, and his voice had a masterful ring. When he went back to Orham nowadays the old maids took special delight in having him escort them to church, and Miss Tempy's eyes during the sermon were oftener fixed upon him than upon the minister. The money that he sent the sisters amounted to something now, and he had an account in the savings bank.

Now, as he stood by the rail, with his hands in his pockets, he heard a step on the wharf behind him and turned to see Captain Titcomb jump from the stringpiece, catch the shroud and swing aboard. The captain's usually good natured face had a scowl on it, and he was plainly not happy.

Bradley touched his cap. "How are things going up at the office?" he asked.

"Plumb to the devil," was the short reply. Then, glancing up at the young man's face and looking hurriedly away again, he added: "Come aft. I want to talk to you."

Seated in the dingy cabin, the captain took a cigar from his pocket, bit off the end with a jerk and smoked in great puffs. Bradley waited for him to speak. The skipper's ill humor and obvious discontent had come upon him the afternoon of the day the Thomas Doane reached port and had grown steadily worse. Each morning Captain Titcomb had spent at the office of Williams Bros., and when he returned to the schooner he had done little but smoke, scowl and pace the deck. The second mate was worried, but he asked no questions.

"Brad," said the captain, looking at the shabby carpet on the cabin floor, "we're goin' to have a new mate."

Bradley was surprised. "Is Mr. Bailey going to leave?" he asked. The old first mate had been as much a part of the Thomas Doane as her mainmast.

"They've given him the Arrow, the new schooner. He's goin' to run her."

"Why, why, Cap'n Ezra, I thought she was promised to you."

"I thought so, too, but I missed my reck'nin', it seems. Williams—he ain't ha'f the man his brother was—is wants me to wait till the other one, the four master, is off the ways. Then I can have her if I want her."

"But she won't be ready for six months, though I guess from what I hear she'll be worth waiting for. Who'll have the old Doane then?"

Captain Titcomb crossed his legs, but didn't answer. Instead he asked: "Brad, how would you like to sail under Bailey? You and him got 'long first rate. I wouldn't wonder if I could git you the second mate's berth on the Arrow. She's bran new and clean, not like this hencoop." And he kicked a stateroom door with emphasis.

Bradley did not hesitate. "I guess if you can stand the hencoop I can," he said decisively. "I'd rather wait with you, thank you."

"I don't know's you'd better. Look here." And for the first time the captain raised his eyes. "You know I wouldn't try to influence you if 'twan't for your own good. I honestly think 'twould be better for you if you sailed on the Arrow."

"But why?"

"Oh, because! Bailey's a good man and an A1 sailor."

"He isn't half the sailor you are nor half the man either."

"Much obliged. I'll stand for the sailor part, but I ain't so sure about the rest. Brad, sometimes I wish I hadn't stuck so close to 'owners' orders' and had took a few observations on my own hook. Maybe then— But it's hard for an old dog to learn new tricks. I s'pose I'm a fool to worry. Money's 'bout all there is in this world, ain't it?"

"A good many folks seems to think it is."

"And other folks don't think any the less of 'em for it. Well, I've laid my course, and I'll stick to it till all's blue. Brad, will you, as a favor to me, chuck up your berth here and ship 'board the Arrow?"

"Cap'n Es, if you want me to quit this packet you'll have to heave me overboard; that's all!"

The skipper looked at the clear eyes and the firm jaw of the young six footer opposite.

"That goes, does it?" he asked.

"That goes. Cap'n Es, you've been the best friend I've ever had, except the old maids and—maybe one more. I don't want you to think I'm not ambitious, because I am. I'm just as anxious to make something of myself as you can be to have me, but I've made up my mind, and, for the present, anyway, while you sail a vessel I sail with you—unless you really order me to quit."

The older man hesitated. "Well," he said after two or three puffs at the cigar, "I ought to order it p'r'aps, but I'll be hanged if I can. Brad Nickerson, I think as much of you as I would of a son, and your good opinion is wuth—I don't b'lieve you know how much it's wuth to me. But— Shake hands, will you?"

Puzzled and troubled, Bradley extended his hand, and the captain clasped it firmly in his own. For a moment it seemed [illegible] to say something more, but he did not. Giving the second mate's hand a squeeze, he dropped it and settled back in his chair, smoking and apparently thinking hard. As he thought his lips tightened, and the scowl settled more firmly between his brows. Five minutes of silence, and then the skipper threw the half finished cigar into a corner and rose to his feet. His tone was sharp, and there was no trace of the feeling so recently manifested.

"We sail tomorrer mornin'," he said, stepping to the companion ladder. "The new first mate'll be here tonight. His name's Burke."

Bradley did not move. "Just a minute, Cap'n Es," he faltered. "You—you—I know it's none of my business, but— Well, you understand, I guess. You're in trouble—anybody can see that. Won't you let me help you out?"

The captain paused with his foot on the ladder. "My troubles are my own," he answered, without looking back. "You be thankful you ain't got any. And here!" the tone was almost savage. "You take my advice and obey orders, and don't ask questions."

"Brad, we're goin' to have a new mate."

He went on deck immediately and, after a moment, Bradley followed him. The rebuff was so unexpected and so undeserved, the circumstances considered, that it hurt the young man keenly. His pride was touched, and he made up his mind that Captain Titcomb should have no further cause for complaint so far as interference by his second officer was concerned. As for the captain, he kept to himself and said little to any one during the afternoon.

The new first mate came on board that evening. He was a thick set, heavy man, who talked a great deal,

The Battered Hobbyhorse.

A scarred and battered hobbyhorse, with one eye missing, its tail and mane reduced to ragged wisps of hair and a little leather saddle worn almost to fragments on its back, formed a part of the baggage carried by an aged couple in the Union station waiting room at St. Louis the other evening. It captured the interest of a crowd that gathered. The old man listened to the comments, some of them unkind jests. Then he spoke, almost in a tone of apology. "We're goin' to Texas, and we couldn't leave it behind," he explained. "You see, it belonged to our little boy that's dead. He used to set a might o' store by that old horse, and now it's all we've got to remember him by. We kept it all these years back in Indiana, and then when things got bad and our daughter down in Texas sent for us, why, we just packed up and started. Had to leave lots of things back there, but not that. We couldn't leave that, could we?" He turned to his wife. "No; we couldn't leave the horse," she said.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable. 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Why Do Women Worry?

First Sign of Failing Health.

Worry is a disease—and it's more—it produces other diseases, because it breaks down the nerves and saps the vitality of the body.

What a pity women don't realise that if they were well—if the blood was nutritious—if the nerves were strong—if all the organs were active—then the little things that irritate and prey on the mind wouldn't receive a moment's thought.

The woman who worries has a poor appetite—she sleeps poorly. If it only lasted for a day or two it might be of small consequence—but she grows limp, miserable, unhappy—worse day by day.

She needs Ferrozone which cures worry by curing the conditions that render worry possible. For nervous, weak women, no tonic is so good; thousands it has cured just like Mrs. M. E. Etherington, of Troy, who writes, "I am quite willing to give a public testimonial for Ferrozone believing it to be a tonic of superior excellence and one that will rapidly build up strength and supply new energy to anyone not feeling well. Last spring I was in a very poor condition of health. I was nervous, felt tired, and completely worn out. No doubt it's quite a common complaint with ladies of my age, but I placed great reliance in Ferrozone, and took it for several weeks. It made me quite strong, and in fact I have been in better health ever since. I can heartily recommend Ferrozone."

Ferrozone cures by making good good blood strong nerves and a healthy body.

This is why it gives color, clearness to the skin, buoyance to the step brightness to the eyes—because with good digestion and activity of the body in all its parts there's health. Price 50c. per box at all dealers.

It is a most efficient liver invigorator, stomach tonic, bowel regulator and nerve strengthener.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is not a patent medicine or secret nostrum, a full list of its ingredients being printed on its bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. A glance at its formula will show that it contains no alcohol, or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is a fluid extract made with pure, triple-refined glycerine, of proper strength, from the roots of the following native American forest plants, viz., Golden Seal root, Stone root, Black Cherrybark, Queen's root, Bloodroot, and Mandrake root.

The following leading medical authorities, among a host of others, extol the foregoing roots for the cure of just such ailments as the above symptoms indicate: Prof. R. Bartholow, M. Last night the Board of Education met first in Committee of the Whole, in their usual private business session, with Mr. W. H. Hill in the chair, and Messrs. Fair, Ackerman, Dr. Morrison, Pringle, and Dr. Burnham present.

After going into regular session Dr. Burnham moved that the minutes of last meeting be taken as read.

COMMUNICATIONS.

The following communications were received;

J. J. Turner & Sons wrote saying they had a spruce flag pole suitable for the King Edward school. The pole in question is 55 feet long and was offered by Messrs. Turner & Sons for $35. This price includes two coats of paint and a gold ball at the top. —Referred to Property Committee.

A letter from S. R. Armstrong was read, in which the writer noted that the water works superintendent had been instructed by the commissioners to lay a water main on Barrardo avenue from George street to Conger street.

Miss G. Florence Bell applied for a position on the kindergarten staff.

Mr. Jas. Drain wrote saying that boys attending the east ward school, frequently knock their ball over into his garden, 76 Robinson street, now occupied by Mr. J. E. Fredenburg. His letter went on to say that the boys tear boards off the fence whilst after their ball. He wanted the injury to his fence repaired.—Referred to Property Committee.

Mr. Williams, the city caretaker of the dump, addressed the Board in reference to an account he had against the Board and which he claimed Mr. Ackerman, for the board had refused payment. The speaker went into full particulars as to the work he had done at the various schools, and raised objection because the board wanted his bills certified to by the various janitors of the several schools. Mr. Fair explained that all bills had to be certified. It was moved by Dr. Morrison that the matter be left in the hands of the various janitors, who will certify to its accounts.—Carried.

Mr. Robinson, in speaking on Mr. Drain's complaint thought a net should be placed above Mr. Drain's fence, to prevent the children's balls going into the latter gentleman's premises.

Mr. Denham of the Ceral Co., addressed the board regarding some tile.

The Committee on Appoints reported that they had received 16 applications for the position of janitor of the King Edward school, and recommended that W. Henry be appointed at $450 a year. The committee recommended that the janitor of the George street school be notified that his services will not be required after July 1st, and that he be paid to Sept. 1st.—Carried.

Mr. R. J. Soden's tender for text books be accepted, and that Messrs. McDermaird & Jury's tender for chemicals, be also accepted, they being the lowest.

Dr. Burnham moved that Miss A. Weir be appointed as entrance examiner for the current year.

It was decided to make payments to the contractor and others engaged on the Collegiate Institute, on order of the architect.

Dr. Morrison brought up the subject of the change of grade made by those building the armories when an 18-inch difference in grade had been made; i.e., the armories were to be 18 inches lower. He thought the Board should take some action in this matter.

It was decided to refer this matter to the Building Committee with power to act.

It was moved and carried that Dr. Burnham be chairman during Mr. Fair's absence in England.

The matter of the King Edward school sewerage system was then brought up. Mr. Robinson noted that this sewer had not been properly laid, that quick sand entered the joints, and that the sewer was no good.

Mr. Fair bade the members farewell previous to his trip to England.

Man Dies Suddenly

David Fisher of Millbrook, Dead Within Three Minutes After Speaking to His Wife

Yesterday morning David Fisher, a laborer living near the G.T.R. depot at Millbrook, who has been working for a farmer about a mile and a half from that village, was found dead in bed by his wife, within perhaps three minutes after he had replied to a question put by the latter.

It seems that Fisher who had been working on Monday, was awakened by his wife early yesterday morning, the latter notifying him that his breakfast was ready. Mrs. Fisher had reason to leave the bedroom for a few moments and on returning within possibly five minutes, found her husband dead. Dr. Gray, the local coroner was communicated with but considered that no inquest was necessary, as the deceased probably died from heart disease.

Mr. Fisher has an unmarried sister living in this city on Hunter street. No particulars as to funeral arrangements were available last night.

Miss Annie Hefferman Now Mrs. J. J. Carroll

Yesterday morning a pretty wedding was celebrated in St. Peter's cathedral, when Miss Annie Hefferman, eldest daughter of the late Patrick Hefferman, Hunter St., became the bride of Mr. John J. Carroll. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Father McCall in the presence of only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom.

The bride was attired in white muslin de soine with lace and satin trimmings. She was attended by Miss Adelaide Doris, who was similarly attired. The groomsman was Mr. Jas. O'Brien.

After the ceremony at the cathedral the bridal party repaired to the home of the brides' mother, where a sumptuous wedding repast was spread.

Mr. and Mrs. Carroll left on the 11.45 G.T.R. train for Buffalo and other points. On their return to the city the happy couple will reside at 57 Bolivar street.

McAllister Loses And Wins Suit

The Ontario Bank has to Pay Costs in the Case

It will be remembered that, in the High Court non-jury cases tried here recently before Chancellor Boyd, the case of the Peterborough Hydraulic Co., against McAllister was heard. The Osgoode Hall reports of yesterday have the following anent the case;—

"Peterborough Hydraulic Co., vs. McAllister.—Judgment (G.A.B.) in action tried without a jury at Peterborough. The defendants, tinners under the name of McAllister Milling Co., were lessees from plaintiffs for ten years, from January, 1903, of a milling property, at a rent of $3,000 yearly, payable quarterly. This action was to recover three months' rent, $750 payable in advance on January 1st, 1907. Defendants are liable by reason of their covenant to pay, but they claimed to be indemnified against such payment by the Ontario Bank, brought in as third parties. Held, upon the evidence that defendants had established their claim against the bank. Judgment for defendants against the bank with costs.

To make it clearer it might be stated that according to the case which has seven years yet to run at $3,000 per annum, $21,000 is still coming to the Hydraulic Company. They sued McAllister for $750, the first quarter's rent for 1907. It will be seen that they have been awarded this amount. The business of the McAllister Milling Co. was taken over by the Ontario Bank, so when the Hydraulic Company took action against McAllister, he commenced proceedings against the Ontario Bank to make them responsible for the payment of the lease and according to Chancellor Boyd's decision has been successful in doing so. McAllister gets judgment against the bank for $750, and the bank has to pay the costs of the action.

The solicitors for McAllister were D. O'Connell and G. N. Gordon of Peterborough; for Peterborough Hydraulic Company, F. D. Kerr; and for the Ontario Bank, Hon. A. B. Morine K.C.

The Hydraulic Company will in all probability demand $750 for every quarter from McAllister, and the latter will take action against the Ontario Bank for this amount.

T. A. S. Preparing For Their Picnic

Yesterday the T.A.S. of St. Peter's had men at work cleaning up the splendid grounds, owned by Mr. McNamara, preparatory to the T.A.S. picnic. This grove of Mr. McNamara's is one of the most beautiful and most easily accessible near the city. This grove, situated just to the south of Crawford's Grove is specially adapted to the use of picnics, excursions, etc. It is not beyond possibility that the street car company may, in the near future, run their lines to this grove.

Last Shipment After Close Season Fixed for Day Too Early to Permit of Connections

Halifax, N.S., June 5.—A serious hitch in the lobster question on the western shore of Nova Scotia threatens to tie up $10,000 worth of fish held for shipment from Yarmouth to Boston. The legal season in the western district closed last Friday. The custom, however, has been for years past to allow subsequent shipping on the next boat day in order to clear the stock on hand.

Notice is generally given by the local officers fixing the date for the last forwardings. In the present case, Overseer Hatfield, of Yarmouth, without consulting Inspector Robertson, published notices saying that last Saturday would be the final shipment. In many cases catches legally taken on the previous day could not be sent for lack of boat and mail connections, which could only be had on the following Wednesday. An appeal was made by the shippers for three days' grace which was favorably considered by Inspector Robertson. Under the particular circumstances, he gave verbal permission, but Hatfield sticks by his first order, and the situation becomes embarrassing.

Lockport and other places east are affected by dead stock, and much anxiety prevails in all the western sections. The holders are determined to forward the consignment today and face the consequences.

The department at Ottawa has been wired for instructions, but no decision of the authorities has been publicly announced up to the present.

Washington, June 5.—It is reported on official circles that the United States steamer Thetis has seized a British poacher at one of the seal rookeries on Behring Sea.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

At yesterday's session of the police court, Laura Gillies was charged with abandoning her child. It seems that the woman has been out of the city since last September, during which time the police have been keen to find her. At the time of the alleged desertion the defendant was not married, but has since assumed the bonds of wedlock. It seems that on September 18th last she took the child only a few days old, to a lady in the north end of the city and asked her to keep it for a little time. In the meantime she got out of the city. Arrangements were made between the Children's Aid Society and the lady who was keeping the child that she was to be paid for her trouble.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the prisoner but did not elect how she would be tried.

His worship will be out of the city for a few days and the case was enlarged until Friday.

The woman was allowed out on two sureties of $100 each. Her brother-in-law went bail for her.

Turner and Sons Get a Huge Contract

Messrs. J. J. Turner & Sons were in receipt of a telegram last night, awarding them the contract of decorating the city of Ottawa, for the Old Boys' reunion, which takes place the end of July and first few days of August next.

The local firm were in competition with parties in Ottawa, Montreal and other places. That they secured the contract, which we understand, runs into some thousands of dollars, speaks well for the progressiveness and enterprise of the firm. They naturally feel proud of their success, and regard the honor as a very great one. That Messrs. Turner & Sons will make the old city look gay and exceedingly beautiful, we have no doubt. The Times congratulates the firm on their success.

MUST SERVE TERM FOR BIG FRAUDS

Sentence on Gaynor and Greene is Approved

JUDGE PARDEE DISSENTED

Defendants Must Serve Four Years and Pay Fines Aggregating $575,000

New Orleans, June 5.—The sentence of the Savannah Court in the Gaynor-Greene case, involving over a million of dollars' fraud in Government work in the Savannah Harbor, was affirmed in an opinion handed down by the United States Court of Appeals yesterday. The sentence is four years imprisonment each, and a fine aggregating $ 575,000. Judges Shelby and McCormick handed down the opinion, which was on appeal, and Judge Pardee dissented.

Benjamine J. Greene and John P. Gaynor, the defendants, appealed on 1903 assignments of errors. Most interesting of these was the claim that their extradiction from Canada was illegal. They asserted they were extradicted upon one offence and tried upon another. Upon this point the court says;—

"It is not usual nor would it be expedient or practicable for a warrant or extradition to describe the crime with all the fullness that would be required in an indictment. While extradiction and indictment must be for the same criminal acts, it does not follow that the crime must have the same name in both countries."

The court held that the defendants were extradicted for an offence for which they had twice been indicted.

Replying to the contention that their offence was not extraditable under the treaty, the court holds, first that it was extradictable, and then argues that even if the treaty did not on its face allow extradition for their offence, nevertheless the parties to this treaty could have taken action to make the instrument cover the offence, and that such action would have applied to a previous committed offence.

EXPECT TO PROVE MINERS GUILTY OF SCORES OF MURDERS

Alleged That Western Federation of Miners Resorted to Violence and Terrorism

HAYWOOD IS ON TRIAL

Charged With a Guilty Knowledge of Steunenberg's Assassination

Boise, June 4.—The Haywood case will now see more rapid progress. Court opened yesterday at 9.40 a.m. and at 9.46 James H. Hawley, the chief prosecuting counsel, began his address to the jury. He said that they expected to prove that the officers and executive committee of the Western Federation of Miners were responsible not only for the death of Steunberg, but of scores of others besides. The defence objected, but the objection was overruled.

In reply to a question from the court, Mr. Hawley said he expected to prove everything he said, and that in his opening statement he would keep "far within the scope of credence."

It is significant that Mr. Hawley defended the miners charged with violence some years ago, and at that time acquired much inside knowledge of the Western Federation that will be of advantage to him now.

TRIED TO BOSS GOVERNMENT.

Hawley said the "inner circle" of the Western Federation of Miners always aimed at controlling not only the organization of the Federation, but the Government of the different States where the organization existed.

Mr. Darrow again objected on the ground that the statement is "a pure piece of rhetoric and no part of a statement of the case."

SOME OF THE PROOFS.

Mr. Hawley, after describing Steunenberg's death and Orchard's arrest, said he would prove that after Orchard's arrest he received a telegram signed "M," which was followed by the presence of Caldwell of Mr. Miller, one of Haywood's counsel.

Hawley said the prosecution would produce a letter from Pettibone to Orchard, when the latter was in jail. He also announced that Orchard had made a "full confession" to McPartland, and that Orchard and McPartland would be on the stand.

AT HAYWOOD'S REQUEST.

Hawley charged the blowing up of the Independence Depot, causing the death of fourteen persons to the direct instigation of Haywood. He said Orchard and Adams committed this and other crimes on the specific request of Haywood. Mr. Hawley concluded his address at 11.06.

Mr. Darrow announced that the defence would reserve its opening statement until the State's case had been closed.

THE FIRST WITNESS.

C. F. Wayne was the first witness called. He was examined by Senator Borah. He was an eye witness of the murder of Governor Steunenberg.

The defence declined to cross-examine Wayne and the second witness, Dr. Gue, who attended Steunenburg on the night of the murder, was called. He was not cross-examined by the defence.

C. C. Rice, of Caldwell, an attorney, was next called. Rice testified to the presence of Thomas Hogan, alias Orchard, at Caldwell, prior to the Steunenburg murder. Mr. Richardson cross-examined Rice.

The charge against Haywood has been one of murder, in that he conspired with Harry Orchard, who, by his own confession, it is alleged, committed the crime.

Counsel for the defence assert that the development of the case will show plots of much larger dimensions than those hinted at by the prosecution. They say that the "capitalistic class" hopes to arouse sentiment against labor unions and crush out the cause of union labor. They charge that the whole confession of Orchard who they admit is the murderer, and the case outlined by the State, is a fabrication cleverely built up by the aid of detectives, that their clients are innocent of wrongdoing or of any complicity in the murder or series of murders charged by the State against Haywood, Moyer, and Pettibone.

CHARGE 25 MURDERS.

The case of the State, it is said, will show that no less than 26 murders were conceived by what is known as the "inner circle" of the Federation, which, it will be asserted, acted independently and without the knowledge of the members, and at no stage of the proceedings will an effort be made to show that more than a score of men had any knowledge of what was going on.

The State, it is believed, will show that the president of the Federation and his secretary-treasurer were ambitious in their plans, and that it was hoped to amalgamate this powerful labor organization with others throughout the country, so that they might become a political factor and a dominating influence through numerical strength and financial contributions of the hundreds of thousands of workingmen who support union labor.

St. Andrews Club Plays Saturday

Things will hum at the Driving Park Saturday, when the local nine will play the St. Andrew's of Toronto Junction. It seems that the St. Andrew's are even a stronger team than tussled here on May 24th and 25th. The local nine will be in better condition than when they met the Arctics, owing to faithful team practice.

Burridge will of course do the receiving for the Peterborough team, while Flaherty and Burns will be on the rubber, each twirling for half the game. Both are pitching great ball and should make the visitors do some tall guessing.

NOON IN PETERBOROUGH

What is Going on in Town When the Clock Strikes 12

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation —the one hour in the twenty-four which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Peterborough the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if villainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true, and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na, which cures ill stomach and digestive troubles.

In hundreds of the best homes in Peterborough and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The required stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Owing to the steady downpour of rain last night the drill of the 57th Regiment was confined to company drill in the armories. There was a good attendance.

Thousands Unemployed

Terrible Conditions Prevail in Strike - Cursed San Francisco

San Francisco, June 3. —Harbor Commissioner W. V. Stafford has submitted this report to Governor Gillette;

"The San Francisco Musicians' Union has a membership of 900. At this time but 50 are working regularly. The majority of the members in the union are taking turn about for this employment.

"Of about 6,000 clerks and salesmen in retail stores 2,000 are out of employment, and those that are working get two days off weekly, some with and some without pay.

"There are 12,000 ironworkers, 2,000 carmen, 500 telephone girls, and 1,500 laundry workers out on strike.

"Ten thousand men of the building trades are out of work through strikes, lack of material, and lack of money.

"Three hundred laundry wagon drivers are out of employment as a result of the laundry workers strike.

"Up to a month ago architects took draftsmen who could not speak English and were glad to get them. Now there are four or five applicants in every office daily, and no work to be had.

"The restaurant business is cut in half and the help diminished proportionately.

"Four thousand laborers on street railroad work are laid off. They walk the streets in droves looking for work and congest the employment offices."

Looks Like An Alliance

London, June 5.—The extension of the scope of the Anglo-Japanese agreement, so as to provide that Japan shall be bound to assist Great Britain in the event of British control in India being attacked by any other power, is said to have been the object of very important negotiations between Prince Fushimi and Admiral Yamamoto, representing Japan, and Sir Edward Grey, of the British foreign office.

A complete agreement, it is understood, has been drafted for submission to the Japanese Government. The only power likely to interfere with British control in India is Russia. Since the proposed agreement would therefore appear to be in the nature of an alliance against Russia. Since Japan is negotiating with Russia over the Portsmouth protocol, and as Great Britain is seeking an entente with Russia similar to that which she has with France, the new treaty will be of a secret character.

In return, it is suggested that Great Britain should do everything possible to help Japan maintain her financial standing here and elsewhere.

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. RECURRING HEADACHES

Do They Bother You ?

You fine life a miserable affair because you have headaches, but you have neither nausea nor are you weak—You know if you could only prevent headaches you would enjoy perfect health.

Such headaches indicate a general lowered condition, because they arise from a general decay of the nervous system.

This depressed condition of the nervous system has its origin in the reduction of the quality and quantity of the blood.

The blood is thin—its red coloring is reduced—it contains no nourishment.

The digestive organs are not supplying it with sufficient nutritive matter.

The result—nerve weakness, nerve debility, ill-health.

If you had used Ferrozone you would know how powerfully all the digestive and assimilative functions of the body are stmulated.

Ferrozone does more—it supplies all the elements that are essential to the rebuilding of the body—supplies the reconstructive forces, that contribute to the formation of rich, red blood.

You see, Ferrozone doesn't treat a symptom—it remedies a cause—and that's why a month's treatment will absolutely remove every vestige of recurring nervous headaches.

Nothing like Ferrozone to build you up, to give the reserve of force, that happy health that contributes so much to happiness and contentment.

Ferrozone will make you feel like new, try it—sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes.

THE IRRESISTIBLE BRITISH CAVALRY

During one of the war scares over the interminable Eastern question, a diplomat of southern Europe remarked that what the aggressors upon the Turkish empire had most to fear was the British cavalry.

The British cavalry never has been famous for anything but the herpism that throws life away. Asked what he meant, the diplomat illustrated by showing a golden sovereign, containing an effigy of the knightly St. George. He meant that what the enemies of England had most to fear was her almost unlimited command of money to carry on war.

The anecdote is recalled by the report of secret articles in the treaties lately made by King Edward with the weaker and poorer powers of the Mediterranean. It is said that the treaty with Spain provides for a direct subsidy for reconstruction of the navy and enlargement and equipment of the dockyards, on the understanding that these are to be at the service of Great Britain in the event of war.

Rich nations finance their poorer allies openly by encouraging their bankers to buy the bonds of the latter. During the last war France extended its assistance to Russia, and Great Britain to Japan. The direct government subsidy is an older device, less common in modern diplomacy. Yet England has been practicing it for centuries, and it seems rather natural to revive it in the reign of a sovereign who is going so far to restore personal government.

We need not go back to the history of the wars of Frederick the Great, which were openly supported by British subsidies, or to the Napoleonic wars, in which England advanced nearly three hundred million dollars to various continental allies.

Since the fall of Napoleon Holland, France and Sardinia have received direct loans from the British treasury and half a dozen other powers have raised British loans guaranteed by the government. It will be interesting to see what the house of commons says to this partner revival.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound, or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Enters Action for Return of Gifts

Windsor, Ont., June 3.—Judge Clement was called upon yesterday to decide the merits of an action brought by George Murray, a youth of nineteen years, against Miss Kate Pinkham, a maiden of seventeen, for engagement presents, upon which the plaintiff placed a valuation of $44. Murray testified that he met Miss Pinkham about three years ago, and that he and the girl became engaged shortly after. The engagement was to continue for three years, and the wedding was to take place next month. A short time ago Miss Pinkham, it is alleged, jilted Murray, the action in the Division Court for the value of the rings and sundry trinkets. His honor suggested that the couple patch up the quarrel, but neither favored the arrangement. Judgment was reserved.

June Canadian Magazine

Prof. R. E. Macnaghten, of McGill University, Montreal, writing in the June number, of the Canadian Magazine, introduces a subject that is bound sooner or later to have a place in the politics of the Dominion—the question of woman suffrage. He goes into the subject in a thorough, masterly way, and as he has spent some years in Australia, where women exercise the franchise, he has first-hand knowledge of how the proposal works out in practice. Prof. Macnaghten is in favor of giving women the right to vote, and his remarks on the subject should have much weight. His main contention is that the vote of the head of a family is generally a vote of prudence, and that if women could vote with men the power of the family or prudential vote would be enormously increased. The Canadian Magazine, it is worth noting, is taking a leading place in the discussion of questions of national importance.

The Ground is Alive.

We are so used to thinking of the soil as mere mineral matter that it comes quite as a shock to find this is a mistake. As a matter of fact, the layer of soft mould which clothes the ground in all cultivable districts and from which vegetation springs is actually in great part a living layer of tiny plants and animals. Interlacing threads of molds and fungi, worms and grubs, creeping insects, tiny root parasites, decaying leaves and the millions of bacteria which spring from them—all these are mixed and mingled together for many inches down below our feet in a confused mass of life. Germs of all sorts swarm in countless millions. Indeed, all the plants that grow and life that exists on the face of the earth owe their being to the fact that the ground is alive. You take a shovelful of the finest soil in the world and sterilise it—that is, beat it till all the life in it is destroyed—and then plant seeds in it. No amount of care or watering will make those seeds grow. Their life depends on the life in the soil around them.—London Answers.

Elephant Life in the Jungles.

Without elephants jungles would be virtually impassable. The great beasts are a mixture of strength and weakness, of craft and simplicity. The paths through the jungle from village to village are merely tracks from which the interlacing foliage has been cut and thrust aside and the virgin soil trodden into a black mud. After a rain this mud is many feet deep, and no living creature except an elephant, a buffalo or a rhinoceros could labor through it. The elephant makes his way by lifting one foot at a time and inserting it deep into the slough in front, withdrawing another with a sound like the popping of a large cork. Nothing but a ride on an earthquake could be compared with the sensation of being run away with by an elephant. As for stopping him, some one has well said that you might as well try to stop a runaway locomotive by putting with your walking stick on the funnel as seek to check an elephant at such a moment with a goad.

The Questions They Ask.

The capacity of the average small boy for asking questions is practically unlimited, but it is doubtful whether more searching inquiries have ever been made by a boy than those propounded by a youngster to his father, who had taken him for a steamer trip. Here is a partial list:

"Is that water down there any wetter than the water in the Atlantic ocean?"

"What makes the water wet?"

"How many men could be drowned in water as deep as that?"

"Is that big man with the gold buttons on his coat the father of all those men who do whatever he tells them to?"

"Where do all those waves behind the boat come from?"

"Could a train go as fast on the water as this boat?"—Chums.

Mad Dogs.

Mad dogs do not attack people. "When a dog has the rabies," said a physician, "he has lost control of his body, and what he does is mechanical. His jaws snap involuntarily, and if he encounters any object, whether animate or inanimate, he is likely to bite it. But a mad dog does not attack as does an angry dog. He does not pick out a victim or use any strategy. For this reason dogs suffering from rabies are less dangerous than is supposed. No grown person need fear them, for all he has to do is to get out of the way. The dog will not chase him. Of course, young children are in danger, as they do not know how to dodge the brute."

Sawing Out a Segment.

This rule is given by the Wood worker for sawing out a segment—a piece straight on one edge and curved on the other: Suppose the segment is to be 48 inches long and 4 inches wide at the central or widest place. Square one-half the length (24 inches), which gives 576; square the width (4 inches), which gives 16; add 576 and 16, obtaining 592; divide 592 by twice the width (2x4=8), which gives 74 inches, the radius. This rule will apply to any case.

When Stevenson Was Poor.

Robert Louis Stevenson was in poor circumstances in San Francisco before he made his hit with the world. During the time that he used to loaf, penniless, upon the lawn where afterward they put up a bronze and marble statue to him, he picked up a few quarters acting as super in the old California theater, in Bush street.

Hint Not Taken.

"From the grammatical standpoint," said the fair maid with the lofty forehead, "which do you consider correct, 'I had rather go home' or 'I would rather go home?'"

"Neither," promptly responded the young man. "I'd much rather stay here."

His Little Joke.

At the breakfast table Good Friday morning Wilfred was given a hot cross bun. It was very small, raisinless and burnt.

"Ma," said the little fellow, disappointedly, "this seems to be a hot cross bunko."

The Retort.

Here is a retort which a "dull student" once made: Professor—You seem to be very dull. When Alexander the Great was your age, he had already conquered the world. Student—Well, you see, he had Aristotle for a teacher.—Chambers' Journal.

Alexandria Burglar Caught

A Tweed despatch says:—Constable Sedore of Actinolite, yesterday brought in a man supposed to be one of the burglars who looted R. H. Cudden's jewelery store at Alexandria on May 15th. He is a man about 25 or 30 years of age, and is slightly lame. He will not give information of his movements. He has been searched, but nothing was found to connect him with the case. He will be held here until Monday.

Constipation

Baked sweet apples, with some people, bring prompt relief for Constipation. With others, coarse all-wheat bread will have the same effect. Nature undoubtedly has a vegetable remedy to relieve every ailment known to man, if physicians can but find Nature's way to health. And this is strikingly true with regard to Constipation.

The bark of a certain tree in California—Cascara Sagrada—offers a most excellent aid to this end. But, combined with Egyptian Senna, Slippery Elm Bark, Solid Extract of Prune, etc., this same Cascara bark is given its greatest possible power to correct constipation. A toothsome Candy Tablet, called Lax-ets, is now made at the Dr. Shoop Laboratories, from this ingredients and most effective prescription. Its effect on Constipation, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Bad Breath, Sallow Complexion, etc., is indeed prompt and satisfying.

No griping, no unpleasant after effects are experienced, and Lax-ets are put up in beautiful lithographed metal boxes at 5 cents and 25 cents per box.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making home improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards

Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the cash and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of same of the best proved mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo, and Logan) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines, near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section and only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

...By...
JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,
Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

The cook, who had helped bring the captain into the cabin, lingered after the first mate had gone. Bradley questioned him about the accident.

"Thoma, he done it," said the cook. "The line, she git mess up by the"—

"He was drunk," broke in Bradley. "He's been drunk all the afternoon. Isn't that so?"

The cook looked hastily at the ladder, then at the captain. Then, nodding emphatically, he whispered: "Ya-as, sir. They most all drunk. I never seen so much drink on schooner—not on Cap'n Titcomb's schooner, anyway, and I sail with him for five year."

But Bradley would not go to bed. He was worried about the captain and even more worried about the schooner. He did not like Mr. Burke, and he was by no means sure—judging by what he had seen—that the mate knew how to handle a crew. About 2 o'clock he decided to go on deck.

Bradley leaned on the rail and looked over the water toward where the shore should be. As he stood there the haze blew aside for a moment, and he saw not more than two miles away and ahead of the schooner the twinkle of a light. Then it disappeared again. He walked aft. One of the new hands was at the wheel, and there was a distinct smell of rum in the vicinity.

"Who gave you that course?"

"Mr. Burke, sir."

Burke was standing by the fore-shrouds, looking over the side. He started when Bradley touched his arm.

"Excuse me, Mr. Burke," said the second mate. "Where are we?"

"Turned the Rip an hour or so ago." Burke's tone was distinctly unpleasant. "What are you doin' here?"

"I couldn't sleep, so I came on deck a minute. Isn't she pretty close in? I thought I saw the Skakit light just now."

"Saw nothin'! Skakit light's away off yonder. Water enough here to float a Cunarder. What's the matter with you? 'Fraid I ain't on to my job? When I want your help I'll ask for it. I've sailed these waters when you was a kid."

"Well, I didn't mean to"—

"Then shut up! You go below and 'tend to the skipper."

Bradley bit his lip and turned away. If Burke was right, he had no business to interfere; if he wasn't right, the Thomas Doane was shaving the shoals altogether too close. He went below, found Captain Titcomb sleeping quietly and a little later came on deck again to lean on the rail amidships and once more stare at the foggy darkness.

A big figure loomed close beside him. It was Swensen, and he obviously wanted to speak.

"Well, Swensen," said Bradley, "what is it?"

The Swede leaned forward and, shading his mouth with his hand, whispered hoarsely: "Mr. Neekerson, you know 'bout the fust mate? He all right? What?"

Bradley had been brought up to discourage familiarity with men before the mast.

"What are you talking about?" he asked sharply.

"Nawthin' sir. Only he know this course? Ah see Skakit light twice yust now and only a mile 'n half off. That not 'nough—not here."

"Are you sure you saw it?"

"Yas, sir."

Bradley turned away. He hated to risk another suggestion to the mate, and he fully realized the danger of interfering with a superior officer, but Captain Titcomb was not in command, and here was Swensen's testimony to back his own that the schooner was running too close to the dangerous Cape Cod beaches. The course she was on was taking her still closer in, and the fog was growing thicker.

This time Burke was standing by the man at the wheel. He swore when the second mate approached and snarled, "Well, what's the matter now?"

"Mr. Burke, are you sure that wasn't the Skakit light I saw? Swensen says he's seen it twice and not more than a mile and a half away. If that's so, we are running into shoal water. Hadn't I better try soundings?"

In a blast of profanity Burke consigned both Bradley and Swensen to the lowest level in the brimstone future.

"Go below!" he yelled. "Go below and stay below, or I'll find out why!" Then, as if he realized that he was showing too much temper, he added in a milder tone: "It's all right, Nickerson. We're three mile offshore, and Skakit's astern of us. Go below. Ain't the skipper enough to make me nervous without you shovin' your oar in?"

And then from somewhere forward came a frightened yell and the sound of some one running. Swensen came bounding up the ladder from the main deck.

"Breakers ahead!" he shouted. "Breakers ahead! Put her over! Keep her off, quick!"

Burke's face went white and then crimson.

"Breakers be hanged!" he cried. "Keep her as she is!"

But the Swede was dancing up and down. There were confused cries forward, and other men came running.

"Starboard your helm!" bellowed Swensen. "Put her over! You can hear 'em! Listen!"

He held up both hands to enforce silence, and for a moment every soul on deck stood listening. The waves clucked along the schooner's side, the wind sang in the rigging, and the masts creaked. And then another sound grew, as it were, into Bradley's ears—a low, steady murmur, now rising, now sinking. He sprang toward the wheel.

"Put her over!" he shouted. "There are breakers! Starboard your helm! Starboard!"

"Keep her as she is!" bellowed Burke, bending forward with his fists clinched. "Don't turn a spoke!"

"But, for heaven's sake, Mr. Burke, are you crazy? We'll be ashore in ten minutes!"

The first mate's eyes shone in the dim light. His teeth showed white between his opened lips.

"By glory," he gasped chokingly, "I'll show you who's running this craft! Keep her as she is!"

Bradley forgot his duty as second officer, forgot that half the crew were watching him, forgot everything except that his best friend lay helpless in a berth below, while his schooner was being run into certain destruction. He leaped to the wheel, and the mate leaped to meet him.

Bradley stooped as he sprang forward, and it was lucky for him that he did so. Burke's fist whizzed past his ear, and the next moment the two mates were clinched and struggling in the little space between the deck house and the after rail. Bradley did not attempt to strike; his sole idea was to get to the wheel. Therefore he merely warded off the furious blows aimed at his head and struggled silently, but the one sided fight could not last long. Burke gradually backed his opponent to the rail, and then without turning his head he shouted:

"Thoma, pass me a handspike. Lively, you"—.

The man Thoma—he was half drunk and naturally stupid—obediently placed the handspike in the first mate's hand.

"Thoma, pass me a handspike."

How a Woman May Succeed.

Sitting with folded hands, resigned to a life of railing at fate, is a form of death. Who does not know women who believe that there is nothing for them but keeping on the gray routine of days, with never a hint of grace or glory? You visit them and find them lacking in any charm of dress or manner. They repine about bad health or hard luck, yet all around them you see the reason for that bad health or what they call bad luck. The dust lies thick upon their books and pictures. Their hair is untidy. They lack even the desire for cleanliness. Nothing ever comes to this mood. It repels and drives away the forces that aid us up to the heights, says Woman's Life. We may long for a great many things that we feel are beyond reach, but if we put our hand to the nearest task that confronts us the faroff thing comes nearer.

The New Wash Day.

Just as experience will prove Tuesday to be the best wash day for most modern housewives, so the newer methods of washing may be proved to be far the best for the sort of clothing we now wear. Old time fabrics were coarse and tough. They could be rubbed and pounded and pulled about without much danger to the fiber, but in these days garments must be handled with care. Soaps have been made according to recipes and formulas given by chemists to meet latter day requirements, to do away with board rubbing as much as possible, and it is nothing short of foolish to stand back and refuse to advance with the times by making use of every aid given us by science and invention.—Pictorial Review.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Last night the most drug stores closed at seven o'clock instead of at eight as during the winter. As in the past summers, one of the stores will remain open until late at night. The change to the shorter hours will be greatly appreciated by the drug clerks.

Sure Growth for Potatoes

Whilst not professing to run an agricultural paper, we have got a line on raising potatoes in the driest of seasons that may be worth while considering. Let the weather be as dry as is not wanted, to raise "Murphies" successfully, you simply have to put in alternate rows of potatoes and onions. When the natural growth of each begins, the smell of the onions sets into the eyes of the potatoes, causing the latter to weep sufficient tears to give them all the irrigation required.

Mr. Bradburn's Offer Was Accepted

Yesterday morning some 30 shareholders of the Peterborough Sugar Beet Company, Limited, met in the Foresters' Hall, George street.

The meeting was called for the purpose of considering the offer of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P. to take over the assets of the company and pay all creditors' claims, as settled by the local master, and pay five cents on the dollar to the shareholders.

There were 230 shares represented by the thirty shareholders present, and 36 shares by proxy, making a total of 266 shares. The offer of Mr. Bradburn was explained and the vote taken resulted in 251 being in favor of accepting the offer and 56 against it. Therefore, the report of the meeting will be submitted to the local master, His Honor Judge Weller, who will decide what is to be done.

Local Constable Had to Pay His Way

A funny contretempts was seen on a south-bound street car yesterday morning. A leading official of the fire brigade was on the car and saw a local policeman, not in uniform mount the car. The conductor came to the fireman, also in mufti, and demanded the latter's fare, five cents. The fire brigade official replied, "As soon as you collect fare from that gentleman (pointing to the cop). I'll pay mine, but not until you do collect his fare. The conductor was somewhat puzzled, but bravely went up to the officer and demanded his five cents. The officer said, "Why you know I'm an officer, don't you?" "Not unless you are in uniform," replied the street car magnate, and thus the P.R.R. Co., was 10 cents ahead.

A fine program of songs and music will be rendered. Mr. Booth will present each one with a handsome souvenir gramgram.

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms (the conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

Mahony Gets Contract For Handling Dredging

And Filling in Water Front---His Tender Was 8 1-2 Cents Per Cubic Yard---Highest Tender 23 Cents

The Board of Works met last night when the following were present:—Mayor R. F. McWilliams, Chairman Ald. Duncan, and Aldermen Johnston, McIntyre and Wilson.

W. G. Green asked for a crossing across from his office to the works. The proposed concrete crossing on McDonnel street, at easterly side of Gilchrist street, will be located at spot requisitioned for by Mr. Green.

PRICE FOR HANDLING DREDGING

The following tenders for handling the dredging from the river were received:

Daniel Mahony, per cubic yard, 8 1-2c.
John McDonald, per cubic yard, 23c.
F. J. Conroy, per cubic yard, 19c.
Martin Kylie, per cubic yard, 12c.

The person undertaking this work will have to take the dirt from the scow as filled by the Government dredge at work above Hunter street, and use the same for filling in the water front south of the bridge as directed by the city engineer. Each scow load of dredging will be dropped down within convenient reach of the spot being filled in.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the contract be awarded to Daniel Mahony at 8 1-2 per cubic yard.

Mr. Rehill asked if the city would allow him 13c a cubic yard for earth from a cellar he is having excavated, he to dump the material along the water front, where wanted for filling in purposes.

13c. a cubic yard is what the city were paying Conroy for handling the dredgings last year.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, Mr. Rehill's offer was accepted, he to dump the earth at foot of Charlotte street. The city to pay him 13c a cubic yard for earth and 25c for gravel, providing he gave the city all the material excavated from the cellar, and that satisfactory arrangements for measuring the material can be made.—Carried.

TO MOVE HYDRANT.

The mayor moved, seconded by Ald. Johnston,—That the hydrant on Water street, opposite the Colonial Weaving Company's will be moved to the westerly side of the new line of Water street.—Carried.

ONE CROSSING GANG ONLY.

On advice of Chairman Duncan but one gang will be employed on concrete crossing work in future. Foreman Hodgin's gang will be disbanded.

The street commissioner has never been satisfied with the work under Hodgin's supervision, and the disgraceful crossing on Water street, from the post office to the Crown Hotel, was the last straw.

The Board are anxious to push the concrete crossing work, but are of the opinion that by adding a few men to Kennedy's gang, this season's work arranged for can be accomplished.

SEWER CONNECTION COMPLAINT.

Mr. Angus McIntosh complained that the Cedar street sewer enters his premises four inches above his cellar floor, which he wished to lower. He asked that the connection be changed to enter below his cellar at a proper grade, for which there is plenty of fall.

Mr. McIntosh explained to the board that he had told Mr. O'Brien that he wished to lower his cellar floor, and asked for a satisfatory connection, that he apparently ignored his request.

Ald. Johnston pointed out that the connection is even four inches above the present cellar floor.

The engineer was instructed to have this connection lowered to the proper level and report if the contractor is responsible for the expense of same.

A petition for a sewer on George from Argyle to Hillier street, was not sufficiently signed.

STREET SIGNS.

The Board will not take up the matter of street signs till the end of the year.

TO INSPECT STREETS.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That the Board of Works, next Wednesday, drive over the streets on which excavations have been made for sewers and gas mains, and examine into the condition into which they have been left. This is with a view to having such streets put into satisfactory condition.

A PLANK CROSSING.

A. E. Fitzgerald asked for a plank crossing to his coal and wood office. A plank crossing will be laid across to Fitzgerald's office.

A permanent crossing will be laid east of Bethune, across Brock, when new pavement is being constructed.

HARVEY STREET SEWER.

Regarding the Harvey street sewer the Board of Works are willing to construct the same when sufficiently signed for. Council had given notice of their intention to lay a sewer on Harvey street, but the property owners petitioned against it. They were influenced in so doing by misunderstanding the engineer's remarks as to fall and possible depth of connections, the figures for which they in some manner transposed. Such misunderstanding led to the property owners concluding that the sewer would be unworkable. The engineer assured the board that the fall of said sewer would be 15 inches, and its lowest possible depth one foot nine inches. The sewer would be perfectly practicable.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by the mayor,—That the sewer on Harvey street be laid, when properly petitioned for.—Carried.

The engineer was instructed to report on the advisability and cost of laying a wooden walk from Hunter street east, north side, from end of present pavement to the bridge.

A plank crossing will be laid from Lake to Wescott street, west side.

A fence will be built on west side of Aylmer street, bounding the property purchased from Mr. LaFlair by the city for extension purposes.

ASSISTANCE FOR MR. RAY.

The mayor advised that in order to keep up local improvement work it is necessary that the city engineer should have the assistance of a man who can do both outside and inside work. There are at present over a hundred men in the city's employ, distributed over eight pay lists.

The Board agreed with this and an effort will be made to secure competent assistance for the summer.

On motion of Ald. Johnston, seconded by Ald. Wilson, this matter was left in the hands of the mayor and city engineer.

Cheese Board Met Yesterday Morning

At yesterday's session of the local Cheese Board, cheese touched 11 5-8 cents in price. A number of factories sold at 11 9-16c., which was the price offered for the first selection. The total registration was 2,987 boxes as compared with 809 boxes at the first sale of the season three weeks ago, when 11 1-2c was the highest price.

The bidding opened at 11c by Mr. Squires. Then a battle was in progress between Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Morgan and Mr. Squires, when the latter offered 11 9-16c and secured the first choice.

Mr. Squires secured the following factories; Norwood, Ormonde, Brickley, Oakdale, Killarney and Warminster.

The second choice went to Mr. Morton at 11 5-8c and he named the following selection; Lang, Sharpe, Indian River, Warsaw, Pine Grove, Fleetwood and Keene.

At 11 5-8c Mr. Kerr took the following, Benstort, Maple Leaf, Lakefield, Young's Point, Trewern, Cedardale, East Emily, Crowe, Havanville, Myrtle, Fraserville, Mt. Pleasant, Otonabee Union and Central Smith, Selwyn refused this offer.

Mr. G. Gillespie's offer at 11 5-8c, secured the following; Buckhorn, Westwood, Villiers and Selwyn.

North Dummer sold to Mr. Brinton at 11 9-16c. without inspection.

South Burleigh was the only factory that did not sell.

Rev. Canon Davidson Preached Well

The Kingston Whig says; Canon Davidson, Peterborough, preached sermons of value and helpfulness in St. George's cathedral on Sunday. For the sermon at high celebration at eleven o'clock he took his text from the epistle for the day; "Beloved, let us love one another, for love is of God, and everyone that loveth is born of God, and knoweth God." After pointing out the fact that the church year is divided into halves, the first half dealing with the gospel, or the chief events of our Lord's earthly life, followed by the feast of the coming of the Holy Ghost, the second half devoted to the Christian's duty, he enlarged upon his theme. Right at the outset of the second half of the year the church has put that which is and which must be the mainspring of all good, love to God and love to man. In whomsoever is the germ of loving kindness, in that man, whether he be church-goer or not, is the life of God, who is love. He instanced the man who made little or no religious profession, yet who was generous to the poor, kind to the sick, doing his good deeds in a careless, off-hand way. In him is love, the motive power of God. Again, the railroad man, possibly never darkening the doors of a church; the crucial test of an accident comes. The man might jump and save his life. He sticks at his post and lays his own life down for the love of others, following his Master's example. In him is love, therefore the life of God.

At evensong Canon Davidson preached from the text; "I speak concerning Christ and the church," saying the church at large was failing because she failed to realize that she was to be a school for the development of character, a sphere in which to exercise the love of God to all. He touched on the question of unity and the hopeful signs concerning it.

Death of Mr. Stewart Rose

Passed Away Yesterday at His Home on King Street

Yesterday afternoon there passed away at his residence, 373 King street, an old and esteemed citizen of Peterborough, in the person of Mr. Stewart W. Rose. The deceased was 69 years of age, and had been an employe of the Peter Hamilton Company for many years. About two years ago his health failed and he was obliged to retire from active work. He was able to be about almost up to the time of his death.

Mr. Rose leaves a wife and four grown up children—two boys, Bert and William, and two girls, Eva and June. His eldest son is in the employ of the Canadian General Electric Company, while the second is with Mr. Wm. Bunton, City Ticket Agent of the Grand Trunk.

The funeral will take place from the family residence, 373 King street on Friday at 1.30 p.m., to the Lakefield cemetery, where interment will take place. Funeral private.

IMPROVE YOUR COMPLEXION

Give Up Cosmetics And Seek The Cause of Your Bad Color.

When it's so easy to bring back the bloom of youth, to remove the blemishes and fill the hollows, isn't it foolish to plaster on cosmetics?

Sallowed skin and fallen in cheeks are produced by disorders of the alimentary canal.

Remove the cause—correct the condition that keeps you from looking as you ought. Use Dr. Hamilton's Pills and very soon you'll have a complexion to be proud of.

Just imagine how much happier you will feel when those pimples and murky look have gone.

Dainty looks came to Miss Vrooman, a well known resident of Belfast, from using Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I used to look so yellow I thought it might be jaundice. There was simply no color in my cheeks at all. Today my skin is clear and never gets that murky, dull appearance, it had before. Dr. Hamilton's Pills have also given me a good appetite and improved my general health also."

Not only the complexion, but every organ of the body is strengthened, cleansed and made healthy by Dr. Hamilton's Pills. Buoyancy, vim and a feeling of vigor invariably follow their use. Sold in yellow boxes by all dealers; 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00, or by mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., and Kingston, Ont.

Mr. Robt. Helderman is a Benedict

Yesterday afternoon a quietly celebrated wedding was solemnized at the residence of Mrs. W. F. Boswell, 575 Aylmer street, when Miss Emily Wilson Hopkins Magraw became the bride of Mr. Robert C. Helderman.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. E. A. Langfeldt, rector of St. Luke's church, in the drawing room. The bride was becomingly gowned in a travelling suit of blue, was attended by Miss Helen Hay and Miss Fannie Boswell, while Mr. W. Maurice van der Water supported the groom. The house was decorated with apple blossoms, ferns and trilliums. After the ceremony the little party partook of a dainty luncheon, served in the dining room, and Mr. and Mrs. Helderman left on the 4.48 C.P.R. train for a week's visit in Western Ontario.

The bride and groom are both well known in the city, as was evidenced by the large number of very handsome gifts received. Among the presents was a beautiful clock from the 57th Regiment Band of which Mr. Helderman has long been a members. When the newly married couple return they will take up their residence at 575 Aylmer street.

Grand Opera House

Splendid Production of "The Lion and the Mouse"

Henry B. Harris' great American play, "The Lion and the Mouse," was presented at the Grand Opera House last night to a large and appreciative audience. All present were delighted with the play, which was intensely interesting throughout. The acting was of a superior order, and the scenic effects were much admired.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

At yesterday's session of the police court presided over by Mr. S. R. Armstrong, J.P., in the absence of Magistrate D. W. Dumble, R. C. Newman arrested some eight or ten days ago as a vag, and who was remanded for eight days at his first trial, to enable the police to investigate his history, was once more remanded. During the week spent at Castle Nesbit, Newman has greatly improved in appearance, being cleaned up and spruce looking. Possibly his divorce from the little bottle containing cocaine, found on his person at the time of his arrest, was a factor in his physical betterment.

E. Raymond charged with having assaulted the young man Stevens, a son of the east ward junk and rag expert, when it is alleged Raymond broke Stevens' leg, was once more remanded on his own recognizance, pending Stevens being able to appear in court.

CONFESSED ASSASSIN TELLS STORY IN BOX

Says His Real Name is Alfred Hansley, and That He Was Born in Ontario---Known as Orchard for Eleven Years

Boise, Idaho, June 6.—The trial of Wm. D. Haywood, charged with the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, was resumed yesterday at ten a.m.

K. M. Brunzell of Nampa, a hotelkeeper, was the first witness. He testified as to the presence of Orchard and Simpkins in Nampa in 1905.

A. Hinkey, another hotel keeper of Nampa, also testified to the presence of Orchard and Simpkins in October, 1905.

John C. Connors, a hotelkeeper of Silver City, Idaho, identified a register to show the presence of Simpkins at Silver City on November 8, 1905.

C. H. Weats, bookkeeper for a mining company at Wardner, Idaho, identified a photograph of Simpkins and his handwriting on the register.

Guy Wright, of Nampa, testified that he met Orchard and Simpkins at Caldwell in the fall of 1905.

ORCHARD TAKES STAND.

Orchard was called to the stand at 9.42 o'clock yesterday morning. Mr. Hawley at once began his direct examination. Orchard said that he had been held on the charge of murder since January 1, 1906. He said he was born in Ontario and had been known as Orchard for 11 years. His real name was Alfred Hansley.

He became a member of the Western Federation of Miners in 1899 while at work as a mucker at a mine in Burke.

Mr. Hawley took Orchard through a close examination, taking up the Coeur d'Alene mining troubles in 1899. It was at Wardner the first trouble occurred.

TWO OF THE MURDERS.

The defence objected to the introduction of this evidence, as having no bearing on the case against Haywood.

Judge Wood admitted the testimony, saying; "The court could easily see it might be important."

Orchard proceeded in narrative form to tell how he lighted one of the fuses that blew up the concentrator at Wardner in April, 1899, when two men were killed. The defence objected continually. Orchard evidently avoided Haywood's glances as he testified.

BORN IN NORTHUMBERLAND.

"I was born in Northumberland County, Canada, in 1866," said Orchard, "and am therefore 41 years old. Harry Orchard is not my true name. I have gone by that name for about eleven years. My true name is Alfred Hansley. I came to the United States in 1896, first to Spokane, where I remained a week. I went to Wallace, Idaho, in March or April, 1896. I first worked for Marks brothers, carrying a milk wagon, and remained there until about Christmas, 1896. I then went to a wood and coal yard in Burke, Idaho, and was engaged in that business until the spring of 1899, and on my own account for two years. In 1898 I sold a half interest in the business to Mr. McAlpine. My business in Canada was making cheese."

TO HANG SUPERINTENDENT.

"On the morning of April 29, 1899, when I got through breakfast, I was told there was a special meeting of the Miners' Union and everybody was expected to be present. I went to the meeting."

Mr. Richardson objected again and was overruled.

"The meeting was called to order," continued Orchard, "by the secretary, who said it had been decided that day to go to Wardner to blow up the mill at the Sullivan and Bunker Hill mines, and to hang the superintendent."

Candles Spilt on George Street

Yesterday afternoon as a dray load of goods was being carted up George street from the C.P.R. freight sheds for delivery to various consignees, a large pail of mixed candies in some way fell off the cart to the street. A farmer passing by saw the spilled goodies and like a hawk after a hen, clambed off his wagon, and proceeded to collect sweets for the little ones at home. At the same time it was noticed that the candy pail had hardly struck the ground before the small boy, and many of him, seemed to spring out of nowhere ready to gather in the harvest.

Complaint by Canoe Men

Once more complaints are coming in from canoe paddlers and boatmen regarding matters at the lower lock. It is claimed that since the improvements at this spot the canoe slide is practically useless. Only expert paddlers dare attempt to make the grade and they are in constant danger.

A lot of stones taken out of the channel were dumped almost in the path of the canoeists, creating a stronger and more dangerous current than ever. Last year a petition very largely signed was presented to the authorities, but so far as is known nothing was ever done, and no attempt has been made to remove the obstacles or to assist the canoeists.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, the Heart or The Kidneys. For the ills of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, foul breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoops Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Commendable Action to Save the Girls

The Peterborough Children's Aid Society has undertaken a most commendable and far reaching crusade against the lamentable and too prevalent practice of young girls walking the streets during the evening hours. The society is in communication with the head office in Toronto in reference to this question. With the active assistance of the police officials and police magistrate the society is determined to put a stop to the practice.

Wanted: A Brain!

An employer in the City advertised for a man to fill an important position. This employer is a man of keen business attainments, and has built up in a very few years a trade which he could not afford to give up even to accept a

Salary of $10,000 per annum which had been offered him.

It is obvious that any one, to meet his requirements, must have business qualifications of a high order, such as are only possessed by a man of brains, and to such a man he offers high salary and other inducements. HE WANTS BRAINS!!!

Where are the Brains

Are you satisfied with the kind that only earn for you $10.00, $15.00 or $30.00 a week? Positions with high salaries are open, but it takes brains to fill them. Argue around Robin Hood's barn from now to Eternity, and you come back to first principles, viz that and renews the waste and the wear that goes on every minute.

Food builds Brains

If you want to make money you must have a strong money-making brain, and to secure that you must eat food containing the elements which especially feed the brain and nerve tissues.

Grape-Nuts food

contain these brain-building elements. The food is made of wheat and barley, and in these field grains an all wise Providence has hidden small quantities of Phosphate of Potash, the vital food for the brain and nerve centres. Grape-Nuts possesses this important element which is lacking in white bread, potatoes, mush, etc. Besides, in the manufacture of Grape-Nuts the starch in the grains is changed into a form of sugar or pre-digested, so that it is easily and quickly assimilated.

Eat Grape-Nuts ten days and see how effectively it quickens and sharpens the brain power

INCREASING IMMIGRATION

The telegraphic reports foreshadow a large increase in the volume of immigration this season from the United Kingdom to Canada. The manner in which the Dominion has been advertised in the British Isles recently is now bearing practical results, and there seems to be no doubt that this country will, in the future occupy the place in the views of those desiring to emigrate that the United States held fifty years ago. It is also satisfactory to learn that the Dominion Government has decided to cease its efforts to secure immigrants from parts of Europe, where, a few years ago, through its creation, the notorious North Atlantic Trading Company, it displayed great fetivity in securing hordes of undesirable people to come to Canada. We can now afford to be more particular about the quality than the quantity of the immigration to our shores. The additions to our population, even if not all of that kind we desire, should at least be confined to those likely to be intelligent citizens and able to understand the responsibilities involved in that.

SAN FRANCISCO'S TROUBLES

There seems to be no end to the troubles with which the people of San Francisco are being vexed. At a time when patriotism should prevail, and common action is necessary to rebuild prosperity after the disaster that earthquake and fire had wrought, there seems a disposition on the part of many to foment trouble and create difficulties at every turn. Only municipal rulers whose corruption and dishonesty almost beggar belief, there appears to be no man who can come forward and rally around him the best elements in the community. Notwithstanding the optimistic reports that appear in the press of the wonderful recuperation of the city from the effects of the disaster, it would seem to be probable that

Trial of Alleged Anarchist at Madrid

Madrid, June 5.—The trial of Senor Ferrer, director of the Modern School of Barcelona, Don Jose Nakens, editor of El Motin, and others charged with complicity in the attempt to assassinate King Alfonso and Queen Victoria May 31, 1906, began yesterday.

The State demands that Ferrer be sentenced to sixteen years' imprisonment and the others to ten years. Ferrer declared he did not know Morales, the man who actually threw the bomb, and in connection, said he himself was not an anchist, his ideal being to "depart" society by means of education. The documentary evidence against Ferrer is said to be strong.

A Splendid Exhibition of Radient Gas

Wonderful New Light at a Very Low Price.

Do you know about Acetylene? whether you do or not it will interest you and everyone who uses artificial light to learn that two business men of Peterborough, have entered actively into the supply of a system for making artificial light of a better quality and cheaper than any other now on the market. The system they are placing on the Peterborough market is now on exhibition in Messrs. MacGregor and Reid's store at 428 George street. A moment's glance at this wonderfully cheap, brilliant, and safe light demonstrates its possibilities.

Again it is asked, "Do you know about Acetylene?"

It used to be an experiment once, but now it is like the telephone or trolley car—a perfected fact.

There have been hundreds of faulty Acetylene Generators made in the experimental stage of its history.

But there has never been poor Acetylene Light, when properly made, by proper Generators, as it is today.

Acetylene is the clearest light—the purest, whitest, nicest, coolest Light ever made by man.

It comes so near to Sunlight that it will actually make plants grow by night under its wholesome, healthful rays.

And, because it is so clear and pure, with so little coloring to muddy it—so free from flicker and glare—it is the easiest light on the eyes yet discovered.

It lights up 10 to 15 times more space than Kerosene Light, City Gas-light or standard Electric Light, in proportion to the size of its flame.

On this account it is cheaper than any of the three.

A 100-candle-power Kerosene Lamp will burn a 25-cent gallon of Kerosene in five nights, if lighted four hours a night.

That would make it cost one and one-fifth of a cent per hour, or $17.52 in year, for Kerosene alone, to say nothing of broken lamps, chimneys, new wicks and the everlasting labor and risk of cleaning them.

A 24 candle-power Acetylene Light will cost you a third less than that—or one and one-fifth of a cent per hour.

This we will prove.

It means only $11.64 per year for Acetylene Gas, as against $17.52 per year for Kerosene, if used the same number of hours for 365 nights.

And, there's less work needed in caring for fifty Acetylene Lights than for one single Kerosene Lamp, with much less danger, as the insurance records prove.

That's a matter well worth your consideration — the comparative danger.

* * * * *

Over two million people in America now use Acetylene Light.

Yet the Insurance Records show that there were only four fires from it in the year.

The same authority shows that there were 8,222 fires from Kerosene and Gasoline during the same year.

And the Insurance Records can't afford to lie.

Tell us how many rooms there are in your house or hotel, or how large your store, and we'll tell you how much it would cost to install a Generator, Piping, Brass Gasoliers, Jets that make the clearest, whitest, cleanest, coolest, and most beautiful of all Reading Lights—Acetylene Gas.

FATALITY AT COBALT

Cobalt, June 5.—At the O'Brien mine yesterday, at the 150 foot level, David Blair, a Scotchman, recently arrived in Cobalt, was instantly killed, and Barry Weldy of Orillia, fatally injured. Both the latter's eyes were blown out, both legs broken, and he suffered other injuries.

The accident was caused by the premature discharge of an old charge.

Blair was a married man. Weldy has been mining for 15 years, and came to Cobalt from Copper Cliff. Both were 30 years of age.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906, we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, re-sold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proven mining land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work, goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as possible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

"Now then!" panted Burke. "By"—And then Bradley struck—struck from the uppercut—right under the ugly, protruding chin. Burke's teeth clicked together; he seemed to rise from the deck and fell backward at full length almost under the feet of Swensen. Bradley shoved the sailor from the wheel and gave the latter a whirl. The schooner shivered, turned slowly, the booms swept across her deck, and she heeled over on the other tack, with her nose pointing well away from the beach and toward the open sea.

Burke lay still for an instant, spread-eagled on the deck; then he rose to his feet. Bradley stooped and picked up the handspike. The first mate glared at the man who had knocked him down. Also he looked respectfully at the handspike. But if he had been angry before he was crazy now.

"You mutineer!" he shouted, with an oath between every word. "Just wait a minute. I'll show you how I treat mutineers!"

He ran to the cabin companion and jumped down. Bradley, trying to appear calm before the crew, glanced at the sails and then out over the side. Suddenly so clear that their outlines throbbed with it, there boomed out of the dark a shuttering, shaking roar, that swelled to a shriek and died away—the voice of the great steam foghorn of the Skakit light.

"Ugh!" muttered Swensen. "We vos that near!"

Burke came bounding up the companion ladder. Something bright and shiny gleamed in his hand.

"Now, then," he cried, "we'll see what"—

But two mammoth paws clasped his wrists, the hand with the revolver was turned backward till the barrel pointed at the end of the gaff and big Swensen's voice said calmly:

"Yah, I guess not. Yust vait a minute, Mr. Burke. Mr. Neekerson, vat I do vit him, hey?"

It was mutiny, of course, mutiny pure and simple, but Bradley had gone too far to back out now.

"Take him below and lock him in his stateroom," he said. "Tell the doctor to see that he doesn't break out. Then come back to me. Yes, you may give me the revolver."

Swensen twisted the pistol from the first mate's hand and then, picking him up as he would a ten-year-old boy, started for the cabin. Burke struggled furiously and swore like a wild man, but he couldn't break away. The shouts grew fainter and then were muffled almost entirely by the closing of the stateroom door.

Bradley put the revolver in his pocket.

"Now, then, men," he said, "I'm skipper of this schooner for the rest of this voyage. Is there anybody here that doesn't understand it? No? All right O'Leary, go forward on lookout. Peterson, heave the lead. Swensen," as the big Swede came up the ladder, "take the wheel and keep her as she is."

All that morning until daybreak sent the fog rolling to the north in tumbled clouds the lead was going, and the crew were busy on the Thomas Doane. Bradley stood close at Swensen's elbow and edged her out, feeling his way with the lead and listening to the calls of the fog horns. The schooner's own foot power horn was kept tooting, and by and by, as they got out into the ship channel, it was answered by other horns and bells, some close aboard, some distant.

But by breakfast time it was clear and fine, and, before a cracking wind, the schooner walked along as if she realized her escape and was trying to show her gratitude. Through that day Bradley stood by the wheel, only leaving to eat a mouthful and to inquire after Captain Titcomb, who was much improved and beginning to ask questions. And just at dusk the gilt dome of the Boston statehouse shone dimly in the dying light, and the Thomas Doane, resting from her labors, moved easily behind the tug up to her dock. She had made splendid time, but Bradley was far from happy. There was trouble coming, and he knew it.

He sent word to the cook ordering the latter to unlock the stateroom door and release the imprisoned first mate. A minute later the cook came on deck, his eyes shining with excitement.

"Mr. Burke, he go right into the skipper's room and shut the door," whispered the Portuguese. "And now they talk, talk, talk. And Mr. Burke he swear all the time."

When the first mate appeared he did not speak to any one, but jumped to the wharf and hurried away. A doctor was sent for and Captain Titcomb's wound was dressed. The physician said the injury was not serious. There was no concussion of the brain, and the patient would be all right in a couple of days.

Bradley didn't sleep much that night. Next morning the captain sent for him. When the second mate entered the stateroom he found the skipper sitting on the edge of the berth with a big bandage on his head, but looking very bright and like himself.

He seemed oddly embarrassed when Bradley came in. For a moment or two he did not speak. The second mate, who had expected a scorching rebuke and was prepared to meet it, was surprised at the mildness of the first remark.

"Now, then, Bradley," said Captain Titcomb, "I don't know whether I should you and the mate? Tell the whole yarn, first and last."

So Bradley told it, just as it happened—the crew's behavior, his suspicions, the sighting of the light and what followed.

"Humph!" Captain Ezra nodded. "Yup, that's about what Burke said. Now, Brad, I guess you know that Mr. Burke was your superior officer and that what he said was law for you, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir; but"—

"Never mind the 'buts' now. Taking command by force is serious—mighty serious."

"I did what I thought was right, Cap'n Ezra—what I believed you'd think was right. The schooner would have been aground in ten minutes if I hadn't."

"Well, s'pose she would. There'd have been no lives lost. Plenty of boats and a smooth sea."

But Mr. Burke knew she was headed for the shoals. He must have known it. The owners would have"—

"What do you know about the owners and their affairs?"

"But the schooner?"

"She's a hulk, that's all—and insured."

The reply was an odd one, but the tone in which it was made was odder still. Strange things had happened during the past week, Captain Titcomb's silent ill humor, the interview the day before leaving New York, the sudden change of mates, the skipper's studied indifference to the demoralization among the crew, Burke's frantic determination to keep on the course set by him even after the proximity to the shoals had been proved beyond a doubt—all these were fingers pointing in one direction. Bradley, however, had not looked in that direction. But now the last wisp of fog blew away, and he saw clearly.

"Cap'n Ez!" he gasped. "Cap'n Ez! Were you going to wreck her on purpose?"

The captain shifted in his seat, but did not look at his companion.

"Orders are orders," he said. "Mr. Burke was your skipper—with me out of the way—and you ought to have minded him, just as I should my owners."

"Wreck a vessel for her insurance!" groaned Bradley. "I didn't think you'd do it, Cap'n Ez. I didn't think you'd do it!"

The dismay, the grieved disappointment and horror in his friend's tone seemed to hurt Captain Titcomb sorely. He glanced at Bradley and then looked away again.

"I've heard all sorts of yarns about you in Orham," went on Bradley. "They say you're too smart and that you'll bear watching and all that. I've called those that said it liars, and I've stood by you through thick and thin. But now—What do you think they'd say if they knew of this? What do you think Miss Prissy and Miss Tempy would say? Why, they b'lieve you're the best"—

A Slight Mistake.

Chitto Harjo was pleading in Washington for the Indians' right to roam in nomad fashion, like their fathers.

"They tell us to trust to fortune," Chitto Harjo said, "and then we'll get our rights. But we are tired of trusting to fortune. Fortune has used us Indians as it used the [illegible] instructress at the Indian school in 1807."

Chitto Harjo smiled and went on:

"This instructress found a horseshoe, and to get good fortune put it under her pillow, along with her false teeth. In the morning in the hurry of dressing, she substituted the shoe for the teeth and did not discover her mistake till her affianced husband asked her in tones of horror at breakfast what was the matter with her mouth."

When Oregon Was in the Balance.

There is no boundary in the world of greater political importance than the forty-ninth parallel, which divides Canada from the United States. When this boundary was under discussion, the Pacific coast was almost inaccessible, and the ownership of Oregon, now a state of vast wealth, with opulent cities and a teeming population, was in the balance. The matter was settled by the report of Captain Temple, a brother of Lord Palmerston, who wrote to the admiralty "that the country was not worth a cuss because the salmon would not take a fly."—Manchester Chronicle.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and are close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high-grade running all through.

Indigestion

Stomach trouble is but a symptom of, and not in itself a true disease. We think of Dyspepsia, Heartburn, and Indigestion as real diseases, yet they are symptoms only of a certain specific Nerve sickness—nothing else.

It was this fact that first correctly led Dr. Shoop in the creation of that now very popular Stomach Remedy—Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Going direct to the stomach nerve, alone brought that success and favor to Dr. Shoop and his Restorative. Without that original and highly vital principle, no such lasting accomplishments were ever to be had.

For stomach distress, bloating, biliousness, bad breath and sallow complexion, try Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—and see for yourself what it can and will do. We sell and cheerfully recommend

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

A Woman's Back

Has many aches and pains caused by weaknesses and falling, or other displacement, of the pelvic organs. Other symptoms of female weakness are frequent headache, dizziness, imaginary specks or dark spots floating before the eyes, gnawing sensation in stomach, dragging or bearing down in lower abdominal or pelvic region, disagreeable drains from pelvic organs, faint spells with general weakness.

If any considerable number of the above symptoms are present there is no remedy that will give quicker relief or a more permanent cure than Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has a record of over forty years of cures. It is the most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine known to medical science. It is made of the glyceric extracts of native medicinal roots found in our forests and contains not a drop of alcohol or harmful, or habit-forming drugs. Its ingredients are all printed on the bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as correct.

Every ingredient entering into "Favorite Prescription" has the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice—more valuable than any amount of non-professional testimonials—though the latter are not lacking, having been contributed voluntarily by grateful patients in numbers to exceed the endorsements given to any other medicine extant for the cure of woman's ills.

You cannot afford to accept any medicine of unknown composition as a substitute for this well proven remedy OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, even though the dealer may make a little more profit thereby. Your interest in regaining health is paramount to any selfish interest of his and it is an insult to your intelligence for him to try to palm off upon you a substitute. You know what you want and it is his business to supply the article called for.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over forty years ago, much imitated but never equaled. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Orchard Known Near Gobourg, Eloped, Deserting Wife and Child

Chief Witness in Haywood Case Was Born of Respectable Parents

BROTHER IS RESPECTED

Left Wife and Child and Departed With Married Woman, Man's Real Name is Horsley

Cobourg, June 7.—Alfred Horsley, cheesemaker at a factory north of Brighton, left this part of the country about 1896. His name is that to which Orchard confesses, and although the published picture is not a good likeness of Horsley, there is no doubt there as to his identity.

Horsley was born of respectable parents who kept a garden farm about two miles from Wooler. Wooler is a small place some eight miles from Brighton.

BECAME CHEESEMAKER.

After working on the farm in his younger days, Horsley became a cheesemaker at Wooler, going afterwards to the Brighton factory.

Up to this time his record has been good, but he is said to have left the factory after the occurrence of a fire. There was some investigation of the incident, but nothing was proved.

WAS A BUSTLER.

Horsley was looked upon as a good cheesemaker, and is described as a hustler. He had an off-hand manner, and made friends easily, but, as one who knew him says, "He did not improve upon acquaintance."

ELOPED WITH MARRIED WOMAN

Horsley left the country, and not alone. It is said he went with a woman who later returned to her husband.

His wife was left deserted, and has lived at Wooler up to this spring, where she has supported herself by working in an evaporator factory, and for farmers. She has one little girl.

Horsley's parents are both dead. One brother lives at Wooler, where he is highly respected.

HAS A MARRIED SISTER.

A telephone message from Brighton indicates that Horsley has a married sister living there.

"Even as a boy," said a resident of Brighton, "Horsley showed the spirit of a gambler, and he was always very fond of gambling. Wooler was quite a place for playing cards, and Horsley was passionately fond of them."

It is said the woman with whom Horsley disappeared belonged to Campbellford. She was away only a month.

NAME IS ALBERT, HE SAYS.

County Councillor Henry Belford, who was in town yesterday, has clinched the identity of the Idaho self-confessed murderer. He knew Horsley as a barefoot boy, says his name is Albert, not Alfred, and that he left this vicinity about a dozen years ago. Mr. Belford had heard since of his being in the mining region where Orchard became notorious.

WIFE HAS MOVED AWAY.

As a boy he was quiet and unassuming. His mother was a good Christian woman, declared the councillor, and his father was a hard-working man. They did not have the easiest struggle for existence. Mr. Belford thinks that Mrs. Horsley is in New Ontario. Others believe that she went to Campbellford.

Illegal Fish Captured

Yesterday morning Fishery Inspector Watt was naturally jubilant over his good work done the preceding evening. It seems that whilst at his residence, Wednesday night, this efficient protector of our local game, got a telephone message notifying him that certain illegally captured fish were being shipped by train. After visiting both the C.P.R. and G.T.R. depots, Mr. Watt got "wise" (to use a slang expression), to a parcel on the express wagon. He thought the package looked suspicious and also recognized the name of the party to whom the box was addressed. Mr. Watt found a box full of fine lumps, packed in saw dust. The box was sent from one of the local hotels and the chances are the proprietor will appear in police court in the morning, unless he settles it before. If he settles it out of court, one of the conditions will likely be that he divulge the name of the party from whom the fish were bought.

Big Seamen's Strike Is Virtually Over

Paris, June 5.—The seamen's strike is regarded as being virtually ended, and the men are expected to resume work within 24 hours. The navigation companies have accepted the government's recommendations and will restore the officers and crews without insisting on any penalties. The French Trans-Atlantic line hopes to enable La Provence to sail from Havre today.

The only discord appears to be at Bordeaux, where some of the delegates, notably a man named Buscaillet, finding that the local organization is discontented with the proposed compromise arrangement, are attempting to secure a reversal of the decision to resume work, but apparently without any chance of success.

Denounced the Play

Moncton, N.B., June 5.—Rev. H. E. Thomas, pastor of the Wesley Memorial Church in this city, shocked the members of his congregation on Sunday night, when he denounced the amateur dramatic performances to be presented in the opera house Wednesday and Thursday, by a large number of young people, most of whom belong to the best families here.

The performance is the "Mikado," and is under the supervision of Prof. Perry, organist of the Methodist church, assisted by some prominent members of the leading churches here. It is in aid of the Firemen's Relief Association, and such affairs always receive generous support of the people.

Mr. Thomas, in a vigorous sermon on assailed circuses, theatricals, and operatic performances in general, claiming their influence was degrading and harmful. Not even an amateur performance should be countenanced by professing christians, and it was time these things were stopped. A circus is also to be seen in Moncton this week.

NOON IN PETERBOROUGH

What is Going on in Town When the Clock Strikes 12

Noon, the dinner hour, the hour of comfort, of pleasure and relaxation—the one hour in the twenty-four which comes to men and women of every station with greater similarity than the hour of any other function in life.

Promptly as the clock strikes 12 in Peterborough the shadows on anxious faces turn to lines of good will, and if villainous hot bread, pies, spices and other indigestibles were excluded there would be no such words as dyspepsia or indigestion in the dictionary.

But the contrary is true, and medical science has to step in and aid the man or woman who has been too busy to pay proper attention to health.

The greatest step forward in medical discovery is Mi-o-na, which cures ill stomach and digestive troubles. In hundreds of the best homes in Peterborough and adjoining towns the handy little tablets, so pleasant to take, yet effective, have given quick and lasting relief in indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

Mi-o-na acts very gently. Much of its wonderful power over indigestion comes from its uniform but sustaining action. The required stimulating and strengthening is given to the important organs of digestion without producing the slightest weakness or reaction.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Nordica's Ambition Very Much Realized

New York, June 6.—Mme. Lillian Nordica will establish on the Hudson, near New York, a Bayreuth in America. With a part of her great fortune the noted singer will erect the Lillian Nordica Festival House, which will be to this country what the famous Operatic Institution, founded by Richard Wagner, and now maintained by his widow, is to Europe.

An American Institute of Music, where American young men and women who aspire to operatic honors will be taught by the foremost teachers in the world, is included in the plans of the famous singer.

Tiger on Grand Stand

New York, June 5.—The Herald has received the following despatch from Panama:—In a much advertised tiger and bull fight this afternoon, which was witnessed by three thousand persons, the tiger in trying to get away from the bull broke out of the enclosure and made for the grand stand. A panic was averted by a fusillade of shots, which resulted in the death of the tiger after he got through the first ten rows of seats.

The firearm carrying proclivity of the people of this country came in good stead, as the killing of the tiger prevented a crush that could but have resulted in loss of life.

A bull fighter in a regular man and bull fight, which preceded the main events, was severely gored by the bull.

A Girl Conductor

Norfolk, Va., June 6.—"Yes, I worked for two months on a Broadway trolley car in the dress of a man, and was never suspected," laughingly admitted Miss Grace Wallace today.

"I have told hundreds of New Yorkers to 'Step lively, please,' accepted cigars and cigarettes, although I never smoked them, and evaded direct invitations to take a drink."

The young woman says she is from Pennsylvania. She declined to give the names of her parents, and admits that she at first played conductor as a lark. Meeting with success, she continued, and declares she made a good living.

Miss Wallace came here, she says, to visit a relative. She declines to say what name she used when playing conductor. She also declined to give her picture to newspaper men, saying she might return and resume her job. She is pretty, and has a robust constitution. She wears her hair short.

HORRIBLE TALE OF BUTCHERY

Murderer Tells of the Doing to Death of Steunenburg

CAPABLE OF ANYTHING

Has Orchard Destroyed All Public Confidence in His Credibility as a Witness?

Boise, Idaho, June 7. — Orchard, alias Horsley, the mastermind, resumed his confessions on the witness stand yesterday morning, giving his testimony against Haywood, the secretary-treasurer of the Western Federation of Miners.

The court heard the details of the wanton assassination of Arthur Collins, the superintendent of the Smuggler union mine at Telluride, who was shot in his home as he was eating supper.

According to the witness, Collins was killed by Steve Adams, his partner in murder, who is now in the Shoshone county jail, awaiting a second grind for the murder of a miner named Tyler.

Following the Collins murder comes the last of the gruesome tales in the history of crime, the blowing into eternity of former Governor Frank Steunenberg at Caldwell.

FEARFUL OF HIS SAFETY.

Orchard and his custodians are not less fearful of his safety than they were the preceding day.

Last night he was taken to the penitentiary to the quarters in the hospital to be occupied for thirteen months.

Prosecutor Hawley, in whose office the assassin slept Tuesday night, wanted him run out of his office, so that he could work with freedom, and without the presence of a gang of guards.

Orchard has succeeded in one thing.

He has convinced the public here that hanging is too good for him, regardless of the guilt or innocence of Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone.

Judgment as to his truthfulness is suspended till after his cross examination, which begins late this afternoon.

SUBSTANTIATION IS NECESSARY.

Haywood's lawyers spent the greater part of the night with him in his cell, going over the testimony given yesterday by Orchard.

That the cross examination will be severe is assured, as Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone are intelligent men and have aided their counsel in picking out discrepancies in the statements of the state's chief witness.

The case has taken a turn that was expected by those who have watched it since the beginning and that is, unless Orchard's confession is substantiated beyond doubt there will be a terrific revulsion against Governor Gooding, Senator Borah and Attorney Hawley, who have brought to the mine leaders on this murderer's confession of his own crimes.

CAPABLE OF ANYTHING.

Orchard's testimony, his cold blooded nonchalant, indifferent admissions that he slaughtered men as a butcher kills sheep, has not carried conviction that he is telling the truth about Haywood.

Every person who heard him, as in a matter of no moment, tell how he planted a bomb here, or shot a man to death there, regards him as a creature capable of anything.

He is known to be a bigamist, a thief, and worse, and perjury would come easy to him if he were promised anything that seemed worth while to him in his present circumstances.

Living Reptile in a Man's Stomach

Belleville Intelligencer says, in part:

Wednesday afternoon, shortly after the noon meal, Mr. Harry Geary, of Belleville, was seized with a fit of vomiting and threw up a lizard about four inches in length, which was alive. Mr. Geary stated that he had not felt any particular inconvenience through having the reptile in his interior and was much surprised when he coughed it up.

Some years ago he was engaged in working upon the river, and Mr. Geary is of the opinion that in drinking from spring along the river-bank he became the host of the lizard, which was then of small dimensions. It had evidently remained in his stomach for some time and had grown to its present size. Today he feels no ill effects from the experience which he has passed through. The lizard has been preserved, and Mr. Geary, has it is said, shown it to a number of friends already.

Mr. Peter Simons Has Passed Away

The Times late last night received the sad intelligence of the death of Mr. Peter Simons, the well known George street merchant tailor, who passed away in St. Joseph's Hospital. The cause of Mr. Simon's death was pneumonia. He was 65 years of age. Full particulars will be given in tomorrow's issue.

Germans Inspect Local Telephones

The Machine Company's System Was Investigated by Visitors From Abroad

Yesterday one of Peterborough's latest plunges into the uncertainty of business success, was visited by a number of German gentlemen. They were Messrs. Franz Gutzmann and Schnevsky, of Berlin, Germany, and E. Feyensberd, of Hamburg. These gentlemen are employed by the German Government and have been touring the United States and Canada for the purpose of studying the American and Canadian systems of telephoning, particularly those of the automatic system. They examined the head plant of the Machine Telephone Co. They leave shortly for Germany and will report to the government.

Whilst not in sympathy with a dual system of telephones, the inadvisability of which has been so efficiently and undeniably demonstrated in this city, by failure of the Ontario Telephone Co., which sold out to the Bell Co., at the latter's terms, we cannot but think that even a possibly losing concern has attracted attention to the importance and business enterprise of Peterborough, which may have a tendency to attract manufacturers.

SHOWED THE MINISTER

And Got Him in Line

"In a minister's family in Los Angeles where I was visiting sometime ago, the wife complained of serious indigestion and dyspepsia. She admitted that she used coffee and said she more than half believed that was the trouble. I told her that I knew it was, for I had gone through with the experience myself and had only been cured when I left off coffee and took up Postum Food Coffee.

"She said she had tried the Postum, both for herself and her husband, but they did not like it. With her permission, I made Postum next morning myself, and boiled it full fifteen minutes after the real boiling of the pot began. Then when it was served, it was a rich, deep brown color and had the true flavor and food value that every Postum maker knows. It is all folly to talk about trying to make Postum with one or two minutes steeping.

"You can't get something good for nothing. Postum must be well boiled, and to keep it from boiling over, use small lump of butter, perhaps twice the size of a pea. That morning the minister and his wife liked Postum so well that their whole lives were changed on the question of diet and they abandoned coffee at once and for all time.

"Now after a hard day's work, they are comforted, refreshed, and rested by a cup of well-made Postum for supper. They are both enthusiastic in its praise. The wife has entirely recovered from her dyspepsia. I will not go into the details of my own case, except to say that I was a desperate sufferer with dyspepsia and discovered by leaving off coffee that coffee was the cause of it. I quickly got well when I took up Postum Food Coffee. I earnestly hope many more coffee drinkers may get their eyes open."

Trotter, formerly of Peterborough is pastor, on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, June 19, 20 and 21. Several delegates from the Murray street and Park street Baptist churches will attend. Rev. Jas. Rev. Dr. Crothers is Well Pleased

Rev. Dr. Crothers, pastor of the George street Methodist church, has returned home from Berlin, where he was attending the meeting of the Hamilton Conference for several days. This well known local pastor is leaving the Bay of Quinte Conference and will in future be connected with the Hamilton Conference. He will be stationed at St. Catharines, for which place he will leave on or about July 1st. He is due at his new church on Sunday, July 7th, to preach his first sermon.

The reverend gentleman was delighted with the conference. There was a great deal of work to do, but it was transacted in good form. He was elected to give the lecture for theological union at conference next year.

I will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoops Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

IS PLAINLY A CASE OF MURDER

James Taushay Did Not Shoot Himself Near South Mountain, Ont.---Evidence Goes to Show He Was Killed by Some Man and Robbed

South Mountain, Ont., June 7. — There seems little doubt James Taush way was murdered. When the coroner opened the house after Sunday's tragedy, he found trunks smashed open; the writing desk lock broken open, and not a cent was found in the pockets of the deceased's clothes, which lay on the floor. In one corner of the house were his long-legged boots, just where he had left them, and under the stove was kindling wood, prepared for the Sunday morning fire.

The body lay upon the bed about six inches from the edge, with the quilts drawn up over the shoulder. The head was as natural as if in sleep; the right arm lay across the breast, while the left arm lay at full length close alongside the body, and the pistol was four inches from the hand on the bed. The bullet entered the head one inch behind the ear, and was extracted one inch below, on the right side.

In the room where the body lay, about a foot from deceased's head, was a pane of glass, which looked as if lately removed, because it was only held by four small tacks, and which could have been easily shot through. Upstairs a board, which had taken the place of a window, fastened by two nails driven in the side of the wall, and bent over, had been pushed out and the nails badly bent. On looking out of this window two holes in the ground could be plainly seen, which appeared to have been made by a ladder, and it was certain a ladder had been placed there not many days ago.

QUILTS DRAWN UP.

The quilts, which were drawn over the body, could not have been so placed by deceased after shooting himself. Taushway was a right-handed man, and was shot in the left side. The bullet went at such an angle through the head that it made self-destruction almost impossible. Even if the quilts had been thrown entirely and the revolver discharged, the jar of the shot would have thrown the revolver on the floor, because the body lay only six inches from the edge of the bed, and further, it was impossible for him to shoot himself and have his arm in the position found.

The robbing and ransacking of the house had a bad appearance, and it has not been positively established that the revolver found belonged to deceased.

Thieves Break In and Steal Cameras

W. G. Lendrum's Photograph Gallery Visited by Mid-Night Mechanics

When Mr. W. G. Lendrum, the Charlotte street photographer, entered his premises yesterday morning he, at once ascertained that an enterprising burglar had given him a call, on business, Wednesday night. The first indication of the accomplished burglary was seen when Mr. Lendrum found the front door unlocked. He then entered the store, and found that there had been a robbery committed, and that there were three cameras and a number films missing. They were "Ansco" cameras. There was one four by five inches, and the other two were three and a quarter by four and a quarter inches. The largest one is valued at $18.50, and the other two were worth $14.50 each. There were also numerous films taken. The burglars must have had a key to the front door, as Mr. Lendrum says he locked it when he left the night before. To make sure that it was locked, he returned the second time and tried it. The police now have the case under consideration but very little of a clue has been left by the burglar.

Tried to Suicide Twice Within a Few Minutes

Toronto, June 7.—Dragged out of the bay at the foot of John street twice after two determined efforts to send his life, Donald McKay, first mate of the Corunna, was hurried to the Western Hospital yesterday.

McKay was preparing to leave for Scotland, having left his boat here shortly after Engineer Fraser, one of his friends, was killed in the Bay street accident on the holiday. He had been drinking heavily as a result of brooding over the death of Fraser, and to that is attributed his two attempts to end his life.

The man was seen lounging about the slip at the foot of John street. Former Sergt. McClelland, who is employed there by, kept his eye on him. The man made a sudden rush and jumped into the bay. McClelland pulled him out. Ten minutes later he repeated the attempt, only to be dragged out again by McClelland.

Tickets, money, and papers were found on him, the tickets and papers showing that his passage had been arranged for on a steamer leaving Montreal.

Is This Body of Girl Who Eloped?

New York, June 7.—The body of a girl which the police believe may be that of Florette Whaley, who eloped from Hempstead, L.I., with Jere K. Cooke, a former minister of that town, on April 20, was found in the Harlem river near 162nd street yesterday.

The body had been in the water about ten days. It was that of a girl about 16 years old, 130 pounds in weight, with blue eyes and brown hair.

The police of Hempstead have been asked to come here to view the body.

Attacked By Wolves

Worthington, Algoma, June 7. — Two hand inspectors for the Turner Lumber Company, Donald McDonald and August Nitz, were attacked by wolves while carrying their camping outfit and canoe to a small lake about a mile from this camp. Nitz succeeded in climbing a tree. McDonald fought the animals with an axe, killing one, ere his companion attracted their attention by waving a yard rod gave him time to also climb. They were treed by the animals for several hours.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

Yesterday afternoon a lady well known in police, if not society circles, was arrested for showing well defined and unmistakable signs of having dallied with cheap whiskey. The prisoner, a Mrs. Richards, who resides on Hunter street, between the grounds of St. John's church and the Quaker Oats Mills, has necessity been in the police station once for running a disorderly house, and afterwards as the owner of a dog on which the tax not been paid. Yesterday afternoon P. C. McDonald found her without hat or jacket near the G.T.R. crossing on Hunter street and gathered her in. When arrested Mrs. Richards had on a pink and white blouse, a dark skirt and a large jag. She was placed in cell No. 3, and soon passed into the sleep that knows no wakening except when in a dazed condition. She will explain matters to his worship this morning when arrested Mrs. Richards, had every symptom of having engaged in a hand to eye scuffle as one of her eyes was sadly in mourning. The lady in question is short and stout, particularly the latter, with every indication of constant and serious indulgence in the juice that cheers and inebriates.

Yesterday afternoon a police officer from the town of Uxbridge, was here and called at the police station. His mission to Peterborough was to try and arrest a man whose name for obvious reasons is withheld. This officer is evidently a recent importation from Albion, and carries round an English accent that is strong enough to act instead of a club if wielded in self defence. He will leave for home this morning either with or without his prisoner, according to what luck he met with last night.

Herb Meihn was charged with a serious crime, that of rape, the alleged victim is Miss Mary Payne. The case was enlarged until next Monday.

Miss Sadie Dunlop Now Mrs. E. Stabler

Yesterday the main topic of conversation around the market, was the wedding held on Wednesday night, in North Monaghan, when Sadie, the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. Dunlop, was united in marriage to Mr. Nathan E. Stabler in the presence of one hundred guests. Rev. A. H. Bruce, of Park street Baptist church, officiated. The drawing room was tastefully decorated. At eight o'clock the bride entered leaning on the arm of her father, to the strains of the wedding march. She was becomingly attired in white dotted tulle over white silk drop skirt and bridal veil with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of white roses and carnations.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Emma, who wore a white Panama suit, and carried pink roses and carnations. The groom was attended by his cousin, Mr. Roland S. Garbutt. The Misses Marie Stabler and Eva Payne carried baskets of white roses.

The groom's present to the bride was a gold watch and chain and to the bridesmaid a gold chain; to the groomsman a gold locket and to the flowergirls gold diamond rings set in pearls.

The bride's presents were very numerous and valuable, that from Mr. W. A. Stabler, father of the groom, being a horse, harness, and rubber tire runabout.

The bride's travelling dress was of heavy blue cloth, tailor-made, with picture hat to match.

Mr. and Mrs. Stabler will reside at 546 Stewart street, where Mr. Stabler has recently purchased a comfortable home.

Bilious People Now Easily Cured

If you are frequently bilious or have feelings of nausea, there is a reason.

When the liver action is normal the bile is secreted in the proportions necessary to ensure the digestion of fats.

When liver action is irregular it is an evidence of impairment of nerve force.

When these derangements occur an undue amount of work is thrown upon the liver and kidneys, they rebel—the whole system suffers, and ill-health follows.

Another dangerous result of derangement of the biliary function is constipation. Deadly disease results from this condition.

This is a hateful condition because it ensures two results—heavy dark rings under the eyes and a sallowness that's absolutely abhorrent.

These derangements if allowed to continue excite the formation of gall-stones, cause jaundice, catarrhal inflammation of the bowels, and indigestion.

If you wish to get better, the very root of the trouble must be reached.

This can be accomplished only by Ferrozone—a remedy that strengthens the system, the blood, the liver and kidneys.

Ferrozone is food for the nervous system.

It fortifies and strengthens it.

The nervous system controls all the functions of the body.

Improve its tone, you improve the tone of the whole body and this is what Ferrozone accomplishes.

Its first action is to fortify digestion—this means nourishment and more building material.

Ferrozone makes rich, red blood—lots of it, and this means the proper action of all the large and vital organs of the body.

Quickly there comes strength, vigor, endurance—that glow of feeling which we call health.

You are sure of robust health; sure of strong nerves, good appetite; sure to look and feel your best if you use Ferrozone; try this great tonic, sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

TO FIGHT TUBERCULOUS DISEASES

We are glad to see that the Ontario Government is taking active measures to stamp out tuberculous disease in this Province. Hon. Mr. Pyne, the minister of education, has under consideration important regulations for preventing the spread of the disease among the children attending the public schools. Inspections of both the teachers and pupils are to be held and such other measures adopted as may appear to be desirable to effect the desired object.

It is to be hoped that the authorities, both Provincial and Municipal, in all the provinces, will make common cause against a disease that yearly takes so many lives and brings so much misery and distress to hundreds of homes. Only by general action throughout the Dominion can really effective results be obtained. It is of little use for British Columbia to erect a sanitarium and enact regulations respecting persons suffering from the disease, if those afflicted with it come here from other parts of the Dominion and thus continue to be sources of infection wherever they may go. Co-operation between the different provinces is essential to a successful result. That secured, consumption should become no more common than are now several other diseases that a century or so ago scourged the people of Great Britain and other European countries.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM

Ten thousand immigrants a week arrive in this country. Their hopes are as high as their purses are low, and their Canada's fate looks grave as she ponders ways of living up to their great expectations. — Toronto Star.

Millions entered the neighboring republic under like conditions spreading over the Western States, locating in towns and cities, and on the shares. Those immigrants brought little in cash. But they were healthy; wanted work, and sought at once for employment. They asked no favors, merely contending for the privilege of planting homes for themselves. Canada is not called on to look grave over these additions to her population. Work will be found for them in good time and added power, authority and prestige, as well as prosperity, will follow when they are digging, hoeing and hammering for a living, whether in shop and factory or on the farm. What the United States has done Canada can do.

The Old Rubbers Sent to Toronto

It is a matter of pleasure to note that the recent "rubber donation" held here in aid of the Free Sanitarium at Gravenhurst, realized a considerable sum. The first consignment of old rubbers has been shipped to Toronto, Mr. Robert Neill having taken charge of the disposition of the rubbers at the highest figure. The net result of the sale will be announced in a few days.

The following cash donations have been received by the ladies which they desire to gratefully acknowledge:

Mrs. Hunter Rose, $5; Miss Bell, Graham, $1; by Mrs. Arthur Stevenson from South Central school, Mr. Yenney's room, 45c; Miss Noble's 20c; Miss Ross' 50c; by Mrs. (Dr.) Boucher from Boys of South Central school, $1.60; Senator Geo. A. Cox, $10; Mr. A. Montizambert, $3; a friend, $10; Mr. James Kendry, $5.

A Daring Paris Dancer

Paris, June 6.—Maud Gwendolen Allan, a marvellous dancer, has given a new sensation to jaded Paris, but she fears that in New York there are not enough people who would appreciate the beauty of her work. The general run might object to seeing a woman running about the stage in bare feet.

Maud Allan's idea is that by means of the movements of her form and the expression of her face, she can convey across the footlights the sequence and the emotions of dramatic incidents.

She was born in Toronto, so she told the correspondent, who interviewed her here today, but was reared in San Francisco. She studied music for several years in Berlin and earned a first-class diploma. Then, although she never had been regularly taught dancing, she determined to seek out a new path in that art.

She studied Greek vases and Assyrian tablets, old books, hieroglyphics and what not, for whatever could give her a true notion of the real spirit of the dances of antiquity. She would study one picture for hours at a time, until she could feel that the movements of the pictured dancers of Greece or Assyria or Egypt was actually flowing through her own body. Then she would go home and practice incessantly until she had woven all these artistic suggestions into a harmonious whole.

Miss Allan appeared first at Vienna in reproductions of Greek dances, and then finding that the Salome story gave greater scope for her requirements, she presented it at Paris.

The Bourbons.

The house of Bourbon furnished kings to France, Spain and Naples and sovereign dukes to Parma. At one time it was said that the humblest member of this royal family was more influential than a prince of any other.

Spoons.

The earliest spoons were made of horn. Specimens of ivory and bone have been found in the abodes of the cave dwellers and lake dwellers all over Europe. Spoons of gold and silver are mentioned as having been used at Nero's table. In Saxon times every guest brought his own knife and spoon, the host providing a towel or cloth for wiping each at the close of the repast.

Didymus.

Didymus, the Alexandrian, was born blind, but, notwithstanding this defect, attained such great skill in mathematics, geometry and logic that he was reckoned one of the wonders of his age.

Dice.

Dice are made from ivory or bone, a cutting machine reducing the cubes to near the size required, after which they are polished, generally by hand.

The Cheese Fly.

The common cheese fly is only a tenth of an inch long. It deposits about 500 eggs in the cracks of cheese, though if not able to find this substance it readily selects another.

Digging Fish.

The digging fish is a native of the lakes and rivers of central Africa. When the dry season approaches it burrows in the mud at the bottom of its residence to the depth of two or three feet, goes to sleep and awaits the return of the wet season.

Locusts.

Hottons call locusts "little horses," and the German term for these pests is "hay horses."

The American Magazine for June

Any one of the four things in the June American Magazine would have made the number a good one; Edwin Lefevre's character sketch of Harriman, Miss Parker Butler's story of "Wetter, New York in 1913," Ray Stannard Baker's account of "The Negro in Southern City Life," or Ida M. Tarbell's story of Grover Cleveland's great fight of 1887.

In the same number the author of "Emmy Lou" tells another Letitia story. Elizabeth Irwin writes of the most famous artists' model in the world. F. Marion Crawford goes on with his serial, and David Grayson writes of "The Tramp" in his "Adventures in Contentment" series.

Other contributors of stories and poems are: M. J. Reynolds, Witter Bynner, Walter A. Frost, Francis Bent, Dillingham, Cale Young Rice and Walter Prichard Eaton.

Formal Opening to be Held Next July

The fire brigade at their meeting decided to hold the formal opening of the new fire hall some time during July. The matter of asking outside brigades to the city, met with general favor, but this cannot be considered because the local brigade has absolutely no uniform in which to turn out. It is thirteen years ago since the council purchased uniforms. Five years ago the boys were given a white coat and vest and were promised a uniform, but that was the end of it.

It was finally decided to have the fire hall thrown open to the public at about nine o'clock o'clock in the morning and at either eleven o'clock or at two o'clock have it formally opened by the mayor and aldermen who would give short addresses this to be followed by light refreshments to all present. In the evening it is proposed to hold a smoking concert upstairs.

This program will be sent as a report to the next meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, for acceptance.

The Fat Man's Burden.

Two Paris policemen observed an abnormally stout man being helped along by two friends. The officers advised his being taken to a hospital, but at the policemen's first words the man's companions took to their heels, while the stout man collapsed on the pavement. The police found that he had sixty feet of copper cable wound under his vest. He had stolen the cable.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making home improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,
Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

The captain broke in testily. "Never mind all that," he said. "As for 'Squealer' Wixon and Jabe Bailey's talk, I don't care a snap. And the old maids ain't exactly up to date in this world's way of lookin' at things. S'pose the old Doane was booked for thunderation by the shoal route—what of it? Mind, I only say s'pose. Better to go that way on a smooth night, with all hands saved, than to bust up in a squall and drown us all, as was likely to happen any minute. Nobody loses but the insurance folks, and they'd lose quick enough anyhow. Why, it's done a hundred times a year all along this coast. 'Member when the Bay Queen piled up on the beach off Setuckit last summer? Everybody was as sartin as could be that 'twas done a-purpose, but you couldn't prove nothin'. So with the Rhoda Horton and the Banner and any quantity more. S'pose—mind, I'm only s'posin'—that you'd got orders from your owners—orders, you understand—to do somethin' you didn't like? S'pose you'd always stuck to owners' orders a good deal closer'n you had to the Bible? You talk a lot. So do other folks. But what would you have done?"

"I'd have been honest and said 'No.'"

"Humph! Well, I guess you would. You're the nearest thing to an honest man that I've run across yit. Honesty is the best policy, they say. But was it honesty that made ha'f the millionaires? Are Williams Bros. rich because they've always been honest? Josh Bangs is in the poorhouse, and he's the most honest critter in Ornam, while his brother Sol is chairman of school committee, deacon in the church, has money in the bank and would skin the eyeteeth out of a down east horse jockey. Why"—

"Cap'n Ez," interrupted Bradley, "stop talkin' that way. You don't believe a word of it. I know you too well. The trouble with you is that everlasting 'owners' orders.' I almost think that that accident last night was, as Miss Tempy would say, 'sent' to keep you from doing something you'd be sorry for all the rest of your days."

The captain looked at the speaker oddly. "Then you cal'late," he said, "that I ought to thank God A'mighty and a tipsy fo'mast hand for savin' what the book folks would call my honor? That's all right; only wait till Williams Bros. send me their thanks on a clean plate with gilt doodads round the edges. Williams Bros. and your particular friend, Mr. Burke, ain't been heard from yet, my son. Well, Brad, I s'pose you'll be packin' up tonight anyway. An honest man, 'cordin' to your log, ain't needed on the Thomas Doane. I told you you ought to ship 'board the Arrow."

"I didn't ship on the Arrow because I'd rather be with you than anybody else on earth. I wouldn't sail with a rascal that would wreck a schooner, and I don't believe—I know you're not a rascal. Oh, can't you see? It isn't myself I'm thinking about—it's you—you!"

The captain took his knife from his pocket and whittled a corner off the cabin table before replying. Then he said slowly:

"Much obliged, Brad. But what do you s'pose Williams Bros. will want me to do when they give me orders for this liner's next trip?"

"I don't know."

"S'pose those orders are the same as the last, what then?"

"Then say 'No,' like an honest man."

Captain Ezra gave a short laugh. "Honesty, my son, is like dimends sometimes—it's pretty, but it comes high. You turn in. I'm goin' to set up awhile and smoke."

Bradley reluctantly went to bed, but when he awoke, several hours later, he heard the captain stirring in his stateroom.

Next morning the skipper received a telegram.

"Williams Bros., havin' heard from friend Burke, want to have a little chat with the commander of the clipper Thomas Doane," he remarked to Bradley. "That doctor squilgeein' my maintop with his physic stuff has made me feel A1 again. I'm goin' to New York tonight on the Fall River line."

And he went, leaving Mr. Burke in command of the schooner, a state of affairs not too delightful to Bradley. But the captain's stay was a short one. He was back on board early the second morning and called the second mate into the cabin.

"Well, Brad," he said, "I got my orders."

"Yes, sir," anxiously. "What were they?"

"'Bout the same as the last."

"And—and what did you say?"

Captain Titcomb leaned over and deliberately knocked his cigar ash into the center of a carpet flower. Then he looked up quickly and answered, with a quizzical smile:

"If you want to know, I told Williams Bros. to go to blazes, and, honesty bein' the best policy, you and me's out of a job!"

CHAPTER VIII.

"BRAD," asked Captain Titcomb, creasing the morning paper into folds and tossing it on the bed, "what are you plannin' to do now that our late lamented owners have committed financial suicide by cuttin' you off in the flower of your youth, so to speak?"

It was late the morning of the third day after the captain's return from his flying visit to New York. They had said goodby to the Thomas Doane the previous forenoon and were now occupying a room in the United States hotel.

Bradley, who was sitting by the window, looking down upon the hats of the people in the narrow street, answered slowly: "I don't know. I've been waiting to find out what you intended doing."

The captain crossed his legs and tilted back in his chair.

"I cal'late," he observed, "that I could walk out of this gilded palace of luxury and run afoul of another skipper's berth inside of an hour. Not at my old wages, of course, but a pretty fair berth, all the same. But, fact is, Brad, I've had a kink in my main sheet for a consider'ble spell. I've had a notion that some day I was goin' to cut loose and cruise on my own hook. You know I've hinted at it for over a year. Now, it looks as if this was my chance or never. Brad, how'd you like to be a wrecker?"

"A wrecker?" Bradley's face showed his absolute astonishment.

"Oh, I don't mean the line of wreckin' that is makin' your eyes stick out at this minute. Do you know Caleb Burgess, Cap'n Jerry's cousin?"

Yes; Bradley knew him. He owned a little schooner that flitted along the Cape Cod coast, picking up floating wreckage when it was of value, dragging for anchors, dredging for chains and ironwork lost by vessels in trouble and doing a sort of nautical old junk business.

"Well," went on the captain, "Caleb's gittin' old, and he'd like to sell out. Most folks think he's scratched a bare livin' from the shoals, but I happen to know that he's done a good deal better than that. The old man told me how much he had in the bank, and it wan't to be sneezed at. Now, I could buy that schooner of his cheap. She isn't much, and money would have to be spent on her, but she'd do for a start. You understand, the wreckin' business I'd do wouldn't be anchor draggin' alone. There's money in a first class wreckin' plant on Cape Cod. Wrecks! Why, they pile up there three deep every winter. Now, listen a minute, while I rise to blow."

Bradley listened, and the captain talked. He had evidently given much thought to this proposition, and his plans were ambitious. He believed that if a capable man bought the Lizzie—that was the name of the Burgess schooner—added to her equipment and sailed her himself he could build up a profitable business. The salvage of cargoes of stranded schooners and of the schooners themselves played a large part in his plans. One or two good sized jobs of this kind taken on a commission basis would bring in capital enough to warrant the purchase of a bigger vessel, fitted with auxiliary power, fitted with a diving equipment, derricks and the like.

"But wouldn't that take capital?"

Geometry.

The invention of geometry is attributed by some to the Assyrians or Chaldean philosophers, by others to the Egyptians. Geometry was brought into Greece by Thales in 600 B. C. The study was greatly improved by Pythagoras.

Buckles.

Some form of buckle was in use in the Roman army before the Christian era. These buckles were provided with tongues which passed through holes in the belt. In the reign of Charles II. of England buckles instead of shoestrings became fashionable and were made of great size, some covering the whole instep.

Fort and Fortress.

The difference between a fort and a fortress lies in the fact that the former is designed to contain solely the garrison and their munitions, while the latter is often a city containing a large number of noncombatants.

Mineralogy.

The first scientific work on mineralogy was by George Agricola in the sixteenth century. Before that time it had been considered only as a part of geology.

Tom Thumb.

Charles Stratton, better known as General Tom Thumb, was thirty-one inches high at twenty-five years of age. His wife was thirty-two inches high at twenty-one. Their child is said to have been the most minute speck of humanity that probably ever appeared on the earth.

Bottles.

Bottles are blown, the blowing process being as old as the time of the pharaohs, for in the Egyptian monuments are depicted glassblowers at work just as they work today. Machine made bottles are molded.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,000,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 600,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Men Require Nerve and Blood Tonic.

How Are Your Nerves?

The daily grind of life burns up a man's vitality faster than he renews it.

He gets shaky, starts at trifles, tosses in his sleep, is ready to fly off the handle any minute.

The nervous man is nervous because his blood is so thin his nerves are starved to death.

He needs Ferrozone!

Its first action is upon digestion.

It stimulates secretion of gastric juice, ensures perfect digestion, prepares the food so it can be at once assimilated.

Hence the blood is nourished, is fortified, made redder, richer, stronger.

To the whole organism is imparted a vim, endurance and reserve of vigor that the nervous man never knew before.

The restorative power of Ferrozone is marvelous. In a month it will make you feel like new, just as it did Mr. Karl E. Newsome of Rothesay, who writes: "I owe a debt of gratitude to Ferrozone which saved my life after a severe siege of nervous prostration. About a year ago my health gave out. I was in such a weak, irritable condition I couldn't work, and found that three doctors did nothing for me. My druggist recommended Ferrozone as the best preparation for nervous troubles, so I commenced with one tablet at meals. Every box of Ferrozone I took did me more good than the previous one, and it wasn't very long before I was completely cured. Ferrozone braced up my nerves, gave me a strong, healthy constitution, and is certainly a marvelous restorer and tonic."

Try Ferrozone—sold everywhere by druggists in 50c. boxes.

Customs House Caretaker Hurt

The many friends of "Daddy" Taylor, the popular caretaker of the Customs House block, will regret to learn that he has met with a painful accident, whilst oiling the gate leading into the court yards, when the high wind threw one gate closed crushing his fingers badly. Dr. Young was called and dressed the wound. No bones were broken but Mr. Taylor will be laid up for a week or more.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Olympic Club's Outing Over

Notwithstanding the cold weather and drizzling rain of yesterday the Olympic Clubs excursion was greatly enjoyed by those participating. After leaving the train at Lakefield the party were hospitably welcomed aboard the fine steamer Stony Lake, which quickly took them through the scenic scenes of beauty on all sides so admired, to Buckhorn, where Mine Host Tom Eastwood served up a dinner fit for the gods. After a pleasant visit at Buckhorn the steamer once more plowed her way to Bobcaygeon and Lindsay. After supper at Lindsay, the G.T.R. flyers was caught and the party returned home after a pleasant day spent midst beautiful scenery and careful attention on the part of all those encountered.

Mass

A lake shaped something like a pair of spectacles, rather than a pair of lakes, joined by a passage some few feet wide. A lake immensely deep in parts, with sunny bathing beaches, perfectly safe, along its shores beautiful woods all round, full of native life, unspoilt and largely untrodden. And, beetling over the water, just at the bridge of the spectacles, is the grand old rock, the crowning glory of Lake Masanoga. "The Gibraltar of Canada," it has been called, and fitly enough. A mile and more long, hundreds of feet high, rising sheer out of the calm waters of the lake, impressively beautiful by day, positively awe-inspiring in the moonlight, as this great stone mountain, in its shadow nestles Bon Echo Inn, as nearly perfect a summer hotel as one could wish to find. Hotel seems scarcely the word for Bon Echo, so homelike is it—the hotel feeling lasts no longer than it takes our genial host to express his welcome. Canoeing, sailing, rowing, swimming, all may be enjoyed at Masanoga, and down in the depths lurk gamey ouinonnetrout. Masanoga is a resort recently discovered, and known to comparatively few Canadians. But for people who want to get near to nature, and yet not out of touch of civilization, who want to enjoy glorious air, brilliant sunshine, cool waters and all the fascinations of a primitive region combined with the comforts of a modern summer resort, Masanoga is the place. If You Read This

It will be to learn that the leading medical writers and teachers of all the several schools of practice recommend, in the strongest terms possible, each and every ingredient entering into the composition of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of weak stomach, dyspepsia, catarrh of stomach, "liver complaint," torpid liver, or biliousness, chronic bowel affections, and all catarrhal diseases of whatever region, name or nature. It is also a specific remedy for all such chronic or long standing cases of catarrhal affections and their resultants, as bronchial, throat and lung disease (except consumption) accompanied with severe coughs. It is not so good for acute colds and coughs, but for lingering, or chronic cases it is especially efficacious in producing perfect cures. It contains Black Cherry bark, Golden Seal root, Bloodroot, Stone root, Mandrake root and Queen's root—all of which are highly praised as remedies for all the above mentioned affections by such eminent medical writers and teachers as Prof. Bartholow, of Jefferson Med. College; Prof. Hare, of the Univ. of Pa.; Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Med. College, Chicago; Prof. John King, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., of Cincinnati; Prof. Edwin M. Hale, M.D., of Hahnemann Med. College, Chicago, and scores of others equally eminent in their several schools of practice.

The "Golden Medical Discovery" is the only medicine put up for sale through druggists for like purposes that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any number of ordinary testimonials. Open publicity of its formula is the best possible guaranty of its merits. A glance at this published formula will show that "Golden Medical Discovery" contains no poisonous, harmful or habit-forming drugs and no alcohol—chemically pure, triple-refined glycerine being used instead. Glycerine is entirely unobjectionable and besides is a most useful agent in the cure of all stomach as well as bronchial, throat and lung affections. There is the highest medical authority for its use in all such cases. The "Discovery" is a concentrated glyceric extract of native, medicinal roots and is safe and reliable.

A booklet of extracts from eminent medical authorities, endorsing its ingredients mailed free on request. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

MAGISTRATE ALLOWS ARGUMENT TO RULE

Serious Case Decided by Letter Rather Than Spirit of the Law in Child Abandonment Case in the Local Police Court Yesterday

Yesterday morning Mr. D. W. Dumble, the respected dispensor of justice at Peterborough police court, had a case that evidently worried him. To judge between the result of actual evidence and the letter of the law as laid down by Mr. Kerr, of Denniston, Peck, Kerr & Stevenson for the defence, and the ultimate endorsation of the defence's claim by County Crown Attorney Wood, it looked like the magistrate on whose decision rests the fulcrum of the scales of justice, was somewhat worried.

To get at the beginning of this somewhat "contre-temps of justice, let alone law, we might say that, at yesterday morning's court, the case of Laura Gillespie, remanded Wednesday last on a charge of child abandonment was proceeded with as noted before his worship Magistrate Dumble.

Mr. F. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant, and Mr. R. E. Wood conducted the case for the crown. Mr. Kerr pleaded not guilty and elected to be tried by jury.

The issue tried, which will probably result in a material change in at least one law of the county, was a charge against the Gillespie woman who was charged with abandoning her child.

The first witness heard was a Mrs. A. Loucks, of this city, at whose house the child was left. She stated the prisoner left a male child about two months old at her door on the 17th of September last. Witness was not at home. The child was left with her daughter. Mrs. Loucks said she kept the child two weeks, then Mr. Cochrane took it to Mrs. Gorman who kept it until the little one was adopted by Mrs. Cooke, of Harwood. Witness said that she went and saw the magistrate. Mr. Donnistoun and Mr. Cochrane. They told her to keep it, and she would be paid for its keep. Witness also stated that she took the child to where the mother was staying, but she would not take it.

Miss Jennie Loucks, next called, stated that she was at a friend's house when the prisoner called, and said she wanted them to adopt the baby. She told them she was married, and wanted them to keep the baby till she got work as her husband had left her.

Mr. Kerr put up one of the most masterly defences ever heard in this city, for his client; in his defence he had the almost unprecedented audacity to call upon the county crown attorney, who prosecuted this particular case to sustain him, Mr. Kerr, in his defence.

Mr. Wood, after Mr. Kerr had read the law on "abandonment," which practically said that "abandonment," in the interpretation of the law meant a woman leaving her child, "where it might incur death or physical injury," agreed with counsel for the defence, although his so-called duty as prosecutor possibly forbade the same.

The magistrate, and the community will endorse his views although possibly against the law as now laid down, said, whilst not in such exact terms as follow, that the law was rotten. That it left a door open for any woman to throw baby into the river, leave it on anyone's door step or do what she likes with impunity. He hesitated to take the responsibility of allowing the prisoner, who had evidently abandoned her baby, to go without committing her for trial, where a conviction would mean a three-years' sentence. Still as the prosecuting attorney agreed with Mr. Kerr for the defence, in thinking the law left too wide a door open for such offences, he dismissed the case.

It seems that the woman prisoner in this case left her young baby with friends, as noted, promising to return for it in a few days. This promise was never kept. The magistrate drew to the actual law as propounded by Mr. Kerr and agreed to by the crown attorney, as being LAW whilst not possibly full "equity" was very commendably opposed to such a loose way of disposing of infants by mothers.

In conversation with a few of the leading legal men of Peterborough, yesterday, a Times man was assured that this case will, in all likelihood lead to a repeal or important modification of the law on abandonment. At the same time Mr. Woods was quite right in abandoning his case for the prosecution, when the actual letter of the law was read, as this is what is supposed to actuate his actions.

Mr. Kerr won one of the most important cases that has fallen to the younger generation of Canada's lawyers in years. The importance is dependent more on precedent or possible (if not probable) change of the law, than possibly the merits of the individual case.

Norwood Lady is Badly Burned

The splendid home of Ex-Warden J. B. Pearce, in Norwood, had a close call Tuesday night from being destroyed by fire, and Mrs. Pearce had a narrow escape on account of the explosion of a lamp in the sewing room, where she was sitting between the hours of eleven and twelve that night. The oil burst into flames, and set fire to the carpet and curtains of the room. In trying to extinguish the flames, Mrs. Pearce had her hands severely burned. Her cries brought other members of the household to her assistance and they succeeded in smothering the fire.

Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

At the court a very stout lady, whose eye showed contact with something more solid than a child's air balloon, viz., Mrs. Susan Richards, was fined five dollars for being drunk on the public streets. She will spend fifteen days in jail. She asked to be allowed until today to pay the fine. Mrs. Richards is regarded as a pest, a nuisance and it was thought the best place for her would be in Castle Nesbitt so allow the booze inky to evaporate. After her own case had been concluded she had a charge against her son, John Richards, for assaulting her on Wednesday evening last.

Mr. D. D. Kerr appeared for the defendant.

Mrs. Richards stated that she was at Mrs. Kerr's and her son came and ordered her away. He seized her by the throat and put her out. He had been the means of bringing her out to this country and then he thrown her outdoors without any where to go. She said that he claims he does not drink, but Mrs. Richards says that he can drink her out of sight.

At the police court yesterday morning, Mr. Tooley, proprietor of the Queen's Hotel, was found guilty of breaking the fish and game law. He had in his possession on June 5th, a box containing three lunge, which he had intended to be shipped to Toronto.

The information was laid by Mr. John Watt, fishery overseer, who found the fish at the G.T.R. station about to be sent to ex-Ald. Stewart of Toronto. Mr. R. E. Wood conducted the case. Mr. Tooley pleaded not guilty.

His worship imposed a fine of $23.10, which was paid.

Mr. Watt, fishery overseer, said he found at the G.T.R. station a box containing three fish. The clerk of the Canadian Express Co., was just on the act of weighing them.

Lane Watson, driver for the Express Co., said he got the box in the back shed of Mr. Tooley's hotel.

Mr. Skitch, acting agent of the Company, stated that he got a telephone message from Mr. Watt asking if he might open the box. Witness told Mr. Watt to open it, he being an inspector.

Mr. Tooley did not give any evidence, but after the trial was over and sentence delivered, Mr. Tooley said jokingly that the fine did not hurt him but that the Protestant Home committee should eat fish at $1.17 1-2 a pound at his expense, was kind of tough.

Mr. P. Simons to be Buried Sunday

Further Particulars About Deceased Well Known Merchant

In our issue of yesterday was contained the sad news of the sudden death of Mr. Peter Simons, one of Peterborough's veteran and most highly respected George street merchants. In this issue we noted that Mr. Simons had passed away in St. Joseph's hospital. Whilst this is not correct, it might be noted that every arrangement had been concluded to have the deceased removed to the hospital, under his medical attendant's orders, for treatment for pneumonia. However, Mr. Simons surrounded by members of his family, and leaning his shoulders against his eldest son's arm, after asking for a drink of water, suddenly and unexpectedly passed to life's mystery, the deep shadow of death.

The last rites of his church were administered by Rev. Father Galvin. His nephew, Rev. Father Kelly was with him to the end. Mr. Simons was 63 years of age and was born in Brockville, but had lived nearly all his life in this city. He was married to Miss Elizabeth Boyle, who survives him. Four boys and fourg irls are left to mourn his loss. One daughter, Mrs. E. White, predeceased him a year ago. The daughters are Mrs. F. A. Shannon of this city, Miss Lillie Simons of Thompson's Memorial Hospital, Canadaigua, and Misses Annie and Nellie at home. The sons are Messrs. Peter and James of this city, Daniel of Boston, and Dick of Altoona, Pa. The late Mr. Simons was a member of the C.M.B.A.

The funeral will take place on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock from the family residence, 311 Rubidge street to St. Peter's cathedral, and thence to the Roman Catholic cemetery.

Yesterday Mr. P. Simons, jr., telegraphed to his brothers Daniel, whose regular address is Boston, Mass., and Richard at Altoona, Pa. It is expected that both these boys will be present to attend the last sad rites.

In the passing of Mr. Peter Simons many a man in Peterborough a long known and trusted friend.

Appeal in Kendry vs. Richmond Beaten

In the Osgoode Hall Court of Appeals, the following case of local interest was settled;—

Kendry vs. Richmond—A. P. Poussette, K.C., for defendant, appealed from judgment of Riddell, J., dated 8th April, 1907. The plaintiff, a factory superintendent, and the defendant, a photographer, both resided in Peterborough. In August, 1906, the plaintiff entered into an agreement to sell to the defendant certain property that plaintiff had been using as a chicken farm. Defendant at once entered into possession and shortly afterwards found that instead of eight hundred chickens on the farm as represented, there were less than five hundred. Defendant thereupon refused to carry out the provisions of the agreement and went out of possession in the following month. The plaintiff brought this action to recover $1,000 damages. At the trial at Peterborough on April 8th last judgment was given for the plaintiff for the full amount of claim and costs. D. O'Connell, Peterborough, for plaintiff, opposed appeal. Appeal dismissed with costs.

Complaint re Carts on the Pavements

(To the Editor of The Times).

Sir,—I have seen in the papers of this city several letters asking why the police do not wake up, after the notice apparently given by them to the local press, and stop boys taking up the whole pavement of George treet, on at least the side they occupy at the time, by their express wagons. Now, Sir, I think the road way is the right place for these small but noisy hand-drawn carts, loaded with goods of all sorts, or small boys, if going down hill. These boys rush along the pavements of George street dragging their wagons, regardless of the cars, nerves, legs or other portions of pedestrians' anatomy, if the police will not stop these nuisances and menances to safety, it is time the attention of our city fathers was called to so insufferable a matter.

TORONTO GIRL COMMITS SUICIDE

Queenie Gray, in Fit of Jealousy, Took Her Life

DRANK CARBOLIC ACID

Had Attempted Suicide Once Before in Milwaukee---Girl's Parents Said to be Still in Toronto

Muskegon, Mich., June 7.—Despondent at the life she was living and jealous at a seemingly trivial affair that occurred the previous night when she was one of a jolly automobile party and her lover hugged a girl friend, Queenie Gray, aged 21 years, yesterday committed suicide by drinking the contents of a two-ounce bottle of carbolic acid shortly after noon. She ate her dinner at the table with other girls in the house, and the meal was made a sort of birthday party in honor of the anniversary. She seemed jolly and in the best of spirits, but soon after she had finished her repast she went to her room, and, lying on the bed, swallowed the entire contents of the vial. She had taken the carbolic acid from another girl's room. Soon friends went upstairs and knocked at her door, but received no response, and the door was burst open. Writhing in the last agonies of death the girl lay stretched out at full length on her bed, her throat bared and her face badly burned with the fiery liquid. She left no note indicating where her home was nor the reason for her act, but friends in Muskegon say that she came from Toronto, Ont., and that her parents are reputable residents of that city. Some time ago she attempted suicide in Milwaukee, but was seen in the nick of time. Coroner Babbitnie of Muskegon, is holding the body awaiting word from the girl's relatives.

Proof Against R. R. Accidents

London, June 8.—A five-year-old boy fell yesterday from a train that was running near Twyford. He was not hurt and ran to rejoin the train which his father in the meantime had stopped.

Before the boy reached the train an express passed along the parallel rack upon which the youngster was running and knocked him down, passing over him. The boy immediately rose and continued running to meet his father.

His head was cut and streaming blood, but he was not seriously hurt.

Worse Than Murder of Missionary

Tokio, June 8.—The Kwhi, which is supporting Count Okuma in his position on the American question, yesterday morning said:

The San Francisco outrages are worse than the murder of a missionary in China, which resulted in the occupation of Kiao Chow. Who would blame an appeal to the last measure of an impotency to protect treaty rights is proved.

We hope, however, that Ambassador Aoki will be firm enough to make the Washington Government quickly take measures to mete out justice to the Japanese.

Local Plumbers After a Patent

Messrs. MacGregor and Reid Have Subdued the Old Time Boiler Pounding

Mr. C. E. Oldacre, representative of the Gurney Foundry Co., was in the city yesterday. In conversation with a Times' representative, Mr. Oldacre noted that Messrs. McGregor & Reid, the George street plumbers had, to use a humble and somewhat slang expression, "tumbled" to a simple process of preventing the boiler and pipes of a steam heating plant from what is technically called pounding. Mr. Oldacre, who has been many years with the Gurney people, after hearing Mr. MacGregor demonstrate the simple attachment he, Mr. MacGregor, had attached to the King Edward school boiler to prevent the "pounding," within some three minutes after making a diagram of the plant and apparatus, replied, "Say, Mac, you have conquered a trouble that has bothered foundry and boiler men for years."

The Times man who happened to be present during the conversation, remarked to Mr. MacGregor, "You certainly ought to get a patent on that idea of yours."

Messrs. MacGregor & Reid last night mailed by registered post to the patent offices of the United States and Canada, a regularly drawn up request for letters patent on their discovery.

Dr. R. W. Bell's Son Enters Benedicts

The Toronto Star contains an account of the marriage of Miss Alice Maud Robinson to Mr. Garnet Summer Bell, of the Bank of Montreal, son of Dr. R. W. and Mrs. Bell, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Mr. Broughall, of St. Stephen's church, in the drawing room, which was banked with palms and flowers. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of ivory Liberty satin, seeded with pearls, and berthe of Sandunde lace, the gift of the groom's mother. Her tulle veil was arranged over a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. She was attended by Miss Florence Bell, the sister of the groom wearing pink rajah silk, and carrying a shower of lilies of the valley. Mr. Norman Bell, brother of the groom, was best man. Miss Marjorie Fitzgibbon played the wedding march, and during the service, Miss Gertrude Morrow sang "For All Eternity."

Later in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Bell left to spend their honeymoon in Montreal and Quebec.

A Disappointment

Winnipeg, June 8.—The Grain conference has proved a very distinct appointment to all classes interested in that industry. The refusal of the grain exchange delegates to participate in the deliberations, after they discovered that it was proposed to have all exchange bylaws submitted to the lieutenant-governor was a blow to the government. The feeling is very general that the conference has contributed nothing substantial to the solution of the difficulties. The chief resolutions adopted for reciprocal demurrage and government storage elevators contain nothing new, and had been advocated steadily by the Grain Growers' Association for months. The government has given no evidence of what its policy will be in respect to these two resolutions.

CAPTAIN BLEW UP HIS SHIP

EXPLOSION HEARD 60 MILES

Whole Crew of Turkish Sailing Vessel and Eighty Sponge Fishers Sent to the Bottom

Tunis, June 7.—A Turkish sailing vessel, laden with contraband ammunition, and bound for Tripoli, has been blown up in the vicinity of Port Zarzine. Her entire crews, as well as eighty fishermen who were alongside at the time, were drowned.

The vessel had on board rifles and 500 barrels of powder. The local authorities learned she was about to take advantage of the absence of the guardships to try to disembark her cargo on the beach. They thereupon ordered armed boats belonging to sponge fishers to prevent the landing. Twenty-four of these boats went out and surrounded the vessel, when a terrible explosion occurred.

It is believed the captain fired his vessel to avoid capture. A majority of the sponge boats went down with the vessel. The explosion was heard sixty miles.

Zarzine is in Tunis, near the frontier of Tripoli.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES

HE DIDN'T KNOW HAYWOOD AT FIRST

Orchard Makes One Admission That May be of Use to the Defence---Forgets How He Voted on Question of Blowing up Mine

Boise, Idaho, June 8.—The trial of Wm. D. Haywood for the murder of former Governor Frank Steunenberg was resumed at 9 a.m. yesterday.

When Orchard again took the stand yesterday he said he had neglected Thursday to give the name of his sixth sister, Minnie Horsley, who married a man named Rogers, and who lived in New York State. Orchard also said that he stated Thursday the had no partners in the wood business in Burke, Idaho. He remembered now that there were two men to whom he owed money, and to whom he had promised an interest in the business.

Orchard admitted that while he was in Idaho he became quite a gambler, playing poker most of the time.

FORGOT HOW HE VOTED.

He was asked how he voted the day the unions decided to go down to Wardner and blow up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills, and said he didn't remember.

E. F. Richardson, for the defence, took the witness through a description of the make-up of the train which took the rioting miners to Wardner. Orchard said it was composed of 13 cars, some being freight and others passenger coaches.

"Are you sure" finally asked Richardson, "that you were not at Burke or Mullan playing poker when this explosion occurred?"

DID NOT KNOW THEM.

"I am sure," came the reply. "I lit one of the fuses which fired the powder under the mill."

"Did you know Haywood, Moyer, or Pettibone at this time?"

"No, sir."

"They were not with you at Wardner when the mill was blown up, were they?"

"No sir; not that I know of."

Orchard said he left Idaho after the blowing up of the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills to avoid arrest. He was taken over the years from 1899 to 1902 in detail, explaining where he worked, where he got his money, and where he went from time to time. Orchard said he worked on an average of 10 or 11 months a year in the mines of Utah, Nevada and Arizona. He gambled part of the time.

"Did you lose when you first began to play?"

"Not always."

"But you finally got to the other fellow always low, didn't you?"

"I nearly always lost."

WAGES WENT IN GAMBLING.

Orchard traced his journeyings from place to place, supplied the information, admitting that a large percentage of his wages went over the gambling table. He seldom remained more than from one to three months in any mining camp.

Up to the time he went to Colorado in 1902, Orchard said he had never heard of Haywood, Pettibone, Moyer or Simpkins.

Orchard said he did not hear of Governor Steunenberg's action in suppressing the Coeur D'Alene troubles until some time after he left Idaho.

REJOINED THE UNION.

The witness said it was his own initiative which took him to Colorado. At that time, July or August of 1902, there was no trouble in Cripple Creek. Arriving in Colorado he went to work in the Trachite mine and renewed his membership in the Federation, joining a local headed by W. F. Davis, who had been in charge of the party which blew up the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mills.

A DRAMATIC SCENE.

Orchard said that "Bill" Easterly, among others, had discussed with him the method of blowing up the Vindicator mine. Mr. Richardson called Easterly from the audience. He was identified by Orchard.

Orchard said he joined in the Cripple Creek strike of August, 1903.

Richardson asked him if by "high-grading ore in the Vindicator mine Orchard did not mean he was merely an ore thief.

"I don't know what you call it," replied Orchard. "We took the high class ore out secretly and sold it."

MADE $25 A DAY.

"You often made as high as $25 or $30 a day, didn't you, from high grading?"

"Yes."

In his direct testimony Orchard said he had reported to Davis the finding of a cartload of powder in the Vindicator mine.

"Up to the time you told this to Davis, had there been any talk to you of proposed violence to the mine?"

"No, sir."

"You broached the subject?"

HEARD OF OUTRAGES BEFORE.

"Yes, I'd heard the leaders of the Federation had blown up mines before." The witness believed Arthur Doolin had told him of this.

Orchard on the Road to Wealth

He is Said to Have Told a Denver Man He Would Kill the Governor Because He Had Prevented Him From Becoming a Millionaire

Denver, June 8.—Following the testimony of Harry Orchard, in the Haywood trial, interviews here with several persons referred to were printed yesterday.

Supreme Justice Gabbert, who Orchard says was the intended victim of a bomb, says that Orchard's testimony fits in with the incidents connected with the killing of Wally.

Mrs. James H. Peabody, wife of the former governor, recalls distinctly the night when two men followed her carriage.

Jacob Wolfe, through whom Orchard said he communicated with Pettibone, vehemently denied the truth of the story.

Max Malich says that Orchard told him he would kill Governor Steunenberg, because the latter had prevented him from becoming a millionaire.

Orchard reasoned, according to Malich, that Steunenberg's request for troops during the Coeur D'Alene strike prompelled him to leave the country, and to dispose of his interest in the Hercules mine. The purchasers subsequently became millionaires.

From Obeboque Pt., N. S., comes the following from Mrs. W. A. Reynolds: "A year ago my health began to fail, I lost appetite, became nervous and sleepless. My weight ran down, I became thin, hollow-cheeked, and had black rings under my eyes. I really felt as if the charm of life had left me and when springtime arrived I was in the "Blues." I read of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and got five boxes at once.

MODERN SCHOOLS VINDICATED

In this country, as in the United States, there is a periodic recrudescence of the suspicion that the up-to-date ways of teaching children spelling and arithmetic in the schools fall short of the methods of the good old days. This suspicion that necessities are being sacrificed to fads, and that "progress" in only another name for lack of thoroughness is not confined to any class, but is as likely to be entertained by people of the highest intelligence and cultivation as well as by people who do not profess to know anything of educational theories, except that modern educational theories are, in their opinion, fantastic. In view of this situation it is interesting to get hold of definite data bearing on the accusation leveled against the modern school methods that, in the hunt for novelty and variety and what not, the primary elements of a school education have been neglected. We go in for nature study, and manual training, and a dozen other fads, it is said, but the children are not taught spelling or arithmetic as they were in the good old days. They spell as they please, and their ciphering is done in a hit-or-miss fashion.

A set of examination papers of 60 years ago was discovered a year or two ago in the high school at Springfield, Massachusetts. It at once occurred to the finder that here was a chance to ascertain how the Springfield children of today compare with those of 1846 in regard to the three R's. The same questions were given to the corresponding classes in the Springfield schools in 1905; it being ascertained furthermore that the average age of the children in the latter year was lower than that of the children who had the questions in 1846.

The result was a brilliant victory for the school of today. Taking the entire 85 pupils of 1846, it was found that the percentage of correct answers in spelling was 40.6, while the 245 pupils of 1905 scored 51.2 per cent. of correct answers in arithmetic the comparison showed a tremendous advance; while in 1846 only 29.4 per cent. of the answers were correct, in 1905 the percentage of correct answers was 55.5 — more than double that of the old-time school.

Recently the same examination papers were tried on school children in Brooklyn and in Nashville, Tennessee, younger than were the Springfield pupils in 1846 for whom the questions were originally prepared, and the results are reported to have been in both cases even more satisfactory than in the case of the modern Springfield children.

It is safe to say that a similar test made in the schools off his country today, made with papers from an Ontario school of sixty years ago, if such could be obtained, would give like results. It is, at any rate, not safe to say it would not. Of course, modern educations have made, and are going to make, mistakes. It is even highly probable that in the whole tendency of any particular new movement there is something of extravagance or excess. These things must always be subject to criticism and correction. But the criticism should make no assumptions as to important matters of fact without due ground. Of the need of this admonition the Springfield experiment gives evidence in a way that is at once impressive and amusing.

The Innocents Abroad

London, June 7.—There are some Americans who come aboard who refuse to do as the Romans do, and consequently get themselves be singled out for attentions which are frequently not agreeable. Particularly is this the case in London, where conventionality is so strong and where evening dress of some sort is a rule everywhere.

Into the palm room at the Carlton a few nights ago, just after dinner, when the room was filling with men and women in evening dress, there wandered a young American whose father is a man of wealth and prominence. The young man wore a lounge suit and muddy boots and carried a straw hat.

He sat down and naturally was conspicuous, so much so, in fact, that when the manager saw him he was greatly distressed and went over and asked him to please change his dress before entering the room again in the evening.

May Come to Canada

London, June 7.—At a meeting of the Rhodesian Company, Colonel Weston Jarvis stated he had received a letter from an Orange River Colony farmer to the effect that his sons and a group of other young Britishers were thinking of throwing up the results of their industry there in consequence of political trouble. Unless going to Canada he, Jarvis, was going to endeavor to get them to go to Rhodesia.

Japan is Apprehensive.

Tokio, June 7.—The general tone of the Japanese press is becoming outspoken and unless an assurance in some form is made to insure the safety of Japanese in San Francisco, it is feared that the friendly relations between both nations will be endangered.

Next to Gibraltar, Malta is the strongest fortress in the world. Relics of a Gold-Brick Fraud Dug Up.

Ottawa, June 7.—Workmen digging a drain on the Skead farm, situated on the Aylmer road, about four miles from Ottawa, unearthed a curious find yesterday. Two imitation gold bricks were dug up, and near them an old valise containing a false wig and whiskers. Search of the police records reveals the history of the treasure trove. About twelve years ago a mysterious party of twelve men appeared on one of the islands in the river above the Chaudiere Falls. They erected a tent, and while two of them usually departed early in the morning, and returned late in the evening, one, a venerable old man, picturesquely attired in top boots, red shirt and a wide-brimmed hat, always remained on guard at the camp. He wandered about the small island carrying a rifle guarding the bogus treasure, while his companions went forth to seek victims. They are known to have landed one wealthy Carleton county farmer. He listened to their tale of a rich gold cave in Colorado, from which they had only taken enough gold to enable them to work the property. He bought a $40,000 gold brick for $3,000 in good money. Detectives were put on the track, but the swindlers had fled, after, as it now appears, having rid themselves of the clothes of their paraphernalia.

Denounced the Play

Moncton, N.B., June 5.—Rev. H. E. Thomas, pastor of the Wesley Memorial Church in this city, shocked the members of his congregation on Sunday night, when he denounced the amateur dramatic performances to be presented in the opera house Wednesday and Thursday, by a large number of young people, most of whom belong to the best families here.

The performance is the "Mikado," and is under the supervision of Prof. Perry, organist of the Methodist church, assisted by some prominent members of the leading churches there. It is in aid of the Firemen's Relief Association, and such affairs always receive generous support of the people.

Mr. Thomas, in a vigorous sermon assailed circuses, theatricals, and operatic performances in general, claiming their influence was degrading and harmful. Not even an amateur performance should be countenanced by professing christians, and it was time these things were stopped. A circus is also to be seen in Moncton this week.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

HOW TWO BEAUTIFUL WOMEN CURED PELVIC CATARRH BY TAKING PE-RU-NA

Headache, Backache and Weakness Are Symptoms of Pelvic Catarrh.

Doctored a Year With No Relief—Health Restored By Pe-ru-na.

Mrs. Sophia Calwell, box 857, Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"After doctoring for a year and finding no relief from leucorrhea resulting from prolapsus uteri, and which was sapping my life forces away, I finally tried Peruna, and when I found that it was helping me every day, it seemed almost too good to be true.

"But, it not only helped me, it cured me and in a very short time. I am now enjoying the best of health.

"I am strong and free from pain, and I certainly feel that all praise and honor are due to Peruna."

Recommends Pe-ru-na to Other Sufferers.

Miss Edith Reams, 726 North Main street, Dayton, Ohio, writes:

"I suffered for some time with both lung and female troubles.

"I had been under the treatment of a good physician for about nine months without obtaining any relief, when Peruna was recommended to me.

"After taking twelve bottles of this medicine I have completely regained my health.

"I am pleased to recommend Peruna to any one suffering from the above ailments."

THE organs of the pelvis, like other internal organs of the body, are lined by mucous membranes.

These membranes are liable to catarrh the same as the mucous membranes in any other part of the body.

Pelvic catarrh may be caused by the extension of catarrh from other parts of the body.

Or, it may be brought on by overwork, by irritating discharges and by excesses of various kinds.

When the organs of the pelvis once become the seat of catarrh, various derangements arise which are called by different names.

A long list of diseases, which cannot be discussed in public print, some of them peculiar to the female sex, others common to both sexes, are caused by catarrh of the pelvic organs.

Local treatment does not seem to be of any use.

Some of the organs are so located as to be beyond reach.

Peruna is an internal, systemic remedy.

It relieves catarrh wherever located in the human body.

Thousands of cases of pelvic catarrh have been relieved by the internal use of Peruna.

Peruna aims to relieve catarrh only. Peruna is not a cure-all, but can be relied upon to relieve catarrh in all its various phases, locations and stages.

Followed Dr. Hartman's Advice.

Mrs. Lizzie Lohr, 1155 W. 18th street, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"I take pleasure in writing you, thinking there may be other women suffering as I did. I was rundown so far that I had to sit down to do my cooking—I was so weak. The doctors wanted to operate on me. At last I wrote to Dr. Hartman, telling him how I was, and he told me how to take Peruna. I did as he told me, and now I am cured."

Ptolemy's Big Boat.

Ptolemy (Philopator) was fond of building big boats. One of these is said to have been 420 feet long, 57 feet broad and 72 feet deep from the highest point of the stern. This vessel had four rudders or what some would call steering oars, as they were not fastened, each forty-five feet long. She carried 4,000 rowers, besides 3,000 marines, a large body of servants under her decks and stores and provisions. Her oars were fifty-seven feet long, and the handles were weighted with lead. There were 2,000 rowers on a side, and it is supposed that these were divided into five banks. That this extraordinary vessel ever put to sea is doubted, but that she was launched and used at times, if only for display, several historians are agreed.

Getting Round It.

A famous mountaineer said of mountain climbing at a dinner in Brooklyn:

"Peaks that seem inaccessible may be climbed by turns and twists. Mountain climbing is a question of getting around the bad places. Getting around your difficulty—that is the secret of mountain climbing. Liszt, the great musician, had the ability to get around things; hence I am sure he'd have made a good mountaineer. Once at a dinner Liszt's hostess cried in a horrified voice that there were thirteen at table.

"'Don't let that alarm you, madam,' said Liszt, with a reassuring smile, 'I'll eat for two.'"

If Lion Pulls and Horse Pulls.

If a lion and a strong horse were to pull in opposite directions, the horse would pull the lion backward with comparative ease. But if the lion were hitched behind the horse and facing in the same direction and were allowed to exert his strength in backing he could easily pull the horse down upon his haunches or drag him across the ring, so much greater is his strength when exerted backward from the hind legs than in forward pulling.

A Voice of Gladness.

By Troy Allison.

Copyright, 1907, by E. C. Parcells.

The country road was strange to both of them. They were almost strange to each other, their acquaintance being a week old, the result of boarding in the same farmhouse.

"That looks like a nice wood to stroll through." He pointed to the thick grove of hickories and gum trees, their leaves tinted by the first frost. "We will get over that stile."

"Will we?" There was amusement in her voice and an intense enjoyment of living in her expression. She breathed the mountain air, the vivid autumn coloring reflected in the glow of her face. "The dominant idea of one's impression of you is that you seem to know what you want to do and take the shortest line to it. Your manners do fairly well for a westerner, but our southern men would have said, 'Miss Ledleigh, would you like to stroll through the grove?'"

He flushed slightly and knocked a stone from the path with a dogwood stick he had cut at the foot of the hill.

"I told you I didn't know how to talk to women or how to be nice or courteous. I haven't a bit of polish," ruefully, "but you shouldn't expect much of a man who has spent most of his time on a ranch. I have been east only three months. I warned you at first."

She looked at the six feet of masculinity speculatively.

"Don't apologize, for heaven's sake," she said quickly. "In this day and generation it's refreshing to meet a man who knows his mind. I am going to enjoy this grove just as much as you are. The fact that I didn't have to think it up is the nicest part about it."

"I've been planning details for myself and others ever since I joined the crowd of breadwinners. I've had to plan, scheme and dovetail until it makes me tired to have a waiter hand me a bill of fare and ask me what I'll have. I could enjoy anything that was set before me unexpectedly. I wouldn't even balk at chop suey," with a little laugh that had the first touch of bitterness he had noticed in her.

He helped her over the stile in the manner of a big man who knows little of women and who reverences them to the extent of being afraid of offending them by too great familiarity. She knew in her heart that she could have climbed the stile more easily by herself than with the uncertain aid he gave her, but her mind grasped the cause of his uncertainty, and his clean wholesomeness was as pleasant as the breeze from the mountain.

The yellow leaves from the hickory trees rustled beneath their feet as they went into the woods. They dragged their feet clumsily, furrowing the leaves into heaps.

"Beats town all hollow, doesn't it?" He stopped to thrust a bunch of crimson berries in the band of her white felt hat. "How long have you been 'in office,' as the government clerk puts it?"

"Ages, centuries, world without end; to put it in numbers, seven years. I'm afraid I'll not be able to keep my position much longer," dolefully.

There was a gleam of interest in his eyes. "What's the matter?" he asked briefly.

"I don't know exactly," with a pretense of indifference. "Either the monotony of it will drive me crazy or the continual copy will get on my nerves until I'll throw an ink bottle at the chief some day and be discharged for disorderly conduct."

He laughed at her petulance. "I would never dream that you were afflicted with nerves. You make a joke of life and enjoy everything like an overgrown child. You are the essence of youthfulness, yet you must be thirty, aren't you?" He gave her a frankly critical look.

She selected a comfortable looking log and sat down on it in lazy abandon.

"O man, man, do they teach you out in the wild and woolly west that to ask a woman's age is an unpardonable sin?"

He was filling her lap with masses of purple flowers that grew waist deep around them.

"No, the west is not artificial. Nature is the teacher. We learn to admire, but perhaps express even our admiration clumsily."

Her eyes sparkled with appreciation. "That was a well turned compliment. I'm convinced that you are a diamond in the rough. If you were not going away tomorrow, I might polish you up considerably."

"I'm sure you could do a great deal in that line." He sat down beside her and took a cigar from his pocket. "You have already done a great deal. Honestly, you've done more for me than I thought could be done. You've made me feel a touch of boyishness. I was recovering from an attack of fever when I came here. I had lost my grip of things. School might keep or be hanged. It was all the same to me."

"I understand. I've had the feeling often. You had reached a point when your query was 'What's the use?' and your answer was 'Nothing matters.'"

"You've hit it exactly—bullseye!" He puffed his cigar and thought how well she harmonized with the scene—the red of the gum trees, the carpet of yellow hickory leaves, the purple and white field flowers growing everywhere. She leaned against a gray tree trunk and held with one arm the flowers he had piled in her lap. High above her head a black and yellow woodpecker hammered away.

"This is nature, and you are the only woman I ever saw who would not make a jarring note in the general motif. You seem to be a living thing—a bit of nature itself."

"It's my holiday—my playtime—and if I bubble over with nonsense you must lay it to exuberance of spirit. I really have a serious side, but I don't want to use it while I'm here. When you leave, try to forget the nonsense I have talked. I'm truly ashamed of it."

"I'm going to remember every bit of it," he avowed stardily. "I want to keep my touch of boyhood. I wonder how much daring and recklessness you have in your disposition." His face lit up with a sudden thought.

"Heaps, quantities, and it has been smoldering for seven monotonous years. I've been in office until I feel like a latter day Vesuvius. I'm longing for something big and real and exciting to happen."

"Let's make something happen," he suggested eagerly. "You don't know me, except as you see me. I don't know you except from the vivid impression of the joy of living that you have flashed upon my rather flatless brain. I'd like to keep the touch that knowing you has added to me. Suppose you marry me?" he finished abruptly.

The mass of flowers fell from her lap to the ground. "You are certainly the most primitive man!" she gasped. "Do you realize that we are absolute strangers to each other—that you may be a professional burglar for all that I know and that I have a mother that would prove an awful mother-in-law?" Her eyes were wide open with wonder, but the corners of her mouth were full of mirth.

"Think of your longing to do something unusual," he urged. "My proposition ought to prove attractive from that standpoint at least."

"It has—its attractive features"—hesitatingly. "Marriage is something my usually intrepid spirit has never dared. I've always been afraid the man would prove not to be the right man. I have lately become resigned to the opinion that there is no right man for me. My affinity has so far failed to materialize."

"I don't know much about affinities. That's another thing that was left out of my curriculum. But I do know that you appeal to me, like this breezy mountain air, like the crisp rustle of the leaves, like the stillness of these woods. I can't take all that to the city with me, but you are a part of it all, part of the joy of living. You radiate it. Will you dare come with me?"

She leaned forward and looked him steadfastly in the eye. "I'll dare," she said finally. "I also have reached the point when I ask 'What does it matter?' I will come—if you want me."

He held out both hands, and she put hers into them unhesitatingly.

"And you are going to risk it—without knowing whether I am a professional burglar or a cab driver?" he quizzed joyously.

"That makes it more of an adventure. If I stayed in office a year longer I would risk going over Niagara falls in a barrel to see if I couldn't experience an emotion. You aren't a cab driver, though"—she noted the carefully tailored suit he wore—"and I don't think you are a bartender or a floorwalker."

"Do you think you would like to live on a ranch?" The hope that she would was plainly expressed.

"Love it!" emphatically. "Are you a cowboy perhaps?"

"Not exactly. I own the ranch"—He showed the first touch of embarrassment. "I know you would never guess it. I couldn't acquire polish if I lived ages, but the boys would send me here. I'm a new senator from the wild and woolly west."

She lost her vivid color and tried to take her hands from his.

"And I've treated you like a schoolboy!" she gasped. "I have guyed you, teased you. I never would have treated a senator so!" her voice a horrified whisper.

"I liked it," he said simply, refusing to let the hands be taken away. "I liked it—immensely."

"The foolishness and—all?" her color returning with doubled brilliancy.

"The foolishness and all," softly.

She looked at him accusingly. "Maybe you are rich too?" She appeared hopeless of fresh surprises and willing to believe anything.

"Yes, but that's not considered just cause for forbidding marriage."

She let her hands rest passively, her serious side for once uppermost.

"I can't understand," she said slowly, "why you should care to risk it, why you should want me, a woman who never had the opportunity to cultivate the feminine graces that one expects from a senator's wife. You could ask much of the world. The risk was attractive to me because there was so little that I could ask or lose. Do you really want me?"

He stood on his feet and, taking her hands, drew her beside him.

"Look at the mountains in the distance, the valley below. Be still and listen to the wind in the trees. It's all nature—the voice of nature. You are part of it. You are like it. The red of your lips is a living touch of it. You feel the spirit of the woods. You love it as I do. Look at it, listen to it, and then, dear, if you can willingly come, I want you very much."

The mountains were azure in the distance, the rustle of the leaves calmed suddenly, the noise of the woodpecker stopped, and the silence of the forest dazed her. The blood throbbed against her temples. Her lips parted slightly, with a quick, indrawn breath.

She turned her face toward him. The primitive man saw the primitive woman shining in her eyes, and the soft scarlet lips quivered when he kissed her.

Long Wait.

"Grandpa, how old are you?"

"I am eighty-seven years old, my dear."

"Then you were born eighty years before I was. What a long time you had alone waiting for me!"

Worse Still.

HOW SHE KEEPS BEAUTIFUL.

The Mystery Solved.

Like the flowers that bloom in the spring the young girl just budding into womanhood is an inspiring sight and she is usually beautiful if she is perfectly healthy. She stays beautiful just so long as her health and constitution remain good. Let her be nervous, have backache, sleepless nights, and how soon does it take for wrinkles, crow's feet and dark circles to appear in the face? Her cheeks were rosy until she began to suffer from woman's weaknesses and the constantly recurring pains and drains brought her quickly from the beautiful age to the premature middle age. It was not meant for women to suffer so—it is due to our unnatural, but civilized methods of living, and to the fact that so many neglect those small ills which soon lead up to larger ones. Nothing so drags a woman down as those constantly recurring periods when she suffers more and more from a chronic condition that can be easily cured. No woman should take an alcoholic compound for that will disturb digestion, and the food is quickly compacted and becomes hard and tough in contact with alcohol, rendering the food indigestible. She must go to Nature for a cure. The native Indians of early times were far from wrong when they called a marvelously effective medicinal plant "Squaw root"—what the physicians of our day called Caulophyllum or Blue Cohosh. This and Black Cohosh, Golden Seal, Lady's Slipper, and Unicorn root, are important ingredients of a wonderfully successful remedy in modern times, namely, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Having made a specialty of the diseases of women in the early sixties Dr. Pierce soon found that a glyceric extract of these roots with Hydrastis or Golden Seal and Lady's Slipper root, combined in just the right proportions, made the very best tonic and cure for the distressing complaints of women. Where women suffered from backache, weakness, nervousness and lack of sleep, it was usually due to functional trouble, therefore this prescription directed at the cause cured 98 per cent. of such cases. That is why Dr. Pierce soon put it up in a form easily to be procured all over the United States.

Aching from head to foot—that is the condition that afflicts some women at stated periods—backache, dizziness, and pains almost unbearable. An honest and a safe remedy which no woman can afford to lose the opportunity of trying for the cure of these distressing complaints which weaken a woman's vitality is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Dr. Pierce not only assures you that his "Favorite Prescription" is honestly made, but he lets you know just what it contains.

The best of medical authorities recommend and extol the virtues of the above ingredients in "Favorite Prescription." Thus F. Ellingwood, M. D., Professor of Materia Medica, Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says of Golden Seal: "It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions." Of Lady's Slipper root he says: "Exercises special influence upon nervous conditions depending upon disorders of the female organs; relieves pain, etc." Prof. John King in the AMERICAN DISPENSATORY, says of Black Cohosh root: "This is a very active, powerful and useful remedy." * * * "Plays a very important part in diseases of women; in the painful conditions incident to womanhood. In dysmenorrhea it is surpassed by no other drug, being of greatest utility in irritative and congestive conditions." * * * "Its action is slow, but its effects are permanent." "For headache, whether congestive or from neuralgia or dysmenorrhea it is promptly curative."

Dr. John Fyfe, of Saugatuck, Conn., Editor of the Department of Therapeutics in THE ELECTIC REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica), one of the chief ingredients of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription: "A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine (womb) invigorator and always favors a condition which makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system, cannot fail to be of great usefulness and of the utmost importance to the general practitioner of medicine."

"In Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent."

For the Future.

The secret of happiness is inward. People had good times when there were no friction matches, no brilliantly illuminated streets, no steamboats or railroads, no sewing machines, no postage stamps, no comfortably heated homes, no telegraphs or trolleys. The elements of happiness are not in things, but in human nature itself. But the fairer conditions, the greater opportunities, which the marvelous modern inventions afford to the masses of our Introduction Customs.

In introducing a woman and a man the latter should be presented to the former, as, for instance, Mrs. Jones, allow me to present Mr. Smith. In the case of two women, one elderly, the younger should be presented to the elder as a pretty mark of respect, as, Mrs. Jones, my friend, Miss Brown. In the event of one party to the introduction being an elderly man of prominence it would be proper to show him the deference and present both a man and woman if younger to him.

A Dainty Sandwich.

A very pleasant and healthy variation of the meat, jam, egg or lettuce sandwich can be made with the assistance of the nutritious currant. Take a teacupful of currants and rub them in a cloth; then butter rather thickly some thin slices of bread. Cover the buttered bread all over with currants, sift a very little castor sugar over them and make into sandwiches. This satisfying little novelty is wonderfully appreciated and will not fail to delight the children.

To turn out a hot pudding plunge the mold or bag into cold water for thirty seconds. If it is a cold pudding, a jelly or blancmange, dip it for an instant in very hot water. If ice cream refuses to leave a mold after being loosened wrap for an instant around the mold a cloth wrung from boiling hot water.

To clean zinc dip a piece of flannel in paraffin and with it well rub the zinc, which should then be washed with hot water and soap to remove the smell of the oil and polished with a dry cloth.

When running brass rods through window curtains put an old glove finger over the end that is being pushed through the hem. Unless this is done the material is apt to tear.

A dyspeptic can eat and retain raw eggs when nothing else will stay on the stomach.

JOSEPH C. LINCOLN,

"Sartin sure. But let me—us—prove that the profit's there and the capital 'll be donated, like frozen potaters at a minister's surprise party. Oh, I've thought it out! Now, here!"

The captain's plan for Bradley's co-operation was, briefly stated, just this: He (Captain Titcomb) would provide the money for buying the Lizzie and whatever else was immediately necessary. Bradley would contribute his savings to the pile. They were to be partners on equal shares, but Bradley was to pay from his share of whatever profits might come from time to time the amount necessary to make his investment the equal of the captain's. No new move was to be made without the consent of both partners. It was a very generous offer, and Bradley said so.

"No generosity about it," protested Captain Ezra. "I'm lookin' out for myself, and need you, as the tipsy man said to the lamp post. I tell you, honest, I sha'n't go into this thing unless you go in with me. Maybe it's a fool notion anyway. Well, there," he concluded, "now that I've unloaded my mind, we'll go down to the Cape this afternoon. I'll look round, and you take a week to think things over in. At the end of the week you can say 'Yes' or 'No.'"

They caught the 4 o'clock train for Orham.

The "old maids" were washing the supper dishes when Bradley surprised them by walking into the dining room. When the first shock was over the sisters were the most delighted pair in Orham. They insisted on preparing a brand new meal for their "boy," and no amount of protestation on his part could change their minds.

They were very curious to know why Bradley had come home so unexpectedly, and when they learned that he had left the Thomas Doane and not only that, but that the captain also had left, they asked one question after another. Bradley simply said that the captain had other plans and that he couldn't tell what they were yet.

After supper they adjourned to the sitting room. Bradley was uneasy and several times glanced at the clock. After awhile he said that, if they didn't mind, he should like to go out for an hour or so. Of course, the sisters said, they "didn't mind," and he put on his hat and went.

Miss Prissy's shrewd guess wasn't far wrong. Bradley passed out of the Allen gate only to open the one of the yard adjoining. His knock at the side door apparently started a canine insurrection, for there was a tremendous barking and growling inside, and when old Mrs. Baker answered the knock the heads of Tuesday and Winfield, the only survivors of Gus' troop of pets, protruded from either side of her skirt. Both dogs and old lady were surprised and glad to see the visitor.

"Why, Bradley Nickerson!" exclaimed Mrs. Baker. "How do you do? Come right in, won't you? No, Gusty ain't in jest now. It's prayer meetin' night, and she thought she'd go. Well, I'm sorry you won't step in and wait."

The Bakers attended the Baptist church, and thither walked Bradley, his hands in his pockets and his head full of the wrecking scheme.

It was nearly 9 o'clock, and the fence in front of the little church was ornamented by a row of Orham young men who were waiting for the meeting to come to an end.

Bradley joined the fence brigade and was hailed by half a dozen acquaintances, mostly old schoolfellows. He heard all the news and a lot more that might become news if it ever happened.

"Sam Hammond was down last month," so Hart Sears informed him. "Talk about dudes! Say, Snuppy, wa'n't he a lulu-cooler?"

"I should smile if he wa'n't," replied "Snuppy" Black. "Gold watch—and clothes! You never saw such clothes! Sam's working for the Metropolitan Wrecking company, and he must be getting rich. And he has a good time in New York. 'Member those yarns about the girls, Hart?"

Sears laughed and winked knowingly. "Sam's a great feller for girls," he observed. "He was chasin' 'em down here, I tell you. Gus Baker was the one he chased most, but Gus can keep him guessin'. He ain't the only one that's been runnin' after her—hey, Snup?" Then the whole row laughed uproariously.

Bradley somehow didn't enjoy the rest of the conversation. In the first place, he didn't relish the idea, so suddenly brought home to him, that "fellers" were running after Gus, and particularly he didn't care to have Sam Hammond among the runners. He had met Sam once or twice in New York. A big chap he was, handsome and well dressed in a rather loud fashion and with a boastful knowledge of life about town. Bradley was not a prig, but saloons and after theater suppers had little attraction for him, even if his salary had been large enough to pay the bills. He had wondered idly how Sam could afford the "fun" he was always describing.

The melodeon in the vestry struck up "God Be With You Till We Meet Again," and the loungers on the fence began to move over toward the door. He went with them, standing a little way back from the entrance. The final verse of the hymn died away in deaf Mrs. Piper's tremulous falsetto. Then there was a hush as the benediction was pronounced, the door swung open, and, with giggles and a rustle of conversation, the worshipers began to emerge.

Bradley looked for Gus, and at last he saw her. She was talking to Mr. Langworthy, and the light from the bracket lamp in the entry shone upon her face. Again he decided, just as he had when he left her before going to sea, that she was pretty, but now he realized that hers was not a doll-like prettiness, but that there was character in her dark eyes and the expression of her mouth.

She came out and stood on the step, buttoning her glove. Two of the young fellows stepped out of the line toward her. She spoke to both of them and laughed. Then she caught sight of Bradley, who also had moved into the lamplight, and, brushing past the rival pair of volunteer escorts, she held out her hand.

"Why, Brad!" she exclaimed. "Where on earth did you come from? I'm ever so glad to see you. How do you do?"

Bradley shook hands and said, "How do you do?" There was no earthly reason why he should be embarrassed, but he was, just a little. He stammered and then asked if he might have the pleasure of "seeing her home."

"Why, of course you may!" she said. "That's what you came here for, isn't it? I hope so, at any rate."

Bradley laughed and admitted that he guessed that was about it. Gus took his arm, and they moved down the path and down the rough stone steps to the sidewalk.

"Why, I haven't seen you for an age!" said Gus. "And you haven't written for nearly three weeks! Why did you come home now? You didn't expect to come home so soon, did you?"

Bradley explained why he had come home. Captain Titcomb had left the Thomas Doane, he said, and he had left with him. He didn't tell the real reason for the leaving, but hinted at dissatisfaction with the owners. To head off further questions on this ticklish subject he asked Gus what she had been doing that winter.

"Well," she said, "I graduated from high school, for one thing, and I'm keeping house for grandma. I guess that's about all."

"What's been going on in town? Any dances?"

"Yes; a few. I went to the Washington's birthday ball, but it wasn't much fun. Most of the floor committee were old, married people and about every other dance was 'Hull's Victory' or a quadrille. Round dances, you know, are wicked, especially if you don't know how to dance them."

"You wrote me you went to that. Sam Hammond's been home, hasn't he?"

"Oh, yes. I went to the ball with him. He's a lovely dancer, and we waltzed whenever they played a waltz tune, no matter whether the rest were busy with a quadrille or not. But why don't you tell me what you are going to do now that you've given up your position?"

Bradley told her of Captain Titcomb's idea concerning the purchase of the Lizzie and the offer of partnership in the wrecking business. As he talked his growing interest in the plan became more evident, and he spoke of it as something already nearly decided upon. "What do you think of it?" he asked in conclusion.

"Why, I don't know," replied Gus. "If it all works out as the cap'n hopes it will be a fine thing. But isn't it rather risky? It means staying at home here in Orham, where people's ideas get into a rut, it seems to me. The cities seem so big and to have such chances for a man! You know yourself, Brad, that you've improved a lot since you went away."

"I haven't got a gold watch yet or any fine clothes, and my dancing wouldn't draw a crowd, I guess."

(To be continued)

She came out and stood on the step.

REST YOUR CLOTHES.

An Up to Date Idea That Is Worth While Trying.

The up to date woman, not satisfied with her own rest cures, has taken to resting her clothes, and it works like a charm.

Nothing induces shabbiness in coats and gowns more than the lines and wrinkles which show they have been constantly worn. Sitting creases make a garment old before it has done half its duty.

Men seem to realize this more than women. A man is able to dress well on a very small income, because every few days or every week he makes a change of clothes, sends the suit he has been wearing to the tailor to be pressed and never under any condition allows a wrinkle to become fixed in his garments.

Very few women's frocks can go to the tailor's. It is well to send one's street frocks occasionally to the cleaner's to be brushed and pressed. She can manage to change her clothes often enough to give them an entire rest.

The best way to give them a rest is to put both skirt and bodice in long boxes or bureau drawers, where they can lie in soft folds, and if sleeves and trimmings are filled out with tissue paper so much the better. Shirts and coats placed on hangers lose in a few days the lines where they have conformed to the figure. These lines not only spoil the fresh appearance of a frock, but the material wears around them and loses color in streaks.

Wash frocks should always be put away in trunks, drawers or boxes, whether they have been worn or not, for in hanging they grow stringy, are more easily affected by the dampness and lose their freshness before they are worn.

A clever girl, with more taste than money, also puts away her laces and ribbons to rest. This is not so much to freshen them, though they are much improved by it, but is to have something which is new to her friends when she rewears them after their "rest cure."

HOME GYMNASTICS.

A Healthful Way to Dispense With an Extra Servant.

One of the household magazines is responsible for the story of Mrs. Farniente.

Mrs. Farniente consulted her family physician for a bad case of semi-invalidism and received from him the advice that she was suffering from too much help in the kitchen.

Acting on this advice, Mrs. Farniente dismissed one of her maids and began to use a broom and duster herself, thus bringing into play muscles which had grown limp and flabby from disuse.

In the morning Mrs. Farniente made beds and found that the various twistings of the torso required by the exercise caused her to take deep breaths and started her circulation, which had been sluggish for years.

At the suggestion of her doctor she left all the windows of the chambers wide open while she was making the beds so she might have fresh air with her exercise.

For the first time in her life she began to notice how many different muscles were called into play by the ordinary duties of housework. Later she began to observe a decided improvement in her health and spirits, and at the end of two months she reported to her physician that no prescription she had ever tried had helped her so much as the last one he had given her.

This is only one instance out of many thousands that have never been chronicled in print in which the practice of a woman's natural gymnastics (housework) has changed a semi-invalid into a healthy woman.

THE HOME DOCTOR.

The old fashioned remedy for sore throat and a croupy cough is hard to excel. Over half a cupful of minced onions pour a tablespoonful of vinegar and a half cupful of boiling molasses. Use half a teaspoonful of the sirup every fifteen or twenty minutes for an hour or two, then less frequently.

It is claimed that a sure remedy for cold feet is to dip them quickly two or three times before retiring into a shallow pail of cold water, then rub briskly with a coarse towel until dry. After accomplishing this take hold of each end of the towel and draw it back and forth through the hollow of the foot until a glowing sensation is experienced.

Every household should have an emergency outfit and keep it where every adult member of the family will know where to find it when the emergency arrives. The outfit should include a bottle of carbolic acid, a bottle of listerine, sterilized gauze or clean linen rags, a roll of absorbent cotton, one or two rolls of bandages and a cake of aseptic soap.

A little child should never be allowed to go to sleep with its face partly under the bedclothing. Mothers are supposed to know this, but they are often careless. A child's face must be entirely uncovered when asleep, so that it inhales only perfectly pure air and not that which has already been breathed. It is trifling things like this which make or mar a child's future health.

A Sewing Hint.

If you wish to shirr a girdle or ruffles, it is much easier to do so on the sewing machine. Make the tension of the upper thread quite loose and stitch where you want it gathered, then pull the lower thread, and it will gather. You must fasten one end of the thread securely or it will pull through.

Too Anxious by Half.

A vast number of people are needlessly anxious about their manners. Having been "house folks" all their lives, contentedly and usefully rounding out their days among kindred and neighbors who love and understand them and share their standards, says an editorial in the Home Journal, they are prone when they make a rare excursion into another atmosphere to a painful self consciousness that spoils their pleasures.

Travel is not at all necessary to culture. Some of the finest culture the world has ever seen owed nothing to travel. But there is one comfortable result of travel, and that is the assurance it gives that people are pretty much alike. The superficial traveler may be impressed by "how different" things abroad are from those at home, but the wise observer is always being newly made aware how much the same are things the world over.

So with the gift of tongues. One of the best services it does for us is to show how much in common different people have when they can understand each other. History is another help. The deeper into the past the student delves the more wonderfully he realizes how little time has altered human nature. And as for exalted rank and superior talents, it seems as if every one ought to enjoy the advantage of informal association with at least one celebrity, if only to prove how little real difference fame or splendor makes.

Knowing these things keeps one delightfully free from that diffidence which prevents many persons from appearing well in strange society and from getting that best of the stranger which he can give only to one with whom he can be at ease. When it comes to manners there are very few things, after all, that are essential, and more people make an awkward appearance because they are too concerned about their manners than err in the other extreme. An absorbed interest in another individual, an eager desire to learn how his experience of life corroborates or transcends our own, a sweet willingness to give of our best toward the pleasurableness of the occasion—these are much better beginnings in good manners than are all the etiquette books in creation.

The way to enjoy other people is to think as little as possible of any points in which they may differ from us and as much as possible of the many points in which they must resemble us. And as for which fork to eat fish with, and whether to leave one card or two, and what to say to a hostess when presented—what folly to agonize oneself into a cold perspiration over these things when if we but knew the truth we should find that about four-fifths of those present had no more settled convictions on the subject than we. And if we could see the knowing fifth neatly roped off from the rest we should find fewer of the great, the interesting, the delightful among them than among the others. Great men eat with the wrong fork quite as often as do shy girls from the country.

Javelle Water.

Javelle water is sold by most druggists, but it is not difficult to make and is much less expensive when prepared at home. Every laundress should use it, as it is effective in keeping linen and children's dresses free from fruit stains. A small teacup of the fluid added to a boiler of water will assist materially in keeping the clothes white and will not hurt them in the least.

The most obstinate stains of fruit, tea, coffee, etc., in the tablecloth and napkins will succumb to an application of one part of javelle water diluted with four parts of soft water. If the stained article is soaked in this fluid for several hours, thoroughly washed and rinsed it will usually come out perfectly white and clean.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Remarkable Invention

FOR THE

CULTURE OF HAIR

THE EVANS VACUUM CAP is a practical invention constructed on scientific and hygienic principles by the simple means of which a free and normal circulation is restored throughout the scalp. The minute blood vessels are gently stimulated to activity, thus allowing the food supply which can only be derived from the blood, to be carried to the hair roots, the effects of which are quickly seen in a healthy, vigorous growth of hair. There is no rubbing, and as no drugs or chemicals of whatsoever kind are employed there is nothing to cause irritation. It is only necessary to wear the Cap three or four minutes daily.

60 DAYS' FREE TRIAL!

The Company's Guarantee

An EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent you for sixty days' free trial. If you do not see a gradual development of a new growth of hair, and are not convinced that the Cap will completely restore your hair, you are at liberty to return the Cap with no expense whatever to yourself. It is requested, as an evidence of good faith, that the price of the Cap be deposited with the Chancery Lane Safe Deposit Company of London, the largest financial and business institution of the kind in the world, who will issue a receipt guaranteeing that the money will be returned in full, on demand without questions or comment, at any time during the trial period.

The eminent Dr. I. N. Love, in his address to the Medical Board on the subject of Alopaecia (loss of hair) stated that if a means could be devised to bring nutrition to the hair follicles (hair roots) without resorting to any irritating process, the problem of hair growth would be solved. Later on, when the EVANS VACUUM CAP was submitted to him for inspection, he remarked that the Cap would fulfil and confirm in practice the observations he had previously made before the Medical Board.

Dr. W. Moore, referring to the invention, says that the principle upon which the EVANS VACUUM CAP is founded is absolutely correct and indisputable.

An illustrated and descriptive book of the EVANS VACUUM CAP will be sent post free, on application.

Music Hath Charms.

"Waiter!" called the customer in the restaurant where an orchestra was playing.

"Yes, sir."

MOVING TIME.

Yes, I know the sun is shining,
And I know the skies are blue,
And I know the silver lining
Of the cloud is breaking through,
But I gaze on them in sorrow,
For the signs of spring behoove
Darling wife upon the morrow
To declare she wants to move.

I have heard the robin singing,
And the bock beer sign I've seen;
I have seen the crocus springing,
And the lawn is showing green,
But my wife is now uneasy,
And it only goes to prove,
When the days are cool and breezy
She's made up her mind to move.
—Detroit Free Press.

Not to Be Outdone.

Auntie—How is it that you made no objection when the lieutenant offered to kiss you, dearie?

Dearie—Why, auntie, you didn't object when he kissed you, so I thought it would be all right.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

It Was Too Much.

Brigadier General Andrew S. Burt of the United States army is an enthusiastic sportsman, says the Detroit Free Press. His hobby is baseball. Prior to 1898, when he became a brigadier, he was the commanding officer of a negro regiment of regular infantry. Each company had its ball team, and the colonel was an enthusiastic rooter at the games.

One day a contest was on which was marred by the poor playing of a member of one of the company teams. Burt, disgusted, volunteered to take the place of the incompetent. No one objected. At the bat the colonel was given a base on balls. He noted that the men on the coaching lines kept silent while he was on the bases, and after he had made the circuit he remonstrated.

"See here," he exclaimed, slipping out of his coat, "I've taken off my shoulder straps now, and you fellows want to treat me just as if I was a private!"

Again Burt was at the bat. He hit the ball and started for first.

"Run, you gimpy legged, sawed off mud turtle! Run, run, run, run!" howled one of the coachers.

Burt reached first safely, turned and regarded the coacher for an instant, then left the base, walked over to where his discarded blouse lay and put it on. He said nothing, but the negroes understood. It was too much.

Where She Lost Interest.

"Automobiling does tousle one's hair so!" said the beautiful young creature as they descended from the machine and started up the dark walk toward the house where they were to call.

"It does?" he inquired politely.

"Yes; it gives it the same effect as though one had been struggling to avoid being kissed," she gurgled.

"Indeed? I fancy you should carry a small hand mirror and some hairpins when you go automobiling," he suggested, moving right on up the dark walk.

Some way or other, by one of those unexplainable psychological impulses, at that very moment she began to realize he was not the man she would select as an affinity.—Judge.

No Time to Lose.

The wise old doctor was impressing upon his little patient the essentiality of mastication.

"My lad," he advised, "no matter what you eat, always chew each mouthful thirty times."

But Johnny shook his head significantly.

"That wouldn't do at our house, doctor."

"And why not, my son?"

"Because I'd always be hungry. The rest of the kids would clean the table before I got through with that one mouthful."—Detroit Tribune.

No Use.

"Of course," said the political economist, "you think you could run the government."

"Oh, yes," answered the railway magnate benignly, "but what's the use? We couldn't make it pay dividends without being accused of graft."—Washington Star.

No Questions Asked.

Hewitt—Have you ever kissed another man's wife?

Jewett—I really can't say. I never ask to see a lady's marriage certificate before I make love to her.—New York Press.

Harrowing.

"Then I am undone!" cried the heroine, turning away from the audience.

"Only two books for the collar," observed the genial gallery god.—Puck.

Contemptible Insinuation.

Mrs. Benham—I made a good many mud pies when I was a child.

Benham—Yes; you learned your trade well.

A Verbal Difference.

The difference between having a tooth drawn by a professional man and having it knocked out by a fall on the pavement is only a verbal one. The one is dental, the other accidental.

Dividing the Task.

Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' famous circus, now the biggest and best in America, will give two exhibitions in Peterborough, on June 25.

No other circus has made the improvements and the growth that have been attained by this splendid organization. Since its last appearance in this locality it has almost doubled itself in dimensions and has added so many European acts that the performance has an absolutely different aspect of originality and newness. The main tent is the largest spread of canvas ever made. The free street parade, on an entirely new plan and with novelty in its every feature, represents one million dollars in money, spent for the purpose of devising not alone the most elaborate street spectacle, but to make it different from all others. In the parade alone are 1,200 people and 500 horses.

Another fortune was spent on the great fire drama, with its 1,000 costumes, fire-fighting apparatus and trainload of scenery. The menagerie has been given distinction above all others by the addition of a half dozen rare zoological specimens not to be seen anywhere else. The program which follows the spectacle abounds in great acts, the majority of which are new to this country. There are at least fifty great specialties, any one of which cannot be approached by the acts of any other show. Among others the management has secured the great Siegsardy and his wonderful trained bears from Europe; Zobedie, the great up-side-down man; Joseph La Fleur, the French gymnast; the wonderful Flying Fishers, and the De Vans, the greatest aerialists in the world; Rebecca Daniels, Orrin May and Victoria Davenport, the great Wallett, Oscar Lowande and Miss Shipp, the seven best riders on earth; the famous Lockhart trained elephants, Captain Webb's educated seals and George De Voe's great group pendes the Corallas and the Dallars, Fred Welcome and the celebrated Jennets, the most famous aerialists of two continents; the Gois trio, who were the talk of all Paris last winter, and the Nevares and Miss Nettie Carroll, the greatest high-wire artists that ever lived.

THEY OWN LOCKHART ELEPHANTS.

Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' circus owns more than one-half the elephants in America, among which are the famous Lockhart herds. The menagerie is the largest under canvas and has many animals on exhibition never before seen in this country.

Massanoga

A lake shaped something like a pair of spectacles, rather than a pair of lakes, joined by a passage some few feet wide. A lake immensely deep in parts, with sunny bathing beaches, perfectly safe, along its shores. Beautiful woods all round, full of native life, unspoilt and largely untrodden. And, beetling over the water, just at the bridge of the spectacles, is the grand old rock, the crowning glory of Lake Massanoga, "The Gibraltar of Canada," as it has been called, and fitly enough. A mile and more long, hundreds of feet high, rising sheer out of the calm waters of the lake, impressively beautiful by day, positively awe-inspiring in the moonlight, is this great stone mountain. In its shadow nestles Bon Echo Inn, as nearly perfect a summer hotel as one could wish to find. Hotel seems scarcely the word for Bon Echo, so homelike is it—the hotel feeling lasts no longer than it takes our genial host to express his welcome. Canoeing, sailing, rowing, swimming, all may be enjoyed at Massanoga, and down in the depths lurk gamey salmon-trout. Massanoga is a resort recently discovered, and known to comparatively few Canadians. But for people who want to get near to nature, and yet not out of touch of civilization, who want to enjoy glorious air, brilliant sunshine, cool waters and all the fascinations of a primitive region combined with the comforts of a modern summer resort, Massanoga is the place. The nearest railway station is Kaladar, 150 miles east of Toronto on the C.P.R. Illustrated folder and full particulars will be gladly mailed upon request by C. B. Foster, District passenger agent, C.P.R., Toronto.

Buying Clothes.

"I suppose everybody has some plan of making purchases," said a man holding a list of wearing apparel that he was about to buy. "Do you see those two articles I have crossed off? I am not going to buy them till the end of the season, when the price will be cut. For the same reason I am not going to lose a day in securing the articles not crossed off. The two articles I cut out I can wait for without much inconvenience. As for the others, since I have to buy them in season and pay the regular price, I will buy them at once and have at least a month and a half's extra use of them. That makes me break even with the end of the season. I save by purchasing early and late, though the early purchases I deem most economical, particularly in things where style is a consideration."

The Seat of Authority.

It is an unwritten law on shipboard, and especially on men-of-war, that the quarter deck is for the exclusive use of officers, and all good seamen remember it, in spite of their ambitions. It once happened that an ancient mariner, a "five striper," while on shore leave captured a mule. Not without difficulty he mounted the animal and perched himself as near the tail as possible. The mule objected in every way known to a mule and in ways several and unexpected.

"Jack, sit more amidships," called out an engineer officer who happened past; "you'll ride easier."

"Captain," grinned the old salt, "this is the first craft I ever commanded, and it's a pity if I can't stay on the quarter deck."

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other thing. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards

Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proved mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines, near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

SINKING SENSATIONS IN THE STOMACH.

Do They Affect You?

These unpleasant feelings of weakness and collapse indicate that the sympathetic nervous system is out of order.

The cause is impairment of nerve tone, arising from failure of the stomach to perform its work.

Acute indigestion follows and the natural result is mental depression, and a feeling of collapse and extreme weakness.

The best, because the quickest and surest cure, is Ferrozone.

It acts at once upon the digestive and assimilative organs—it fortifies the stomach—makes the blood nourishing, gives it a rich, red color, the best evidence of health.

"For ten years I suffered acutely from stomach trouble," writes Mr. Maxwell Thompson, of Toledo, "I always had a headache and full feeling after meals. My appetite was poor, and I didn't relish food. It was all due to a weak, defective stomach. I read about Ferrozone and ordered six boxes from my druggist. It was no time at all before I felt much better, and when all the Ferrozone was used I really took a new lease of life. I am stronger, brighter, and feel more like work than before trying Ferrozone. It is a splendid tonic, the best I ever used."

Ferrozone is unrivalled in curing stomach ailments, try it and be convinced. Sold by all druggists in 50c. boxes

Cowardly Dog Poisoners Busy

Mr. John Kerr, east ward, has lost his valuable collie dog by poisoning. It apparently was all right until a short time previous, but suddenly died. Mr. Kerr had this collie for a great many years, and he feels its loss very keenly. This is another dastardly act of the dog poisoner.

Mr. J. B. Mcwilliams Visits Mine

The Norwood Register is authority for saying that Mr. J. B. McWilliams has been out at Methuen and Burleigh with an American mining expert, who says that one of the best mica mines in Canada is located there. The report goes on to say that there are good prospects of opening up the Leason Copper Mine situated near the head of Stony Lake. Mr. McWilliams has also a lead mine in Burleigh. We hope that this well known Peterborough resident, will soon develop his mines and become a second Midas.

McPherson, plumbing and electrical expert, Peterborough, has been awarded the contract for the plumbing in connection with the new armories in that city—a $4,500 job, and for a new school at $2,500. Rev. A. H. Brace to Preach Abroad

The Campbellford Baptist church is undergoing thorough repairs, and the inside of the building will soon be much improved. They are purposing to have reopening services on Sunday, June 16th, and have invited Rev. A. H. Brace, of Peterborough, to conduct the services on that day. The choir is also making a special effort for the occasion.

License Fees May Come Back

Judging by the report of Mr. J. R. L. Starr, license inquiry commissioner, now in the hands of the government, it seems that some radical recommendations will be made.

It is said that Mr. Starr has advised that the granting of licenses in Toronto be put in the hands of a board that will not be appointed from year to year, but will be clear of all political influences, and have a free hand in the granting and cancelling of licenses.

The commissioner advises the government to return at least two-thirds of all money received from the license fees to the people, and while it is not made clear in what way the money will be spent, it is inferred that it would go to public institutions of various kinds.

Prominent Bell Tel. Co. Officer Here

Mr. W. J. Carmichael, of Montreal, superintendent of construction for the Bell Telephone Company, was in the city yesterday, in consultation with Mr. F. W. Dean, the manager of the local branch here. Mr. Carmichael came here from Brantford, and will take up the matter of erecting the new office building. This structure will be on Hunter street, just west of Bellegham's undertaking and furniture establishment. In connection with the building proposition is the underground work on the principal business streets in the city. Last year the company wanted to put its wires underground, but a satisfactory arrangement could not be made with the City Council. This year the company will again make application to the council, and there is every reason to believe that the work will be proceeded with.

English Agent in the City

Mr. H. C. Lewis, of London, Eng., a financial agent of international reputation, who has recently done Southern Europe, and who leaves today for Cobalt and Larder Lake, is a guest at the Snowden House. Mr. Lewis comes here armed with a well authenticated letter of introduction to Mr. Geo. Hawson, local Dominion immigration agent. Unfortunately Mr. Hawson happened to be out of town yesterday, but Mr. Lewis, after talking in the sights, etc., of the city yesterday, will probably call on the Peterborough official before leaving the city. Mr. Lewis is a young man of great experience, and met several of our local fun-makers yesterday.

A Lazy Liver

May be only a tired liver, or a starved liver. It would be a stupid as well as savage thing to beat a weary or starved man because he lagged in his work. So in treating the lagging, torpid liver it is a great mistake to lash it with strong drastic drugs. A torpid liver is but an indication of an ill-nourished, enfeebled body whose organs are weary with over work. Start with the stomach and allied organs of digestion and nutrition. Put them in working order and see how quickly your liver will become active. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made many marvelous cures of "liver trouble" by its wonderful control of the organs of digestion and nutrition. It restores the normal activity of the stomach, increases the secretions of the blood making glands, cleanses the system from poisonous accumulations, and so relieves the liver of the burdens imposed upon it by the defection of other organs.

If you have bitter or bad taste in the morning, poor or variable appetite, coated tongue, foul breath, constipated or irregular bowels, feel weak, easily tired, despondent, frequent headaches, pain or distress in "small of back," gnawing or distressed feeling in stomach, perhaps nausea, "sinking spells" or "risings" in throat after eating, and kindred symptoms of weak stomach and torpid liver, no medicine will relieve you more promptly or cure you more permanently than Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Perhaps only a part of the above symptoms will be present at one time and yet point to torpid liver or biliousness and weak stomach. Avoid all hot bread and biscuits, griddle cakes and other indigestible food and take the "Golden Medical Discovery" regularly and stick to its use until you are vigorous and strong.

The "Discovery" is non-secret, non-alcoholic, is a glyceric extract of native medicinal roots with a full list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath. Its ingredients are endorsed and extolled by the most eminent medical writers of the age and are recommended to cure the diseases for which it is advised.

Don't accept a substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret MEDICINE OF KNOWN COMPOSITION.

SAW TRAIN RUN ON SINGLE RAIL

Brennan's Invention is Heralded by Some as the Greatest Invention of the Age---Use the Gyroscope Principle

London, June 10.—The mechanical wonder of the age, the product of the genius of an English engineer, was exhibited to a wondering meeting of the Royal Society at Burlington House recently. It is heralded by some as the train of the future—a train that will travel at the enormous speed of 200 miles an hour.

This marvelous single-line railway has been invented by Mr. Louis Brennan, C.B., already famous for the invention of the torpedo which bears his name.

What the distinguished gathering at the Royal Society saw was a little railway truck running along on a single rail, balancing itself like a living creature, as the line curved to left or right dipped or ascended. Whether in motion backwards or forwards, slowly or quickly, or whether standing perfectly still, the thing stood perfectly upright on its single row of wheels, in flat defiance of gravity. Its wheels follow one another like the wheels of a bicycle. Its center of gravity is far above its point of support. There are no projecting supports of any kind by which it holds to its upright position.

The purpose of Mr. Brennan's invention is described in the patents as being to preserve the equilibrium of unstable bodies, or, in other words, to prevent top-heavy bodies from toppling over. That is to say, it is a mechanical contrivance for performing a miracle.

ON GYROSCOPE PRINCIPLE.

But there is no mystery about Mr. Brennan's invention. His little railway train is kept in perfect equilibrium on its single line of support by a marvelously ingenious application of the principle which keeps a spinning top upright. Calling the spinning top a gyroscope or a gyrostat, scientists have investigated its properties and mathematicians have lost themselves in intricate calculations. It is the principle of the spinning top which maintains the equipoise of the universe.

TIGHT-ROPE RAILWAY.

The model Mr. Brennan showed is large enough to carry a load of ten stone weight. The two gyroscope wheels which keep it balanced are only five inches in diameter, revolving at a rate of 7,000 a minute. They are driven by electricity from storage batteries in the model, and the same batteries supply the driving power to the row of running wheels. But any other motive power may be employed. Mr. Brennan has a single rail laid about the grounds of his house, in some places it is an inch or so only above the ground. In one the single rail consists of a wire rope stretched across a dip in the ground at a height of six or seven feet. Across this tightrope the wonderful little car runs with perfect balance.

Church Parade of 57th Regiment

Local Soldiers, in Full Strength Visit St. Paul's Church

Yesterday evening the 57th Regiment in full strength, accompanied by the cadets in full uniform held a parade to St. Paul's church where the pastor, Rev. Dr. Torrance preached an eloquent and patriotic sermon to them.

Shortly before seven o'clock the regiment drew up in companies at the armories and headed by the full brass and bugle bands in regular order marched past on Brock street to Water street, turning up north to the church. It would be hard to find any where in the world a more imposing, better dressed, better disciplined or finer body of men than last night delighted the thousands who had turned out to see the parade. The bugle band played the regiment to Victoria Park where the full brass band, which led the procession played to the church doors and whilst the remainder countermarched by them and filled the aisles that had been reserved for the soldiery.

Behind the bands Lieut.-Col. Miller and Rev. Canon Davidson, regimental chaplain, led the rank and file. Col. Young and other officers of the 24 Field Battery, in their black and gold braided uniform represented that branch of the service. Behind several of the leading companies, marched the cadets, in good time, and looking like, what they are, the coming soldiers of the country, clad as the regiment in red coats and white helmets.

To the rear of the regiment in full dress, marched Major J. T. I. Halliday, the doctor of the regiment. Major McWilliams also turned out with his company as did nearly all the officers. In front of Victoria Park the column changed to formation of two to facilitate entry to the church. Rev. Mr. Davidson had to leave as the regiment entered St. Paul's to take the service at his own church. Taken altogether the boys in red had a splendid turn out and presented a spectacle that made every one who saw them feel proud of our Peterborough Rangers.

HIS SECOND WIFE IS AGAINST HIM

Widow Whom Orchard Married in Cripple Creek to Testify for Defence

SAYS NEITHER TIRED FIRST

When Asked Whether He or the Woman He Eloped With Tired First Orchard Says Neither

Cripple Creek, Colo., June 10.—Mrs. Ida Toney, the widow with two or three children, whom Harry Orchard married in Cripple Creek, left for Boise yesterday to appear as a witness for the defence in the Haywood trial.

Boise, June 9.—During Orchard's cross-examination he said he once lived in Detroit, but denied ever having been in Utica, N.Y.

"You left one wife in Canada!" he was asked.

"Yes."

"And you have another wife in Colorado!"

"Yes."

"You are a bigamist, then!"

"I don't know what you call it."

"You were married twice and have two wives."

"Yes."

Richardson was very aggressive with the witness, hurling his questions at him in fast flying volleys and in tones harsh and rasping.

Orchard said he ran away from Canada with another man's wife, going to Nelson, B.C. The woman's name was Hattie Simpson. Orchard went into the restaurant business for a while. He then moved to Pilot Bay, B.C., and ran a boarding house.

"You went by the name of Little, didn't you!"

"Yes."

Orchard said Mrs. Simpson went back home from Pilot Bay, and he went to Spokane.

"Which one got tired first!" demanded Richardson.

"Neither," said Orchard, amid laughter.

"Did you desert her!"

"No, she went back home."

VERY UNCONCERNED.

In spite of the unpleasant nature of the questions put to witness by Mr. Richardson, the witness answered them without the slightest hesitation. He told of leaving his wife and daughter in Canada and marrying again in Cripple Creek without obtaining a divorce in the same unconcerned way he told of setting off bombs or lying in wait for victims with a shotgun.

It developed in the cross-examination that Orchard has a brother and six sisters living in Canada and in Eastern New York, but he could not tell whether his sisters were all married or not, as he had lost track of them. One sister named Maggie, he said, is married to a Mr. Fraser and is living in Port Hope, Ont. His brother, Joseph Horsley, is living near the old home in Canada, doing farm work.

Mr. Thomas Darcy Gets a Stroke

Well Known Burleigh Falls Hote, Keeper Stricken Yesterday

The many friends of Mr. Thos. Darcy, proprietor of the Burleigh Falls Hotel, will regret to learn that yesterday afternoon this gentleman sustained a stroke of paralysis. It seems that Mr. Darcy was during the afternoon sitting on the piazza of the hotel talking with a guest, when suddenly in the midst of a sentence his power of speech was suddenly suspended. Mr. Darcy at once went into the hotel and taking up a piece of paper and a pencil wrote, "I have lost the power of speaking. His son and Mrs. Darcy got him to bed and at once telephoned to Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, who drove out with all haste on receipt of the message, and attended the patient. Dr. Gibson of Lakefield, who happened to meet Dr. Fraser hurriedly driving towards Burleigh, telephoned Mr. Fred Darcy, proprietor of the Palace Restaurant. The latter will leave this morning for Burleigh, unless his father's condition is improved. At latest advices Mr. Darcy was doing as well as could be expected.

Fashionable Event In Local Society

Very general interest was taken Saturday over the nuptials of Miss Olive Kathleen Bradburn, only daughter of Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., and Mr. Cyril Currier, accountant of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Ottawa, and son of Mr. J. S. W. Currier, of Ottawa.

This wedding, owing both to the personal popularity of the fair young bride and the social standing of both contracting parties had been anticipated for weeks with excitement by the many friends of each, this being testified to by the numerous and valuable gifts presented.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, was celebrated in the drawing room of Moira Hall," the family residence. The bridal couple stood beneath a large bell of white blossoms, while lilies-of-the-valley, palms and ferns, were charmingly arranged throughout the room.

Miss Hazen Dash presided at the piano and, as the bride entered, on the arm of her father, who gave her away, played the Lohengrin wedding march.

The bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Rogers, of Kingston, and Miss Clare Currier, of Ithaca, N.Y., sister of the bridegroom, who was supported by Mr. George C. Easton of the Bank of Montreal staff, Montreal, and Mr. Gerald K. Rykhan, of the city.

The bride was attired in white Liberty satin, en traine, with embroidered chiffon yoke and flounce of princess lace. She wore a tulle veil, surmounted by orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and pink orchids. The gown of Miss Rogers, one of the bridesmaids, was a blue mulle Princess, trimmed with valenciennes lace and insertion; blue mohair hat, trimmed with mauve and blue, rose and white mauve ties. Miss Currier wore a pink mulle Princess costume, with trimmings and hat similar to those worn by Miss Rogers.

The usual reception was held on conclusion of the ceremony, and refreshments served in a large tent on the lawn. The happy couple left by the 4.48 C.P.R. train for a bridal tour which will include several western cities. They will on their return reside at No. three Fleming Terrace.

Among the invited out-of-town guests were Mr. Frank Bradburn, Calgary, Alta., and Mr. Ormond Bradburn, Montreal, brothers of the bride, Mr. J. E. W. Currier, Ottawa; Mr. E. MARRIED BY JULIUS CAESAR'S SPIRIT

Thinks Ghostly Manipulations Are Responsible for the Coffee Color of Her Baby, But Physicians Scoff at the Idea as Ridiculous

New York, June 9.—Mrs. Annie Caesar that was performing the Laymon, a white woman, 30 years old, held a coffee-colored baby in her arms when she appeared before Magistrate Whitman in the Yorkville police court. She explained to the court that she had gone through the spiritualistic form of marriage and she believed that departed spirits were responsible for African tinge that showed in the baby's complexion.

"Julius Caesar performed the marriage through Mama Misteria, the medium," she went on. "The spirits must work through a material body in this world. That body is named the medium, I was employed by Mme. Payne of 215 West thirty-fourth street, and that is how I became a spiritualist and got to know Mama Misteria.

"I would go to her seances in West Twenty-fifth street. When I was being married the medium informed me that it was the spirit of Julius Caesar that was performing the ceremony."

Several other spirits from the other world came to take part in the wedding, and manifested themselves through the medium, she said. These spirit guests told her that they would act the part of guardians over whatever children came to her, and she thought it likely that they had designated the color of the baby for some good purpose known only to themselves.

In Bellevue hospital, where the baby was born, two weeks ago, the physicians and nurses scoffed at the spiritualistic explanation of the baby's appearance. But then they were unbelievers, and could not understand.

They asked her if she had recently undergone a fright, and she recalled that she had been greatly shocked by seeing two negro women fighting with knives. The physicians told her that the incident fully explained the matter, but she did not look at it in that way.

Mr. Simon's Funeral Largely Attended

Yesterday the last sad rites were performed over the remains of one of Peterborough's most popular merchants, the late Mr. P. Simons. The funeral was one of the largest seen in Peterborough for many months testifying to the large number of friends desirous of paying their last respects to a departed friend. The funeral services were performed by Rev. Father Kelly, a nephew of the deceased. Fortunately both of the late Mr. Simon's sons, Danny and Richard, arrived in time to attend the funeral from distant points in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

POLICY TO ACCORD WITH IRISH IDEAS

So Marquis of Ripon Tells Eighty Club

"WHOLLY UNREPENTANT'

Liberal Government Still Hopes to Permanently Settle the Irish Question

London, June 9.—"The foremost liberal principle of the government, in the administration of Irish affairs, is that they should be conducted in accordance with Irish ideas," said the Marquis of Ripon, Lord Privy Seal and Liberal leader in the House of Lords, speaking last night before the Eighty Club, at the Hotel Cecil. He referred to the withdrawal of Mr. Burrell's Irish Council Bill, and declared it was quite natural that the Nationalists should have rejected the measure when they honestly believed it would have been an obstacle to their ultimate goal, Home Rule. The speaker was greatly applauded when he announced that he was a "wholly unrepentant Home Ruler," and that the rejection of the bill would make no difference in the policy of the Liberals toward Ireland. His party hoped that it might, some day in the near future, be able to effect a permanent settlement of the difficulties in Ireland in consonance with the wishes of a majority of the people of that island."

Many Farmers Were Fined

A special session of the police court was held at 11 a.m. Saturday, when 13 packets of butter were brought to the station, and then to the court room. This was on account of light weight pats being offered for sale. Several rosy-faced farmers' wives and daughters, who looked greatly out of place in the unsavory beat of police court justice, together with their male relatives, were present and discussed the proceedings asking, ("What's the use of our scales anyway?"

The first scene in the little semi-comic legal drama was the production of a set of scales by Chief Reazel. The first defendant called was Mrs. Geo. McGee, who had a large basket full of butter. She was charged with having offered for sale a quantity of butter weighing less than represented. A pat supposed to weigh a pound was put on the scales and was found to lack perhaps half an ounce of correct weight, some however were full weight.

Mary Dugan's butter was next put to the test and weighed from one half to three-quarters of an ounce light per pat. Mrs. Michael's butter was full weight; she left with a satisfied smile and her basket, every pat being full weight. Mrs. Fee next departed with her butter, which was found correct. Mrs. Hanton's butter lacked from half an ounce to an ounce and a quarter light. Mrs. Galvin's ran from one-half ounce to one ounce light. Mrs. Grieve also had light weight. Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Whitfield and several others all sold pats containing from 14 3-4 to 15 1-2 ounces instead of the legal 16 ounces per pound.

Whilst nearly every one of these brought to book for this petty dishonesty, claimed to have either actually weighed their pats on the scales at their respective homes, or had made them in presses supposed to contain a full pound, it is significant that of the scores of pats weighed in court, not one showed the minutest fraction of an ounce over light weight. When so many "mistakes" were made not one was to the benefit of trusting housewives and the public in general. As this was the first raid on butter for a long time the magistrate fined each vendor who had light weight butter $2, but did not confiscate the goods as he might have done under the by-law. It is to be hoped that thippetty fraud on the public will be stopped.

Peterboro Won the Ball Game

On Saturday afternoon a large crowd gathered at the Exhibition Grounds to witness what proved to be one of the best and most interesting exhibition games seen in this city for many a day. Many ladies took to the game and seemed to enjoy the sport. The game was clean and fast, and the fact that the St. Andrew's lead the league they play with in Toronto, and went down to defeat, shows that Manager Johnston's bunch are on to their job and will be heard from this season to good advantage. The street car service handled the crowds very well both going and returning. Mr. Wareham gave good satisfaction as umpire. The locals played better as far as team work is concerned than in any game played so far this season. The dumb plays that were so much in evidence last season, especially with runners on bases, has been cut out, and the team puts up a very snappy article of ball, and never let up until the last man is retired.

Burridge behind the bat for the locals put up a good game and his work helped a lot to bring victory to his team. Faherty who was on the mound for Peterborough, had perfect control and was always master of the situation. Connors did some excellent work with the stick. The St. Andrew's who are a husky bunch and certainly know how to play ball, left for their home in Toronto by the early C.P.R. train yesterday morning after a pleasant visit. The game was won by the locals by a score of 9—6. The Peterborough team lined up as follows;

Callaghan, lf.
Burridge, c.
Connors, cf.
Sheridan, rf.
Quinlan, 3b.
Johnston, ss.

Butter Seizures Well Spoken of

(To the Editor of The Times).

Sir,—On Saturday afternoon and evening I happened to overhear several and conflicting expressions of opinion about the trials that morning of some dozen or so farmers caught selling light weight butter, who when such was proven were very brightly fined $2 each. Whilst a majority of those speaking about this matter seemed to think the fines should have been heavier and the butter confiscated, others thought the action of the police would have a tendency to drive farmers to other markets or to the shops to sell their goods.

Now, sir, I agree with those who would inflict heavier penalties on people who grind the last cent out of the townspeople, who get higher prices than almost any other town in Canada pays, and who nevertheless descend to such contemptible practices as cheating the working man's wife out of from one half an ounce to one and a half ounces on every pound of her dearly bought butter. It is a significant fact that although nearly every one of the defendants was shown to be selling light weight butter that not one single case showed that the purchaser got more than he paid for. If those who sell the staple and necessary articles of food, such as must be bought by the poor, deliberately, as proven Saturday, cheat such people, our market would be better without their presence. Should the farmers continue to cheat the public by short weight by taking such goods to the merchants, the long and strong hand of justice would grasp such goods when retailed. No, Mr. Editor instead of fault finding the watchmen of Chief Reazel and the staff should be commended in the interests of the poor of Peterborough.

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

Once more Hector Baker, whose face is strictly familiar to the Sons of Rest and the police court frequenters, was once more up on Saturday, charged with the same old charge of vagrancy, and pleaded not guilty.

P. C. McDonald testified that he found Baker in Kelly's barn about one o'clock Saturday morning with a woman named Nellie Drain. He arrested them both. Magistrate Dumble said that he knew Baker was living a blackguard's life, but he decided to let him go this time, time, ("But," said his worship, as Baker was leaving "if you are ever brought before me again on a charge like this I will send you to the Central Prison."

Thos McDonnell, better known as "Mousey," who is a poor broken down cripple and whose shrine of worship is represented by the barest possible grass of tangle leg obtainable at some soft-hearted man's expense, was given three months' vacation in Castle Nesbitt.

Nellie Drain the unfortunate creature arrested with Baker, and who gives Norwood the honor of being her birth place, was given one month in the stone house that frowns over Victoria Park.

TREATMENT OF INEBRIETY

Following a forcible address by Mr. Justice Riddell, the Ontario Medical Association the other day passed a resolution appointing a committee to institute a movement for the establishment of an institution for the treatment of inebriates. Judge Riddell's experience of the inebriate in the criminal courts cannot, of course, be as ripe as that of men who have served for years on the police court bench, but he has used his powers of observation in such manner as to convince him that the present method of handling drunkards is wrong; that since it is quite beyond the power of the police magistrate to recreate the legal machinery with which they work, the machinery should be recreated for them. He holds that there is no sense in sending a drunken man from the police court to prison if he is going to get drunk again as soon as he comes out.

Drunkenness, he says, is often a disease, just as insanity is. Many inebriates are victims of the habit, and not always through their own fault. There is no public institution where they can be cared for and cured. They cannot afford to pay for their treatment at the private institutions in Guelph and Toronto. And the judge's remedy is that the inebriates should be sent to an institution intended not only to lock them up and sober them up, but to cure them of their craving. Drunkenness, of course, is a disease; in some few cases, perhaps, a disease for which the patient is even less to be blamed than if it were tuberculosis, that drunkenness, whether a physical ailment or not, is so often allied to individual cussedness, that the problem of its treatment often baffles the most thorough going and persistent philanthropist.

That there should be some element of compulsion in any provision for the incarceration of a chronic inebriate seems to be almost inevitable, since neither public opinion nor ordinary common sense would approve any plan for the coddling of drunken persons. The Toronto Telegram makes a series of excellent and practical suggestions. It holds that there is really no danger of coddling in a truly humane and scientific method of dealing with chronic drunkenness, and that the province should establish an institution with a large farm attached. Drunkards should be committed to this institution and encouraged to try healthy, but not unduly severe, work as a cure for their disease. The question of raising money to build and maintain such an institution would be readily solved by an increased tax on the liquor traffic. A small increase in the present tax on licenses would provide a revenue sufficient to remove what the Telegram describes as the reproach of Ontario's failure to attempt the reformation of the drunkard.

The plan seems worth trying. The reformation of the drunkard might be accomplished by the total prohibition of the liquor traffic, but in the postponement of that remedy some other might be attempted.

A Disappointment

Winnipeg, June 8.—The Grain conference has proved a very distinct appointment to all classes interested in that industry. The refusal of the grain exchange delegates to participate in the deliberations after they discovered that it was proposed to have all exchange bylaws submitted to the Lieutenant-governor was a blow to the government. The feeling is very general that the conference has contributed nothing substantial to the solution of the difficulties. The chief resolutions adopted for reciprocal demurrage and government storage elevators contain nothing new, and had been advocated steadily by the Grain Growers' Association for months. The government has given no evidence of what its policy will be in respect to these two resolutions.

THE SOMERSAULT CAR.

Automobile That Turns Completely Over In Midair.

Whatever may be thought of the American somersaulting motor car as a public performance, it is certainly a triumph of scientific mechanics. The car, moving down a steeply inclined track, attains a velocity of twenty-eight miles an hour. Leaving the track at the base of the incline, it is shot into the air and turns a complete somersault before reaching a platform some feet off. The arrangements by which this remarkable feat is achieved are notable for their simplicity. The necessary gyrating impulse is given to the car as it reaches the base of the incline by the arrangement of the guiding rails in relation to the track itself. On the incline, which starts at a height of fifty feet from the ground, are a pair of broad tracks for the wheels of the car, and between these a pair of guide rails. The car is kept to these rails by four ball bearing rollers, two in front and two behind. The former press the sides of the rails, while the latter run in grooves on the tops of the same. This arrangement, combined with the sharp upward turn of the rails at the base of the incline, gives the car the necessary twisting impulse just as it leaps into the air, for the front wheels of the car remain on the track, while the hind ones are lifted up by the back rollers, which run on the top of the rails. As the center of gravity of the car describes a parabola in the air the car itself turns a slow somersault, moving through 40 degrees for every two feet horizontal advance. Having turned completely round, it will have thus advanced nine feet, and a collapsible platform is placed at this distance to receive it. The car lands on this in a horizontal position, the force of the impact being taken up by the springs, and runs off it for some thirty or forty feet. The success of the affair consists in the careful adjustment of the pitch of the rails in relation to that of the track. The car must land on the platform all four wheels at once; otherwise, as has been shown by actual occurrence, the wheels first touching will be crushed and the car damaged.—London Globe.

Flint Knives.

Knives of flint and other stone breaking with a sharp fracture were known in early times. When the Spaniards invaded Mexico, the natives had knives of volcanic glass.

Beggars' Ticks.

Beggars' ticks is the common name of Bidens chrysanthemoides. It is so called from the small hooks with which the seed case is provided, by which it attaches itself to almost any substance with which it comes in contact.

The Celestials.

The Chinese are called Celestials because China is known as the Celestial empire. It is so described because the Chinese call it Tien Chao or "heavenly dynasty." The emperor is also sometimes styled "the brother of the sun and moon."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible. But I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular washes, found in Rheumatic Blood, seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

A lake shaped something like a pair of spectacles, rather than a pair of lakes, joined by a passage some few feet wide. A lake immensely deep in parts, with sunny bathing beaches, perfectly safe, along its shores. Beautiful woods all round, full of native life, unspoilt and largely untrodden. And, nestling over the water, just at the bridge of the spectacles, is the grand old rock, the crowning glory of Lake Massanoga, "The Gibraltar of Canada," it has been called, and fitly enough. A mile and more long, hundreds of feet high, rising sheer out of the calm waters of the lake, impressively beautiful by day, positively awe-inspiring in the moonlight, is this great stone mountain. In its shadow nestles Bon Echo Inn, as nearly perfect a summer hotel as one could wish to find. Hotel seems scarcely the word for Bon Echo, so homelike is it—the hotel feeling lasts no longer than it takes our genial host to express his welcome. Canoeing, sailing, rowing, swimming, all may be enjoyed at Massanoga, and down in the depths lurk gamey salmon-trout. Massanoga is a resort recently discovered, and known to comparatively few Canadians. But for people who want to get near to nature, and yet not out of touch of civilization, who want to enjoy glorious air, brilliant sunshine, cool waters and all the fascinations of a primitive region combined with the comforts of a modern summer resort, Massanoga is the place. The nearest railway station is Kaladar, 150 miles east of Toronto on the C.P.R. Illustrated folder and full particulars will be gladly mailed upon request by C. B. Foster, District Passenger Agent, C.P.R., Toronto.

Some High Priced Animals.

A spinster with money to burn recently paid $5,000 for a bulldog. A man in Massachusetts has just bought a cow for $8,000. Walter Garvey has a hog for which he refused a cash offer of $4,000. James Keene refused $200,000 for Sysonby, a race horse. There are several roosters of fashionable blood priced as high as $800 each. You can buy a fine lion for $300 and a tiger for $700. By and by we shall have a craze for breeding fishes, and a fine male salmon educated to pond life might be worth $1,000. The $8,000 cow has one calf a year, worth $4,000. The female salmon may become the mother of 300,000 little fellows in the same time, worth in the aggregate possibly as much as the calf.—Kansas City Journal.

Reversible Cognomen.

Of course this is old.

There is in New York today, however, a contractor and dealer in glass who when weary from writing his name from left to right can reverse the process without in any way changing the spelling—Lose Heel.—New York Press.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO. Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zion group, in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Partners of the Tide

...By... JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

"Don't be silly. Sam is a good waiter, and he has improved in his manners and in other ways. I shouldn't want you to settle down into nothing but a 'longshoreman. I guess I'm like Miss Tempy. I hoped you'd be captain of an ocean liner some of these days."

"Well, I don't mean to cramp myself to 'longshoreman size just because I stay in the village. It looks to me like a chance—a good chance—to be my own boss and make something of myself. I hoped you'd see it that way."

"Perhaps I shall when I get more used to it. Tell me more, please."

They had reached the little house, and, leaning on the gate under the big silver leaf tree, Bradley again went over the details of the new plan. Gus was interested and asked many questions, but to both of them the interview was not entirely satisfactory. The old, boy and girl, whole hearted exchange of confidences seemed to be lacking. To Bradley in particular as he turned away after saying "Good night" the consciousness of a difference in his relation with his old time "chum" was keen. She was interested in him and in his hopes and plans, but she had plans and hopes of her own, and perhaps he was not so much the central figure as he used to be.

Next day Bradley called on the captain. The latter had seen Caleb Burgess, and the Lizzie could be bought for a very reasonable sum. Captain Titcomb was also preparing a long table of figures showing the cost of what was needed to fit her up. They talked for over an hour, but Bradley was not yet ready to decide. He would take his full week, he said.

But by the end of the week his mind was made up. He was ready to take the chance that the captain offered. He told Gus so, and she agreed that perhaps he was doing right. He told the old maids and so knocked Miss Tempy's air castles into smithereens in one tremendous crash.

The partnership articles were signed, Bradley drew his money from the savings bank, and the Lizzie changed hands. The next month was a very busy one, for they were at work on the schooner every day refitting and rigging. One noon of the fourth week the captain came down to the wharf with a Boston paper in his hand.

Bradley took the paper and saw on the page indicated the words: "Wreck on the Long Island Sand Bars. The Schooner Thomas Doane Lost. All Hands Saved." He glanced over the article, which briefly stated that the three masted schooner Thomas Doane, Burke master, had struck on the shoals off Long Island and would be a total loss. The crew, after trying in vain to save the vessel, had taken to the boats and reached shore in safety.

"I didn't believe they'd dare do it!" exclaimed Bradley. "We know, and they know we know."

"Who'll tell?" asked the captain shortly. "Not me, for I was in it as bad as the rest. Not you, for they know you and me were thicker'n flies on a molasses stopper. No; 'twas 'Goodby, Susan Jane,' so far as the old Doane was concerned, and I've been expectin' it. Well, I wasn't at the funeral, so let's forgit it."

And apparently Captain Titcomb did forget it. A good many months were to pass before Bradley was again to hear his friend mention that subject.

CHAPTER IX.

IT was a May morning off Setuckit Point. The Point itself was in the middle distance, with the lighthouse top shining black against the sky and the little cluster of fishing shanties showing brown amid the white sand dunes and green beach grass. The life saving station was perched on the highest of the dunes, and its cupola was almost as conspicuous as the lighthouse. The thick cloud, apparently of mosquitoes, hovering over the point was in reality the flock of mackerel gulls that are always hunting for sand eels on the flat. Low down across the horizon miles beyond was smeared the blue and yellow streak that marked the mainland of the cape.

To the right, only half a mile away, but through the darker water that indicated the ship channel, a four masted schooner was moving swiftly, the sunshine flashing sparks from her cabin windows and marking high lights and shadows on her swelling canvas. Ahead of her, against the sky line, was the lightship that marked the turning point in the course. Behind, not quite so far away, was the other lightship that she had just passed. More schooners were following her, strung out in a long line, and others, bound in the opposite direction, were standing inshore or heading out to sea as they beat up in the face of the brisk wind. An occasional steamer or an ocean tug with a tow flaunted a dingy streamer of smoke here and there amid the graceful schooners.

Along the edge of the channel and sprinkled amid the blue were patches of light green water where the waves ran higher and broke occasionally. There were the shoals—the "Razorback," the "Boneyard" and the rest. If it were possible and fashionable to erect tombstones for lives lost at sea these hidden sand bars would bristle with them. Not a winter month that passes but vessels are driven ashore here, and the wicked tides and winds scatter their timbers far and wide. The Setuckit life saving crew have few restful hours from October to May.

On the edge of one of these shoals, just over in deep water, a little schooner lay at anchor, rocking and plunging incessantly. Her sails were down, and only one man was aboard. Half a mile away, just where the tail of the shoal ends out into the channel, two dories were moving slowly in parallel courses, trailing a rope between them. The schooner was the Lizzie; the man aboard her was Barney Small, once a stage driver, but now, forced out of business by the new railroad, back again at his old trade—wrecking. Captain Ezra Titcomb was rowing one dory and Bradley Nickerson the other. They were "anchor dragging."

The two dories moved slowly down the edge of the shoal, separated by a distance of perhaps a hundred yards. The line between them, weighted with a lead sinker at each end, was dragging along the bottom.

They were dragging for an anchor lost by the coasting schooner Mary D. a month before. She had been caught by the tide, and the chain had been let go with a run. One of the hands aboard—Eldredge by name—was an Orham man, and he had had the presence of mind to take the "ranges," which information he had sold to Captain Titcomb for a five dollar bill.

Bradley and the captain began rowing once more. They had gone but a little way when, slowly but surely, the dories began to draw nearer to each other. Bradley, looking over the side, saw that the "drag line" no longer hung straight down, but, tightly stretched by whatever was holding it on the bottom, led off diagonally astern.

They kept on rowing easily, and in a few minutes the pressure on the line had brought the dories side by side. Then Bradley passed his end of the rope to his partner, who began hauling in with care. By this operation the skipper's dory was soon brought directly over the spot where lay the hidden object. Bradley rowed his own boat alongside.

"Now, then," said Captain Titcomb, "let's see if she's got the right complexion."

He leaned over the side and, taking one end of the line in each hand, pulled them tight and sawed vigorously back and forth, thus drawing a section of the rope again and again under the treasure trove below. Then he paid out one end of the line and hauled in the other until this section came to the surface. It was marked with a dull red stain—iron rust.

The smaller end of the "way line," a stout rope tapering from one inch to three inches in thickness, was spliced to the "drag line" and drawn down and under the supposed anchor until the latter was looped by it. Then the "messenger," an iron shackle or collar fastened by a bolt or pin, was clamped about the upper parts of the loop. To this "messenger" was also attached a small cord.

The "way line" was drawn tight, and the heavy "messenger" plunged out of sight beneath the water. It slid down to the end of the "way line," thus holding with a tenacious grip the submerged object. They tested with the "messenger," pulling it up with the cord and letting it drop again. It struck solidly and with the tingle of metal against metal.

Bradley pulled down the Lizzie. Barney and he hoisted canvas enough to give them steerage way, and the little vessel ran alongside of the captain's dory. Then the ropes were rigged through the block in the fore rigging, and Bradley and Barney fitted in the brakes of the clumsy hand windlass, while Captain Titcomb stood by the bulwark.

"H'ist away!" commanded the skipper.

The windlass creaked, the cable tightened and the blocks groaned as a heavy weight was lifted from the bottom. A minute or two more and the captain signaled to ease up.

"Look at that," said Captain Ezra, pointing. "What do you say to a bell-buoy frame?"

"Why, sure!" Bradley's tone was a disgusted one. "Well, we've had our work for nothing. That framework isn't worth anything."

"'Tain't the stockin' that counts always; it's what Santa Claus puts inside of it. I have a notion this feller may be a s'prise package. H'ist away!"

More of the wet rope came aboard. Captain Ezra chuckled.

"I guessed pretty nigh that time," he muttered. "Now, Brad, come here."

The iron frame, green with seaweed and trimmed with kelp and shells, hung half out of the water. At its base, just above the battered and crushed cone that had been the buoy, a big bronze bell glistened and dripped.

"And I can git $25 for that bell," crowed the captain, "which in the pres-

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

Aristotle.

Zoologists regard Aristotle as the founder of their science, although the scientific classification of the animal world was not made until the time of Linnaeus, who in 1741 divided the animal kingdom into six groups. The classification of animals into four divisions was made by Cuvier in his great work, "The Animal Kingdom," published in 1816.

Bellows.

The blacksmith's bellows is attributed to Anacharsis, the Scythian who is said also to have been the inventor of the potter's wheel, of ship anchors and other pieces of mechanism and the discoverer of the valuable properties of tinder.

Von Bulow.

Von Bulow, the great pianist, once said, "If I miss practicing one day, I know it; two days, and my friends know it; three days, and my audiences know it."

King's Counsel.

The difference between a counsel and king's counsel is that the latter is supposed to be able to appear as the sovereign's advocate. Both are entitled to wear wig and gown, but the gown of the latter is silk and that of the former is of "stuff." The king's counsel can take only what is termed "leading business."

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable. 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Congestion of blood in the head must be removed.

Irritation in the brain must be relieved.

It's because Ferrozone equalizes circulation, because it soothes the irritation, because it removes congestion that it does cure insomnia.

Remember, sleep is just as important as food.

You must sleep, or break down.

You can if you'll use Ferrozone and thereby remove the conditions which now keep you from sleep.

Ferrozone is not a narcotic, not a dope; it is a health-giving tonic that any child or delicate woman can use.

Absolutely safe is Ferrozone.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Missing Cash Box Found in River

This morning the young man Elliott, who pleaded guilty to stealing an iron cash box, containing about $5, from the American Hotel whilst working there last week will appear for sentence at the police court.

P. C. Newball learning that Elliott had been seen to throw something into the river the evening of the theft, procured a canoe and carefully paddled up and down along the bank, searching either for the box or portions of it. At last his search was rewarded by finding some pieces of the box lying on the bank just beside the water's edge and later on more of the disrupted "bank" in the river. The officer also discovered that Elliott had changed some copper coins the box had contained for silver and that he had disposed of a 25-cent "shin plaster which was on the box to a man who sits in the alleyway on Hunter street. The shin-plaster again reached Mr. Fynn's hand. The officer then arrested Elliott, who afterwards, when put through a stiff examination, confessed to the theft.

Lady's Pluck Stops a Burglar

Early Saturday morning Miss Rozie Nimmo demonstrated that she has forethought and pluck of rare occurrence in young ladies. It seems that the residence of Dr. Nimmo, 14 Harvey street, was in the wee small hours pooked on by a midnight mechanic as a likely spot to gain wealth without work. The burglar had about three o'clock gained access to the house, via a cellar window, and quickly made his way to the second story. Miss Nimmo was awakened by some slight noise the man made and immediately conjecturing the intruder was a burglar, jumped from bed and turned on the electric light, flashing the bulb in the intruder's face. Another young lady in the house was awakened and made a quick witted bluff, saying, "You better get the gun." This combination was too much for the burglar who suddenly remembered he had a pressing engagement elsewhere and dashed through a cellar window glass and fled. Nothing of value was taken.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in restored comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

SAW TRAIN RUN ON SINGLE RAIL

Brennan's Invention is Heralded by Some as the Greatest Invention of the Age---Use the Gyroscope Principle

London, June 10.—The mechanical contrivance for performing a miracle.

ON GYROSCOPE PRINCIPLE.

But there is no mystery about Mr Brennan's invention. His little railway train is kept in perfect equilibrium on its single line of support by an marvelously ingenious application of the principle which keeps a spinning top upright. Calling the spinning top a gyroscope or a gyrostat, scientists have investigated its properties and mathematicians have cast themselves in intricate calculations. It is the principle of the spinning top which maintains the equipoise of the universe.

TIGHT-ROPE RAILWAY.

The model Mr. Brennan showed is large enough to carry a load of ten stone weight. The two gyroscope wheels which keep it balanced are only five inches in diameter, revolving at a rate of 7,000 a minute. They are driven by electricity from storage batteries in the model, and the same batteries supply the driving power to the row of running wheels. But any other motive power may be employed. Mr. Brennan has a single rail laid about the grounds of his house. In some places it is an inch or so only above the ground. In one the single rail consists of a wire rope stretched across a dip in the ground at a height of six or seven feet. Across this tightrope the wonderful little car runs with perfect balance.

Many Farmers Were Fined

A special session of the police court was held at 11 a.m. Saturday, when 13 baskets of butter were brought to the station, and then to the court room. This was on account of light weight pats being offered for sale. Several rosy-faced farmers' wives and daughters, who looked greatly out of place in the unsavory beat of police court justice, together with their male relatives, were present and discussed the proceedings asking, "What's the use of our scales anyway?"

The first scene in the little serio-comic legal drama was the production of a set of scales by Chief Bonzel. The first defendant called was Mrs. Geo. McGee, who had a large basket full of butter. She was charged with having offered for sale a quantity of butter weighing less than represented. A pat supposed to weigh a pound was put on the scales and was found to lack perhaps half an ounce of correct weight, some however were full weight.

Mary Duggan's butter was next put to the test and weighed from one half to three-quarters of an ounce light per pat. Mrs. Michael's butter was full weight; she left with a satisfied smile and her basket, every pat being full weight. Mrs. Fee next departed with her butter, which was found correct. Mrs. Huston's butter lacked from half an ounce to an ounce and a quarter light. Mrs. Galvin's ran from one-half ounce to one ounce light. Mrs. Grieve also had light weight. Mrs. Wood, Mrs. Whitfield and several others all sold pats containing from 14 3-4 to 15 1-2 ounces instead of the legal 16 ounces per pound.

Whilst nearly every one of these brought to book for the petty dishonesty, claimed to have either actually weighed their pats on the scales at their respective homes, or had made them in presses supposed to contain a full pound, it is significant that of the scores of pats weighed in court, not one showed the minutest fraction of an ounce over light weight. When so many "mistakes" were made not one was to the benefit of trusting housewives and the public in general. As this was the first raid on butter for a long time the magistrate fined each vendor who had light weight butter $2, but did not confiscate the goods as he might have done under the by-law. It is to be hoped that thispetty fraud on the public will be stopped.

Peterboro Won the Ball Game

On Saturday afternoon a large crowd gathered at the Exhibition Grounds to witness what proved to be one of the best and most interesting exhibition games seen in this city for many a day. Many ladies took in the game and seemed to enjoy the sport. The game was clean and fast, and the fact that the St. Andrew's lead the league they play with in Toronto, and went down to defeat, shows that Manager Johnston's bunch are on to their job and will be heard from this season to good advantage. The street car service handled the crowds very well both going and returning. Mr. Wareham gave good satisfaction as umpire. The locals played better as far as team work is concerned than in any game played so far this season. The dumb plays that were so much in evidence last season, especially with runners on bases, has been cut out, and the team puts up a very snappy article of ball, and never let up until the last man is retired.

Burridge behind the bat for the locals put up a good game and his work helped a lot to bring victory to his team. Flaherty who was on the slab for Peterborough, had perfect control and was always master of the situation. Connors did some excellent work with the stick. The St. Andrew's who are a husky bunch and certainly know how to play ball, left for their home in Toronto by the early C.P.R. train yesterday morning after a pleasant visit. The game was won by the locals by a score of 9—6. The Peterborough team lined up as follows;

Church Parade of 57th Regiment

Local Soldiers, in Full Strength Visit St. Paul's Church

Yesterday evening the 57th Regiment in full strength, accompanied by the cadets in full uniform held a parade to St. Paul's church where the pastor, Rev. Dr. Torrance preached an eloquent and patriotic sermon to them.

Shortly before seven o'clock the regiment drew up in companies at the armories and headed by the full brass and bugle bands in regular order marched east on Brock street to Water street, turning up north to the church. It would be hard to find any where in the world a more imposing, better dressed, better disciplined or finer body of men than last night delighted the thousands who had turned out to see the parade. The bugle band played the regiment to Victoria Park where the full brass band, which led the procession played to the church doors and whilst the remainder countermarched by them and filled the aisles that had been reserved for the soldiery.

Behind the bands Lieut.-Col. Miller and Rev. Canon Davidson, regimental chaplain, led the rank and file. Col. Young and other officers of the 24 Field Battery, in their black and gold braided uniform represented that branch of the service. Behind several of the leading companies, marched the cadets, in good time, and looking like, what they are, the coming soldiers of the country, clad as the regiment in red coats and white helmets.

To the rear of the regiment in full dress, marched Major J. T. I. Halliday, the doctor of the regiment. Major McWilliams also turned out with his company as did nearly all the officers. In front of Victoria Park the column changed to formation of two to facilitate entry to the church. Rev. Mr. Davidson had to leave as the regiment entered St. Paul's to take the service at his own church. Taken altogether the boys in red had a splendid turn out and presented a spectacle that made every one who saw them feel proud of our Peterborough Rangers.

Butter Seizures Well Spoken of

(To the Editor of The Times).

Sir,—On Saturday afternoon and evening I happened to overhear several conflicting expressions of opinion about the trials that morning of some dozen or so farmers caught selling light weight butter, who when such was proven were very rightly fined $2 each. Whilst a majority of those speaking about this matter seemed to think the fines should have been heavier and the butter confiscated, others thought the action of the police would have a tendency to drive farmers to other markets or to the shops to sell their goods.

Now, sir, I agree with those who would inflict heavier penalties on people who grind the last cent out of the townspeople, who get higher prices than almost any other town in Canada pays, and who nevertheless descend to such contemptible practices as cheating the working man's wife out of from one half an ounce to one and a half ounces on every pound of her dearly bought butter. It is a significant fact that although nearly every one of the defendants was shown to be selling light weight butter that not one single case showed that the purchaser got more than he paid for. If those who sell the staple and necessary articles of food, such as must be bought by the poor, deliberately as proven Saturday, cheat such people, our market would be better without their presence. Should the farmers continue to cheat the public by short weight by taking such goods to the merchants, the long and strong hand of justice would grasp such goods when retailed. No, Mr. Editor instead of fault finding the vigilance of Chief Bonzel and his staff should be commended in the interests of the poor of Peterborough.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

Once more Hector Baker, whose face is strictly familiar to the Sons of Rest and the police court frequenters, was once more up on Saturday, charged with the same old charge of vagrancy, and pleaded not guilty.

P. C. McDonald testified that he found Baker in Kelly's barn about one o'clock Saturday morning with a woman named Nellie Drain. He arrested them both. Magistrate Dumble said that he knew Baker was living a blackguard's life, but he decided to let him go this time. time, "But," said his worship, as Baker was leaving, "if you are ever brought before me again on a charge like this I will send you to the Central Prison."

Thos McDonnell, better known as "Mousey," who is a poor broken down cripple and whose shrine of worship is represented by the largest possible glass of tangle leg obtainable at some soft-hearted man's license, was given three months' vacation in Cobble Nesbitt.

Nellie Drain the unfortunate creature arrested with Baker, and who gives Norwood the honor of being her birth place, was given one month in the same house that frowns over Victoria Park.

HIS SECOND WIFE IS AGAINST HIM

Widow Whom Orchard Married in Cripple Creek to Testify for Defence

SAYS NEITHER TIRED FIRST

When Asked Whether He or the Woman He Eloped With Tired First Orchard Says Neither

Cripple Creek, Colo., June 10.—Mrs. Ida Toney, the widow with two or three children, whom Harry Orchard married in Cripple Creek, left for Boise yesterday to appear as a witness for the defence in the Haywood trial.

Boise, June 9.—During Orchard's cross-examination he said he once lived in Detroit, but denied ever having been in Utica, N.Y.

"You left one wife in Canada!" he was asked.

"Yes."

"And you have another wife in Colorado!"

"Yes."

"You are a bigamist, then!"

"I don't know what you call it."

"You were married twice and have two wives."

"Yes."

Richardson was very aggressive with the witness, hurling his questions at him in fast flying volleys and in tones harsh and rasping.

Orchard said he ran away from Canada with another man's wife, going to Nelson, B.C. The woman's name was Hattie Simpson. Orchard went into the restaurant business for a while. He then moved to Pilot Bay, B.C., and ran a boarding house.

"You went by the name of Little, didn't you!"

"Yes."

Orchard said Mrs. Simpson went back home from Pilot Bay, and he went to Spokane.

"Which one got tired first!" demanded Richardson.

"Neither," said Orchard, amid laughter.

"Did you desert her!"

"No, she went back home."

VERY UNCONCERNED.

In spite of the unpleasant nature of the questions put to witness by Mr. Richardson, the witness answered them without the slightest hesitation. He told of leaving his wife and daughter in Canada and marrying again in Cripple Creek without obtaining a divorce in the same unconcerned way he told of setting off bombs or lying in wait for victims with a shotgun.

It developed in the cross-examination that Orchard has a brother and six sisters living in Canada and in Eastern New York, but he could not tell whether his sisters were all married or not, as he had lost track of them. One sister named Maggie, he said, is married to a Mr. Fraser and is living in Port Hope, Ont. His brother, Joseph Horsley, is living near the old home in Canada, doing farm work.

Saturday's Horse Sale a Success

The Peterborough Horse Exchange held their usual auction sale of horses, harness, buggies, etc., at their barns, Bruce Lee & Company's barns, Saturday afternoon. Several horses were disposed of at good prices Mr. Roland Deane captured a splendid young general purpose horse for $150, after bidding on a remarkably fine carriage mare, which however, did not bring the reserve bid. Mr. Jas. Gardiner the local auctioneer, conducted the sale and kept the bidders in good humor. Whilst trotting one of the horses up and down the yard to show its paces and action, a young man connected with the barns had his foot somewhat badly bruised by the animal, when frightened by a sudden and unexpected cut with a whip, trying to run and stepping on the young man's foot. These Saturday sales by the Horse Exchange are now a fixed occurrence. It is intended shortly to advertise them in the Toronto and Montreal papers, and it is anticipated that quite a number of horsemen from these cities will attend weekly.

Mr. Thomas Darcy Gets a Stroke

Well Known Burleigh Falls Hotel Keeper Stricken Yesterday

The many friends of Mr. Thos. Darcy, proprietor of the Burleigh Falls Hotel, will regret to learn that yesterday afternoon this gentleman sustained a stroke of paralysis. It seems that Mr. Darcy was during the afternoon sitting on the piazza of the hotel talking with a guest, when suddenly in the midst of a sentence his power of speech was suddenly suspended. Mr. Darcy at once went into the hotel and taking up a piece of paper and a pencil wrote, "I have lost the power of speaking. His son and Mrs. Darcy got him to bed and at once telephoned to Dr. Fraser of Lakefield, who drove out with all haste on receipt of the message, and attended the patient. Dr. Gibson of Lakefield, who happened to meet Dr. Fraser hurriedly driving towards Burleigh, telephoned Mr. Fred Darcy, proprietor of the Palace Restaurant. The latter will leave this morning for Burleigh, unless his father's condition is improved. At latest advices Mr. Darcy was doing as well as could be expected.

Fashionable Event in Local Society

Very general interest was taken Saturday over the nuptials of Miss Olive Kathleen Bradburn, only daughter of Mr. T. S. Bradburn, M.P.P., and Mr. Cyril Currier, accountant of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Ottawa, and son of Mr. J. K. W. Currier, of Ottawa.

The wedding, owing both to the personal popularity of the fair young bride and the social standing of both contracting parties had been anticipated for weeks with excitement by the many friends of each, this being testified to by the numerous and valuable gifts presented.

The ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Canon Davidson, rector of St. John's church, was celebrated in the drawing room of Moira Hall," the gloomy residence. The bridal couple passed beneath a large bell of apple blossoms, while lilies-of-the-valley, palms and ferns, were charmingly arranged throughout the room.

Miss Hazen Dean presided at the piano and, as the bride entered, on the arm of her father, who gave her away, played the Lohengrin wedding march.

The bridesmaids were Miss Evelyn Rogers, of Bridgeton, and Miss Claire Currier, of Ithaca, N.Y., sister of the bridegroom, who was supported by Mr. George C. Easton of the Bank of Montreal staff, Montreal, and Mr. Gerald K. Rickham, of this city.

The bride was attired in white Liberty satin, en traine, with embroidered chiffon yoke and flounce of princess lace. She wore a tulle veil, surmounted by orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and pink orchids. The gown of Miss Rogers, one of the bridesmaids, was a blue mulle Princess, trimmed with valenciennes lace and insertion; blue mohair hat, trimmed with mousse, and blue, rose and white marine ties. Miss Currier wore a pink mulle Princess costume, with trimmings, and hat similar to those worn by Miss Rogers.

The usual reception was held on conclusion of the ceremony, and refreshments served in a large tent on the lawn. The happy couple left by the 4.48 C.P.R. train for a bridal tour which will include several western cities. They will on their return reside at No. three Fleming Terrace.

Among the invited out-of-town guests were Mr. Frank Bradburn, Calgary, Alta., and Mr. Ormond Bradburn, Montreal, brothers of the bride, Mr. J. E. W. Currier, Ottawa; Mr. E. MARRIED BY JULIUS CAESAR'S SPIRIT

Thinks Ghostly Manipulations Are Responsible for the Coffee Color of Her Baby, But Physicians Scoff at the Idea as Ridiculous

New York, June 9.—Mrs. Annie Laymon, a white woman, 30 years old, held a coffee-colored baby in her arms when she appeared before Magistrate Whitman in the Yorkville police court. She explained to the court that she had gone through the spiritualistic form of marriage and she believed that departed spirits were responsible for African tinge that showed in the baby's complexion.

"Julius Caesar performed the marriage through Manna Misteria, the medium," she went on. "The spirits must work through a material body in this world. That body is named the medium. I was employed by Mme. Payne of 215 West thirty-fourth street, and that is how I became a spiritualist and got to know Manna Misteria.

"I would go to her seances in West Twenty-fifth street. When I was being married the medium informed me that it was the spirit of Julius Caesar that was performing the ceremony."

Several other spirits from the other world came to take part in the wedding, and manifested themselves through the medium, she said. These spirit guests told her that they would act the part of guardians over whatever children came to her, and she thought it likely that they had designated the color of the baby for some good purpose known only to themselves.

In Bellevue hospital, where the baby was born, two weeks ago, the physicians and nurses scoffed at the spiritualistic explanation of the baby's appearance, but then they were unbelievers, and could not understand.

They asked her if she had recently undergone a fright, and she recalled that she had been greatly shocked by seeing two negro women fighting with knives. The physicians told her that the incident fully explained the matter, but she did not look at it in that way.

Mr. Simon's Funeral Largely Attended

Yesterday the last sad rites were performed over the remains of one of Peterborough's most popular merchants, the late Mr. P. Simons. The funeral was one of the largest seen in Peterborough for many months testifying to the large number of friends desirous of paying their last respects to a departed friend. The funeral services were performed by Rev. Father Kelly, a nephew of the deceased. Fortunately both of the late Mr. Simon's sons, Danny and Richard, arrived in time to attend the funeral from distant points in Pennsylvania and Massachusetts.

POLICY TO ACCORD WITH IRISH IDEAS

So Marquis of Ripon Tells Eighty Club

"WHOLLY UNREPENTANT'

Liberal Government Still Hopes to Permanently Settle the Irish Question

London, June 9.—"The foremost liberal principle of the government, in the administration of Irish affairs, is that they should be conducted in accordance with Irish ideas," said the Marquis of Ripon, Lord Privy Seal and Liberal leader in the House of Lords, speaking last night before the Eighty Club, at the Hotel Cecil. He referred to the withdrawal of Mr. Burrell's Irish Council Bill, and declared it was quite natural that the Nationalists should have rejected the measure when they honestly believed it would have been an obstacle to their ultimate goal, Home Rule. The speaker was greatly applauded when he announced that he was a "wholly unrepentant Home Ruler," and that the rejection of the bill would make no difference in the policy of the Liberals toward Ireland. He party hoped that it might, some day in the near future, be able to effect a permanent settlement of the difficulties in Ireland in consonance with the wishes of a majority of the people of that island."

TREATMENT OF INEBRIETY

Following a forcible address by Mr. Justice Riddell, the Ontario Medical Association the other day passed a resolution appointing a committee to institute a movement for the establishment of an institution for the treatment of inebriates. Judge Riddell's experience of the inebriate in the criminal courts cannot, of course, be as ripe as that of men whohave served for years on the police court bench, but he has used his powers of observation in such manner as to convince him that the present method of handling drunkards is wrong; that since it is quite beyond the power of the police magistrate to recreate the legal machinery with which they work, the machinery should be recreated for them. He holds that there is no sense in sending a drunken man from the police court to prison if he is going toget drunk again as soon as he comes out.

Drunkenness, he says, is often a disease, just as insanity is. Many inebriates are victims of the habit, and not always through their own faults. There is no public institution where they can be cared for and cured. They cannot afford to pay for their treatment at the private institutions in Guelph and Toronto. And the judge's remedy is that the inebriates should be sent to an institution intended not only to lock them up and sober them up, but to cure them of their craving. Drunkenness, of course, is a disease; in some few cases, perhaps, a disease for which the patient is even less to be blamed than if it were tuberculosis. But drunkenness, whether a physical ailment or not, is so often allied to individual senselessness that the problem of its treatment often baffles the most thorough going and permanent philanthropist.

That there should be some element of compulsion in any provision for the incarceration of a chronic inebriate seems to be almost inevitable, since neither public opinion nor ordinary common sense would approve any plan for the coddling of drunken persons. The Toronto Telegram makes a series of excellent and practical suggestions. It holds that there is really no danger of coddling in a truly humane and scientific method of dealing with chronic drunkenness, and that the province should establish an institution with a large farm attached. Drunkards should be committed to this institution and encouraged to try healthy, but not unduly severe, work as a cure for their disease. The question of raising money to build and maintain such an institution would be readily solved by an increased tax on the liquor traffic. A small increase in the present tax on licenses would provide a revenue sufficient to remove what the Telegram describes as the reproach of Ontario's failure to attempt the reformation of the drunkard.

The plan seems worth trying. The reformation of the drunkard might be accomplished by the total prohibition of the liquor traffic, but in the postponement of that remedy some other might be attempted.

A Disappointment

Winnipeg, June 8.—The Grain conference has proved a very distinct appointment to all classes interested in that industry. The refusal of the grain exchange delegates to participate in the deliberations after they discovered that it was proposed to have all exchange bylaws submitted to the lieutenant-governor was a blow to the government. The feeling is very general that the conference has contributed nothing substantial to the solution of the difficulties. The chief resolutions adopted for reciprocal demurrage and government storage elevators contain nothing new, and had been advocated steadily by the Grain Growers' Association for months. The government has given no evidence of what its policy will be in respect to these two resolutions.

THE SOMERSAULT CAR.

Automobile That Turns Completely Over In Midair.

Whatever may be thought of the American somersaulting motor car as a public performance, it is certainly a triumph of scientific mechanics. The car, moving down a steeply inclined track, attains a velocity of twenty-eight miles an hour. Leaving the track at the base of the incline, it is shot into the air and turns a complete somersault before reaching a platform some feet off. The arrangements by which this remarkable feat is achieved are notable for their simplicity. The necessary gyrating impulse is given to the car as it reaches the base of the incline by the arrangement of the guiding rails in relation to the track itself. On the incline, which starts at a height of fifty feet from the ground, are a pair of broad tracks for the wheels of the car, and between these a pair of guide rails. The car is kept to these rails by four ball bearing rollers, two in front and two behind. The former press the sides of the rails, while the latter run in grooves on the tops of the same. This arrangement, combined with the sharp upward turn of the rails at the base of the incline, gives the car the necessary twisting impulse just as it leaps into the air, for the front wheels of the car remain on the track, while the hind ones are tilted up by the back rollers, which run on the top of the rails. As the center of gravity of the car describes a parabola in the air the car itself turns a slow somersault, moving through 40 degrees for every two feet horizontal advance. Having turned completely round, it will have thus advanced nine feet, and a collapsible platform is placed at this distance to receive it. The car lands on this in a horizontal position, the force of the impact being taken up by the springs, and runs off under some thirty or forty feet. The success of the affair consists in the careful adjustment of the pitch of the rails in relation to that of the track. The car must land on the platform all four wheels abreast; otherwise, as has been shown by actual occurrence, the wheels first touching will be crushed and the car damaged.—London Globe.

Flint Knives.

Knives of flint and other stone breaking with a sharp fracture were known in early times. When the Spaniards invaded Mexico, the natives had knives of volcanic glass.

Beggars' Ticks.

Beggars' ticks is the common name of Bidens chrysanthemoides. It is so called from the small hooks with which the seed case is provided, by which it attaches itself to almost any substance with which it comes in contact.

The Celestials.

The Chinese are called Celestials because China is known as the Celestial emptire. It is so described because the Chinese call it Tien Chao or "heavenly dynasty." The emperor is also sometimes styled "the brother of the sun and moon."

Rheumatism

I have found a tried and tested cure for Rheumatism! Not a remedy that will straighten the distorted limbs of chronic cripples, nor turn bony growths back to flesh again. That is impossible, but I can now surely kill the pains and pangs of this deplorable disease.

In Germany—with a Chemist in the City of Darmstadt—I found the last ingredient with which Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Remedy was made a perfected, dependable prescription. Without that last ingredient, I successfully treated many, many cases of Rheumatism; but now, at last, it uniformly cures all curable cases of this heretofore much dreaded disease. Those sand-like granular wastes, found in Rheumatic Blood seem to dissolve and pass away under the action of this remedy as freely as does sugar when added to pure water. And then, when dissolved, these poisonous wastes freely pass from the system, and the cause of Rheumatism is gone forever. There is now no real need—no actual excuse to suffer longer without help. We sell, and in confidence recommend

A lake shaped something like a pair of spectacles, rather than a pair of lakes, joined by a passage some few feet wide. A lake immensely deep in parts, with sunny bathing beaches, perfectly safe, along its shores. Beautiful woods all round, full of native life, unspoilt and largely untrodden. And, beetling over the water, just at the bridge of the spectacles, is the grand old rock, the crowning glory of Lake Massanoga, "The Gibraltar of Canada," it has been called, and fitly enough. A mile and more long, hundreds of feet high, rising sheer out of the calm waters of the lake, impressively beautiful by day, positively awe-inspiring in the moonlight, is this great stone mountain. In its shadow nestles Bon Echo Inn, as nearly perfect a summer hotel as one could wish to find. Hotel seems scarcely the word for Bon Echo, so homelike is it—the hotel feeling lasts no longer than it takes our genial host to express his welcome. Canoeing, sailing, rowing, swimming, all may be enjoyed at Massanoga, and down in the depths lurk gamey salmon-trout. Massanoga is a resort recently discovered, and known to comparatively few Canadians. But for people who want to get near to nature, and yet not out of touch of civilization, who want to enjoy glorious air, brilliant sunshine, cool waters and all the fascinations of a primitive region combined with the comforts of a modern summer resort, Massanoga is the place. The nearest railway station is Kaladar, 150 miles east of Toronto on the C.P.R. Illustrated folder and full particulars will be gladly mailed upon request by C. B. Foster, District passenger agent, C.P.R., Toronto.

Some High Priced Animals.

A spinster with money to burn recently paid $5,000 for a bulldog. A man in Massachusetts has just bought a cow for $8,000. Walter Garvey has a hog for which he refused a cash offer of $4,000. James Keene refused $200,000 for Sysonby, a race horse. There are several roosters of fashionable blood priced as high as $800 each. You can buy a fine lion for $300 and a tiger for $700. By and by we shall have a craze for breeding fishes, and a fine male salmon educated to pond life might be worth $1,000. The $8,000 cow has one calf a year, worth $4,000. The female salmon may become the mother of 300,000 little fellows in the same time, worth in the aggregate possibly as much as the calf.—Kansas City Journal.

Reversible Cognamen.

Of course this is old.

There is in New York today, however, a contractor and dealer in glass who when weary from writing his name from left to right can reverse the process without in any way changing the spelling—Leon Mead.—New York Press.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10,00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us, that after making some improvements on a section, she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in The United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

This company owns 4 claim (80acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section (second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and with with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

...By... JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

"Don't be silly. Sam is a good waiter, and he has improved in his manners and in other ways. I shouldn't want you to settle down into nothing but a 'longshoreman. I guess I'm like Miss Tempy. I hoped you'd be captain of an ocean liner some of these days."

"Well, I don't mean to cramp myself to 'longshoreman size just because I stay in the village. It looks to me like a chance—a good chance—to be my own boss and make something of myself. I hoped you'd see it that way."

"Perhaps I shall when I get more used to it. Tell me more, please."

They had reached the little house, and, leaning on the gate under the big silver leaf tree, Bradley again went over the details of the new plan. Gus was interested and asked many questions, but to both of them the interview was not entirely satisfactory. The old, boy and girl, whole hearted exchange of confidences seemed to be lacking. To Bradley in particular as he turned away after saying "Good night" the consciousness of a difference in his relation with his old time "chum" was keen. She was interested in him and in his hopes and plans, but she had plans and hopes of her own, and perhaps he was not so much the central figure as he used to be.

Next day Bradley called on the captain. The latter had seen Caleb Burgess, and the Lizzie could be bought for a very reasonable sum. Captain Titcomb was also preparing a long table of figures showing the cost of what was needed to fit her up. They talked for over an hour, but Bradley was not yet ready to decide. He would take his full week, he said.

But by the end of the week his mind was made up. He was ready to take the chance that the captain offered. He told Gus so, and she agreed that perhaps he was doing right. He told the old maids and so knocked Miss Tempy's air castles into smithereens in one tremendous crash.

The partnership articles were signed, Bradley drew his money from the savings bank, and the Lizzie changed hands. The next month was a very busy one, for they were at work on the schooner every day refitting and rigging. One noon of the fourth week the captain came down to the wharf with a Boston paper in his hand.

Bradley took the paper and saw on the page indicated the words: "Wreck on the Long Island Sand Bars. The Schooner Thomas Doane Lost. All Hands Saved." He glanced over the article, which briefly stated that the three masted schooner Thomas Doane, Burke master, had struck on the shoals off Long Island and would be a total loss. The crew, after trying in vain to save the vessel, had taken to the boats and reached shore in safety.

"I didn't believe they'd dare do it!" exclaimed Bradley. "We know, and they know we know."

"Who'll tell?" asked the captain shortly. "Not me, for I was in it as bad as the rest. Not you, for they know you and me were thicker'n flies on a molasses stopper. No; 'twas 'Goodby, Susan Jane,' so far as the old Doane was concerned, and I've been expectin' it. Well, I wasn't at the funeral, so let's forgit it."

And apparently Captain Titcomb did forget it. A good many months were to pass before Bradley was again to hear his friend mention that subject.

CHAPTER IX.

It was a May morning off Setuckit Point. The Point itself was in the middle distance, with the lighthouse top shining black against the sky and the little cluster of fishing shanties showing brown amid the white sand dunes and green beach grass. The life saving station was perched on the highest of the dunes, and its cupola was almost as conspicuous as the lighthouse. The thick cloud, apparently of mosquitoes, hovering over the point was in reality the flock of mackerel gulls that are always hunting for sand eels on the flat. Low down across the horizon miles beyond was smeared the blue and yellow streak that marked the mainland of the cape.

To the right, only half a mile away, but through the darker water that indicated the ship channel, a four masted schooner was moving swiftly, the sunshine flashing sparks from her cabin windows and marking high lights and shadows on her swelling canvas. Ahead of her, against the sky line, was the lightship that marked the turning point in the course. Behind, not quite so far away, was the other lightship that she had just passed. More schooners were following her, strung out in a long line, and others, bound in the opposite direction, were standing inshore or heading out to sea as they beat up in the face of the brisk wind. An occasional steamer or an ocean tug with a tow flaunted a dingy streamer of smoke here and there amid the graceful schooners.

Along the edge of the channel and sprinkled amid the blue were patches of light green water where the waves ran higher and broke occasionally. There were the shoals—the "Razorback," the "Boneyard" and the rest. If it were possible and fashionable to erect tombstones for lives lost at sea these hidden sand bars would bristle with them. Not a winter month that passes but vessels are driven ashore here, and the wicked tides and winds scatter their timbers far and wide. The Setuckit life saving crew have few restful hours from October to May.

On the edge of one of these shoals, just over in deep water, a little schooner lay at anchor, rocking and plunging incessantly. Her sails were down, and only one man was aboard. Half a mile away, just where the tail of the shoal made out into the channel, two dories were moving slowly in parallel courses, trailing a rope between them. The schooner was the Lizzie; the man aboard her was Barney Small, once a stage driver, but now, forced out of business by the new railroad, back again at his old trade—wrecking. Captain Ezra Titcomb was rowing one dory and Bradley Nickerson the other. They were "anchor dragging."

The two dories moved slowly down the edge of the shoal, separated by a distance of perhaps a hundred yards. The line between them, weighted with a lead sinker at each end, was dragging along the bottom.

They were dragging for an anchor lost by the coasting schooner Mary D. a month before. She had been caught by the tide, and the chain had been let go with a run. One of the hands aboard—Eldredge by name—was an Orham man, and he had had the presence of mind to take the "ranges," which information he had sold to Captain Titcomb for a five dollar bill.

Bradley and the captain began rowing once more. They had gone but a little way when, slowly but surely, the dories began to draw nearer to each other. Bradley, looking over the side, saw that the "drag line" no longer hung straight down, but, tightly stretched by whatever was holding it on the bottom, led off diagonally, astern.

They kept on rowing easily, and in a few minutes the pressure on the line had brought the dories side by side. Then Bradley passed his end of the rope to his partner, who began hauling in with care. By this operation the skipper's dory was soon brought directly over the spot where lay the hidden object. Bradley towed his own boat alongside.

"Now, then," said Captain Titcomb, "let's see if she's got the right complexion."

He leaned over the side and, taking one end of the line in each hand, pulled them tight and sawed vigorously back and forth, thus drawing a section of the rope again and again under the treasure trove below. Then he paid out one end of the line and hauled in the other until this section came to the surface. It was marked with a dull red stain—iron rust.

The smaller end of the "way line," a stout rope tapering from one inch to three inches in thickness, was spliced to the "drag line" and drawn down and under the supposed anchor until the latter was looped by it. Then the "messenger," an iron shackle or collar fastened by a bolt or pin, was clamped about the upper parts of the loop. To this "messenger" was also attached a small cord.

The "way line" was drawn tight, and the heavy "messenger" plunged out of sight beneath the water. It slid down to the end of the "way line," thus holding with a tenacious grip the submerged object. They tested with the "messenger," pulling it up with the cord and letting it drop again. It struck solidly and with the tingle of metal against metal.

Bradley pulled down the Lizzie. Barney and he hoisted canvas enough to give them steerage way, and the little vessel ran alongside of the captain's dory. Then the ropes were rigged through the block in the fore rigging, and Bradley and Barney fitted in the brakes of the clumsy hand windlass, while Captain Titcomb stood by the bulwark.

"H'ist away!" commanded the skipper.

The windlass creaked, the cable tightened and the blocks groaned as a heavy weight was lifted from the bottom. A minute or two more and the captain signaled to ease up.

"Look at that," said Captain Ezra, pointing. "What do you say to a bell-buoy frame?"

"Why, sure!" Bradley's tone was a disgusted one. "Well, we've had our work for nothing. That framework isn't worth anything."

"'Tain't the stockin' that counts always; it's what Santa Claus puts inside of it. I have a notion this feller may be a s'prise package. H'ist away!"

More of the wet rope came aboard. Captain Ezra chuckled.

"And I can git $25 for that bell," crowed the captain, "which in the present, two dories were moving slowly in parallel courses, trailing a rope between them. OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

Aristotle.

Zoologists regard Aristotle as the founder of their science, although the scientific classification of the animal world was not made until the time of Linnaeus, who in 1741 divided the animal kingdom into six groups. The classification of animals into four divisions was made by Cuvier in his great work, "The Animal Kingdom," published in 1816.

Bellows.

The blacksmith's bellows is attributed to Anacharsis, the Scythian who is said also to have been the inventor of the potter's wheel, of ship anchors and other pieces of mechanism and the discoverer of the valuable properties of tinder.

Von Bulow.

Von Bulow, the great pianist, once said, "If I miss practicing one day, I know it; two days, and my friends know it; three days, and my audiences know it."

King's Counsel.

The difference between a counsel and king's counsel is that the latter is supposed to be able to appear as the sovereign's advocate. Both are entitled to wear wig and gown, but the gown of the latter is silk and that of the former is of "stuff." The king's counsel can take only what is termed "leading business."

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 800,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Do Not Blame the Cat

Housewives who have, in the past, blamed the cat for causing their pounds of butter to disappear so quickly, should exonerate pussy. When 101 of 13 baskets of butter weighed by the police on Saturday, only two contained honest weight, it is the farmer not the feline that fleeces the flat.

Mr. Danny Simons is the City

Mr. Danny Simons, the popular comedian, arrived in the city Saturday evening, direct from Boston, per C.P.R., on the sad errand of attending his late father's funeral. He was met at the depot by his brother Mr. Peter Simons, and driven direct to the family residence. Mr. Simons will doubtless remain in the city for a few days. Whilst sincerely regretting the sad circumstance impelling Danny's present visit to his native town, his many friends will be pleased to see him personally.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Missing Cash Box Found in River

This morning the young man Elliott, who pleaded guilty to stealing an iron cash box, containing about $5, from the American Hotel whilst working there last week will appear for sentence at the police court.

E. C. Newball learning that Elliott had been seen to throw something into the river the evening of the theft, procured a canoe and carefully paddled up and down along the bank, searching either for the box or portions of it. At last his search was rewarded by finding some pieces of the box lying on the bank just beside the water's edge and later on more of the disrupted "bank" in the river. The officer also discovered that Elliott had changed some copper coins the box had contained for for silver and that he had disposed of a 25-cent "shin plaster" which was in the box to a man who sits in the alleyway on Hunter street. The shin-plaster again reached Mr. Eayre's hand. The officer then arrested Elliott, who afterwards, when put through a stiff examination, confessed to the theft.

Lady's Pluck Stops a Burglar

Early Saturday morning Miss Roxie Nimmo demonstrated that she has forethought and pluck of rare occurrence in young ladies. It seems that the residence of Dr. Nimmo, 14 Harvey street, was in the wee sma' hours picked on by a midnight mechanic as a likely spot to gain wealth without work. The burglar had about three o'clock gained access to the house, via a cellar window, and quickly made his way to the second story. Miss Nimmo was awakened by some slight noise the man made and immediately conjecturing the intruder was a burglar, jumped from bed and turned on the electric light, flashing the bulb in the intruder's face. Another young lady in the house was awakened and made a quick witted bluff, saying, "You better get the gun." This combination was too much for the burglar who suddenly remembered he had a pressing engagement elsewhere and dashed through a cellar window glass and fled. Nothing of value was taken.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a peach which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. There are two reasons for this change, ignorance and neglect. Few young women appreciate the shock to the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in restored comeliness. Nearly a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. Made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mother, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and making its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It can do no harm in any condition of the system. It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nervine, nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

CITY FATHERS IN COM. OF WHOLE

Architect To Prepare Plans for Remodelling Old Fire Hall and Present City Offices for Convenience of City Officials and Aldermen---Aid for Colonial Weaving Co

The Committee of the Whole Council met last night when there were present, Mayor R. F. McWilliams in the chair, and Alderman Johnston, Stevenson, Bradburn, Leary, Morrow, Phelan, Duncan, Elliott, Wilson, McIntyre, and Morgan.

The first question taken up was that of the Romaine street sewer, connecting with the King Edward school. The city engineer reported that in a couple of weeks this sewer could be cleared of all obstructive sand. He offered that the sewer had a fall of four feet, and should two manholes be constructed at a cost of $50 each, the sewer would be found perfectly workable. Mr. Hay also stated that the levels of this sewer were fixed by the Board of Education.

Ald. Elliott moved, seconded by Ald Leary,—That the engineer be instructed to have two additional manholes for this Romaine street sewer constructed, and that he have the sewer cleaned out as soon as practicable.—Carried.

A steam pump will be required to clear this sewer of water.

RAILWAY CROSSING.

The question of the railway crossing at Aylmer street, will be looked into by the C.P.R. Company as soon as possible.

MAHONY UP AGAINST IT.

The mayor reported that since Mr. Mahony entered into a contract with the city for handling the dredgings from the government snow at 8 1-2c. per cubic yard, he had been imposed upon by Government Foreman Quinn with conditions that had not been enforced from Mr. Conroy last year. For instance the cars in which the material is drawn are the Government's property, and when Mr. Mahony assumed charge of the city's work, Government Foreman Quinn insisted that Mahony put new wheels on these cars at his own expense. At the incipiency of this work it was distinctly understood that the Government would give the city the use of these cars and women to assist in stamping the material from the Government snow into the cars. Again, when Mr. Mahony took hold of the city's work last week, Mr. Quinn refused him the two men on the scow allowed last year to Mr. Conroy.

R. R. Hall, M.P., had been approached by the city authorities regarding Mr. Quinn's evident discrimination against the city, through Mr. Mahony, in favor of Mr. Conroy, who has been outbid for the contract for this work by Mr. Mahony and matters run along more smoothly and satisfactory until Mr. Hall left town, when Government Foreman Quinn resumed his apparent aggressive attitude.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Bradburn,—That R. R. Hall, M.P., be communicated with at once with a view to getting Mr. Mahony the same government aid in handling the river dredgings as was afforded Mr. Conroy last year.

NEW CITY OFFICES.

The city engineer reported that he estimated converting the old fire hall into city offices would cost as follows;—

For laying out offices, $915; furnishing same and providing electric light, $145; for a public lavatory, $255; from this is to be subtracted $25 given by the contractor for the material gained in tearing down the stables and old hose tower. This leaves an estimated cost for remodelling of the old fire hall of $1290.

Ald. Wilson moved, seconded by Ald Bradburn,—That plans and specifications be drawn and tenders asked for remodelling the old fire hall into suitable city offices.—Carried.

Ald. McIntyre's amendment that this work be done by day labor was lost.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Leary,—That Mr. John Belcher be employed to draw plans for remodelling the city offices, including the old fire hall, and that Mr. Belcher furnish the Property Committee with an estimate of the cost thereof.—Carried.

ISOLATION HOSPITAL.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Duncan, —That a special committee, composed of Ald. Bradburn, Elliott and Wilson visit other cities and ascertain the cost of their construction, the plans and working of same, together with the cost and and system of maintenance thereof. —Carried.

QUESTION OF FIXED ASSESSMENT.

Chairman Ald. Morrow of the Manufacturers' Committee, introduced a by-law to provide a free site for the Colonial Weaving Company, at a cost of $3,500, and to fix their assessment at this figure for ten years. The company in return pledge themselves to erect a $12,000 building, install a $30,000 plant, and employ at least sixty hands the year round. The Manufacturers' Committee proposed to submit this bylaw to the people on July 15th, after which it would have to be confirmed by the local legislature.

According to the by-law the Colonial Weaving Co., will pay municipal taxes on but $3,500, the cost of the site, and school taxes on whatever they are assessed for. They must also employ at least sixty hands ten months in each year. The provisions of this by-law to stand good for ten years. Should the company violate the provisions of this by-law within the given period the property will then divert to the city. The votes of the electorate will be taken on this measure not on July 15th as proposed by the committee, but on July 11th.

Ald. Morgan opposed this by-law on the ground that in company employing thirty or forty hands should not receive aid from this city to the exclusion of similar aid to old established firms employing a large number of skilled hands at big wages.

Ald. McIntyre agreed with Ald. Morgan.

Ald. Bradburn thought it was up to the city to secure all the manufacturers possible, on the best terms possible, to the general welfare of the city. The Peterborough Canoe Co. have had exceptionally good business by reason of a boom in our manufacturing and building industries.

Ald. Morgan replied that the Peterborough Canoe Company are not making business out of this city, their revenue comes from Mexico. They dropped local trade for the simple reason that there was no money in it.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Leary,—That this bylaw be approved of, and a vote be taken on it on July 11th.—Carried.

Ald Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. McIntyre,—That the council do not proceed to secure legislative confirmation of this bylaw unless there is a majority of 250 votes in its favor.—Lost.

The council will be governed by the vote on this measure as to whether they shall ask legislative confirmation or not.

NIGHT SOIL BYLAWS.

In connection with the night soil bylaw Ald McIntyre moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan, that it be left over until the garbage bylaw is taken up.—Carried.

PUBLIC PARK.

Ald. Leary moved, seconded by Ald. Wilson,—That no action be taken in connection with the Board of Trades' proposition that the city purchase ten lots of the Bredahl property between Charlotte and King streets at $200 a lot, for public park purposes.—Carried.

THE BARNARDO HOME.

The Board of Trade also drew attention to the fact that the Barnardo Home people wanted extensive alterations made to their buildings, and suggested that the city undertake this work. It was intimated that rumor offered that unless these alterations were made, either by Senator Cox or the city, the Barnardo Home would be removed from this city.

No action was taken in this matter.

SPITTING BYLAW.

On motion of Ald. Leary, notices will be put up, drawing attention to the fact that spitting on the sidewalks is prohibited.

STEAM HEATING.

On motion of Ald. Elliott, seconded by Ald. Johnston, no action will be taken this year on the Dominion District Steam Heating Company's application for a franchise of the city's streets.

CARPENTER'S RISK.

Mr. Carveth, who did considerable work on the new fire hall, complained that he should not be charged the carpenter's insurance risk of $33. This was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

The matter of compensation to the firemen injured in the Peter Hamilton fire, was referred to the Fire, Water and Light Committee with power to act.

Council Session

The city fathers here went into committee of the whole.

The Typographical Union complained that notwithstanding a resolution of the council to the effect that all city printing should bear the union label, this measure was being overridden. This matter was referred to the Finance Committee.

LEGAL REPORT.

Ald. Phelan submitted the following;

Gentlemen, Your Legal Committee beg leave to report as follows.—

1. In regard to the letter of the secretary of the Underwriters' Association in reference to boxes, etc., in rear of stores we instructed the city clerk to send him a copy of the provisions of the by-law prohibiting boxes and other waste material being left near a building in the fire limits and to tell him that the committee thinks this sufficient but that if he has an amendment to suggest they would be glad to receive it and that the police are enforcing the by-law in accordance with instructions from the council.

2. We requested the chairman of this committee to arrange with the warden and council of the county for a conference with reference to the admission of indigents from the city to the county house of refuge.

This was adopted as read.

TO ADVERTIZE THE CITY.

Ald. Morrow submitted the following;—

Gentlemen, —Your Manufacturers' Committee beg leave to report as follows,—

1. We have had a by-law prepared to aid the Colonial Weaving Co., which will be submitted to you.

2. We recommend that the chairman be authorized to have a number of small folders advertising Peterborough revised and reprinted.

This was adopted as read.

ALARM CARDS.

Ald. Johnston moved, seconded by Ald. Stevenson,— That the clerk be authorized to purchase 1000 large cards with fire alarm box numbers printed thereon, to be placed in various public places for the public's benefit.—Carried.

BYLAWS.

A bylaw to aid the Colonial Weaving Company passed its first reading.

A bylaw to authorize the execution of an agreement with Daniel Mahony for handling the river dredgings at 8 1-2c a cubic foot, passed its several readings.

A RECOGNITION.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Phelan,—That the thanks of the council be forwarded T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., for his courtesy in giving the city a handsome map of Ontario Province.—Carried.

Ald Phelan moved, seconded by Ald. Leary,—That the mayor and chairman Board of Works be a committee to interview R. R. Hall, M.P., with a view to securing the same treatment of Contractor Mahoney by the government dredge employees as was accorded Mr. Conroy last year.—Carried.

WAINWRIGHT'S POSITION.

Ald Johnston reported that the reason Mr. Wainwright, engineer of the fire hall, is not getting his raise in salary is that he is subordinate to his superior officer, Foreman Packenham, who complains that he has more trouble with Wainwright than any other man in the hall.

Ald. Morgan replied that Wainwright is being run by so many bosses that he does not know where he stands.

Ald. Johnston offered that Ald. Morgan is creating too much trouble by carrying tales to the firemen contrary to the city's interests.

Ald Morgan returned that Ald. Johnston has always been opposed to Wainwright, and wishes to free the city from his services. "I am a friend of the firemen," continued Ald. Morgan, "and will not see them run on."

Ald. Johnston replied that he had stood Wainwright in good stead when the council contemplated discharging him.

Ald. Morgan retorted that the firemen had their knife in Ald. Johnston, chairman Fire, Water and Light Committee, and intended ousting him from his position.

The mayor replied that that is where the trouble lies, and the situation must be adjusted. But Wainwright must be obedient to his superiors. His increased salary was dependent upon his producing a satisfactory certificate as to his competency as an engineer.

Ald. Stevenson moved, seconded by Ald. Morgan,—That the Ontario Association of Engineers be asked if a third-class certificate is sufficient for the care of a fire engine and operation of a road roller.—Carried.

Council adjourned at 12.30.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh cure. Send for circulars free.

Milk Adulteration to be Prosecuted

A Toronto despatch of yesterday says; The executive committee of the Western Ontario Dairymen's Association has decided upon the appointment of a special official whose duty will be to prosecute all cases of adulteration of milk. The instructor will make tests of milk and where evidence is secured of the act the special officer will take action. No compromise will be allowed.

LITTLE POCKET PHYSICIAN

Hyomei is Guaranteed To Cure Catarrh

Thousands who have been cured by Hy-o-mei call the inhaler that comes with every outfit the "Little Pocket Physician," as it is so small that it can be carried in the pocket or purse.

There is really no excuse whatever for anyone having catarrh now that Hy-o-mei is so readily obtainable.

Do not delay longer the use of Hy-o-mei if you suffer with catarrh. This is a purely local disease, and Hy-o-mei goes right to the spot where the catarrh germs are present, destroys them, soothes and heals all inflammation and makes a permanent and lasting cure.

The complete Hy-o-mei outfit consists of the "Little Pocket Physician" and a bottle of Hy-o-mei and costs only $1.00, making it the most economical as well as the only guaranteed treatment for the cure of catarrh. Remember that Hy-o-mei cures catarrh without stomach dosing, applying the application and healing where the disease germs are present.

We do not want any one's money unless Hyomei gives relief and cure, and we absolutely agree that money will be refunded unless the remedy gives satisfaction.

All druggists should be able to supply you with Hyomei or we will send it by mail on receipt of price, $1.00, and every package is sold with the distinct understanding that it costs nothing unless it cures. Booth's Hyomei Company, Buffalo, N.Y.

Herbert Meihn for the Fall Assizes

Local Man to be Tried at Fall Assizes for Serious Crime

The matter of a complaint made against Herbert Meihn for committing rape against May Payne, has been a subject of much controversy for some days throughout the city. It seems that Meihn was charged with having committed rape on the person of Miss Payne, near the entrance to one of our local parks.

Herbert Meihn was charged with having had criminal relations with the complaintant, in the person of Mary Payne. Mr. Wood suggested that it would be better to have the court cleared of all but those directly interested in this case. This was done.

Mary Payne, the complainant, went into the box and said she lives at 36 Albert street. She is 18 years of age. On the evening of May 31st, she was near Jackson Park. She walked out there at nine o'clock. She met Meihn on Charlotte street. She had not known him before except by sight. Prisoner met her and offered to see her home but took her to Jackson Park. Prisoner whilst walking along Charlotte street, told her she must not say anything about this going out with her. She is a stranger here so did not know where prisoner was taking her.

Prisoner took her near the park where the crime was committed. She did not tell her mother about the matter until the next night.

Mr. Kerr brought to light a case in which a similar charge, by a postponement of one day in relating the circumstances by the victim; the case was thrown out of court.

The girl's mother then went into the box and gave evidence as to the former's good character.

P. C. Newhall noted that at 9.30 on Thursday night last, the girl's father called at the police station and complained regarding prisoner. On Friday the officer went at 1 a.m. to 603 Rink street, the prisoner's home, and found him in bed. Told Meihn he was going to arrest him. Prisoner said, "I was a fool, I ought to have known better." He warned the prisoner that any statements made by him might be used against him. Mr. Kerr here objected to this evidence, and objection noted. Prisoner said he was drunk at the time and did not know what he was doing. Prisoner said he was waiting on Charlotte street for a gentleman friend, when the Payne girl came past. They got talking together. He only knew her by sight and asked her to go out with him. They then took a street car to Jackson Park. On arriving there they sat down together outside the park. He practically admitted the crime. Prisoner said the girl was willing.

The prisoner was then committed for trial at the fall assizes. Mr. Kerr asked for bail, but the magistrate said he would not take the responsibility. Mr. Wood remarked that the county judge could settle the question of bail.

It seems however, that the question of bail, involving some considerable costs will have to be paid even though the court should allow bail.

Jackson Park Opened Yesterday

Last night the formal opening of Jackson Park, was consummated for the season. The 57th Regiment Band was in attendance and delighted the crowds present. Mr. Learmonth, the energetic manager of the street car line, has arranged for a most comprehensive and up to date program for the coming season. Mr. Learmonth seems to have the happy faculty of demonstrating his ability along the line of providing cheap and acceptable amusement for the public and, at the same time supplying just what that big undefinable public wants to draw them from the summer heat of the city.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

At yesterday's police court, Jos. O'Toole pleaded guilty to riding a bike on the pavement—$2.

Mr. C. H. Rowley pleaded guilty to leaving a number of boxes in his rear sheds. He explained that the boxes were only partly his. They were sixty feet away from the store and next to a solid brick fireproof wall. He further noted that in his business it was absolutely necessary to have a certain number of boxes as charged in connection with his shopping business. The magistrate said he hardly knew what to do in this case. He enlarged it for eight days.

Hugh Elliott who had pleaded guilty some days ago to stealing a cash box from the American Hotel, was up for sentence. He said he had nothing to say in the matter. Mr. Flynn, proprietor of the hotel, spoke in the young man's favor and asked the magistrate to be lenient. The latter said, "Yes, you would like leniency for a man who would steal a little boy's savings." He remarked to Elliott, "You did a mean act when you stole that little boy's savings. You did not care whether your old mother's feelings were hurt. However as you are a young man I am going to give you a chance. You must pay back the $5 you stole and $6 costs of the case. I will let you go on suspended sentence." The payment was ordered to be paid forthwith.

AIDED THE BOERS TO START AFRESH

Col. Steele Back in Canada---Gives an Interesting Description in Montreal of Work of His Force After the War

Montreal, June 10.—Col. S. B. Steele, of the South African Constabulary Force, arrived in the city Saturday looking hale and hearty. In the course of an interview he spoke interestingly of his work in South Africa and of the celebrated force with which he was connected.

"The force, after the war," said Col. Steel, "was organized on the same lines as the North-West Mounted Police, and reduced in number to six thousand and distributed among all the magisterial districts of the Transvaal and Orange River, each district commanded by a captain and the sub-districts by a lieutenant.

"The good feeling that today exists between the Boer and Briton is largely attributable to the good judgment of the men of the force, who did everything in their power to help the Boers to re-establish themselves on their farms. So good a feeling existed that it was a frequent sight to find Boers at the camp mess. We had instructors for the men in the Transvaal language, which is the tongue spoken there, and quite a number become proficient both in this language and Kaffir. We policed the whole country with the exception of Johannesburg and Pretoria."

"How about the reports regarding the treatment of the colonial troops by regular officers?"

Col. Steele replied that they were very much exaggerated.

Western Crops

Ottawa, June 11.—The Agricultural Department has received the following telegram from Dr. Saunders, superintendent of experimental farms, now in the West; "The crops from Calgary to Edmonton are looking well. Winter wheat in some places in eight to ten inches high. Spring wheat is about six inches high, and growing rapidly. The conditions of moisture and temperature are most favorable."

Good Work by Local Dredge

Mr. W. Quinn and his staff of employes engaged on the turning basin improvements just to the north of Hunter street bridge, are doing good work. Mr. J. G. Sing, of Toronto, engineer in charge of the work of the Dominion Public Works Department, is acquainted with the local difficulties, and told the contractor to arrange the best he could. The dredgings taken from the river had to be disposed of and the city wanted them dumped on the low land at the foot of Charlotte street. Encouraged by Mr. Sing's confidence in him the contractor set to work to devise a scheme which would overcome the trouble, and he finally decided to adopt the present system.

Beware of Mercury

You May be Using this Harmful Drug and Not Know it.

A favorite method of administering this deleterious drug is in cathartic pills. Beware of "quick-result" articles, they may do more harm than good.

Drastic cathartics will weaken the strongest. With old people they are a positive menace to life.

Merely to restore normal bowel action and gently stimulate the liver is all that the wise physician recommends.

To keep the system pure and clean, nothing is so efficacious, as the vegetable pills of Dr. Hamilton, which are composed of such herbs as mandrake, butternut and dandelion; they contain not an atom of any substance that could injure even an infant.

By their certain action on the Liver Dr. Hamilton's Pills cause bile to be secreted which forms the stimulus that moves the bowels; this is nature's own method and the best one.

Mr. R. Hambly, of French River, Ont., writes as follows; "I was inclined to bilious attacks and frequently was too ill to work. Most remedies purged and weakened my bowels, but Dr. Hamilton's Pills gently stimulated my liver, and by strengthening the stomach made a perfect cure. My health has been just splendid since I used Dr. Hamilton's Pills."

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills from your druggist or storekeeper, 25c per box or five boxes for $1. By mail from F. C. Polson & Co. Hartford, Conn., U.S.A., or Kingston, Ont.

JOHN MORLEY AND INDIA

Hon. John Morley, than whom there is no better Liberal in British politics, is firmly of the opinion that Britain should stay in India. He gives it as his opinion that the educated Hindus who dream that they could carry on the government of the country better than the British do, "could not work it for one week;" and adds decisively that "British rule in India will continue, ought to continue and must continue."

After this, it ought to be impossible for anyone to say that the British Liberals encourage the native agitators in India by supporting their theories and giving them to understand that half the nation is on their side. No Tory minister could have been more downright or more explicit. John Morley, and John Morley belongs to the left wing of the Liberal party. This being the case, there is no use to discuss for a moment the possibility of Britain withdrawing from India. The nation seems to be a unit against such a policy.

Mr. Morley has doubtless seen that the withdrawal of the British would mean disaster for the people of India. Britain is giving the people immensely better government than they could as yet give themselves, and is moreover keeping off foreign disturbers who would otherwise easily conquer the divided populat of India and subject them to exploitation and misgovernment which would soon set them longing for the just rule of the British. There is an educated Hindu class today which would like to rule their own people; but there is not the slightest reason for believing that their own people would permit it. Their divisions and their respect for the power behind the British Government make them willing to submit to British rule, but their very divisions would raise up opposition to native rulers, and there would be no army behind the "baboo."

Still, it will be in accordance with permanent British policy for the British Government to endeavor to slowly work the educated natives into the government of the country and so prepare them for genuine "home rule," when the entire nation shall have reached a stage of development to warrant it. An Oriental people must be taught the system of Occidental democratic government before it can be expected to work it. This, doubtless, so good a democrat as John Morley intends to do as rapidly as he may. He will not throw India into confusion by suddenly flinging the ruins on its back and bidding it go where it likes; but he will hope to gradually teach it to take its freedom without immediately dashing off across country and smashing the crotty carriage behind it to pieces. And this is the only policy for the long future. The time will come when India will take its freedom anyway; and it will be better for India, for Britain, and for the world, if, when that time comes, the Hindus will please that a British adviser shall continue to sit upon the box.

A CHURCH SUPPER.

Girls Dressed in Quaint Japanese Costumes as Waitresses.

Every zealous church worker is keen about knowing new ways of luring the elusive dollar out of the pockets of her fellow church members. The wiles that a sweet and simple woman will permit herself to use in the chase after this same dollar or even after a small quarter of that amount are amusing to her masculine victims, and I am sure that they often feign a reluctance to "give up" that is only a make believe just to see her efforts.

A Japanese supper makes an attractive change from the ordinary. The little supper tables are arranged with the graceful artificial cherry and plum blossoms that all the Japanese shops have, and wistarias and chrysanthemums are arranged about the hall.

A lot of girls dressed a la Japanese act as waitresses. Every girl loves this, for it gives her a chance to "make up" her lips and cheeks and stick long daggers and tiny fans in her pompadoured hair. Of course dark girls are rather more in keeping, but it doesn't really matter. Weak tea, various kinds of rice dishes, candied orange peel, little thin cakes and nuts were the Japanese additions to a regular supper, oyster shortcakes, cabbage salad (shredded to imitate chrysanthemum petals), pickles, sandwiches, doughnuts, cakes and coffee.

The favors were little Japanese lanterns filled with tiny candles. Those receiving them were asked to save them, using them as banks and filling them with small coins for the next missionary tea, held quarterly.

A popcorn supper followed by a little cantata is a novelty for a missionary tea. Serve sandwiches, popcorn balls, crackerjack, plain and buttered popcorn and cakes made by putting the popped corn in small molds and pouring the hot candy sirup on them. Serve coffee, lemonade and milk to drink.

Have the assistants in red cotton dresses, with coquettish caps and aprons, trimmed with strings of popped corn. One church makes considerable money during the winter by serving coffee cake and coffee suppers each week at a home of a member. The charge is 10 cents, and this gives one a cup of good coffee and all the coffee cake he wishes.

TIGER RIDES A HORSE

Circus Also Has a Bear That Walks a Tight Rope.

A tiger riding a horse, a bear walking a tight-rope on its hind feet, a seal balancing a whirling plate on its nose, a zebra walking on its hind feet, and an elephant standing on its head without touching the ground with its front feet, are a few of the wonderful trained animal acts to be seen this season with the Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' circus which exhibits in Peterborough on June 25.

The bears were trained by the great Spessardy, who is making his first tour of America. He is recognized as the greatest animal trainer in Europe. A big horse and pony act originated by George De Vae, the greatest horseman in America, is also a feature. Lions, tigers, polar bears and mountain lions appear together in a steel arena in the most sensational exhibition of intelligence and orderly love ever seen. The big act concludes with a wrestling match between a big bear and a man. The three Lockhart herds of performing elephants doing entirely new things, and a number of animals from the various groups play the part of clowns, giving a touch of humor to each act.

It has been the aim of Adam Forepaugh and Sells Bros. to have also among the 300 performers the best of the world's bareback riders, trapeze and bar performers, acrobats and clowns. This big circus has grown to such an extent that its food question it is the largest in the world. The parade alone employs 1,200 men, women and children, 500 horses, the three largest herds of elephants and several hundred other strange animals in their menagerie, several of the animals being new to this country. The spectacle of "Fighting the Flames," which introduces the performance, is the most costly entertainment ever devised. It is not only a spectacle, but a drama, having story, plot and dramatic appeal. It cost one million dollars and employs a trained of scenery, 4,000 people, 500 horse, 300 automobiles, Bradley cars, delivery wagons, cabs and carriages, and a battery of professional firemen with complete equipment of fire engines, hose carts and hook and ladder wagons.

THE GREAT ZOBEDE COMING.

The great Zobedie, who created a sensation in Paris last winter by walking from a court room on his hands, is making his first American tour this season with Forepaugh and Sells Bros.' circus. He dances, skips the rope and walks on his hands with perfect ease.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not the weak heart in a hundred is, in fact, honestly diseased. It is almost always a sudden nervous shock that really is all at fault. This operates on the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve Centre, and makes it have more power, more elasticity, more controlling, more governing power. Without that the heart muscle continues to fail, and the stomach and bowels also have their nerve power lessened.

This fully explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the past done so much for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this trouble, palpitating, suffocating Heart Illness. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this peculiar prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds [illegible] gives real, genuine heart help. [illegible] shows strong diseased hearts—beats [illegible] as natural, well.

DRESSMAKING HINT.

A Screen Used as Hanger When Making Clothes.

Unfinished skirts should be hung up, not folded. In fact, much unfinished work is best for this treatment, but the hanging must be properly done or the result will be worse than that of folding. If one has not sufficient closet room to give the desired space for the regular season's sewing, the following will be found very convenient: On the back of a screen tack, at the top only, a strip of ticking about four inches deep; over this tack, again at the top only, a piece of muslin long enough to form a drop curtain nearly to the floor and slightly full.

To the under strip any amount of work may be fastened with safety pins. The curtain falling over will protect from dust. The screen can be pretty well folded and set across a corner without injuring the work in the least.

When attaching waists to this device, fold together so that the shoulders are even, and put two safety pins at the neck, one at the shoulder and one directly in front. This prevents any sagging and the formation of any unseemly wrinkles.

Another advantage that hanging has over folding is that one can see at a glance just what is waiting to be done without turning over and possibly mussing anything not needed at the moment.

A Persian Rug Test.

Real Persian rugs have one remarkable property that must be peculiarly their own. One day a woman went out to buy a very fine rug, and after looking at many kinds she finally elected to purchase a beautiful cream colored one, which the salesman declared was a genuine Persian rug.

"This," the man continued, "is the best proof of its genuineness," and he took from the open grate a redhot coal, holding it tight in the tongs. Then, to the utter astonishment of his customer, he touched the coal to the splendid rug.

"Gracious!" the would be purchaser ejaculated as the rug sizzled, giving off a little smoke and an odor of burning.

"Don't worry," the salesman remarked, as he threw the coal back into the grate and pointed to a charred spot as big as a half dollar right in an especially light portion of the creamy woolen ground, whereupon, with his hand, he brushed all the burnt part away, and the rug looked as if it had never been through any modern ordeal of fire. Perhaps the pile was an eighth of an inch shorter, that was all, and, besides, the untrained eye could not observe that small defect.

"A Persian rug that will not stand the fire test is not worth your attention, madam," the clerk declared as he took down the lady's order for the genuine Persian rug.

The Money That's Being Made in Western Canada LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 6,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards

Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References, Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN, Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Leading Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO. Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section and only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

A Big Strike of Gold

Just made on one of the claims owned by

DENVER BULLFROG CO-OPERATIVE MINING CO.

We told you about one month ago we would eventually open up one of the best mines in the Bullfrog District, and we tried to sell you some of our stock at 5 cents a share. If you had taken our advice you would have doubled your money. We give you another chance, but this time you will have to pay

10 CENTS A SHARE

But this is not one-third of the value of this stock, for we have discovered at a depth of twenty feet visible to the naked eye. We want to raise the money quick to put up a necessary hoisting plant to sink the shaft and get this rock out and turn it into a stream of gold to run into the pockets of THE LUCKY INVESTOR.

Rock Literally Sprinkled With Gold

¶We offer only a small bunch of stock at this price. This stock is likely to quadruple in price in thirty days. Take our advice.

DON'T DELAY Don't put this offer later consideration or you will lose out again as you did before.

"Get out of the channel, Winfield."

ent state of this corporation's finances mustn't be considered a widow's mite. Well, this ain't what I was after, but it's none the less welcome, as the cat said when it found the mouse swimmin' in the milk pail. Swing her in, Barney! Now we'll go back and have another try for the Mary D.'s anchor."

They had some long talks together concerning their new venture, which up to date, although they had made some money, had not given them the opportunity for a "big job" that they hoped for.

"Brad," observed the captain as they were walking up from the wharf one evening, "are you gittin' discouraged?"

"No, not yet. I didn't expect anything different this first summer."

"What do the old maids say?"

"Oh, they believe I'm going to get rich, of course."

"Of course. Well, maybe they ain't any further out in their reck'nin' one way than Simmons and the rest are the other. What does that little Baker girl have to say about it?"

"Oh, well, she didn't quite like it at first, but the more we talk about it together the better the plan seems to her."

"I presume likely you and she talk about it a good deal?" There wasn't the slightest flavor of sarcasm apparent in this question, so Bradley admitted that he and Gus did have a good many talks on the subject.

And this statement wasn't an exaggeration. It had become a regular thing for the junior partner in the anchor dragging concern to drop in at the Baker homestead of an evening after supper was over and discuss happenings and plans with Gus. The feeling that the girl was not so wholly at one with him in his hopes and ambitions as she used to be had galled Bradley. He resented her criticisms of the new venture on the evening when he first told her of it. Five years before, he knew, she would have thought it "splendid" simply because he thought so. He had come home expecting to find her unchanged, forgetting how much he had changed himself, and now he determined that he would compel her to believe in him and his work.

Dancing was one of the subjects on which they didn't agree. Bradley considered dancing nonsensical and a waste of time. Gus, on the other hand, was very fond of it.

"I'd rather saw wood myself," declared the former one evening. "There'd be about as much work in it, and considerably more fun."

"But, Brad, I do like dancing, and there are dances here once in awhile, such as they are, and—well, I wish you danced."

"I suppose I could manage to navigate through a quadrille without wrecking more than half the set, but a waltz would have me out of soundings in no time."

"Will you try to learn if I teach you?"

"Think 'twill pay for the wear and tear on your nerves—and the furniture?"

"I'll risk the nerves, and we need some new furniture anyway. Come, we'll begin now. I'll hum the tune, and you can imagine that Bennie D.'s three piece orchestra is playing 'Annie Rooney,' with their own variations, and that you're waltzing—well, with Georgiana Bailey."

"Great Scott! Let's imagine something pleasant to begin on. All right, here goes! Get out of the channel, Winfield."

One evening toward the end of the month Gus said to him: "Brad, if you were I would you go to the ball on the evening of Decoration day at the town hall? I've had two invitations."

"Humph!" The answer was somewhat hesitating.

"I supposed you didn't know. Otherwise, of course"—

"I should have invited my dancing teacher to go with me. Gus, would you have liked it if I had invited you?"

"I should."

"Well, then, Miss Baker, may I have the pleasure of escorting you to the grand fandango to be held in the Orham Crystal palace, under the supervision of his royal swelledness, Mr. Solomon Bangs?"

"You may, sir. Oh, Brad! Of course I'd rather go with you, because"—

"Because what?"

"Because I want to see how my pupil looks dancing with somebody else."

* * * * * * *

Gus was prettier than ever the night of the ball. She was dressed simply in white, but when she came out of the dressing room at the hall and took his arm Bradley noticed that the group of half a dozen young men followed her and that they whispered to each other.

Gus' "order" was filled in a few minutes after the first number was over; there were more applicants than dances. Bradley danced a quadrilla with Clara Hopkins, who was pretty and jolly, and he enjoyed it thoroughly. He labored through a contra dance with Georgiana Bailey and didn't enjoy it as much, although that effervescent young lady purred that she had had a "perfectly lovely time," and he was "lookin' so well" and why didn't he call at the house.

Miss Bailey's blue silk gown had an imposing and very troublesome train, and she smelt like a perfumer's shop.

Captain Titcomb came up the stairs. He had a dripping umbrella in his hand.

"Why, hello!" exclaimed Bradley. "I didn't know you were coming."

"Hello yourself!" retorted the captain. "I didn't know you was comin' either, so we're square on that hitch. It's blowin' up a reg'lar snorter outside," he added.

"Georgiana's gayer'n a tin peddler's cart, ain't she?" continued Titcomb. "Cap'n Jabe's the only mouthin' pullet in that coop."

He broke off suddenly and was silent for a minute or more. Bradley asked him what the matter was.

"Oh, nothin'!" was the hasty reply. "Quite a crowd here tonight. Who's the little clipper in the white with blue pennants in her fore riggin'—the one dancin' with Jonadab Wixon's sister's boy?"

"That's Clara Hopkins."

"Humph! You don't say! Jim Hopkins' girl. I wouldn't have known her." And the captain subsided once more.

A little while after that, as Bradley was dancing his Virginia reel with Gus, he noticed a disturbance among the crowd of watchers at the door. He was in the middle of the line at the time, and "Snuppy" Black stood next to him.

"Hello!" exclaimed "Snuppy." "Why, it can't be! By thunder, it is! Sam Hammond's come. I didn't know he was expected."

Hammond it was, and in all the glory of city clothes and unlimited self confidence. When the reel was over, he came across the floor to where Gus and Bradley were standing.

"How d'ye do, Gus?" he said, extending his hand. "I'm down for a few days. Got a vacation that I wasn't looking for. Came on tonight's train and thought I'd run up here for a little while, soon as I could get away from the home folks. Let me see your order. Hello, Brad! How are you?"

The Primitive Violin.

In its primitive form the violin was a direct development of the lyre and monochord—the strings from the former and the elongated box, with its sound holes, finger board and movable bridge, from the latter. The history of the violin began with the invention of the bow some time before the thirteenth century, when the voila, or violin, used by the troubadours, made its appearance. This instrument underwent many changes until the middle of the sixteenth century, when the true violin model appeared. The primitive violin had little or no contour. It was not until the thirteenth century that the violin was scooped out at the waist. The corner blocks were added in the fifteenth century and are attributed to Germany. For nearly a century the sound holes were shifted all over the instrument before they were cut in their proper place and the bridge fixed between them.—Circle Magazine.

Two of a Kind.

A revival meeting was in progress, and Sister Jones was called upon for testimony. Being meek and humble, she said: "I do not feel as though I should stand here and give testimony. I have been a transgressor for a good many years and have only recently seen the light. I believe that my place is in a dark corner, behind the door." Brother Smith was next called upon for his testimony and, following the example set by Sister Jones, said: "I, too, have been a sinner for more than forty years, and I do not think it would be fitting for me to stand before this assembly as a model. I think my place is behind the door, in a dark corner, with Sister Jones." And he wondered why the meeting was convulsed with the laughter of those who came to pray.

Don't Whisk Your Hat.

Never use a whisk broom to clean a hat, either stiff or soft, particularly a soft hat, as it gradually removes the fine surface originally on the hat. The worst effect, however, is the wearing away of the band and binding by such rough usage. The effect is more quickly shown on the best grades of bands and binding. A fine hair brush, one of curved shape, made especially to use under the curl of the hat, is good. Best of all, however, is a thick piece of woolen cloth. Such pieces are now made in the form of pads, with a strap across the back, so that they can be held securely in the hand.

Striking Originality.

"Your husband is not looking well tonight, Mrs. Rhymer."

"He isn't, and I'm not surprised at it."

"No? Has he been overworking himself?"

"It isn't that so much. It's his originality. Why, that man is struck by so many original ideas that his mind must be one mass of bruises."

Spoiled.

"Publishers insist on spoiling a great many manuscripts, don't they?" said the literary young woman.

"Undoubtedly," answered the bookseller. "A lot of 'em look a heap better typewritten and tied up with a ribbon than they do in print."

All That Saved Him.

"Yes, sir, he was obliged to go in the snake country, so he took a gallon of Georgia corn along with him."

"And how did he make out?"

"Splendid! Got so full and wabbled so the snakes missed him every time they struck at him!"

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 900,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Coal Office Thieves Frustrated

Burglars must read the papers, and their imaginations helped by the past prevailing cold weather, believe implicitly that coal merchants gather in all the money in sight, as, on Sunday night two persons made an attempt to rob the office of R. The children were taken charge of by the local Children's Aid Society and several months ago the four-year-old girl was given to Waldon.

Cures Woman's Weaknesses.

We refer to that boon to weak, nervous, suffering women known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Dr. John Fyfe one of the Editorial Staff of THE ECLECTIC MEDICAL REVIEW says of Unicorn root (Helonias Dioica) which is one of the chief ingredients of the "Favorite Prescription":

"A remedy which invariably acts as a uterine invigorator * * * makes for normal activity of the entire reproductive system." He continues "in Helonias we have a medicament which more fully answers the above purposes than any other drug with which I am acquainted. In the treatment of diseases peculiar to women it is seldom that a case is seen which does not present some indication for this remedial agent." Dr. Fyfe further says: "The following are among the leading indications for Helonias (Unicorn root). Pain or aching in the back, with leucorrhœa; atonic (weak) conditions of the reproductive organs of women, mental depression and irritability, associated with chronic diseases of the reproductive organs of women; constant sensation of heat in the region of the kidneys; menorrhagia (flooding), due to a weakened condition of the reproductive system; amenorrhœa, suppressed or absent monthly periods, arising from or accompanying an abnormal condition of the digestive organs and anæmic (thin blood) habit; dragging sensations in the extreme lower part of the abdomen."

If more or less of the above symptoms are present no invalid [illegible] Favorite Prescription [illegible] ingredient of which is Unicorn root, or Helonias, and the medical properties of which it most faithfully represents.

Of Golden Seal root, another prominent ingredient of "Favorite Prescription," Prof. Finley Ellingwood, M. D., of Bennett Medical College, Chicago, says:

"It is an important remedy in disorders of the womb. In all catarrhal conditions * * * and general enfeeblement, it is useful."

Prof. John M. Scudder, M. D., late of Cincinnati, says of Golden Seal root:

"In relation to its general effects on the system, there is no medicine in use about which there is such general unanimity of opinion. It is universally regarded as the tonic useful in all debilitated states."

Prof. R. Bartholow, M. D., of Jefferson Medical College, says of Golden Seal:

"Valuable in uterine hemorrhage, menorrhagia (flooding) and congestive dysmenorrhœa (painful menstruation)."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription faithfully represents all the above named ingredients and cures the diseases for which they are recommended.

COUNSEL FAILED TO TRIP UP ORCHARD

"Dont You Know There Are No Stumps Within 150 Miles of San Francisco?" He Asked---"I Know There Are," Was Witness' Cool Reply

Boise, Idaho, June 12.—When the Haywood trial was resumed yesterday at 9.35 a.m. Harry Orchard continued his testimony.

Attorney Richardson continued to question the witness about the attempts he made upon the life of Fred Bradley in San Francisco.

Orchard said he roomed over the Bradley home, being able to overlook it from his bedroom window. He had bought some dynamite for a bomb before the attempt to poison Bradley with strychnine in the milk failed.

Orchard thought it was the Judson Powder Company that he bought the explosive from.

Asked the appearance of the clerk who waited on him, Orchard said he was youngish looking.

LAWYER TOO SMART.

In buying the powder, Orchard was required to give his name. He could not remember what name it was—a fictitious one. As an excuse for buying ten pounds of dynamite, Orchard told the clerk he wanted to blow out some stumps on his ranch.

"Don't you know there are no stumps within 150 miles of San Francisco?"

"I know that there are—I've seen them on the way to Caliente Springs."

Orchard gave as nearly as he could a description of the various places where he had lived while in San Francisco.

He could not remember the names of the streets or the numbers of the houses.

Next Orchard told of a pleasure trip he had taken to Caliente Springs while waiting for Bradley to return from Alaska.

"Played cards while there?"

"Yes."

"You were a card sharp?"

"No, sir."

NEAR THE PRESIDIO.

Orchard was living near the Presidio when he bought the dynamite for the Bradley bomb. He did not remember whether he took a box of giant caps to San Francisco or bought them at the Judson Company. Orchard kept the dynamite in his room, and took it with him when he moved to 1326 Washington street, within half a block of the Bradley home.

ADAMS IN A SULKY MOOD.

Boise, Idaho, June 12.— There is much speculation as to what Steve Adams will say when placed on the stand as a witness for the State against Wm. D. Haywood. Orchard has said that Adams was his partner in many of his most desperate undertakings, such as the blowing up of the Independence Depot. Adams, who came to Boise yesterday from Shoshone county, where he is awaiting trial for murder, is said to be in a sullen mood, and not likely to answer any of the questions. It is known that this repudiated confession is in the hands of counsel for the prosecution of Haywood, but it is doubtful if this confession can be brought within the cognizance of the jury, unless Adams himself consents.

Mrs. Annie Adams, who has been in Boise since the trial began, and who is in daily attendance at the court room, saw her husband at the county jail last night. Mrs. Adams is credited with much influence over her husband. It was at her solicitation it is said, that he repudiated the confession he made last year.

He went so far after making the confession as to travel to Colorado with General Bulkeley Wells, and report has it that under the direction of Adams, evidence was discovered that cleared up the mysteries of the several disappearances. Skeletons of non-union miners, who were believed to have been killed, but the proof of whose death had never been found, were discovered.

THE MASK OF HEALTH

Few People Are Really as Well as They Look. Cause and Remedy

Many people in Peterborough, both men and women, who believe themselves to be in perfect health, are often in the greatest danger.

Indigestion, which is so common a trouble, is the principal cause of the greater share of the general poor health. It has misleading symptoms that seem to have no reference to the stomach, such as headache, sleeplessness, spooks before the eyes, pains in the back and side, etc.

The success of physicians everywhere with the prescription that is now embodied in Mi-o-na stomach tablets has made this remedy in the last few years the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases. The secret of this success lies in the fact that Mi-o-na is prepared expressly to strengthen the digestive organs and its use for a few days puts the whole digestive system in such shape that it can care for all of the food that is eaten without pain or distress.

Simply take a Mi-o-na stomach tablet before before each meal and on retiring, and it will so strengthen the stomach that you can enjoy a hearty meal without the least fear of distress or suffering.

We absolutely agree that your money will be refunded should you buy a 50c box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and not be satisfied with the results. Mi-o-na is sold by druggists everywhere, or will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Booth's Mi-o-na Company, Buffalo, N. Y.

Practice Tonight by Local Brigade

The local fire duddies will drill tonight at half-past seven o'clock. The engine will be taken to the Quaker Oats Co.'s mills to be tested at the big hydrant there, for an hour or an hour and a half. Upon returning to the fire hall the brigade will test a couple of ladders and the life net. The chief extends an invitation to those wishing to practice jumping into a net to be present. The net will be held outside the new fire hall and those who will jump will start from the upstairs window.

Confirmation in a Lindsay Church

The Lindsay Post gives an amount of space to the recent confirmation in St. Mary's church of that town, by his Lordship Bishop O'Connor of Peterborough. The center pews were occupied by children, the girls on the left side and the boys on the right.

The mass was celebrated by his lordship, assisted by Ven. Archdeacon Casey. When the children marched to the rail to receive holy communion from his lordship and afterwards to be confirmed, the scene was impressive and soul-stirring. The girls were attired in white dresses and wore long white veils. The boys were neatly dressed in black with white bow on right arm.

After Communion Ven. Archdeacon Casey read the announcements and epistle and gospel appointed for the third Sunday after Pentecost. Bishop O'Connor then addressed the children and parents.

Fashionable Wedding in St. John's Church

Miss Aimee Borradaile Becomes the Bride of Mr. E. Sorey of Montreal

Yesterday George street could easily have betokened to a stranger that a wedding of unusual interest was in progress, as the many hacks with white ribbon bedecked whips drove along the main thoroughfare. The cause of this display was a wedding, which was celebrated by Rev. Canon Davidson in St. John's church, where Miss Aimee Borradaile, daughter of Mrs. Laura Borradaile, 617 George street, and Mr. Edgar Sorbey, of Montreal, formerly of London, Eng., were made man and wife. The church was decorated with lilacs and the wedding music was played by Mr. R. J. Devey, organist of St. John's church. The bride was dressed in white chiffon taffeta, with a berthe of real lace, tulle veil and orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of roses and lillies the the valley. The bridesmaids were Miss Myfanny Owen of Toronto, and Miss Lina Borradaile, of Peterborough, sister of the bride, who were costumed similarly in blue and white checked muslin, and carried bouquets of marguerites.

The groom was attended by Mr. Walter Brecken, of Montreal, and the ushers were Messrs. Garnet Greer and Fred Collins, of Peterborough.

A male chorus sang "The Voice that Breathed Over Eden. The service was choral and well sung. Hymn 378, "O Perfect Peace," was followed by "Hail to the Bride," and the bridal party entered the church to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march.

After the ceremony at the church a wedding dinner and reception was held at the former home of the bride, which was tastefully decorated with carnations and white lilacs. Mr. and Mrs. Sorbey left on the 1.48 C. Mr. and Mrs. Sorbey left on the 4.48 C.P.R. train for points west, where the honeymoon will be spent. On their return they will reside in Montreal, where Mr. Sorbey holds a position with the Allan Line Steamship Company. The bride's going away dress was an Eton suit of gray with an invisible check, and chip hat trimmed with cream roses.

Miss Ethel L. Dolier is Laid to Rest

The last mortal remains of the late Ethel L. V. Dolier, eldest daughter of Mr. J. G. Dolier, of Rochester, formerly of this city, and great-grand-daughter of the late Rev. R. H. Dolier, second rector of St. John's church, and of the late John Hall, Buckhorn, who died in Rochester, N. Y., were brought to the city Monday evening.

The deceased was 27 years of age and died from tuberculosis. The remains were interred in Little Lake cemetery the same evening, and were accompanied to the city by Mr. and Mrs. Dolier and two sisters.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free

TO MAKE COLONY MORE PROSPEROUS

French Concern Has Definite Plans for St. Pierre

TWO COLD STORAGE PLANTS

One to be Built on the Island, the Other on the Steamer Carrying the Mails

Halifax, N.S., June 12.—A large French firm, with headquarters in Rouen, have decided to do something to better conditions in St. Pierre, Miq. The manager of the concern, and also delegate of the colony, who was in Sydney a few days ago, on his way to the place, will put into execution several plans which, if successful, will bring this hitherto important colony back to a state of prosperity.

A refrigerator, with a capacity of ten thousand barrels, will be built at St. Pierre, to save loss of time and money in going to Magdalena and North Sydney. A second refrigerator, with a capacity of ten thousand barrels, will be built on the steamer carrying the mails. They also propose to open up coal and other mineral deposits which are said to exist on the island.

Lacrosse Excursion to Toronto Saturday

The Peterborough Seniors play their first big league game with the Torontos on Saturday the 15th. As some of the players find a difficulty to get away for all day, along with the fact that many enthusiasts have expressed a wish to see the game, the club has arranged for a special vestibule train to run direct to the Rosedale grounds.

The special train leaves the C.P.R. station at one o'clock. Tickets for round trip $2.05, good to return on all regular train until Monday 17th. Everybody come.

He will meet all trains and will do a general hack business. He will make his headquarters at Bruce Lee's Palace Livery.

George Street Conductor Robbed

On Monday night the conductor on street car No. 30, whilst going as usual at the George street C.P.R. crossing to see that the way was clear, was robbed of his money box. It seems that a man in waiting for this move on the conductor's part, jumped into the street car, and, lifting the box off the hook fled with the same. The police were at once notified and P. C. Adams and P. C. Meharry at once went to the scene of the theft but the thief had seemingly faded into the air.

Baseball Meeting Postponed

The meeting of the executive of the Intermediate Baseball League that was to have been held at the Y.M.C.A. on Monday night, has been postponed until Thursday night at eight o'clock. Epworth League Holds a Meeting

The George street church Epworth League social was a great success. Mr. B. Cain, president, occupied the chair, during the opening exercises, when Mr. McCann, chairman of the social committee, took charge. A mouth organ symphony by Messrs. S. Young, S. Ivey, A. Gray and McCarroll, was greatly enjoyed. Miss Edna Hall won the prize in a nail driving contest, while Mr. W. Cole was successful in the hat trimming trial. will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is treating the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoops Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Dr. Shoop, Racine, Wis. The Restorative is sold by all dealers.

Port Hope's Great Walker Is Noted

The Toronto News referring to our southern suberb's pedestrian, Mr. James Reynolds, the Port Hope barber, says;

Mr. Reynolds will start his walk at ten o'clock on the morning of June 24, two weeks from today, and stands to win several hundred dollars if he covers the journey in the stipulated time, but to do so he will have to walk 8 1-2 miles an hour over the entire journey.

Mr. Reynolds is 56 years of age, of sturdy build, and exceptionally active for a man of his years. He stands about 5 feet 6 inches in height.

Yesterday he walked 25 miles, and this morning declared he was feeling no ill effects from his long tramp. He now weighs about 145 pounds, but expects to be down to 140 on the day of the race.

What Do They Cure?

The above question is often asked concerning Dr. Pierce's two leading medicines, "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Favorite Prescription."

The answer is that "Golden Medical Discovery" is a most potent alterative or blood-purifier, and tonic or invigorator and acts especially favorably in a curative way upon all the mucous lining surfaces, as of the nasal passages, throat, bronchial tubes, stomach, bowels and bladder, curing a large per cent. of catarrhal cases whether the disease affects the nasal passages, the throat, larynx, bronchia, stomach (as catarrhal dyspepsia), bowels (as mucous colitis), bladder, uterus or other pelvic organs. Even in the chronic or ulcerative stages of these affections it is often successful in affecting cures.

"Favorite Prescription" is advised for the cure of one class of diseases—those peculiar weaknesses, derangements and irregularities incident to women only. It is a powerful yet gently acting invigorating tonic and nervine. For weak worn-out, over-worked women—no matter what has caused the break-down, "Favorite Prescription" will be found most effective in building up the strength, regulating the womanly functions, subduing pain and bringing about a healthy, vigorous condition of the whole system.

A book of particulars wraps each bottle giving the formulae of both medicines and quoting what scores of eminent medical authors, whose works are consulted by physicians of all the schools of practice as guides in prescribing, say of each ingredient entering into these medicines.

The words of praise bestowed on the several ingredients entering into "Doctor Pierce's medicines by such writers should have more weight than any amount of non-professional testimonials, because such men are writing for the guidance of their medical brethren and know whereof they speak.

Both medicines are non-alcoholic, non-secret, and contain no harmful habit-forming drugs, being composed of glycerin extracts of the roots of native, American medicinal forest plants. They are both sold by dealers in medicine. You can't afford to accept as a substitute for one of these medicines of known composition, any secret nostrum.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets, small, sugar-coated, easy to take as candy, regulate and invigorate stomach, liver and bowels.

BIG MINSTREL SHOW A MUSICAL TREAT

The Presentation Last Night a Pleasing Surprise to Those Present in Every Way---Stands in the Front Rank of Local Musical Offerings

The presentation by the Peterborough Amateur Minstrels at the Grand Opera House last night was a huge success in every way, and Peterborough might well feel proud of so strong a galaxy of local talent as that which entertained the large, select and demonstratively appreciative audience present on thist he musical event of the season. The company comprises 35 picked male voices and their offerings afford a genuine musical treat worthy the most critical taste. We venture to say that perhaps never before has so splendid and pleasing an entertainment of the minstrel nature been prepared and presented by Peterborough people. It surpasses for real musical genius the majority of professional productions that visit here, and lovers of vocal and instrumental music should avail themselves of the opportunity to spend an evening that will prove a memorable one. The music is bright and sparkling, the solo numbers of a high order of merit and the jokes original and irresistably funny in their local application. In fact town hits are continually cropping up there and there throughout the first part, and one does not need a microscope to see through them either; this is evident from the instantaneous response with which they are greeted by audience. The fancy dancing by Pat and Donald, lads of tender age, which includes Scotch, English and Irish numbers in character, were splendidly executed and elicited rounds of applause. In fact the opera house was resonant with applaudets the whole evening, each number being enthusiastically received; and the boys do not stint their audience, but are generous in their responses. The magnificent chorus is a feature of the performance and is exceedingly acceptable.

The whole production offers nearly three hours' unalloyed pleasure, and lovers of musical entertainments should not fail to attend the repeat performance tonight.

Hugh Brady and E. J. Koen have sweet tenor voices of clear delivery, and their efforts earned warm recognition and encores. B. G. Gill was in splendid bass voice, and received demonstrative applause, to which he very acceptably responded. George Lynch and W. S. Davidson, end men, kept the house in an uproar with their jokes, while in comic song they were favorites with the audience. W. S. Davidson's humorous topical chant "Never" elicited the warmest of warm appreciation. He is a gifted comedian, and kept the big audience convulsed with laughter with his lecture on "Quaker Oats," which embodied local events and local people in a surprisingly clever and humorous manner. Carl and Frank Halpany were also in good form and earned the encore demanded of them. W. H. Denham made a very capable interlocutor, and W. McIlroy, the genial C.P.R. ticket agent, had to respond to three recalls to his end song, "Let It Alone," which referred in humorous lines to the wholesale dog poisoning going on in Peterborough. Mr. McIlroy perhaps surprised his audience in demonstrating that he can sing comedy as well as sentiment in a very creditable manner indeed. W. Morphet never sang better in his life than last night and came in for his well-earned share of approval, as did J. J. Turner, jr., in humorous song. H. Sawers was splendid in "Just For Fun," an irresistibly lively and catchy number that made quite a hit.

Every song was enthusiastically encored, and the length of the program did not pall on one in anydegree.

Prof. Nelson is very clever on the slack wire, and went through some astonishing feats. The juggling by Barton is also exceedingly skilfull. The musical specialties by Messrs. Clark and McKenna and the Mandolin Club were beautifully rendered duly appreciated.

As a sample of the jokes, we give the following; End man George Lynch informed the interlocutor that Bickey the tailor had stolen Mason, the grocer's measure, and Police Magistrate Dumble had advised that he could do nothing in the matter as a tailor was privileged to take any man's measure.

Mr. John Crane makes a very capable musical director and Mr. W. McIlroy, as manager has evidently proved to be highly qualified for the position, so successful has the venture been prepared and presented.

The production is under the auspices of the Lacrosse Club, and under the patronage of; Hon. J. R. and Mrs. Stratton, R. R. Hall, Esq., M.P., and Mrs. Hall, T. E. Bradburn, Esq., M.P.P., Mayor and Mrs. McWilliams, Mr. and Mrs. H. LeBrun, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Denham, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Neil.

Thaw's Companion

New York, June 12. — Harry K. Thaw, who is in the Tombs awaiting his second trial on a charge of murder, has a new companion. He is Raffaele Cascone, an Italian, who has already spent thirty-two months in the "Death House," and is here now for a new trial. This strangely contrasted couple walk the cell corridors together daily, engaged in quiet conversation. Thaw associates with no one else. With this Italian Thaw discusses his plans for his coming trial and bears stories of the life within the shadow of the death chair.

As yet Thaw has not engaged his counsel-in-chief, although overtures have been made to many men high in the legal profession. His mother and wife are frequent visitors, but their coming and going have long since lost interest to those who hang around the Tombs. Thaw's health is good, despite his long imprisonment. He has settled down to the inevitable and now devotes his time to preparing his defence.

New Canadian Boundary

Derby, Vt., June 12.—The establishment of many "line houses" on the boundary of Vermont and Quebec will be accomplished by the survey now making by a boundary commission representing the United States and Canada.

The "line houses," as they are known from the fact that they are directly on the line dividing the United States and Canada, were at one time the source of much trouble to revenue officers on both sides of the border. Smugglers made their headquarters in them, and it was difficult to apprehend the men, as they only had to transfer the contraband goods from one side of the house to the other in order to cross the line.

The surveyors are sinking concrete blocks into the ground with staffs and banners attached to show clearly the revised survey.

About Female Ailments

Not Hard to Cure if Properly and Promptly Treated.

Ask any intelligent physician what causes nine-tenths of all female disease, even including anaemia, nervousness and consumption.

Back comes the answer quick and sharp "Constipated Bowels."

There is scarcely a single female ailment that had not in its earlier stages symptoms of constipation.

How much better off the system is without the poisonous accummulations caused by constipation. How much clearer the complexion, how much fresher one feels when the system is pure and clean.

Think it over yourself.

Isn't it apparent that a bowel regulator and liver stimulant like Dr. Hamilton's Pills is sure to do good?

Gay spirits, good looks and happy health have returned to many a sick woman through Dr. Hamilton's Pills.

Better get a few boxes today; purely vegetable, free from injurious ingredients, healthful and antiseptic. Dr. Hamilton's Pills will assist you in a thousand ways.

As delay is always dangerous, your plain duty is to follow the example of Mrs. F. Rowe, who sends the following letter from Gravels, Port Au Port, Newfoundland; "Four years ago I got kidney and bladder trouble. I thought it was 'female trouble' and treated it accordingly. Even my doctor to St. John said it was so.

"In reading about Dr. Hamilton's Pills I noticed symptoms like mine and I bought six boxes. These pills went right to work on my sick condition and helped me from the first. My supposed female trouble, which was bladder disease, was cured. My weight increased eight pounds and never before was I as well as today. Dr. Hamilton's Pills did it all."

All dealers sell Dr. Hamilton's Pills, 25c. per box or five boxes for $1.00. By mail from N. C. Polson & Co., Hartford, Conn., U. S. A., or Kingston, Ont.

ISOLATION OF GERMANY

The political position of Germany is giving her public men a good deal of concern. There was a time, and it was not very remote, when the Triple Alliance, namely that of Germany, Austria and Italy, was assumed to be the most powerful factor in international politics. Encouraged by it, the Kaiser took an exceedingly arrogant position. While no one doubts his professed desire to preserve the peace of Europe, every one was made uneasy by his frequent reference to the military prowess of his empire, and by the repeated statements on the part of German publicists and influential German papers that the Kaiser was determined to make his military and naval strength supreme. The references to the possible invasion of England were not official of course, but in Germany things of that nature are not discussed publicly by very prominent people when it is known that they are not pleasing to the head of the state. There can be no question that Germany has for some years cast aloweed herself to be placed in the position of an international bully. Most of us will readily recall the taunts that were thrown out so freely about the isolation of England, and there was an ill-concealed anticipation upon the part of at least one continental power that the time was not very far distant when there would be some fine work doing in the way of picking the bones of a disrupted British Empire. The first indication of a change came during the Boer war, when all the world was shown that the Empire was more than a name, and then the Kaiser learned to his surprise that, even even with one war on his hands, John Bull did not propose to send any "Kruger telegrams." With the advent of his majesty to the throne there came a new departure in British foreign politics. Under our constitutional system, the King has nothing to do, ostensibly, with such matters, but Edward VII is not only a sovereign, but is a man of great sagacity, probably the greatest statesman, as far as international relations go, in the whole world. Successive ministries have recognized this, and because the elasticity of our system there was ample scope for the talents of the King. They appear to have been employed to exceedingly good purpose. First Japan, then France, then Spain, and then Italy were all brought if not into alliance with the United Kingdom in every case, at least into such relations as are substantially equivalent thereto, and through the same instrumentality. France has reached a complete understanding with Japan. While it is true that there does not appear to be anything in the nature of an official entente cordiale between the United Kingdom and the United States, it seems to be taken for granted that the two nations are sympathetic towards each other in respect to their relations with ther countries, and there is little room for doubt that the influence of his Majesty has paved the way for a complete understanding between our neighbors and Japan. Thus we find clustering around the United Kingdom, in relations more or less definite but all friendly, France, Spain, Italy, Japan and the United States. This is a league of peace which, if it chooses to assert its power, can control the world. To this must be added the probability that a complete understanding will likely be reached between the British and Russian governments.

Under these circumstances the position of Germany becomes almost isolated. The alliance with Austro-Hungary remains undisturbed on the surface of things, but recent utterances of the German press indicate that matters are not so serene in that quarter as they were. The Neue Freie Presse has taken occasion in an article referring to the relations between the two empires to inform Austro-Hungary that "no conceivable combination would be able to ignore the present German Empire, even did that empire stand alone," a statement which is understood to mean that if Austro-Hungary feels like withdrawing from the Triple Alliance she will not be greatly missed. The same paper also predicts a revival of close relations between Germany and Russia. It frankly states its fear that a combination will be formed between the United Kingdom, Japan, France and the United States, "which in certain circumstances may become a combination against Germany." The leading Austrian journal understands that an agreement has been reached between Russia and Japan, and is well-nigh complete between Great Britain and Russia. This says the Vienna paper, makes possible the maintenance of an alliance between Russia and France, if the relations of the powers are correctly set forth above, the position of Germany is one of almost complete isolation, for the Triple Alliance, while still nominally in existence, could not be involved in case of a quarrel between Germany and any of the greater nations.

PREMIER OF AUSTRALIA.

Alfred Deakin, Great Orator, Lover of Books, and Fighting Man.

No more gracious, graceful or chivalrous personality than that of Alfred Deakin, Prime Minister of Australia, was discoverable in the notable group of Colonial statesmen, constituting the Imperial Conference of 1907. Eager, volatile, rapid and almost Gallic in abandon of speech, he arrests attention the moment he opens his mouth in conversation. Literary and emotional in judgments and tastes, he strikes the casual observer as the very antithesis of the

ALFRED DEAKIN.

Colonial politician, who handles statistics of commerce and revels in arguments about preferential trade relations, because they mean £ s d to the selfish "producing interests" of some rugged fringe of Empire.

Mr. Deakin is neither a Bismarck nor a Seddon, a Gladstone nor a Roosevelt. He is a great orator—his is the genuine oratory that soars, idealizes events, and sways thousands with magnetic sympathy — a great fighter—in the Colonial sense of greatness—and a great Parliamentarian. The principles of Progressive Liberalism with which he equipped himself in provincial politics as the boy member for West Bourke (Victoria) in 1878 he has never really shed; and through all the changes and mistakes of 29 years of public life, he has ever been more concerned for principles and program than for office and party triumph.

Always an enemy of Labor "machines," he has, as the pioneer of Australian factory legislation, never wavered in his belief in the necessity of drastic amelioration and the existence of a strong Labor party.

Rather than see his fiscal principles ruined he has more than once run risks of misrepresentation which men of less subtle powers of provision would have shuddered to face. Nervous to the finger-tips, and not over brave or firm in dealing with the smaller troubles and details of the strenuous life, he has cheerfully faced howling mobs of election "Hoodlums," and shamed them into submission, on behalf of some fledgling Radical candidate who was in dire circumstances because he refused to bend the knee to a Caucus "Boss." With his back to the wall and the air hissing with jeers and slanders Alfred Deakin is a sight for gods and men to admire.

As a Parliamentarian he is successful by his ingenuity in disarming opposition by conceding a detail to win a principle.

Heart Strength

Heart Strength, or Heart Weakness, means Nerve Strength, or Nerve Weakness—nothing more. Positively, not one weak heart in a hundred is, in itself, actually diseased. It is almost always a hidden tiny little nerve that really is all at fault. This obscure nerve—the Cardiac, or Heart Nerve—simply needs, and must have, more power, more stability, more controlling, more governing strength. Without that the heart must continue to fail, and the stomach and kidneys also have these same controlling nerves.

This clearly explains why, as a medicine, Dr. Shoop's Restorative has in the last few years reached for weak and ailing Hearts. Dr. Shoop first sought the cause of all this painful, palpitating, suffocating heart disease. Dr. Shoop's Restorative—this popular prescription—is alone directed to these weak and wasting nerve centers. It builds; it strengthens; it offers real, genuine heart help.

If you would have strong Hearts, strong digestion, strength in these nerves — re-establish them as needed, with

100,000 Shares of Treasury Stock for Sale at

10 CENTS PER SHARE

This company was incorporated February 9th, A.D. 1907, under the laws of Arizona.

Capital stock 1,000,000 shares, full paid, non-assessable, par value $1, treasury stock 400,000 shares. Other stock pooled.

Officers and Directors

President ..... EDWARD T. PATRICK,
Mine Owner and President of the Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Vice-President ..... JUDGE CHAS. E. HAYES,
Mine Owner and Leading Attorney of Goldfield, Nevada.

Secretary and Treasurer ..... ADAMS F. BROWN,
Corporation and Mining Lawyer and Member of Listing Committee Goldfield Stock and Exchange Board.

Depository ..... JOHN S. COOK & CO.
Bank of Goldfield, Nevada.

This company owns 4 claim (80 acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles south of the Consolidated and about five and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bond and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section second only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. Would therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

Partners of the Tide

...By... JOSEPH C. LINCOLN, Author of "Cap'n Eri"

Copyright, 1905, by A. S. Barnes & Co.

He was well dressed, still in the rather conspicuous way, and he had an easy, masterful air about him that none of the country fellows had, though they all envied it. And he was goodlooking. That couldn't be denied.

The last dance was the lanciers, but as "Bennie D." arose to "call off" he announced that there would be, by special request, an "extra"—a waltz. Bradley had seen Hammond talking with the prompter and with Mr. Bangs, and he knew whose the "special request" was. Under other circumstances he wouldn't have cared so much for that waltz, but now he wanted it very much indeed.

"This waltz belongs to Bradley."

He walked over to where Gus, flushed and laughing, stood talking with Black, her partner in the lanciers. Just as he reached her side Sam came hurrying up and pushed in front of him without ceremony.

"Gus," said Hammond, "I made Ben give us this waltz on purpose so that we might have it together. You haven't been half generous to me tonight, and now I'm after my pay. Come!"

He offered his arm, and for a moment the girl seemed about to take it. Then she looked at Bradley, who, disappointed and chagrined, stood silent in the background.

"Thank you very much, Sam," she said, "but this waltz belongs to Bradley. Come, Brad, the music is beginning."

If any one had told Bradley previously that he would thoroughly enjoy a waltz he would have laughed, but he enjoyed every moment of this one. He saw Sam's scowl as Gus stepped past him, saw the smile on the faces of Black and the other bystanders, and then they whirled away. Round and round and round. "Bennie D.'s" music wasn't the best in the world, but to Bradley just then no grand opera orchestra could have played more sweetly. His feet seemed almost as light as his partner's, and they kept perfect time.

It was over all too soon.

CHAPTER X.

BREAKFAST next morning was hardly begun when "Blount's boy"—his name was Ulysses Simpson Grant Blount, but no one but his parents ever called him by it—came to the dining room door with a note for Bradley. It was from Captain Titcomb and read as follows:

Dear Brad—There's a three master, loaded with lumber, piled up on the Boneyard. Come on down quick. Looks as if here was the chance the Titcomb-Nickerson Wrecking syndicate had been praying for. Yours truly, E. D. TITCOMB.

The junior partner in the "syndicate" let Miss Prissy's clam fritters go by default and hurried down to the Traveler's Rest, where he found the captain waiting for him. A few hours later the officers and crew of the Lizzie were gazing over that vessel's rail at the tumbling froth that covered the Boneyard shoal and at the hapless lumber schooner trembling in its midst, a dismal, lonesome sight.

She had struck almost bow on, but the strong tide had swung her stern over until she lay broadside to the shoal. She had heeled but little, and her deck load of pine boards was, for the most part, still lashed in place. The main and mizzen masts were gone, but the lower part of her foremast still stood, and the great waves, striking against her stern, sent the light spray flying lengthwise almost as high as its top. The broken cordage streamed out in the wind, and a swinging block creaked and whined. On the rail by the afterhouse they could read her name; she was the Ruth Ginn of Bangor.

"The p'int life savin' crew got the men about 1 o'clock this mornin'," remarked Captain Titcomb. "Skipper tried to anchor to ride out the gale, then got scared and tried to make an offin', got her into irons, and the tide did the rest. Her masts went jest after they took off the men. What do you think of her? Total loss, ain't she?"

Bradley hesitated. "Well," he said, "I should say she was, so far as being any use as a schooner is concerned. That lumber, though, is a different matter. The weather would have a good deal to do with that, I should say."

"The weather's goin' to clear, if I'm any jedge," observed his companion. "What do you say, Barney?"

"Looks like fairin' off to me," replied Mr. Small. "Wind's cantin' round to the west'ard. However, I ain't no weather prophet. You want to ask Peleg Myrick if you're after weather news; he seems to have a special tip from heaven on gales and calms."

The Lizzie sailed away from the wreck that, with one screaming sea gull balancing himself on the broken foremast, looked more sad and lonely than ever and anchored in the little harbor in the lee of the Point. Two or three catboats were moored there, and among them was one that the captain recognized.

"Hello!" he exclaimed. "There's Obed Nickerson's boat. I guess that settles it; some part of her's insured anyway."

They walked through the soft white sand and coarse beach grass up to the life saving station. The lookout, in the observatory on the roof, rapped on the window of his cage and waved a hand to them as they reached the plank walk leading to the door.

Inside, seated around the table of the living room, they found Captain Knowles, commander of the station; Obed Nickerson, the Orham agent of the underwriters; the skipper of the Ruth Ginn and two or three others. The skipper, a sunburned, gray haired man, with a worried look on his lean face, was telling for Mr. Nickerson's benefit the story of how his vessel came to be in her hopeless plight. To a landsman it would have been an interesting yarn, but the present company had heard too many similar experiences to find anything novel in it.

"Insured, is she, Obed?" asked Captain Titcomb.

"Cargo is; schooner ain't," replied the underwriters' agent.

Captain Ezra signaled to Bradley, and they went out on the porch.

"Brad," whispered the captain, "they can't call her anything but a total loss. The underwriters 'll pay the insurance on that lumber and then dicker with somebody to save what they can of it. You and me want to be that somebody. Hello, here's Peleg!"

The versatile Mr. Myrick had tramped over from his hermitage and now, with Skeesicks shivering at his heels, was deep in conversation with Barney Small.

"Peleg says we're goin' to have clear weather for quite a spell," remarked Barney. "Let's see; when did you say you had the next storm scheduled, Peleg?"

"Well," drawled the weather prophet, looking becomingly important, "nigh's I can figger, Cap'n Ez, she'll fair off by afternoon and stay clear more'n a fortni't. We ain't due to have another reel genuwine blow for more'n a month. I knew last night's gale was comin'. I told Cap'n Knowles so. Says I, 'I don't care what the gov'ment

According to immemorial usage, European servants are entitled to tips as an assured part of their income. At the hotels the theory is that the landlord furnishes a guest a private room and the use of the public rooms, heat and light, food and dishes, but not menial service. For convenience he keeps at hand a corps of servants who will respond to the guest's summons, but at his expense. In old times travelers were attended by their own servants to wait on them. The modern custom echoes the ancient. The traveler no longer carries with him a retinue of servants, because he can hire temporarily those of the landlord. The customary fees are the payment. To avoid feeing is really to cheat the servants, who need all they can get, heaven knows. A chambermaid at the best hotels receives as wages only about $2 a month. Tipping servants in America is a regrettable imitation of the European custom without its resting on the reasonable basis of the foreign institutions.

Told Who He Was.

The game warden of Colorado was walking out in the mountains on one occasion when he met a hunter with his gun. The official suggested that that ought to be a good country for hunting. "It certainly is," said the hunter proudly. "I killed one of the finest bucks yesterday I ever saw, and he weighed over two hundred." It was the season when deer may not be shot without subjecting the hunter to a heavy fine. "Well, that is a fine one," said the warden, "and do you know who you are talking to?" Being assured that he did not, the official said, "Why, I am the chief game warden of Colorado." The hunter was only taken aback for a moment, when he asked, "And do you know who you are talking to?" The warden didn't know.

"Well, sir," said the hunter, apparently much relieved, "you are talking to the biggest liar in the whole state of Colorado."

An Egyptian Custom.

More than 1,000 years ago Herodotus observed a remarkable custom in Egypt. At a certain season of the year the Egyptians went into the desert, cut off branches from the wild palm and, bringing them back to their gardens, waved them over the flowers of the date palm. Why they performed this ceremony they did not know, but they knew that if they neglected it the date crop would be poor or wholly lost. Herodotus offers the quaint explanation that along with these branches there came from the desert certain flies possessed of a "vivifiv virtue," which somehow lent an exuberant fertility to the dates. But the true rationale to the incantation is now explained. Palm trees, like human beings, are male and female. The garden plants, the date bearers, were females, the desert plants were males, and the waving of the branches over the females meant the transference of the fertilizing pollen from the one to the other.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

Even Her Blood Turned to Water

When Dying of Pernicious Anaemia Her Life Was Saved by

..Ferrozone..

Probably very few cases are on record in which an absolute cure has been made of pernicious anaemia.

But Ferrozone did cure Miss Elaine Stanhope—cured her absolutely, and her mother Mrs. G. Stanhope of Rothesay, Ont., says the following:

"My daughter complained of feeling tired. She was very pale and listless, and kept losing strength till too weak to attend school. The doctors prescribed different bottles of medicine but Elaine kept getting worse instead of better. She had Anaemia and we were afraid for a while that she might never rally. We read of a similar case, that of Miss Descent of Stirling, Ont., being cured by Ferrozone, and this induced us to get it for Elaine. It took three boxes of Ferrozone to make any decided improvement, but when six boxes were used my daughter was beginning to be her old self again. It didn't take much longer to make a complete cure, and I am convinced that there is no better blood-maker than Ferrozone. It has made a new girl of Elaine. She has gained ten pounds in weight and looks the picture of perfect health. She is stronger and enjoys the best of spirits. The credit of her recovery is entirely due to Ferrozone."

Every young girl and young woman can make herself strong and healthy with Ferrozone.

It makes blood, nerve and tissue—makes it fast—makes it to stay.

Complexion soon becomes perfect, nerves get new strength, tiredness vanishes—perfect health is the reward for using Ferrozone, which is sold by all druggists—price 50c. per box; don't fail to try it.

BRITISH LORD CONVICTED OF MURDER

Man Who Served With Strathcona Horse Found Guilty---Friend Sure of His Innocence Tries to Acquit Him

Ottawa, June 13.—Lieut. F. Seymour Barrington, a wealthy Kentucky turfman, recently convicted of the murder in Missouri of J. P. McCann, another turfman, which he indignantly declares he never committed, has been positively identified as Lord Frederick Seymour, formerly a private in Strathcona's Horse during the Boer war. While that regiment was being mobilized in Ottawa, previous to leaving for South Africa, Lord Frederick Seymour became well known in this city, and was during the three weeks in which mobilization was in progress lionized by a number of the more prominent families of Ottawa.

On Saturday last Percy Tresider, a former resident of Ottawa, who served as a corporal in Strathcona's Horse, visited Clayton gaol and positively identified the convicted man as Lord Frederick, with whom he served during the war. Tresider claims the convicted murderer of McCann never committed the crime. He had been in St. Louis, where he claims he has learned that the murder was committed by other parties, and he is now devoting his entire time, first, to secure a reprieve for the prisoner, and then to vindicate him by bringing the guilty parties into court. Tresider in his effort to save Lord Frederick's life will have the support of the officers and men of Strathcona's Horse resident in Ottawa, who yesterday forwarded a telegram to Clayton, Mo., asking if they could do anything to secure justice for the convicted man.

A DISTINGUISHED FAMILY.

Lord Frederick Seymour belongs to a distinguished English family. He is a son of the Marquis and Marchioness of Hereford. The Earl of Yarmouth whose wife is a sister of Harry Thaw, who figured in the celebrated murder trial in New York recently, is his eldest brother. Lord William Seymour, who for some years commanded the British troops at Halifax, is his uncle, and Sir Alfred Jones, head of the Elder-Dempster Steamship Line, is his brother-in-law.

For some time previous to 1900 Lord Frederick Seymour was engaged in ranching around Calgary or in mining in the Kootenay country. When Strathcona's Horse was organized in 1900 he joined the force as a private and came to Ottawa with the regiment. During the regiment's stay of three weeks in Ottawa, Lord Frederick Seymour was visited by his father and mother, the Marquis and Marchioness of Hertford, who came over to Canada purposely to bid him good-bye before he sailed for South Africa.

WOUNDED IN WAR.

He remained with the regiment until he was dangerously wounded on September 12th, 1900, at Kruger's Post, and invalided home. Col. S. B. Steele, who commanded Strathcona's Horse, and who arrived in the city yesterday on business with the minister of militia, previous to assuming command of the newly-organized military district in Alberta and Saskatchewan, says Seymour was a plucky soldier and was well liked.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

At yesterday's session of the Police Court "Con." Wall was charged with vagrancy and pleaded not guilty. He said his wife and family, had been in Toronto for three years. He was never in the court charged with stealing chickens. This answer brought an incredulous smile from the Chief of Police and the Magistrate. He reluctantly admitted carrying beer in a pail into Mrs. McShanahan'shouse. The case was enlarged until this morning.

William McPherson was next charged with being idle, a vagrant and having no visible means of support. He pleaded not guilty. P. C. McDonald,—The box said he found prisoner at a boat house with Con. Wall. Prisoner told him he was stopping at Nixon's Hotel, but this was found to be incorrect. P. C. Newhall has seen prisoner late at nights about the city. Prisoner admitted to him that he had a row at the Cordage picnic. The Magistrate told him to get back to Omemee at once, and if again arrested would be sent to Central Prison.

Vincent Elliott was charged with having assaulted Hattie Whitleyo n the 9th inst. He pleaded not guilty. Miss Whitley said that as she was coming home from church that evening along George street she met defendant who followed her. He tried to walk home with her and tried to take her urm. Defendant's elder sister corroborated her testimony. The Magistrate gave him a good heart to heart talk and fined the boy $5, which he paid.

Harry Raymond's case was once more enlarged.

Robt. C. Newman was charged with vagrancy. He pleaded not guilty. His home is in Colorado. He is a cigar maker and had the offer of a job with M. Murty. P. C. Meharry saw prisoner late at night acting suspiciously. P. C. Newhall said that on Monday night the 27th he found prisoner in a barn, where he was showing some slight of hand tricks to the crowd. He changed hats during the night. P. C. McDonald corroborated this evidence. When he arrested himt he prisoner made a motion with his hand to his hip pocket, where there was a razor. Mr. Fred Darcy said prisoner registered at his hotel Saturday night but did not take the room. Prisoner was given six months in the Central Prison.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

MINISTER'S FOOD

Its Value Discovered During Absence of the Family

A Fla. minister had an interesting experience when his family were compelled to leave home on account of the yellow fever. He says: "When we were visited by a yellow fever scare, my family left for an indefinite stay in the interior.

"I had, for about two years, been under considerable physical and mental strain, and my nervous system seemed to utterly give way. I had some excellent physicians, but their remedial agencies failed to reach the case—at best, affording only temporary relief.

"At the time the family left, my attention was called to Grape-Nuts food. Several things had led me to believe that my troubles were largely due to improper nutrition. The absence of the family gave me a good opportunity to try the new food, for it is perfectly cooked and therefore required no work on my part.

"So I began to make two meals a day, supper and breakfast, on Grape-Nuts and cream or milk, and had nothing else. I confined myself to the proper allowance, not overeating. The improvement was marked, almost from the first—my digestion was better, sleep became regular and restful, and I began to gain flesh. I could soon do work with less fatigure and more satisfaction.

"My nervous system was wonderfully improved, and I soon weighed more than I ever had before and found my strength equal to all the responsibility. This was not all; on the return of the family Grape-Nuts became a regular article of food at the morning meal. The children ate it until improved.

"My wife, who was nursing an infant, discovered that after she began using Grape-Nuts regularly, for the first time Nature's food supply for the baby was adequate with ut resorting to artificial subterfuges. Grape-Nuts food not only carried us through the sickly season, but has been a Godsend to our entire family." Read "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

Free Methodists Camp Is Ended

Now that the shouting, fainting, dancing, reminiscences and other outward signs of regeneration displayed at the usual camp meeting, are things of the past, the Free Methodist camp meeting that has been in progress during the past week near Jackson Park, was ended yesterday.

The tents were taken down and the members left for their homes on the various trains. The last camp meeting was an annual matter of the Free Methodists of the district of Toronto, and judging by the reports of those in attendance, it has been one of the most successful ever held. A district camp meeting is held every year, and it will likely be several years before one will be held here again. The weather was favorable, it opened on Tuesday, June 4th, and had been in progress a week. Many new converts have been made, while those who had already professed conversion have been made stronger in their faith.

will mail you free, to prove merit, samples of my Dr. Shoop's Restorative, and my Book on either Dyspepsia, The Heart or The Kidneys. Troubles of the Stomach, Heart or Kidneys are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of treating symptoms only. Symptom treatment is trenting the result of your ailment, and not the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness always. And the Heart, and Kidneys as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restorative has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves." Also for bloating, biliousness, foul breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoops Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. Is Skull Found From Otonabee?

Story Told the Times by a Farmer of a Former Tragedy

The human skull found by the contractor who is tearing down the former fire hall on Simcoe street, it will be remembered, was covered up by certain coverings and also that nothing has yet developed to show whom, in the ordinary walks of life carried this receptacle of the material which prompts all human instincts and actions. Now, yesterday The Times had a call from a leading Otonabee farmer in connection with this ghastly discovery. The farmer in question reminded The Times that, some ten or twelve years ago an old man of that township, considering his end was approaching and wanting to be assured of comfort and care for the balance of his life, made over his residence and farm to friends on the understanding that they, the friends, should take care of him until he passed into the great unknown. It will also be remembered that shortly after this transfer of property, an unexplainable fire broke out at the farm house in question. After the fire had wrought its dire disaster, amid the crumbling ashes, all that was left of the homestead, was found the remains of the donor of the property, but, from the head or bones or any trace of the latter. Our caller seemed to be convinced that the skull found in the remains of the former fire hall might be those of the Otonabee would-be-benefactor.

THE DOCTOR LAUGHED

But the Woman was Frightened

A physician of Columbus, Ga., rather poked fun at a lady patient who insisted she had heart disease.

The trouble really was caused by coffee drinking, and the nerves were so affected that it gave her every indication of heart disease. This is true of thousands of people who are badly hurt by the caffeine o fcoffee, and, it is understood that if continued long enough, real organic disease will set in.

The lady referred to above says: "I had been running down in health for a number of years and suspected that coffee was hurting me but could not get up courage to quit it. My heart troubled me so that I was very short of breath, and could do little or nothing that required exertion. I had fearful, nervous headaches nearly every day, and was exceedingly nervous, with indigestion and badly constipated.

"The doctor laughed at my idea of heart trouble, but knew that I was in a serious condition generally. Finally I was induced to quit coffee and take up Postum Food Coffee. The change has been wonderful. I feel like another person.

My heart does not trouble me at all, and the stomach and nerves are decidedly improved. My head does not give me the old trouble it did, while the bowels are regular without any purgatives or medicine of any kind.

"I can hardly express my gratification from the relief of suffering brought on by the use of coffee, and I cannot thank Postum enough." Read, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs. Physicians call it "A Health Classic." "There's a Reason."

Mr. J. J. Hurley Was Laid to Rest

On Monday last Mr. J. J. Hurley eldest son of Mr. J. Hurley, the well known grain inspector, died at the Court House, Lindsay, aged 27 years. The deceased who lived the most of his life with this aunt, Miss McHugh, was highly respected by all who knew him. He leaves a father, mother, one brother, Frank and three sisters, Misses Mary, Margaret and Loretta, to mourn his loss.

The funeral took place yesterday at 8.30 a.m. to St. Mary's church, thence to Peterborough for interment.

The pall bearers were his cousins, Jack Grey, Jack Hurley, Jack Hartnett, Jack Twohey, James Dunnett and George Brady.

A Crafty Dope Fiend

Drug users may take warning by the sentence dealt out yesterday morning by the magistrate at the police court, when Robert C. Newman, of "America" was given six months in the Central Prison, Toronto, on a charge of vagrancy. The particulars of this trial are given in this issue under police news. There is however a few addenda to be given that may throw a little light on the hows, whys and whereas of the man's (otherwise supposed) suspicious actions. It will be seen in our report that the man in question was and rightly arrested on account of his suspicious actions.

After the trial was over, and whilst Newman was locked up at the station awaiting his trip to Castle Nesbitt, preparatory to his semi-annual visit to the grey stone penal institution in Toronto.

Several local reporters interviewed him. As the first of the local scribes arrived at his cell Newman was seen to have his trouser leg pulled up, his undergarment also, and his sock pulled down as it nothing his visitor, Newman placing one foot on the bunk, proceeded to adjust a brown paper covered packet, containing cocaine about the calf of his leg after taking a dose of the same drug. A few minutes afterwards a friend of his brought to the cell three packets of cigarettes and 70 cents in change out of a dollar given the latter by the prisoner.

Newman at once proceeded to tear the cardboard wrappers off the coffin nails and placed them round the calf of his other leg, securing them by a rubber band so that neither the police nor the jail authorities would "get wise" to his smuggled articles. It will be seen in our report of the trial that the prisoner with straight face and seemingly truthful words thanked the powers that be for the two weeks' detention in the county gaol, "as it had cured him of the cocaine habit! I I"

The accidental happening of our reporter to see these exhibitions of an evidently confirmed crook's modus operandi in concealing his actions from the authorities is no reflection on the local police who thoroughly searched the prisoner's clothes and found, as noted in these columns, much incriminatory evidence. It is only when Newman gets to the Central and compelled to strip off his total raiment that much "foxy" expedients will be divulged.

Newman's remarks to our representative after the trial was, "Say, mister, that judge did give it to me in the neck, didn't he? Say just think of six months in that jug! Say, that's pretty hard mist it!".

ORCHARD SOLD HAIL INSURANCE

He Says Moyer Hated Peabody for Causing His Arrest--- Gave Good Reasons for Having Ex-Governor Assassinated

Boise, Idaho, June 13.—With the resumption of the Haywood trial at 9.30 o'clock yesterday morning, the cross-examination of Harry Orchard by Attorney Richardson for the defence was continued.

Attorney Richardson began at once to question Orchard regarding his conference with Charles H. Moter at the latter's home in Denver about April, 1905. Orchard testified Tuesday that Moyer, Pettibone, and Haywood told him at this time to go to Canon City, Colo., to "get Peabody." Moyer's home was in the Aberdeen flats. Orchard said he went there at his own volition. He had not seen Moyer for a year or more before this.

The witness was not sure how the Peabody matter came up or who spoke of it first. Moyer said he wanted to get rid of Peabody so no one else would follow in his footsteps. Peabody had gone out of office at this time.

Orchard said he talked with Haywood and Pettibone at the latter's store. They gave good reasons for wanting to get rid of Peabody. Moyer also had a feeling of personal enmity toward Peabody, Orchard said, blaming him for being the cause of his arrest.

Orchard said Pettibone asked him to get a position as life insurance solicitor before going to Canon City. He got letters of recommendation from several persons, among them Mr. Hawkins, a law partner of Richardson, Haywood later told Orchard he had made a mistake in getting a letter from Hawkins, for he might involve the attorney, who had been representing the Federation.

MIGHT KILL CHILDREN.

The casing of the Peabody bomb prepared at Canon City has been placed in evidence. Richardson wanted to know yesterday why Orchard had made such a large bomb. Orchard said he had planned to place the bomb outside the house, and beneath the window where Peabody often sat in the evening. The fact that the bomb might also kill Mrs. Peabody and the children made no impression upon him, Orchard declared.

The witness said he made a pretense of insurance solicitation, but did not succeed in writing any policies so he went in to the hail insurance business with a man named Vaughn.

"This insurance of farmers against hail storms was a fake, wasn't it?"

"Yes."

"You just gave the farmers a piece of worthless paper and took their money?"

"Yes."

MADE LOTS OF MONEY.

Orchard said he made plenty of money out of the scheme.

The plan to blow up Peabody meanwhile had been abandoned, because Peabody had stopped sitting by the window.

Richardson tried to get the exact dates of Orchard's travels, while in the hail insurance business, and, being unsuccessful, he attempted to secure from the witness an admission that he had been coached not to permit the inquisitor to pin him down to any place or date. In this he also failed. Orchard merely insisting that he had been admonished to "tell the truth."

When the hail insurance business gave out, Orchard returned to Denver and went to work on "Judges Gabbert and Goddard."

Orchard said that Pettibone had agents out in the country soliciting orders for his house specialties, such as carpet sweepers, clothes wringers, etc. These men sometimes solicited life insurance.

Orchard told of talking with Pettibone about the Goddard and Gabbert affairs in the basement of the Pettibone store. He said there was a tin box in the place, "which didn't look good to me." He made the Goddard and Gabbert bombs in their basement, he said, Pettibone having the powder for them buried in his yard. The Gabbert bomb eventually killed a man named Wells. The Goddard bomb never exploded.

Orchard then told of attempts to "get" Sherman Bell in which, he said, Pettibone participated.

Boys by Name of Byrnell Are Hurt

A Fenelon Falls despatch says;

Three boys of the name of Byrnell two brothers and a cousin, were out hunting for crows yesterday. Firing of that sport they indulged in a game of catch with a baseball. A ball is supposed to have struck the gun, which lay in short distance away, charged with buckshot, causing it to go off. It wounded the eldest of the three boys in the abdomen and leg. He is the 17-year-old son of Widow Byrnell and is dangerously wounded. His cousin, Rubert Byrnell, is also wounded in the wrist. two grains of shot having struck him there.

Conference Wants the Blue Laws

The Bay of Quinte Conference has decided to ask the Government to cut out the three-fifths majority in local option contests. The Dominion Government will be asked to prohibit the manufacture and sale of cigarettes, prevent any increase in the number of breweries, prohibit gambling on race tracks, and the sale of liquor at military camps. The next conference will be held at Lindsay.

Many Farmers Went to Guelph

Yesterday morning the annual outing of the farmers of this county was well attended. Mr. Collins the indefatigable promotor of these excursions, has good reason to be proud of the success of his efforts. This year the Farmers' excursion went to Guelph, and many a well dressed and prosperous agriculturist availed himself of the opportunity to take himself and family to the Royal City. A large number boarded the train at Norwood and other eastern points which sent large delegations and it was estimated that there were over five hundred on board before Guelph would be reached.

ROYAL Baking Powder preserves its leavening strength until used. The last spoonful in a can is as good as the first, and its work is always uniform. Housekeepers have been vexed when using other powders to find their work uneven. If good when fresh, before the can is empty they make sour or heavy food, and the flour, eggs and butter used therein are wasted. This is because they are made from alum or other cheap and inferior ingredients.

Food always sweet and light can be assured only by the use of Royal Baking Powder exclusively.

ORCHARD, THE ASSASSIN

Without considering what effect the testimony of Harry Orchard may have in the trial of W. D. Haywood, one cannot read the story of this self-confessed assassin without a shudder. It is almost inconceivable that a human being could sink so low in the moral scale as did this hired murderer who sits in the witness chair and tranquilly recites how he had taken human life by wholesale in most merciless and cowardly fashion for the few hundred dollars he said he received in payment.

That Orchard is telling the truth is more than probable. Of course, as a mere unsubstantiated statement the word of such a fiend would not be conclusive, yet the circumstances surrounding his testimony and the manner of the witness argue the credibility of his tale of horror. It is contrary, to any reasonable hypothesis that Orchard would confess to murder after murder, for any one of which he may be convicted and hanged, if he were not actuated by a desire to fully unburden himself of the load of a guilty conscience and do what he may toward bringing a lot of atrocious murderers, including himself, to justice.

Nowhere in his testimony up to the present time is there any indication that Orchard ever needed special urging when a foul crime was to be permitted. Apparently the only thought he entertained was the one of the pay he was to receive. He makes no excuses and there is no effort to throw his share of the blame upon anyone else. He does not even plead that he was serving a good purpose and upholding the cause of righteousness and justice as exemplified by the Western Federation of Miners when he went forth with gun and bomb to murder innocent workmen whose only crime was the desire to earn wages to support themselves andt heir families.

Orchard's story is told so calmly and shows such easy familiarity with the facts that it is convincing. In it he implicates so many others that if he were not telling the truth it would be easy to disprove his statements. No doubt there will be a bitter legal fight over every point of this testimony and it is inconceivable that the state should not have fortified it from every possible assault.

The confession admits nineteen murders, although there might have been a few more—or less. When the country rang with the awful news of the blowing up of the platform of the Independence mine both the manner of the crime and the identity of the men guilty of it were mysteries. It was the most diabolical deed of that whole reign of bloodshed. If it is true that Orchard and a single confederate accomplished this inhuman act under the direction and the pay of the "inner circle" of union miners, it stamps that organization with guilt far surpassing any other crime attributed to strikers. We have yet to be convinced that the defendants were actually implicated as deeply as Orchard says, although the whole plot grows worse with the unfolding.

OUR FOREIGN TRADE

It may be questioned whether any other country in the world, with no greater population, can equal the phenomenal growth of Canada's foreign trade for the year ending March 31st. The exports totalled $272,206,606, and the imports $340,374,745, or a grand total of $612,581,351, which, taking the population at a little more than six millions gives an average of $102 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

The imports are indicative of the activity in our domestic manufactures, for of the increase of $60,046,075 (or 21 1-2 per cent.), a very large proportion was of raw material to be made into finished products by the skill of Canadian workmen. The imports from Great Britain amounted to $91,239,258, an increase of $16,089,278, or 24 per cent.; while those from the United States reached a total of 208,721,801, an increase of 21 1-2 per cent.

The returns also show that our sales to the United States amounted to $109,773,944, or an increase of $20,145,503 or 22 1-2 per cent over the previous year. Our exports to Great Britain, although also very gratifying, did not show so large an increase as those to the United States. They, however, exceedd those of the previous year by $8,350,931, or 7 per cent, bringing the total up to $124,169,430, a very creditable showing indeed.

Every Canadian has reason to feel elated at these figures, and taking them as incentives to greater activity, should use every reasonable and legitimate effort to make the business of the present year far exceed any in the past. To do this, however, there must be a solution of the existing transportation problems, so that there will be no further drawback from blockades, such as has hindered the growth of the west the past few months.

BIG MEN'S BUMPS.

"Bobs" is Destructive, Kitchener Preaches and Carnegie Shrewd.

Despite the expression of bored contempt that most people assume when anyone talks to them about phrenology it is safe to say that the great majority are secretly interested in it.

In a work recently published, the heads of many prominent people are brought under discussion, and among these are Lord Roberts, Lord Kitchener, Mr. Andrew Carnegie, of free library fame, and Lord Rosebery.

To take these notable men in the above sequence it is interesting to note that Lord Roberts displays great energy, love of justice, openness, truthfulness, and at the same time great "destructiveness." Lord Kitchener is power personified, and order, calculation, precision, "form," and marshmanship are shown by the development of his eyes.

Mr. Carnegie shows shrewdness and keenness of observation, and he is at the same time credited with a dislike for "scenes."

Last, but not least, Lord Rosebery's love for the "lonely furrow" is strongly borne out, and he displays as well, "permanency in action," and capacity to endure. Besides possessing extraordinary powers of reasoning, he is also credited with being an able organizer and a "lover of contest."

No Trouble Getting Crews

London, June 12.—The seamen's strike at Glasgow has narrowed into a conflict between the union and the owners of the North American lines. So far the men have had little success. The Allan and Dominion liners are obtaining crews without difficulties.

HE IS CORRECT

Dr Hamilton Proves That Piles Are Caused by Constipation and Strong Catharties.

Knowing the frequency with which people suffer from this ailment, Dr. Hamilton made an exhaustive study into the cause of piles.

He found that the lower part of the bowels is like a network of blood-vessels, and if subjected to persistent pressure, a section will bulge out and form what is commonly known as piles.

The only effective mode of curing this trouble is the regular use of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which can be taken before retiring. Next day will bring wonderful relief.

"I suffered up to about the limit of human endurance with piles," writes Miss Lueders, from Cornwall, Ont., "I was employed in a factory here, but for a while had to give up work till I got better of this trouble. I read in the Montreal Herald about Dr. Hamilton's Pills, and after using them for two weeks was cured. I can recommend these pills very highly; there are none better. They at once relieve and pervent a constipated condition of the bowels, and from my experience can be depended upon as a perfect safeguard against piles. Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butternut, I am sure, would be a benefit to every girl or woman."

Take Dr. Hamilton's Pills and your system will be regenerated, revitalized, and made proof against disease.

The Money That's Being Made in

Western Canada

LAND

In October, 1906 we sold 5,000 acres of Saskatchewan lands to an Indiana party of men at $8 per acre, and resold it this year at $12, making just about 100 per cent. on the money invested.

A Montreal party of men who bought 10,000 acres from us at $8 per acre last September, resold through us within three months at $10.00 per acre.

A Chicago client writes us that after making some improvements on a section she bought near Regina, one year ago, she sold out recently for exactly twice what she paid for the land.

We resold a section of land located near Lipton for a man at $18.00 per acre last April, which we sold him in December at $12.00.

Western Canada Lands offer the greatest opportunity this continent has ever known

Men here are growing wealthy who never knew success in any other line. You can make money here too, if you think your amount too small club it with a few friends. Some of the most prominent financial men in the United States and Eastern Canada are now interested in this country heavily.

We own about 200,000 acres of the finest wheat and mixed farming lands in Manitoba and Saskatchewan.—Picked lands on which we are prepared to give accurate trustworthy information, and these tracts being portions of extremely large purchases, we can sell them at prices that cannot be equalled, quality of land considered, by any firm in this country.

Prices range from $6.00 per acre upwards

Reasonable Terms in every case

Write us for further information but when doing so tell us the class and amount of an investment you desire, and whether you want the land for your own use or for investment purposes purely. $1,000 is about the minimum we can handle. References Union Bank and Traders' Bank, Winnipeg.

This company owns 4 claim (80acres) of some of the best proven mineral land in the Goldfield district, consisting of the Accidental and Accidental No. 2 lode claims, situated two and one-half miles south of the great Goldfield Consolidated Mines (comprising the Mohawk, Goldfield, Combination, Red Top, Jumbo and Laguna) the richest in the world; and the Broadway and Beauty lode claims situated three and one-half miles north of the Consolidated and about one and one-half miles northwest of the Great Bend and Daisy Mines near the Zion group in the Diamondfield section toward only in richness to the great Mohawk portion of the camp.

The company has also succeeded in securing the Sure Thing lode claim (20 acres) in the Cuprite district, which has outcroppings equal to anything in Goldfield, showing fine surface values and is without doubt rightly named, "Sure Thing."

All of these claims are located in the same mineral belt as the other noted mines of Goldfield that have astonished the world by their production of millions in high grade ore, and will with the same development give equally profitable returns.

The money derived from the sale of this stock will be used at once for the active development of the property and the fact that all the directors are residents of Goldfield with years of successful mining experience who will give their personal attention at all times to the progress of the work goes to show that the first issue of 100,000 shares will meet with a quick and ready sale at the initial price of 10 cents per share.

We advise immediate action if you wish to participate in the vast profits of this Bonanza Mine.

Stock will be listed as soon as feasible on the Goldfield and San Francisco Stock and Exchange Boards. We'd therefore advise purchasers to buy in board lots of 1,000 shares when convenient to do so.

folks say, it's goin' to blow,' says I, 'like time, and them that's afloat wants to stand by,' I says. Now"—

"That's right, Peleg," broke in the captain. "I'll back you against the weather bureau eight days in the week and twice on Sunday. How's clams these days?"

"Clams," replied Mr. Myrick, "is scurcer'n all git out. I don't know why, unless 'twas the turrible hard winter. I was afraid of it last fall. Course I knew the hard winter was comin' and I told folks so. Oh, that reminds me! What's this I hear 'bout Sam Hammond's spendin' more'n $4 for cigars last time he was home? Do you cal'late that's so?"

They left Barney to relieve Mr. Myrick's anxiety concerning the cigars and walked down to the beach. On the way Captain Titcomb said:

"Brad, we've got to git this lumber job. It's the kind of job we can do with the Lizzie, and, figgerin' on a commission basis, it'll give us pretty nigh money and start enough to warrant our havin' a new schooner built, one with power and strong enough to handle the real big things. Wait here by the dory till Obed comes out. I'm layin' for him."

Mr. Nickerson, accompanied by one of the village boys, was on his way to the catboat, but the captain interfered.

"What in the nation are you goin' home in that clam shell for, Obed?" he asked. "Come on aboard the Lizzie with us. Brad and Barney and I will land you at the wharf afore that cat of yours is out of shoal water. Let Dan there take your boat home, and you come with us. I've got a cigar I want you to take out some fire insurance on."

So, after some persuasion, the underwriters' agent consented to make his homeward trip in the schooner. The cigars were lighted, Barney Small took the wheel, and the captain, Bradley and Mr. Nickerson made themselves comfortable in the little cabin. Then the conversation was judiciously piloted toward wrecks, and the wreck of the Ruth Ginn in particular. Obed admitted that the full insurance would undoubtedly be paid on the cargo, although, of course, the official "three man survey" must come first. Bradley asked what would be done after that.

"Oh," answered the agent, "then I guess I'll send word to the Boston Salvage company and make a deal with them to git out what they can of the lumber."

"Yes," observed Captain Titcomb, "and they'll charge you 75 per cent of the value. What's the matter with Brad and me doin' it?"

"You? What with—this tub?"

"Yup, this tub. If you've got a loose tooth a string and a door'll snake it out as quick as the dentist will, and you don't have to pay for silver plated pinchers and a gilt name plate. Come, now, tell you what I'll do. Brad and me'll git that lumber out for 60 per cent on what we save."

"How you goin' to do it? You haven't got a towboat, nor even power in your own schooner."

"Don't need 'em. You couldn't start that wreck with a towboat without yankin' the bottom out of her. The only way to fetch her off the shoals is with anchors and cables, and you know it. We can do that as well as any Boston comp'ny that ever was. Give us a chance, Obed. You ought to encourage home talent, as Bill Samuels said to the schoolteacher that found fault with him 'cause he told his boy to spell cat with a K. What do you say?"

Obed had a good deal to say, and no decision was reached that forenoon. Next day the survey was made, and that evening the captain spent at the home of Mr. Nickerson. It was after 11 o'clock when he returned to his room at the Traveler's Rest, where Bradley was waiting.

"Well?" said Bradley anxiously.

"Well!" exclaimed his partner, tossing his cap on a chair and wiping the perspiration from his hot forehead—"well, Brad, I've used up jaw power enough to pretty nigh work that wreck off, but the job's ours at 50 per cent of the value of the lumber we save. There's nigh on to $6,000 worth aboard, and if Peleg's forecastin' works have not got indigestion we ought to clean up close to every stick of it. Brad, shake!"

And they shook hands. The opportunity they had been waiting for was theirs at last.

The partners talked for another hour before they separated. Three extra hands at least, so the captain figured, would be needed on the Lizzie.

So the next forenoon Bradley took the train to Harniss, where he found Alvin, oldest of the Bearse "boys," a gray headed, leather faced youngster of fifty-five, and engaged him for the sum of $3 a day and his keep. He was to report on board at half past 7 the following morning. Then, having accomplished his share of the hiring, the junior partner returned to Orham to inspect the Lizzie with nervous care and to listen to the remarks of a dozen or more disinterested acquaintances who, having heard of the contract, had come down to the wharf to prophesy and offer advice.

Bradley called on Gus that evening. He had been so busy with Captain Titcomb, planning and working for the new contract, that he had seen her but once and then only for a moment since the night of the ball. But now, full of hope and the triumph of having secured the chance he had longed for, he looked forward to telling her the good news and receiving her congratulations.

The windows of the Baker "best parlor" were lighted up—a most unusual occurrence—and he vaguely wondered if they had "company" and who it might be.

Gus herself opened the door in response to his knock.

"Why, hello!" she said. "I wondered if you had forgotten me entirely, Mr. Contractor, now that you really are a business man and the talk of the town."

"Then you knew?" he exclaimed in surprise.

"Why, of course I knew! I haven't heard anything else all day. And, to make it certain, Melissa called on grandmother this afternoon, just after she had been at your house."

Bradley smiled ruefully. "You must have heard an encouraging yarn from her," he said. "Have you got company?"

"Oh, only a friend of ours that you know. Come right into the parlor."

He walked across the threshold of that sacred apartment to find Sam Hammond seated in the haircloth rocker and looking very much at home. Neither of the young men appeared particularly happy at meeting the other, but, truth to tell, Hammond was the more self possessed.

"Hello, Brad!" he said easily. "I've heard nothing but you and Cap'n Eli since breakfast. I'm glad for you; it's a nice little job, if you can carry it out."

The contract had seemed anything but a little one to Bradley, and this nonchalant way of referring to it took him down a bit. Hammond continued in the same condescending way.

"I don't believe I should know how to handle a job like that," he observed, "without power or towboats or things of that sort. It would be like working with your hands tied. Our people have everything to do with, and they'd have that lumber off in no time. Did I ever tell you how we raised the Margrave for the Barclay line folks, Gus?

Flying as Well as Fleeing?

The old policeman was telling of his early experience on the force. When he first got a beat it seemed that he had been called upon for assistance by a brother officer who was pursuing an escaping lawbreaker and had in an effort to halt him fired several shots in the air.

"I also fired at the man," said the old policeman, "but as he got away I made no report of the affair. Next day the lieutenant asked why I had not mentioned the affair, and I replied that I had only fired into the air and thought nothing more of it. 'Fired in the air?' commented the lieutenant. 'That's what the other man says. Did you both think the man was flying?' Since then I have always made report of what happened on my beat."—Philadelphia Record.

OTTAWA, LARDER AND OPASITIKA LAKES SYNDICATE

CONTROLLING 2,800 ACRES

A syndicate is hereby formed for the purpose of acquiring by purchase for the sum of fifty-five thousand dollars ($55,000.00) and one hundred thousand shares in a Company to be hereinafter formed at the discretion of the subscribers, with an authorized capital of One Million Dollars, divided into One Million Shares, at par value of One Dollar each, to acquire the mining rights in certain lands in the District of Nipissing, Province of Ontario, and also in the Province of Quebec.

In order to raise the sum quickly, five hundred and fifty syndicate shares of the par value of One Hundred Dollars per share, will be sold with the understanding that each syndicate share of One Hundred Dollars will entitle the holder to one thousand shares, par value One Dollar, fully paid-up and non-assessable stock in the Company, when the Company is organized.

This special offer applies only to the first five hundred and fifty shares, and no more will be sold at that figure.

Fifty-six of these claims are situated directly opposite Larder Lake, just over the Quebec boundary, and are composed of three and one-half square miles adjoining the Lake Opasitika and include the height of land ridge.

Nine claims of this property are situated north-east of Larder Lake and adjoining the now famous Dr. Reddick claims, and five claims are situated to the south of the Lake on the Juno Creek and next to Mr. Fitzpatrick's claims. He was one of the original prospectors in that locality. As gold is being found on claims in this district which assay $6,000.00 per ton, this certainly is an opportunity to get in on the ground floor, as the company will be capitalized at $1,000,000, of par value one dollar per share.

These shares will be taken up quickly, and as soon as same are subscribed for, the syndicate will meet and choose from among themselves a directorate and decide on the future operations of the Company.

All subscriptions should be accompanied by check, payable to the order of Messrs. James K. Paisley and D. O'Connor, Jr., who will act as trustees for the syndicate.

MUCH LONGER

Recent Discoveries Under Continued Development Make Us Believe that an Advance in the Price of this Stock must take place at an early date.

The Gold Bond Company is a Colorado Corporation. Capitalized at 1,500,000 shares of a par value of $1.00 each, fully paid and non-assessable, 500,000 shares in treasury.

Our holdings consist of four claims, three of which are patented, and all lie close to the Addison claim, which made the GOLDEN MESSAGE famous. One of our veins is an extension of the Addison, and shows the same character of ore as that now being taken out of the Addison shaft. Comparatively little work has been done on the Gold Bond group, but we have receipts from small shipments of the high grade ore showing values running as high as $24,000 per ton; the veins are from three to twenty feet in width, all good milling ore, with streaks of the extraordinary high grade running all through.

A limited number of shares at the very low price of

DARK BROWN TASTE

Your Head Aches
Tongue is Coated
Mouth is Coated
Stomach is Sick

The Gastric Juices Are Not Doing Their Duty and You're in the Grip of Nervous Dyspepsia.

A hot bitter fluid, and sour indigested food rise in your mouth.

Your vision is crossed with specks that float before the eyes.

Very shortly you'll have nausea, rank breath, and sleepless nights.

What you need is Ferrozone.

It regulates the gastric juices, puts new life into the stomach, braces digestive powers, gives the aid that's so badly required.

Ferrozone is the best treatment because it goes to the root of the trouble, remedies the conditions that cause dyspepsia and thereby cures permanently.

If you want proof, read the experience of Mr. E. P. Davison, a well known resident of Portland, who writes. "Ferrozone is beyond doubt a most powerful cure for indigestion and weak stomach. Food so badly disagreed with me that I was almost afraid to eat. Pastry and starchy foods fermented, caused sour risings and gave me headaches, brown taste, offensive breath. I grew weak, my weight ran down fifteen pounds and my looks fully indicated all that was wrong. Ferrozone put me on my feet again. It braced me up, renewed my digestion and made me a well man."

Doctor and patients alike speak of the merit of Ferrozone; it is different from other remedies, different because it cures so you stay cured. Try it; sold everywhere in 50c. boxes.

ADVERTISE IN THE TIMES.

That our American forests abound in plants which possess the most valuable medicinal virtues is abundantly attested by scores of the most eminent medical writers and teachers. Even the untutored Indians had discovered the usefulness of many native plants before the advent of the white race. This information, imparted freely to the whites, led the latter to continue investigations until to-day we have a rich assortment of most valuable American medicinal roots.

Dr. Pierce believes that our American forests abound in most valuable medicinal roots for the cure of most obstinate and fatal diseases, if we would properly investigate them; and in confirmation of this conviction, he points with pride to the almost marvelous cures effected by his "Golden Medical Discovery," which has proven itself to be the most efficient stomach tonic, liver invigorator, heart tonic and regulator, and blood cleanser known to medical science. Dyspepsia, or indigestion, torpid liver, functional and even valvular and other affections of the heart yield to its curative action. The reason why it cures these and many other affections, is clearly shown in a little book of extracts from the standard medical works which is mailed free to any address by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., to all sending request for the same.

Not less marvelous, in the unparalleled cures it is constantly making of woman's many peculiar affections, weaknesses and distressing derangements, is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, as is amply attested by thousands of [illegible] testimonials contributed by grateful patrons who have been [illegible] uterine, ovarian, pelvic [illegible] bearing-down pains, irregular, painful, [illegible] displacements, [illegible] ulceration of uterus and kindred affections, often after many other so-called remedies and physicians had failed.

Both the above mentioned medicines are wholly made up from the glyceric extracts of native, medicinal roots. The processes employed in their manufacture were original with Dr. Pierce, and they are carried on by skilled chemists and pharmacists with the aid of apparatus and appliances specially designed and built for this purpose. Both medicines are entirely free from alcohol and all other harmful, habit-forming drugs. A full list of their ingredients is printed on each bottle-wrapper.

Fishery Inspector in the City

Mr. W. Clarkson, of Lakehurst, fishery overseer from Chemong to Ketchecum Lake, was in the city yesterday, and found everything satisfactory. The summer resorts are all getting ready for a big season. The fishing will be better than ever. The season opens on June 16th for bass and lunge and the following resorts are preparing for large fishing parties,—Buckhorn, Chemong, W. Irwin, proprietor at Inverlock; Alex. Nicholls, at Buckhorn; and James Oliver at Nogies Creek.

Present to a Local Man

Yesterday Mr. Ernest Reaston, wine clerk at the Snowden House, received a handsome present from friends in Selby, Yorkshire, England. The present consisted of a handsome Morrico bound pipe case, containing two sterling silver mounted pipes with a solid silver shield with the inscription, "To E. R., from old Selby friends," and also a tobacco pouch with sterling silver shield with similar inscription. The shields on both packages are Hall marked. Mr. Reaston was greatly surprised at this mark of remembrance and has written to his friends, thanking them for their kindness.

Toronto Doctor Relieves Dr. Young

Dr. Walsh of Toronto, will have charge of Dr. Young's practice during the latter's absence in charge of the 24th Field Battery at Petewawa. Dr. Young leaves on Saturday as before noted and will be absent two weeks. Dr. Walsh is a fully qualified practitioner. He is a nephew of the late Mr. Walsh, of the drug firm of Ormond & Walsh, and will occupy Dr. Young's office during the absence of the latter.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential. Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local. Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional. The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical gaseous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.

The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, upon nervous enjoyment, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

ORCHARD WEPT TALKING OF THE BIBLE

Was Warm Time of Murder But Tried to Avoid Appearing Excited---Says His Associate Got Soared---Disgusted at Failure

Boise, Idaho, June 14.—Orchard broke down and cried as Richardson plied him with questions as to how McParland had talked to him in the jail and told him Bible stories. Richardson plied Orchard rapidly with questions regarding the manner in which McParland secured his confession. Orchard regained his composure and answered the questions in his usual even voice.

In low tones Orchard told of his conversion, how when in the penitentiary, in thinking over his past life, he concluded to put himself out of the way, after making a clean breast of it all. He said he had come to feel that the grave did not end it all. The story was told in a hushed court room, broken only by the drone of Orchard's voice. Orchard also testified that he was a Mason when he lived in Canada and a member of the Colborne Lodge.

Boise, June 14.—The trial of William D. Haywood was resumed at 9.30 yesterday morning with Harry Orchard on the stand.

Replying to a question by Mr. Richardson, Orchard admitted he had seen Detective McParland that morning, but said the Haywood case had been discussed only casually. Orchard continued his testimony by saying that as a result of his letter to Moyer asking for money, he had received from Jack Simpkins $100, which he said Haywood had sent to him. Orchard then proceeded to trace his movements prior to his second visit to Caldwell, which was made in November, 1905.

He was accompanied by Simpkins. They attempted to kill Steunenberg, but did not succeed. Simpkins, Orchard said, "got scared" and went back home to Wallace.

MADE FATAL BOMB.

This was about December 1, 1905, and Orchard had not seen him since. Simpkins had helped him to make the bomb which, with some changes, was used to kill Steunenberg.

Orchard also left Caldwell after the failure of the attempt with Simpkins. He telephoned Bill Easterly of Silver City, asking him if he did not want to come over to Caldwell and "take part in a contract."

Easterly declined, saying he was too busy at home.

Orchard then went to Bear Lake to get a man named Sheddy to help him. Sheddy, however, could not be found.

Returning to Caldwell alone, Orchard went to the Saratoga Hotel, where he made no effect to conceal himself.

Richardson wanted to know why it was that with plenty of opportunity to kill Steunenberg on one of the governor's trips to his sheep ranches, Orchard had decided to use a bomb in the city.

"Well, I got disgusted with myself at not being able to get him, so I finally decided to use the bomb and get rid of the thing and get away," said Orchard.

"But you took the materials for a bomb when you first went to Caldwell?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you intended to use a bomb from the first?"

"Yes, sir, if the opportunity offered."

Richardson picked the witness up at the point where he began to run back to the hotel after seeing Steunenberg approach the place of his death.

NOT SO EXCITED.

"You were warm and excited when you reached the hotel weren't you?"

"I was warm, I tried not to be excited."

"You were calm enough to help the bartender tie up a bundle?"

"I held my finger on the string while he tied up a parcel."

Returning to Orchard's actions after the assassination of Steunenberg, Richardson asked if the witness had not deliberately gone to his room and scattered powder and plaster of Paris about the place.

"No," replied Orchard.

He said he came back to the hotel to clean up some things in his grip—cayenne pepper, potash, and gold.

"What were you doing with the pepper?" was asked.

"I had it to put on my shoes when necessary, so as to prevent taking up my trail by dogs."

The Beautiful Rideau Lakes

Where to Spend a Few Weeks During the Summer Months

Prominent among the many beautiful spots in Canada in which to spend the summer months, are the Rideau lakes, which for scenic effects and unrivalled purity of air are without a rival. The accessibility of the Rideau Lake route is proverbial, as either the magnificent and commodious steamers 'Rideau King" and "Rideau Queen" may be taken from Kingston at 6 a.m. on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday, and from Ottawa every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday at 2 p.m.

Kingston may be reached from Grand Trunk Railway points, or places on the Kingston and Pembroke Railway and Ontario Navigation Co. The connections with Ottawa are too numerous to give in detail. The boats on the Rideau Lake route are specially adapted to high class tourist trade, and prices are very moderate for the service rendered. In another column of this issue may be seen the advertisement of this most interesting route.

The New Steamer on Trial Trip

Yesterday the new twin screw steamer Otonabee made her maiden trip on the water that will hereafter carry this fine boat with thousands of happy excursionists aboard, with great credit both to herself and her builder. Mr. Thos. P. Thompson, the Dominion Government inspector gave the boat a thorough overhauling and pronounced her satisfactory in every particular. During the day the new steamer was given a trial trip round the Little Lake from the Wolfe street wharf and back. Her speed was all that was anticipated and even more. No hitch occurred during the trial trip, and every part of her machinery acted as though greased by the lubricant of assured success. It might be noted that almost every week day during the present season this boat is engaged.

Future Chloken Thief Arrested

Man Who Stole Eggs Will be Tried at 4 O'clock Today

High County Constable Geo. Cochrane has arrested at Belleville, and brought to the city jail a man named Johnston, wanted by the county police for some time on a charge of stealing some eggs from an Otonobee farmer. He will come up for a preliminary hearing this afternoon at four o'clock.

It will be remembered that some time ago two men were wanted by the police on this charge of stealing some eggs from a farmer in Otonobee. When the thieves heard that the police were after them, they fled. Constable Cochrane landed one of them at Belleville. The other fellow is still at liberty.

Lynx at Waterloo

Waterloo, June 14.—Last evening about six o'clock, a large lynx was seen in the garden of Mr. J. Hughes, on George street, a prominent residential street. After an exciting chase, in which half a dozen persons participated, it was shot and killed. It measured five feet five inches stretched out, stood twenty-eight inches high and weighed thirty-six pounds. This is the second one that has been shot in Waterloo county within three days, the other having been shot in Galt on Sunday.

Indemnity From States

San Francisco, June 14.—The Japanese residents of San Francisco intend to demand an indemnity from the United States Government for the alleged attack upon the Japanese restaurant and other acts of violence which they say have been inflicted on them. They hope, by diplomatic pressure to force the Washington Government to suppress anti-Japanese legislation in California.

INTERESTING POLICE NEWS

Happenings Around the Local Police Station

A local boy was charged with having committed an assault on Mable Whitley on June 9th. This boy was along with the lad fined $5 for assaulting complainant at Wednesday's session of the court. The evidence was just the same as given in detail in yesterday's issue of The Times. It will be remembered that the Whitley sisters were going home from church when the defendant followed them and tried to see them home. The boys frightened the girls so that the latter were afraid to go home and returned to the city for protection. The defendant in the box said he did not shove the boys against the girls. He did, however, follow the girls up. He was fined and paid $5.

Thos. Oldham was charged with having a female dog on which the tax had been paid. Oldham, however, had paid the tax yesterday. He was assessed $2.50 costs.

W. Simpson pleaded guilty to having been drunk and disorderly and was fined $3.

Then Cornelius Wall was charged with vagrancy. Cornelius, as noted in yesterday's issue, has lately lived a very irregular life, sleeping in boat houses. He has been in the Police Court before but no conviction was made. The Magistrate allowed him to go with a warning that if he appeared again it would mean the Central Prison for him.

BRITAIN TO RULE INDIA AS OF OLD

Secretary Morley in a Vigorous Speech Upholds Policy; Says He Has No Apology

London, June 13.—The restless condition prevailing in parts of India gave unusual interest to a statement by Mr. Morley, secretary of state for India, in introducing the Indian budget in the House of Commons today.

Morley's well known advanced radical ideas concerning domestic politics caused British imperialists to shudder when he was appointed to the India office, and specters of misrule and weakness rose before them. Their fears have been considerably allayed by Morley's recent firm dealing with certain agitators in India, but they were not prepared for the robust attitude he displayed today before parliament.
